Behind The Headlines

OTTAWA

BY DEAN WILSON

(Written for the Record)

Amongst the well-informed circles along Parliament Hill, there is much discussion about the possibility that the Dominion Government may engage in a scheme to encourage a "Back to the Land" movement as still another way to reduce the continually growing dole lists of this country. It is now pointed out that such a movement of the population would not be made in a carefree manner, nor without scientific and economic management, and it would be under the guidance and protection of the Feneral Government with the cooperation of the local authorities throughout Canada. Of course, it is not a new scheme in the Government's campaign against the scourges of national unemployment troubles, but everything indicates that new tactics and new ideas will prevail in trying to induce certain desirable types of Canadian citizens to settle and cultivate the waste lands of this country and to curb the city-ward trend of our times.

During the past seventy years, the trend of the population movements in Canada have been towards the city. The men and women from the farm, who have tasted the so-called turmoil, temptations, pleasures and pains of existence in a city or large town, have been reluctant to return to the routine of farm life, with its usually long hours of labor, its comparative isolation and its currently small [illegible] per cent of the population of Canada lived in cities and towns. In 1901, the rate was only 37 per cent. In 1928, the rural population almost equalled that of the urban population in this country, and today there is close to a million citizens of Canada more in the cities and towns than on the farms. It is obvious that the trend is city-ward, and all scientific investigations disclose that it is not likely to change, unless something happens to bring about a complete reversal of the trend of population.

Now and again, during the past seventy years of Canada's history various Governments at Ottawa, have endeavoured to encourage people to settle on the farms in this country, but it is tragic and true that most of these efforts have resulted in some sad experiences for the Governments involved and the settlers, even in recent years when "Back to the Land" movements were being tried as a means to reduce the burdens of the relief officials in the towns and cities. Large groups of individual families were shipped out in certain territories, but it is not hard to discover that many distressing stories relate the experiences of these Canadians. Before these people could adjust themselves to their new life, they suffered inhumanly from cold and hunger; many of them had been given land that was thoroughly unsuitable for any of their farming operations; they could not obtain lumber with which to build proper homes; there were cases where families did not even receive whatever aid had been promised to them prior to their departure from the towns or cities where they were receiving adequate relief; they could not possibly earn enongh money to maintain any kind of moderate standard of living to which they had become accustomed in the city or town. In other words, the whole object of the movement was defeated because these people had to depend entirely upon relief for their existence under worse conditions. It is clear that the schemes were failures in their objects and results.

In the Covernment's efforts to aid the economic conditions of the land, every recent action has emphasized that the rural population must be given greater assistance than in the past. This explains why more beneficial aid was provided for the rural sections in the recent $100,000,000 housing plan, and why there is now a dicussion of a "Back to the Land" movement, if it is considered feasible at the present time. However, any such scheme will not be carried out now in the same manner as in the past. Only desirable Canadians will be settled on the farms. The nature of this life requires that person to be a law-abiding and God-fearing citizen, who is inclined to be a lover of the soil upon which he lives and toils, contented with the fruits of his work, and who can find sufficient recreation in his occupation and immediate friends and neighbours, without seeking the so-called allurements of the city. He must not be of the kind that resort to sit-down strikes in order to increase his wages by cessation of production, nor carry into practise the foreign preachings of Fascism or Communism.

There is a very strong possibility that Federal aid will be given in a proper measure in the immediate future to the farmer in this country as prosperity amongst the agricultural community means prosperity amongst the city and town dwellers. It means increased purchasing power in the country. It means that there is a possibility of reducing the heavy dole lists. It means that sooner or later "Back to the Land" movements may indirectly be one of the main methods whereby a better economic balance is brought to the commercial life of Canada.

Nova Scotia Farm News

Issued by the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture

Creamery Butter Production

Production of creamery butter in Nova Scotia continues to show an increase over 1937. Report from the creameries for the month of July, as released from the office of the provincial dairy superintendent at Truro, shows a production of 885,321 lbs. for the month, as compared with 845,627 lbs. for July of last year, an increase of 4.69 per cent. This brings the total production for the year since January 1 to 3,926,723 lbs. compared with 3,478,865 lbs. for the same period of last year, an increase of 12.9 percent. The average Montreal No. 1 price during July was 24.73 cents compared with 25.5 cents in July last year.

Boys' and Girls' Club Elimination Contests

Elimination contests among boys' and girls' clubs to decide on representatives for the contests at the provincial exhibition at Halifax, have been held recently. During the week of July 24 these were held for Richmond and Cape Breton counties, at Johnstown and Arichat and East Bay, the judges being D. M. MacPhee, agricultural representative in Cumberland County, and Miss Munro and Miss Gunn, for girls' club work. During the week of August 7 contests were held at St. Joseph du Moine, Southwest Margaree and Judique for Inverness county, with A. B. Banks, assistant director of extension, C. M. Collins, provincial horticulturist, George L. Cook, assistant poultry promoter, and Miss Munro and Miss Gunn acting as judges. For Victoria County contest will be held at Baddeck, with A. B. Banks, Gordon Campbell, assistant representative in Cape Breton county, and Miss Munro as judges; and for Cumberland county, at Nappan experimental farm, with C. E. Boulden, provincial animal husbandman, and Miss Gunn as judges.

Crop Conditions

Weather conditions throughout the province have continued very unsatisfactory for haying and harvesting operations. Heavy rains have continued to fall over most sections of the province although there have been some good hay days which have been made the fullest use of by farmers. Even yet in most districts at least half the hay has yet to be harvested and early fields of grain are already ripening with a few cut in the western and central parts of the province. Hay thus far has kept fairly green in the bottom but much damage has been done due to the wet weather and in many instances cut fields laying out for a week and even two weeks. Grain generally over the province looks well but there is much lodging and considerable rust. Early fields cut promise good yields.

Potatoes have got a very heavy growth of vines. Late blight has developed in some fields in the central and northern shore districts. There is also considerable development in many fields of virus diseases. Early potatoes are giving good yields. Should late blight not develop too far the promise is for a good crop. Spraying though has been very badly handicapped on many fields due to the heavy rains. Mangel and turnip fields are developing well in spite of difficulty experienced in proper cultivation and weeding.

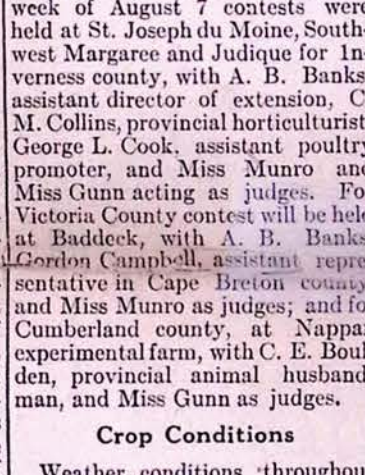

Army Worms

Reports from various parts of the province would indicate that the danger from army worm damage is about over for this season, except possibly in some isolated cases and that the insects have practically all pupated at least in earlier parts of the province and it is not anticipated that there will be any severe damage from now on. On the whole the damage has not been as severe as in 1937, due partly to weather conditions causing heavy green growth, and partly to the fact that the farmers, realizing the danger of the pest, took action early in the season to institute control measures.

A Nun, Native of River Bourgeois, Assigned to Work in the Foreign Field

Maryknoll, N. Y.—Sister Miriam Regis Boudreau, one of nineteen Maryknoll Sisters recently assigned to mission posts, is now visiting her father, Mr. Maurice Boudreau of St. Peter's, N. S. She is the only Sister missioned this year to Manchukuo, where there are already twenty-seven Maryknoll Sisters in seven missions. The trip from Cape Breton to the Manchukuo peninsula will be the longest mission voyage taken by any of the Sisters assigned this year. Five Sisters go to Korea, four to China, three to Hawaii and six to Oriental missions on the Pacific Coast.

Sister Miriam Regis Boudreau was born in River Bourgeois, N, S, and received her education in St. Peter's, N. S. and in Buffalo, N. Y. She entered the Maryknoll Sisters' Novitiate here in 1935 and made her first vows last January.

In Manchukuo the main emphasis in the work of the Maryknoll Sisters is on the visitation of native women in their homes and in providing religious instruction to those who seek to become Christians and ask for baptism. This work is supplemented through schools, dispensaries, an orphanage, a home for the aged. Under the direction of the Sisters, groups of women and girls are trained to serve as lay leaders and teachers among their own people.

Beginning their work in 1912, when three young women offered their services to the mission cause, the Maryknoll Sisters now have forty-eight missions in seven countries. The total personnel, including the 65 missioners-in-training in the Novitiate, is now 565. Affiliated with the Dominican Order, their official title is the Foreign Mission Sisters of St. Dominic, Inc.

News Parade

Commentary on the Highlights of the Week's News . . . By Elizabeth Eedy

SUNDAY COMPANY: Take a drive through Eastern or Western Ontario's agricultural areas of a Sunday afternoon, and what do you see in every farm lane? Two or three swank cars standing empty after bringing a load of visitors from the city or nearest big town to sponge on their poor farmer friends and relatives for the day. And there you see the company, rocking back and forth on the verandah chairs while the farmer's wife, up since dawn, slaves in the kitchen in mortal fear lest the table won't "groan" enough to suit those limitless city-bred appetites, always ready for another meal.

Sweet are the uses of hospitality but they can't stand too much strain. If the farmers of Ontario were not such out-and-out individuals, they would long ago have risen up in a body to protest against their Sundays being taken away from them in such inconsiderate fashion.

But even though the farmer may never go on strike for a free Sunday, some day he will murder the occupants of the first car to turn into his lane of a Sabbath morn. And the jury will acquit him . . . .

SENATE KILLED IT: The people of Canada felt that at last they were getting some action, when, following the report of the Royal Commission probe into the Dominion's prisons, the Government gave notice of its intention to carry out some of the recommended reforms, to establish a three-man Commission to administer Canada's penal system. But the Senate killed the bill as it was rushed through on the final day of the parliamentary session.

Prison reform in Canada is thus given an indefinite setback because our parliamentarians were in a hurry to get away for the holiday.

A GRIM LAUGH: Vociferous protests from the British people led by the parliamentary Opposition caused Prime Minister Chamberlain last week to make a real fuss about the consistent bombing of British ships by insurgent airmen in Spain (55 British vessels have been sunk in two years with corresponding loss of life).

But the ironic part of it is that Mr. Chamberlain asked Mussolini to ask Franco to stop the bombings, when everybody knew that Italian planes were responsible for the outrages! A laugh indeed, but a grim one.

FEELING THE PINCH: Pulling in her belt another notch at home last week, Japan is preparing for the greater and greater strain which is sure to be felt as the Chinese war keeps on. War essentials are now rationed (no more cotton cloth or iron products may be manufactured for domestic use); imports, save of war materials, are curtailed; the government is controlling prices of commodities.

Says Japanese War Minister Itagaki: "The war will continue a long time. Chiang Kai-shek may attempt to continue hostilities throughout his lifetime and as long as Chiang continues, Japan must continue. Consequently, it is necessary that the Japanese resolve to continue fighting at least ten years."

Political observers are practically unanimous in their view that, at the rate she is now going, Japan cannot possibly last those ten years.

BUMPER CROP: Hold your breath now lest something happen to spoil Western Canada's chances for a bumper wheat crop this year. At the moment, everything is all set for the fulfilment of our Prairie farmers' best hopes, moisture conditions being just right.

The next two weeks will be decisive ones. Better times for all of Canada will result if present crop conditions hold.

NEXT OBJECTIVE: Poor little neutral Switzerland is shivering in her shoes. Within her borders dwell 3,000,000 German-speaking people, a juicy bite for Herr Hitler whose avowed purpose is to unite all the German race into one nation. Switzerland shivers in spite of the assurance given by Berlin last week that no German troops would march through her territority in event of war. One reason why she quakes: German Field Marshal Goring recently published in his "National Zeitung" a map of Greater Germany, prepared by Reich propagandists for school use, which pictured practically the whole of Switzerland as belonging to the Reich. The Swiss frontier is "the boundary of the internal separation of the German people," announced Goring's news-sheet and claimed Switzerland's 3,000,000 Germans as "exiled citizens of the German Reich".

In France, however, the belief is current that the next Hitler "putsch" (now that Czechoslovakia has him stopped for the time being) will result in the annexation of Danzig. The capture of this Baltic port would be an easy walk-over, would restore Hitler's flagging prestige.

Expect developments in that direction, then, not many week-ends off.

A Good Voice Is An Asset

An Unpleasant One Spoils the Whole Effect Otherwise Produced by One's Personality.

It's a mistake for any girl to work hard to improve her figure, hair, skin and her taste in clothes but ignore completely the fact that she has an improperly placed, unpleasant voice. Because, no matter how attractive she is, unless her voice has a fascinating effect on others, they just aren't going to listen to her—not for long anyway.

To say that a girl has a nice voice doesn't necessarily mean that she has a low voice. It can be high and still be pleasant to the ear.

Breathe Correctly

One good way to begin a voice-improvement campaign is to do a breathing exercise regularly until you breathe correctly all of the time without thinking about it.

Do practice speaking slowly and enunciating correctly. Nothing is worse on anyone's nerves than having to listen to a woman who rattles on, slurring words together and speaking so rapidly that half she says can't be understood at all.

The exercise to correct bad speech is as simple as the breathing exercise that will tend to improve the voice. Just read aloud for fifteen minutes every day. Go to your room, close the door, then read. Listen to yourself and try

Farmer's Utopia

Not For Him

And then there is the story of the motoring fiend who had his first ride in a trailer. He nearly went mad because he couldn't pass the car in front. —Toronto Saturday Night.

Where The Taxes Go

Where some of our taxes go: To pay interest charges on the public debt of Canada, makes necessary a weekly outlay of $2,750,000. Try working that out in days and minutes.—Niagara Ralls Review.

Sometime We'll Learn

The Highway Traffic Act now makes it clear that passing vehicles on the right are prohibited, and no exception is made in respect of street intersections, but the news does not seem to have got around.

Public Service Its Purpose

This is something The Journal has sought to emphasize all along; the clear fact that interest on the national investment in the Canadian National Railways is and must be in resulting public service; just as the interest on investments in many other public works—aids to navigation, harbors, post offices, etc.—is and must be in public service. In other words, to put the thing briefly, transportation, in a land such as Canada, is a basic and essential government function—its cost a part of the cost of government; of the national existence.—Ottawa Journal.

The Dictionary Says So

Those who lost money some years ago betting that "transpire" didn't mean "sweat," are now being asked to lose some more by people who say they can produce dictionary authority for accenting the noun "envelope" on the second syllable. And they can. Funk and Wagnall, Century and the New Imperial give this as the preferred accent. As for pronouncing the first "e" like the "a" in "alms", some authorities favor that too, but the Oxford English dictionary, while admitting it is permissible, says there is no good reason for giving this French sound to a word that has been Anglicized in spelling nearly 200 years.—Toronto Star.

Not "News"

We just thought we'd tell you that: There are 48 nations in the world still at war. A large number of autoists drove safely and courteously through Vancouver streets yesterday. Several million Canadians are working and drawing regular pay cheques. We saw people laughing this morning. The mangle-wurtzel crop is good this year. Most people really like spinach. A girl and boy sat on a Victory Square bench at lunch-time yesterday, and lost track of the world around them as they looked in each other's eyes. This isn't news, but we thought we'd tell you. Sometimes we get so fed up with news that we like to stop and think of things like these. — Vancouver Sun.

Tools For Peace Construction

It is reported that when the League Council assembled on the last day of its recent session at Geneva a spectator in the gallery stood up and shouted: "I speak for the people of Europe! Long live Peace! Long live the League and the United States of Europe!" He was promptly ejected by detectives. In the circumstances, perhaps, this was wise; for the 101st session of the Council will surely go down on record as the most depressing in its history. In considering the present sickness of the League, however, it is important to distinguish between cause and effect. The cause, as has often been pointed out, is no fault in the organization or principles of the League but the weakness and stupidity of its members. So when, recently, the Council rejected Spain's appeal, gave but cold comfort to China, and encouraged the abandonment of Abyssinia, these were the failures of Governments and, in particular, of the Governments of Britain and France. Such failures may be disastrous, but they need not directly affect the structure of the League of Nations. In time new and different Governments will be elected to power which, by using the same tools as those now thrown down, will construct peace in Europe.—Manchester Guardian.

What Science * Is Doing *

DRUG ATTACKS PNEUMONIA

LONDON, England. — A drug that attacks pneumonia by breaking down the capsules or shells of the bacteria and allowing the white blood corpuscles to vanquish the organisms points the way to a new line of medical research, experts believe.

Two physicians at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, reporting in the Lancet, describe results of pneumonia treatment with a new member of the so-called "sulphanilamide group" of drugs, "M and B 693", named after the makers, May and Baker.

NORTHERN LIGHTS MAKE NOISES

Many persons have claimed they could hear sounds from the heavens during displays of northern lights, but most of the observers were without scientific training. A report by Professor Carl Stormer, of the Institute of Theoretical Astrophysics, Norway, states that during the great auroral display on January 25 and 26 members of his staff distinctly heard sounds which they associated with the movement of the white beams in the lights, and reports from outside observers confirm their findings.

LISTEN TO BLOOD STREAM

HAMILTON.—Medical men attending a clinic at the General Hospital here saw a demonstration of an amplified stethoscope, a new instrument which actually "broadcasts" movements of the organs of the body and the blood stream.

The demonstration was one of the features of a two-day program.

VACCINATION FOR CANCER

TORONTO.—Vaccination against experimental cancer is being successfully carried out in the laboratories of the department of medical research, University of Toronto, in the Banting Institute. To date it has been proved effective in mice, against chemically induced cancer and will have to be tried out on monkeys when further developed.

After that, its application to human beings would be considered, Dr. W. R. Franks, assistant professor in charge of the work, says.

NEW ELEMENT TOO ELUSIVE

TORONTO.—The chances of man ever discovering or seeing the element "illinium," one of the few missing links in the table of elements, have vanished.

Dr. T. R. Wilkins, of the University of Rochester, Rochester, N.Y., told the American Physical Society meeting here last month that a new method of precise chemical analysis indicates the element either does not exist or at most comes into existence and vanishes again in a few millionths of a second.

Illinium has been the most elusive of the elements and was so named by a group of University of Illinois physicists who made the nearest approach to isolating and identifying it. It is one of the so-called "rare earths," samarium and neodymium being its nearest neighbours.

Crop Outlook Is Favorable For Ontario

Department of Agriculture Report Shows Bountiful Harvest for Most of Province; Damaged Tobacco Replanted.

TORONTO.—Spring rains and warm weather have brought promise of good crops in most parts of the province, the Ontario Department of Agriculture announces.

The report says: "A new industry in the form of an alfalfa dehydration plant is in full swing in the Oakville district. This plant is merchandising approximately 20 tons per day."

Look Promising

North Simcoe reported that frequent and heavy rains in the past two weeks "have promoted very rapid growth," although damage was heavy in the north part of the county from a recent storm. Prince Edward County, in Central Ontario, reported that "all crops look promising."

"Hay crop is looking very good as we have had plenty of rain, but the grain crop is probably damaged by a little too much rain," the department's representative in Cochrane said. The report added that "all crops, however, looking better than average."

Abundant Feed

Pastures in Middlesex County generally are in excellent condition with abundant feed for all kinds of livestock. Spring grains there will have a fair length of straw while corn and roots "are rather backward because of cool weather, but in most instances are a good stand."

Britain is aiding emigration to Australia.

The Human Skin Is Illness Clue

Doctors Foretell Course of Disease by Its Elasticity

Ability of the human skin to stretch is a newly discovered prognosticator of death or recovery in several serious diseases.

The methods of using skin stretch, worked out at Tulane University school of medicine, were reported to the American Medical Association by William A. Soderman, M.D., and George Burch, M.D.

When It Tightens

The skin, which doctors call "the outer defense of the body," changes its elasticity during disease. The change is connected with alterations in the pressure of body tissues. The Tulane physicians have worked out methods of measuring both skin stretch and tissue pressure and of using them to foretell the course of illness before the patient himself feels a change.

In disease the skin tightens; the tissue pressure rises. In health the abdomen skin has the greatest elasticity, six times as much as that of the shin bone, and twice as much as the skin on the back of the hand.

The pressure in the tissues of the back of the hand is equal to a column of water half an inch deep. From this low it ranges up to an inch-and-a-half of water for leg tissues. But in some diseases these tissue pressures are multiplied up to 10 or 15-fold.

The diseases are heart edema, kidney troubles, pernicious anemia, peritonitis, pregnancy toxemias, malnutrition and sclerodema. The latter is the "steel skin" described by Sir William Osler. The skin loses all its elasticity, until fingers cannot bend and finally it cracks.

Australia Boasts Underground P.O.

ADELAIDE, Australia.—Philatelists (stamp collectors) are just beginning to take a marked interest in Coober Pedy, the remote South Australian opal field, because it possesses the only underground post office in the world. The prospectors live in "rooms" dug into the soft earth of the low sandstone hills. Here, too, is their bank and their post office.

Recent issues of stamp journals carry articles dealing with the unique interest of covers bearing the postmark of Coober Pedy, which is the aboriginal name for white man's burrow. It has been suggested that specially decorated covers should be made available for use on Coober Pedy's international air mail.

A. N. MITCHELL

Chosen as the new President of the Canada Life Assurance Company, Mr. A. N. Mitchell, of Toronto, still in his early fifties, is one of the most brilliant of the younger insurance men in America. Only last month he was elected President of the Life Insurance Officers of Canada.

Mr. Mitchell has had a diversified career, starting out as a school teacher, branching out into newspaper work, then joining the staff of the Manufacturers' Life as advertising manager in 1921. He remained with the Manufacturers for ten years, rising to the position of Assistant Secretary of the company. In 1911 he joined the Federal Life in Hamilton, was appointed General Manager the following year.

When the Federal was absorbed by the Sun Life in 1915, Mr. Mitchell joined the Canada Life as an Assistant Superintendent. In 1926 he became Assistant General Manager; General Manager, 1930; Vice-President, 1935.

In the period during which he has been General Manager of Canada Life, the country has passed through very difficult times. Mr. Mitchell had a tough job, but he has done it well. His sound conservatism, his great energy and capacity for work have been invaluable assets, will continue to aid him in a distinguished career.

THE WONDERLAND OF OZ

"That's the way to talk!" cried the gnome King. "What is your name, general?" "I am called Guph, your Majesty." "Well, Guph," said the King, "come with me to my private cave and we'll talk it over." Then he turned to the army. "You are to obey the commands of General Guph until he becomes dog feed," he said. "Any man who fails to obey will be thrown away. You are now dismissed."

Guph went to the King's private cave and sat down upon the King's chair. Then he lit his pipe and threw the live coal he had taken from his pocket upon the King's left foot and puffed smoke into the King's eyes, making him ver uncomfortable. For he was a wise old gnome and he knew that the best way to get along with the King was to show him that he was not afraid of him.

"I am ready to talk," he said. The King looked at his new general fiercely. "Do you not tremble to take such liberties with your Monarch?" he asked. "Oh, no," said Guph. "You want to conquer the Emerald City and I am the only gnome in all your dominions who can do it, so you will be very careful not to hurt me until I have carried out your wishes."

"But suppose you fail?" asked the King. "Then it's the slicing machine. I agree to that," announced Guph. "But if you do as I tell you there will be no failure. The trouble with you, King, is that you don't think enough. You would go ahead and march your army through the tunnel into Oz and get defeated. I won't. And the reason I won't is because when I march I will have a host of allies to assist us."

There are few families left who are so far behind the times that they still enjoy the simple things of life.

Native—No, sir, only babies.

Little Nature Studies

There are a lot of funny things
About Dame Nature and her flings.
Now a fly, with greatest ease,
Lights on doggy's nose, then flees;
But a flea can't fly away,
Because it isn't built that way.
So to flee it has to jump
To get away from Fido's rump.
It seems hardly fair to me,
Since a fly can't flit and flee,
That a flea can't fly and flit
When the dog grows tired of it.

The Worm May Turn

One of the most important branches of scientific work being undertaken in Canada today is the research on parasitic worms, which is well into its initial stages at the Institute of Parasitology, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, P. Q., says G. T. S. Calder, writing in the current issue of the C-I-L Oval. Parasitic worms, which are in no way related to the earthworm or the lug worm, do an enormous amount of damage to livestock and probably form the greatest single source of loss in Canada. Work to date which has involved the carrying out of over 12,000 experiments, indicates that the most likely means of ridding Canada of the menace of these worms, many millions of which are swallowed during the lifetime of grazing animals, will be through the use of chemical fertilizer.

THE DARK RIVER

By Nordhoff and Hall

Messrs. Nordhoff and Hall's last novel, "The Hurricane", made a most popular "movie," and you can have considerable fun casting this new work, "The Dark River," for it will be gobbled up by Hollywood faster than you can say Dorothy Lamour.

Laid in the setting which these gentlemen may rightfully claim as their own private literary background—Tahiti, "The Dark River" is one of their more sentimental works, concerned with polite Polynesians far removed from the rough characters of the "Mutiny on the Bounty" story, and abounding in lofty romance and quiet, discreet emotional conflicts.

A Lovely Nature

The story is based upon a familiar and perennially effective device—that of one woman, a native Polynesian in this case, appropriating the infant daughter of another, an Englishwoman who dies at childbirth, and bringing the child up as her own. The authors thus create a lovely daughter of lush Tahitian nature, wandering among the glades and tropical streams of the island with the abandon and dark beauty of a native girl, but with pure English blood in her veins, a fact comforting somehow to Nordic readers. The love story of the girl is the main theme of the book.

When the collaborators on this novel write of the natives, of the storms and primitive life on the deserted islands, they catch some of the sturdy vitality of their earlier adventure books. Their novel has enough momentum of events and energy of characterization, too, to make it easily digested.

Salmon Not So Smart, He Says

Salmon which breed in the headwaters of fresh water streams and spend their adult life in the sea are not as smart as they have been supposed to be, says Dr. A. G. Huntsman, of the University of Toronto.

It has always been believed that salmon swim far out to sea and then find their way back to the same tiny stream in which they were born with the accuracy of a homing pigeon, he declares.

Actually, the fish must remain within the fresh water area where a river empties into the sea or they become lost and never return, Dr. Huntsman declares. The return migrations from the sea to fresh water also depend largely on floods or freshets which give the fish their cue to start up the rivers again.

Our House of Commons might do well to take a tip from New York, where public speakers and after-dinner raconteurs are likely to be controlled by "traffic signals".

If the speaker's voice is indistinct, a blue light flickers on the control; if too high, a red light glows; a steady green glow means "okay for sound".

Health In Secondary Schools

How Are Canadian Teen Age Boys And Girls To Keep Fit?

V—HOW TO AVOID TUBERCULOSIS

By Dr. Norman Russell
St. Mary's Hospital, Timmins, Ont.

The following article, in a brief way, will try to outline what I consider the best method of controlling tuberculosis. In order to appreciate and intelligently carry out any campaign against tuberculosis one must have at least a working knowledge of the pathology of the condition.

(1) Every individual who lives under the ordinary conditions of civilization is infected after birth and at some period between birth and adult life with the tubercle bacillus. (2) Such infection, although it produces a definite body reaction, is not necessarily followed by disease. (3) In the vast majority of cases the individual deals successfully with the infection and all that remains is a minute scar. (4) In a certain percentage of cases, however, manifest disease occurs at a later date, this being due to re-infection by the tubercle bacillus either from within or from without and this re-infection is commonly preceded by a lowered resistance on the part of the individual.

Control Active Disease

It is obvious from the above that we can have very little hope of avoiding contact with the tubercle bacillus throughout life. Therefore our efforts must be directed to controlling the amount of active disease and consequent deaths from this all-invading organism.

From invasion by the tubercle bacillus which is ubiquitous there is no escape. Sooner or later everyone is infected and if the primary lesion occurs in early life and the dose is massive the patient succumbs. If on the other hand the primary lesion heals and perhaps succeeding small lesions heal without any manifestation of disease then the individual's resisting power will be gradually raised to a point where he will be protected under any ordinary circumstances for the rest of his life.

First Act of the Drama

Therefore it is perfectly apparent that the solution of adult tuberculosis depends almost entirely on the study of tuberculosis in children. It is in the children that we see played the first act of the drama of tuberculosis which may go on to adult tuberculosis unless the patient dies of some other condition or we are fortunate enough to control it.

It is an established fact that the death rate from tuberculosis is decreasing. It has gradually decreased from first place to sixth place as the cause of death in all the age groups. But we must remember that tuberculosis is still by far the leading cause of death amongst adolescents and young adults.

Methods in Preventive Work

Bearing all the above points in mind it can be readily seen that the schools should be the centre of preventive work in tuberculosis. It is not suggested that the schools should be burdened with any more than they now have on their hands but it is perfectly obvious that the school is the logical point of attack. The question of ordinary hygiene is taught in all our schools and undoubtedly is a factor in control and also the habit of spitting is a bad one and the question of bad housing conditions plays an important part in the spread of tuberculosis. All these things, however, are secondary to an intelligent tuberculosis survey of your children carried out year by year.

The method I would suggest is as follows:

(1) Get the co-operation of either the Medical Health Officer or if he seems indifferent, find some medical man who is vitally interested in children.

(2) Enlist the services of your school nurses and also district nurses in making the survey.

(3) Buy your tuberculin in quantities large enough to do your whole group.

(4) Get the written permission of the parents to have the test done.

(5) Do an intracutaneous tuberculin test on each child from the kindergarten up to the top forms in the high school.

World Of Today Needs A System

Of Collective Security—More So Than Ever Says Canadian Legation Counsellor, Dr. Riddell.

The world today needs a collective system more than ever, Dr. W. A. Riddell, counsellor at the Canadian Legation, Washington, declared last week in addressing the final session of the conference on Canadian-American relations at Orono, Maine. If enough nations wanted that system, they could get it.

Former permanent Canadian representative at the League of Nations in Geneva, Dr. Riddell said he was convinced where the League and affiliated organizations failed it was due to "the irreconcilable attitude of a few of the powerful shareholders to the principles and policies of the company."

Only Permanent Foundations

These nations "either did not want peace or they did not believe the words of President Cleveland that 'mutual advantage and convenience are the only permanent foundations of peace and friendship between states'."

As the years passed, said Dr. Riddell, the original inheritance of Canada and the United States, their machinery for settling disputes and their voluntary agencies "have paid substantial dividends which has greatly enriched our heritage of goodwill." Such a heritage made the two countries good neighbors.

This could not be said of many countries. In many parts of the world, the heritage of the past was the greatest stumbling block to good neighborliness. Their experience justified fear, suspicion and distrust.

In Sweden's new reformatory at Skena each boy has his own room with comfortable furniture, a playroom has games and radio, no walls surround the building, and windows are not barred.

"No talking pictures may be shown in church," declared Dr. R. G. Parson, Bishop of Southwark in provisional regulations for his diocese in England, but he will permit approved silent films.

Hogs Tattoed Before Shipping

ALVINSTON, Ont. — Under a new ruling which went into effect in June, all hogs shipped from the counties of Lambton, Huron, Kent and Essex must be tattooed by the shipper, prior to being sent to the packing houses for slaughter.

For years, since the Grading Act has been in force, it has been the custom, generally, for a buyer to purchase the farmers' hogs at the pen, the shipper doing the grading.

...Gardening Notes...

KEEPING CUT FLOWERS FRESH

With garden flowers plentiful at this time, junior gardeners will be interested to know how to keep them fresh after they have been cut. The first and most important step is to cut carefully. Flowers should never be pulled or broken from their stalks, but cut with a clean, slanting cut. This can be done with a sharp knife, or a pair of specially constructed scissors which do not pinch the stems as do ordinary shears. Cutting the flowers on the slant prevents the stems from resting flat upon the bottom of the container, thus closing the many tiny cells.

Most flowers should be picked in the early morning before the heat of the sun robs them of their moisture. However, according to an announcement made by Cornell University, gladioli, when cut in early afternoon, last longer. They may be cut when the first flower on the spike begins to open. Most flowers should be gathered just when the bud is unfolding, although dahlias last longer if cut when fully open. This is also true of crysanthemums. mums.

Don't Crowd Them

Any leaves which have a tendency to decay in water should be removed. Keep the flowers for a few hours immediately after cutting and before arranging in a container of water deep enough to allow the water to come just below the flower parts. This treatment also often revives flowers which appear to have wilted. The water should be changed daily and a piece of the stem cut off. This helps to preserve the flower. An ice cube dropped into the water two or three times a day also is beneficial. Flowers, just as human beings, need air to breathe, so do not crowd them tightly in a narrow container.

CLOTHES PINS IN THE GARDEN

When cutting a new edge for flower bed or lawn, or truing up an old edge, use a string or cord rather than rely upon the accuracy of your eye. In spite of his years of experience a professional gardener will always "run a string" to keep his edges straight.

Common clothes pins can be very useful in holding the string or cord in place. Even though the cord may be tightly run from end stake to end stake, one is apt to move the cord back and forth with the edging tool, unless it is pinned in place at frequent intervals, with clothes pins.

This same method of using stakes, string and clothes pins can be employed for planting straight rows of seeds in the home vegetable garden.

THEY SPROUT THEIR SEEDS

Interesting customs of the enterprising Dutch gardeners might be followed by gardeners elsewhere who wish to speed germination of seeds.

According to a plant breeder who came to this country from the Netherlands, the Hollanders place seeds in a cloth bag and hang the bag in a nearby canal overnight. The bag is taken out and hung for 48 hours in the cow barn, where it is warm. By this time the seed has sprouted and it is broadcast by hand in the garden plot.

Gardeners need not, of course, hunt up a canal or build a cow barn, but they may hang the seeds overnight in any water-filled container, then place the bag in a warmer place for two days and nights. This practice is especially recommended for beets, carrot and spinach seed.

Rival belles invented this supposedly modern business of "undeclared war" thousands of years ago.

"The clothes make the man." Make him what? Make him wish he did't have to wear 'em of recent days.

One thing for motorists to cut out is cutting in.

What a fruity situation there's going to be seen in this province, with the Northern Spies watching the McIntosh Reds, and the Baldwins (or ones) watching the Pippins.

It's to be hoped that Doc. Manion and Doc. Robb, his new organizer, get together on this business of finding out what ails Miss Conservative and what's the medicine she needs—reform pills or a stiff dose of the old Tory bitters. For "who shall decide when doctors disagree?"

Pioneer youth spent much of its time cutting down. Modern youth spends much of its time cutting up. The pioneers razed the trees; the moderns raise the dickens.

A man really shouldn't be too upset when people treat him badly. Think of that great ocean-constantly double-crossed and still pacific.

Premier King is said to have offered Hon. Mr. Bennett a seat in the Senate. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the keen swordsman, and Mr. Bennett, the heavy hitter,---what a combination the Conservatives would have in the Upper House. But who would be the leader?

The most common excuse given for accidents and near accidents on the highways is: "I was thinking about something else", says a contemporary. The lesson to be learned is that driving, particularly on busy highways, calls for complete concentration. If one becomes tired of driving, it is wise to stop the car, relax for a few minutes, then return behind the wheel, refreshed.

Many a man, looking back on his life, is thankful for his prayers which were not answered; including his prayers to the bank to increase that loan.

Speaking of public utilities, it was hardly kind of a visitor to refer to our electric power plant as a public futility.

After all, the dignities conferred upon a man by church or by state amount to little unless he can preserve the true dignity and the simplicity and the kindliness of heart which make him beloved by his people, who see that he is following the footsteps of Him whom he has sworn to serve. A man such as this, no matter what denomination he may be connected with, can do much by a simple, kindly life, by his charity, and by his good example to bring people Christianity.

The visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to France recently may be said to ratify the union of the British and French peoples to meet an immediate peril to their national existence and the liberties of the world. France is a republic and Britain a constitutional monarchy and they differ widely in language, religion and customs. They have this in common, that they both cherish the great principles of freedom and representative government.

Dr. Stanley MacKenzie, Ex-President of Dalhousie University and presently chairman of the Provincial Economic Council, with Mr. Creighton and Mr. Haythorn, member and secretary, respectively, of the Council, were in town last week making study of the natural resources of Inverness and its environs. They were accompanied by Dr. Allan Cameron, Deputy Minister of Mines, and J. C. F. MacDonnell, of the marketing branch of the Agricultural Department. They were favourably impressed with nature's gifts to this part of the province, which they felt are capable of enhancing the welfare of the people, very materially, if properly developed.

A second section of the highway, in this County, that from Margaree Forks to Margaree Harbour, about eight miles, approximately, is under contract to the Standard Paving Co. The work of preparing this section for paving was commenced last week and with anything like favourable weather it is expected to have the grading completed before winter sets in. With the section between Port Hawkesbury and Craigmore, this will make, approximately, twenty miles being conssructed in Inverness County this summer. Leading, as it does, to the National Park and the Cabot Trail, which are becoming so popular with tourists, there is no doubt that work on the entire line from Hawkesbury to Cheticamp will be pushed to completion, with vigor.

Two of our townsmen, Councillor Patrick Hannigan and Joseph MacDonald, left last Monday for Boston and other points in the New England States, where they will visit for two or three weeks. They are choosing a pleasant time of the year for their holiday, which no doubt, they will enjoy. Mr. MacDonald is a brother of Premier MacDonald.

The Department of Mines is at present making an extensive geological survey of the coal measures in and around the town of Inverness. In addition to a surface party of engineers, a diamond drill is being operated down in No 1 Mine, with a view to locating and proving the extent of seams known to underlie those now being worked. Such a survey will, no doubt, have a marked effect in determining, for better or for worse, the future of Inverness as a mining community.

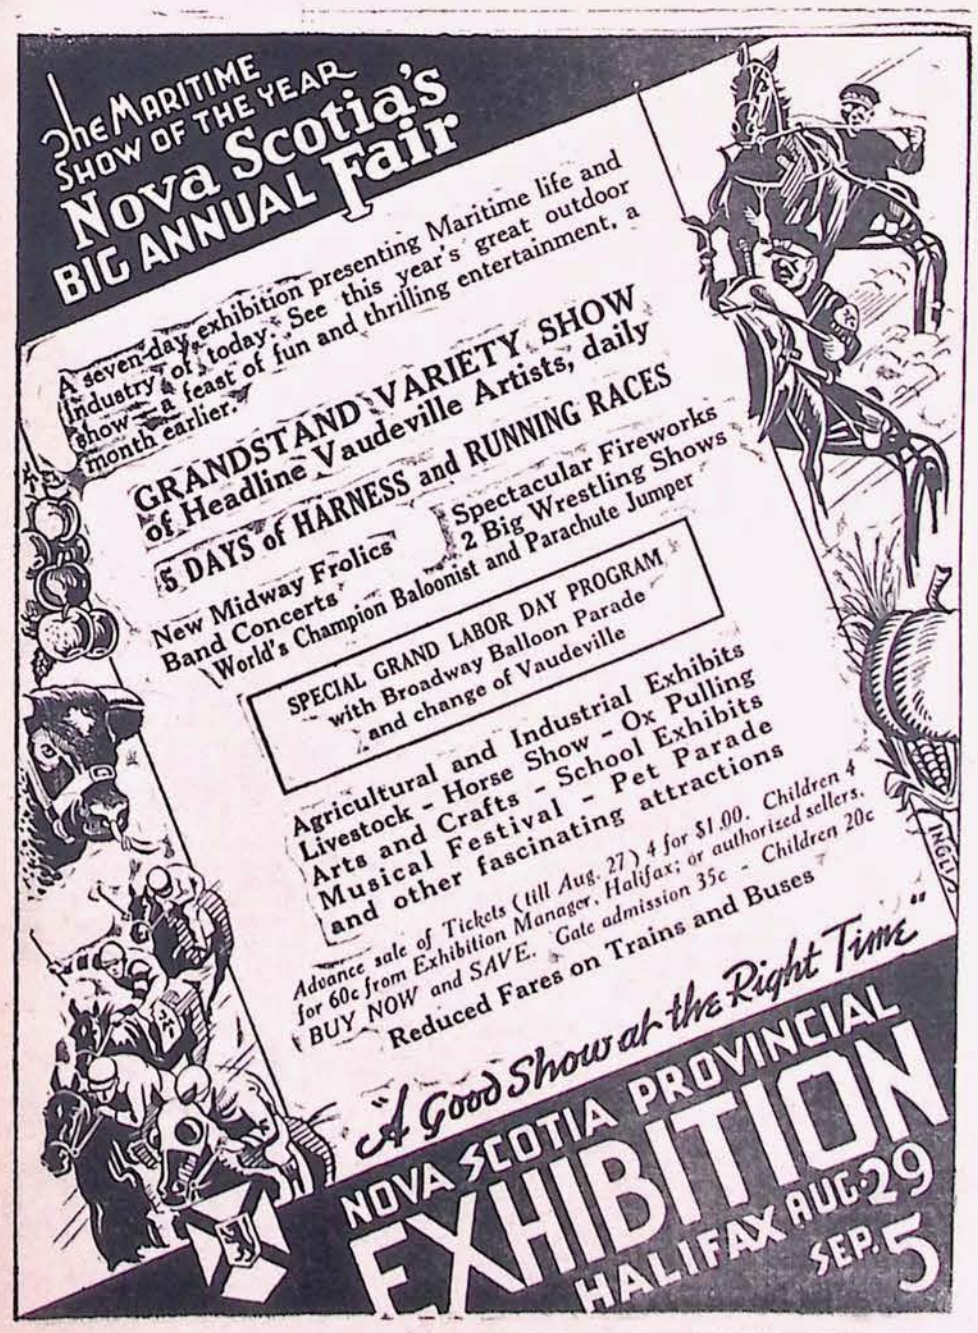

Mayor, Dr. Ratchford, accompanied by Town Clerk, Joseph LeBlanc, left last Monday for Prince Edward Island, to attend the Exhibition and horse races being held at Cherlottetown, this week. A trip to the "Garden of the Gulf" is a pleasant one at anytime and with the added attractions offered this week, our Mayor and Town Clerk should be in for an enjoyable holiday.

Francis McKinnon, who for the past four years has been employed in the Gold Mines of Ontario and Quebec, left last Thursday for Larder Lake, Ontario, after spending a few weeks in Inverness, visiting his father, H. P. McKinnon, and brother, A. H. McKinnon, L. L. B. He reports work as being quite brisk in and around the gold mines, but not sufficiently so to absorb all the labor offering. One advantage held by the gold mines is that their product is always in demand, whereas our coal mines are very much hampered this year by a lack of demand for their product.

The bathing beach at Inverness, considered to be one of the finest in the province, is proving very popular with devotees of sea bathing this summer. A reason for this is that the Highway Department, through representations made by the Inverness Community Development Association, opened a road to it about two months ago. Although not fully completed cars can travel over the road with ease, making the beach, which is about a half mile from the main street, much more accessible than it has heretofore been. Many tourists have availed themselves of the opportunity to have a dip in the 'briney' and have expressed themselves as delighted with it.

James Ryan arrived home recently from Kenora, Ont., on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Ryan, River Street. Mr. Ryan, who is employed in the Gold Mines states that there are a great many young men from Inverness County finding steady and profitable employment in the hard rock mines of Ontario and Quebec. He expects to return in about a week.

They were the guests of Capt and Mrs Charles LeBlanc until Wednesday, when they returned to Moncton.

The 1938 automobile is a marvel of speed, power and safety, but the 1938 pedestrian is the same plodding individual he was 100 years ago. He hasn't any all-steel body; nor has nature streamlined him so he can move any faster in this age of speed. He has one advantage, however, if he will use it. He can make up for his slow feet by his quick wits. He can avoid making the same mistake which brought death to many pedestrians and injury to many others last year on Nova Scotia's streets and highways.

Speaking to a group of weekly publishers at Dundalk Miss Agnes Macphail, M P., said: "I think the weekly papers are THE important papers. They are folksey, unhurried and not sentimental." She stated that she reads all the local papers and enjoys them, as they are close to the people. Continuing, Miss Macphail stated: "The weekly newspapers do give leadership in projects, movements, and the things that need doing." She warned against the false god of following the cities, and stated that the weekly papers could make a great contribution to the rural communities, "for we are on the verge of a re-awakening of rural life."

AS TO GERMANY

To the Editor of The Record.

Sir: In my opinion there has been altogether too much criticism of Germany. This great nation has been the victim of malicious propaganda for the past 40 years. Anti-semitism originated, in its modern form, in Germany long before Hitler was thought of. The very fact that so many Jews have won to high positions proves that Hitler's methods are justified. The Jews, a minority, were forcing the Germans in their own country to take second place.

Germany was always a militaristic country because of its geographical position, hence its comparatively strict discipline. That seems to be the main difference between it and other countries.

The Germans have a traditional quarrel with the church, as Bismarck's "Kulturkampf" can prove. Bismarck's theory was that the church represented civilzation. So the organized church represented a fight against civilization.

The Aryan superiority myth started in Germany long before the war, and Hitler isn't altogether responsible for that. Germany has been accused of being a materialistic country, neglecting spiritual things, but we have only to look at our own country to question whether it's not more materialism that we want, Materialism is solid; spiritualism is evasive.

It is true that Germany is poor, but how could it be otherwise when the country has just managed to survive the most destructive war in history? Labor unions are barred because they are detrimental to a country fighting for its life. But the working man is well fixed, having his local representatives of labor just the same. And they are more effective, more benefical for man and state than any union could be. So we see that it is the same old Germany, as the Germans want it, but with its belt tightened.

The old Germany made terrible mistakes in foreign policy, for which it has paid. There is every reason to believe that the the lesson has been learned.

Canadians have more to gain by being friendly with Germany than we could ever gain by stupd criticism. There are many things in Germany that the people don't like, but they know that they are necessary. Things aren't so good in Canada, but do we really try to make them better? Let's take a leaf from the German book and substitute action for talk, and above all, leave the Germans and their government alone.

A MONEY MAKING Team for EVERY FARM

THE real money-making "team" for any farm is "Science and Practice"—the knowledge of the science of agriculture plus a practical application of that knowledge to everyday farming operations.

The young farmer who takes a course at the Agricultural College is best equipped to drive this "team". An eminent authority has estimated that while the capital asset of a common school education on the farm is about $1500, the capital value of an agricultural college training to a farmer is about $25,000. A high estimate for Nova Scotia perhaps, but the same principle applies. WHAT AN ASSET TO START FARMING WITH.

A course at the Agricultural College equips the young farmer not only to make a better success of farming but to take his proper place as a leader in his community.

Put that money-making team "Science and Practice" to work on your farm by taking a two-year course at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, Truro. No tuition fees, just books, board and room, and small registration fee. Special bursaries and scholarships are offered. Write for information.

CHAPTER XX

MURDER IN THE VILLAGE

In the tiny police office of Wintersea a scene of unwonted activity was taking place.

Murders were as the magic of the unexpected. Tramps, drunks and the ever game motorist, were the only grist that had hitherto come the way of the village constable, P. C. Bright.

For years he had maintained a grip of terror upon the whole countryside by reason of the majesty of the law; a magnificence which to tell the truth, had begun, by reason of familiarity, to fade. But now, with the mysterious "Avenger" in their midst, and a real murder enacted outside their very doors, the villagers turned again and exalted P. C. Bright into an awe-inspiring figure.

To the district superintendent, who made a hasty call, he confided his greatest secret.

"Do you mean to tell me that you know the murderer?" remarked the astonished officer.

A cryptic smile spread over the features of P. C. Bright.

"I could put my 'and on 'im this minute, sir!"

This news was startling enough, but he added, before his superior could recover from his surprise:

"And I knows 'is accomplice, too, sir."

It was this simple conversation which finally resulted in Hunter staring in amazement at the two burly officers as they stood later in the entrance hall of "Owl's Croft."

Cupboard Secrets

"You don't think I committed the murder, do you?" asked Hunter when he grasped the reason for the visit.

"We're police officers engaged in our duty, and it's not for us to answer your questions. We invite you to answer ours!" was the reply he received.

Hunter stood with his back to the wide old fire-place, and facing the mysterious library door.

Was it his imagination, or did his eyes play him false? The two officers saw the bewilderment in his eyes and gloatingly accepted it as the hunted look of a man who is cornered.

"It's my duty to say that I suspect you of 'aving some connection in this murder of one Danny West!"

P.C. Bright felt at that moment that he would have liked the whole village to be standing there as his thrilled audience, to hear him speak those wonderful words. He, Police Constable Bright, of Wintersea, was about to arrest his first murderer.

Whatever roseate dreams he conjured up to entrance his imagination will never be told, for with a gulp of glee, Hunter leapt by the two startled constables.

To say he leapt "by" them conveys little; it might even be recorded that he leapt through them, for, standing as they were, side by side, he had glimpsed a simple thing over in the corner of the hall.

A tall cupboard, with a black and carved oak door, had turned. That it had moved swiftly, he was sure.

He had explored that cupboard more than once, and he knew that the top half of the door had a deep split running its full length. From where he had been standing his eyes had caught a rapid glint from the reflected light upon the door. Just a winking flash, and, marvel of marvels, the split panel was whole.

He had pondered upon this to a great length whilst the two hounds of the law had held him in conversation. Now he had arrived at a decision. The slight tremor of the panel gave him the clue. The cupboard was double fronted, having a carved door upon both sides, and it had revolved.

Someone under the cupboard had caused it to turn, and he experienced that queer certainty of feeling that he was being watched.

It's Locked

Whoever it was upon the inside of that swivelling cupboard had doubtless been attracted there by the presence of the police.

So he acted.

With a cry of exultation he made a harlequin-like leap between the sturdy figures of the constable and his superior, sending them flying, one upon either side—each an alarmed and outraged man.

Bearing on he bore down upon the cupboard and arrived at that antique piece of furniture with a crash, evoking from within it a faint squeal.

He tugged at the old-fashioned brass handle, but in vain; the cupboard was locked.

By this time the most valiant P. C. in all Norfolk was upon his feet again, and proceeded to hurl himself, with commendable disregard of danger, on to the man in the corner.

"I arrest you for complicity in this 'ere Dandy West murder," bellowed Bright, clapping his leg-of-mutton hand on Hunter's shoulder.

"Hold on to this cupboard—they are trying to turn it," was Hunter's reply.

True it was that some great strength was being applied to the cupboard, and he had much ado to resist the attacks of the constable and hold the cupboard at the same time.

The superior officer now took a hand in the matter, approaching with the dignity of his exalted rank.

"In my opinion there's nothing against runnin 'im in, Bright. Clap the cuffs on!"

He gave this as his considered opinion, but was careful to leave the rough work to his subordinate.

Nothing loth, P. C. Bright produced hand-cuffs, and tried to wrench Hunter's hands from the cupboard handle.

"You fools," he gasped, "why don't you help me? This cupboard will turn again in a minute and we will lose what we've caught!"

"Ho, no you don't. I don't care about turning cupboards, or twizzling tables, or jumpin' chairs, so long as I've got you. Out with yer 'ands."

"What's all this?"

A quiet voice broke in on the din with marked effect. Digby stood just within the entrance door.

"Quick, Digby, quick! There's someone in this cupboard. It revolves and they're trying to turn it. I can't hold on much longer!"

In a moment Digby had summed up the situation, and with a strength his slender form belied, pulled the perspiring Bright back, and applied his strength to the cupboard.

Then happily, Digby proved to be quick in the up-take, and he sprang to the open hearth and snatched up the heavy iron poker.

"Good man," gasped Hunter, clinging to the door, for frantic pressure was now being applied to turn it.

"Wrench it open!"

Crr-r-rack!

Enter Mrs. Barlow

The panel splintered under their combined efforts, and the lock hung at a lurching angle.

Snatching the poker, Hunter thrust it into the crevice which marked the turning edge of the device and in one stroke effectually jammed it.

The others drew back, whilst he threw open the torn and battered door.

Whoever or whatever they each and everyone expected to see hidden in that turning cupboard, they were all equally surprised.

Crouching down in whimpering fright upon the floor of the cupboard was . . . Mrs. Barlow!

"Well, well, well," panted Hunter. "The elusive Mrs. Barlow, and alive and well, eh?"

"Would you like to tell us, Mrs. Barlow, who it is that has been exerting his strength against us? Your husband, I suspect, Mrs. Barlow, eh? He is not far away, I'll be bound!

"Oh, sir—you don't understand, sir," wailed the woman.

"On the contrary, Mrs. Barlow, I understand more about all this than you think. Now you'd better be frank about it all."

"I'll give in, sir. I'll tell you all—everything."

The old woman, limp with fear, was assisted out from the cupboard, then after being seated in a chair, faced them, her lips quivering as her thin and nervous fingers touched her face.

"I'll tell everything, I'll tell the truth, sir, so help me Heaven—"

She was interrupted by the shrilling of the telephone.

Another Death

Hunter frowned. "See what that is, Digby," he said.

Digby stepped to the instrument, which stood upon a small side table.

"Hullo?"

"Superintendent Bolsover—yes—and P.C. Bright—yes. They are both here."

"They're wanted? Oh, very well," continued Digby. "They'll speak to you. Who is that? The Wintersea Police Station? Very good, hold the line."

He was about to part with the receiver when his expression changed.

"What's that?" he gasped. "What do you say? Another death? Another man on the tomb top—? Who? A man named McClintock? Heavens!"

Hunter was at the 'phone in an instant.

"Hunter speaking—Maxton Hunter. I'm at Owl's Croft. I'm investigating for the owner, Mr. Digby. What is it that you're telling us; there's been another death in the village?"

"Yes, sir," came the reply. "Another man's been found stretched on the top of the same tomb in the churchyard, and the name of Gordon McClintock is scratched off the list on the tombstone's side."

Ponderously, the Superintendent stepped forward and took the receiver from Hunter.

Tomorrow's Women May Be Plumper

Artist Says Perfection Today Is Sweeter and More Romantic

LONDON, Eng. — Perfect women, said Artist C. R. W. Nevinson at a London luncheon, is now becoming romantic, sweetly Victorian.

But her ideal of the perfect man is something between a cad and a dressy crook.

And the woman of tomorrow may be a little plumper.

Curves Coming In

Television, unlike the film camera, minimises the flesh and will probably start a demand for large, fat performers."

So the curves are going to have it. "But soon," Mr. Nevison added:

"Soon perfect women will be simpering and obeying our dear dictators, producing babies, and more babies, for slaughter."

One definition of the perfect woman was quoted at the luncheon:

She should possess the roundness of the moon, the curve of the serpent, the velvet of the flowers and the cruelty of the tiger.

Stockholm, Sweden, now has 417 consumer co-operative stores.

CURRANTS Red or Black

Catching time by the forelock is an important thing to accomplish in every housekeeper's life. And catching the summer fruits as they come on the market and putting them away for winter use is a very good illustration of this famous phrase.

Currants make grand jelly and jam when made with the short boil method. Made this way, it takes just 15 minutes to complete the job after the fruit is prepared and because there is no long boiling time, the lovely color and flavor of the fresh, fully ripe fruit is sealed into your jars. Of course there is a secret. It's bottled fruit pectin. By adding just the right amount of bottled pectin (which has been extracted from fruits which abound in it, refined and bottled) you get jam and jelly of the right consistency without having to boil away all the goodness of the fruit to make it jell. None of that tangy, tart flavor which you expect of currants is evaporated.

The short boil method not only saves the color and flavor of the fruit, it actually gives you more jars of jam and jelly per quart of fruit because none of it is boiled away. It has been estimated that the yield from this method gives you approximately half as much again as that from the same amount of fruit when long boil methods are used.

Currant jelly is simply delicious with cold roast lamb, chicken or duck and currant jam has always been popular with toast.

CURRANT JELLY

(Red or Black Currants)

5 cups (2½ lbs.) juice
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin.

With black currants, crush about 3 pounds fully ripe fruit; add 3 cups water. With red currants, crush about 4 pounds fully ripe fruit; add 1 cup water. To prepare juice, bring mixture to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

RED OR BLACK CURRANT JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) crushed fruit
7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
½ cup water
½ cup (½ bottle) fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, crush thoroughly or grind about 2 pounds fully ripe fruit; measure into large kettle. With red currants, add ½ cup water; stir until mixture boils. (With black currants, use ¾ cup water). Simmer, covered, 15 minutes. Add sugar, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

CANDIED COTTAGE ROLL

4 lbs. cottage roll
Boiling water
1 tbsp. mustard
Vinegar
Sifted cracker crumbs
Whole cloves
½ to 1-3 cup Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup.

Simmer cottage roll in gently boiling water until tender. Cool in liquid in which it was cooked, then drain. Remove strings. Place cooked cottage roll on rack in roasting pan. Smooth mustard to a paste with vinegar, and spread over fat surface of roll. Cover with sifted cracker crumbs, score in diamonds and centre each diamond with a clove. Pour corn syrup carefully over surface. Place in a hot oven, 400 degrees F. to re-heat meat and to glaze surface. Baste carefully once or twice during cooking with liquid in pan.

Household Hints

To keep a hairbrush clean between washings, brush the bristles with a cleansing tissue or clean soft cloth after about every ten strokes.

Washable garments stained with grease (not machine grease) should be rubbed in warm water apart from rest of the laundry.

Before using a new kettle, place a clean piece of calico inside to prevent furring.

Bacon will not shrink in frying if it is first dipped in flour.

To soften and clean leather on furniture use a mixture of one part hot vinegar to two parts linseed oil. Apply with a cloth. Rub the leather dry and polish it with another clean, soft cloth.

How to Pep Up Your Wardrobe

If You are Looking For a Quick And Easy Method of Rejuvenating Your Summer Wardrobe, Here are a few Suggestions From Paris.

Choose sky blue handkerchief linen for a tailored single-breasted jacket to wear over wool or cotton.

Border a white organdy bow with a band of gold sequins and place it high on the neck of a black wool dress with a jacket bolero of matching wool.

Make gloves of polka-dotted silk surah to match the blouse of a tailored suit.

Sew sequins at irregular distances on a square of pastel-colored handkerchief linen, and toss the handkerchief nonchalantly over your head for an evening out.

Flowers and Leaves

Slit your pockets, vertically instead of crosswise. And place as many as eight of these neat invisible pockets on a single tailored jacket.

Tuck a red rose in the belt of a stiff black taffeta evening dress whose circular skirt ends in a wide ruching.

Cut maple leaves out of black patent leather and applique them loosely on a two-inch white kid belt.

Applique or embroider your initials on the band of your hat.

Substitute a long, tight sleeve for the ordinary short sleeve in lace boleros. Patou makes the tight-sleeved bolero in heavy black lace for a black crepe dinner dress.

Contrast a lavender printed silk blouse with a pale yellow wool suit which has buttons made of porcelain in the form of wheat sheaves.

Austria, Normay and Sweden have the lowest birthrates in Europe.

Toasted and tasty, slightly salted, nutty-flavored little wafers . . . Christie's "Ritz" . . . first choice of thousands of discriminating Canadian hostesses.

Sold only in the red and yellow packages. Never sold in bulk.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON III
DEBORAH: EMERGENCY LEADERSHIP
Judges 4:1—5:31.

Printed Text, Judg. 4:1-9, 12-14.

Golden Text. — Who knoweth whether thou art not come to the kingdom for such a time as this? Esth. 4:14.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—1296 B.C.

Place.—Hazor was in the tribe of Naphtali, at the extreme north of Israel's territory overlooking Lake Merom. Deborah lived on the confines of Benjamin and Ephraim, near the city of Bethel: Mount Tabor is in the midst of the great plain of Jezreel, in the very middle of Palestine, and in this mountain the river Kishon takes its rise.

1. And the children of Israel again did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah, when Ehud was dead. The institution of judges over Israel is recorded in 2:16-23. The rise of each judge follows God's punishment of Israel for her repeated disobedience to him.

2. And Jehovah sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan. That reigned in Hazor. No one knows exactly where Hazor was located, but it was certainly to the tribe of Naphtah, and overlooked the waters of Merom, far north in Israel's territory. The captain of whose host was Sisera, who dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentiles. The exact location of this city is also a matter of great dispute.

3. And the children of Israel cried unto Jehovah: for he had nine hundred chariots of iron; and twenty years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel. Trouble ought always to bring us to the Lord.

Deborah As Judge

4. Now Deborah, a propheteas, the wife of Lappidoth, she judged Israel at that time. There are two Deborahs in the Bible, the earlier one being the nurse of Rebekah (Gen. 35:8). The word "Deborah" means "the bee." Dr. Abraham Kuyper calls her "the Joan of Arc of Israel's astonishing history." She is one of the most remarkable women in al lthe Bible, and this account of her life will be found a most fascinating page of sacred history. The word "prophetess" here "implies the possession of poetic as well as of prophets gifts (Eod. 15:20)," andx we see her right to such a title in her predictions (v. 9), her lofty courage (5:7) and the splendor of her inspired ... She is the only female judge, or, indeed, female ruler of any kind in Jewish history, except the Phoenician murderess, Athaliah.

5. And she dwelt under the palm-tree of Deborah between Ramah and Beth-el in the hill-country of Ephraim: and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment. Cf. Gen. 14:13 and I Sam. 14:2. The two cities mentioned here were on the confines of Benjamin and Ephraim. The palm where she sat in judgment was called after her the Deborah palm. Her gift of prophecy qualified her to judge the nation, to settle such disputes among the people themselves as the lower courts were unable to decide.

6. And she sent and called Barak the son of Abinoam out of Kedesh-naphtali, and said unto him, Hath not Jehovah, the God of Israel, commanded, saying, Go and draw unto mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men of the children of Naphtali and of the children of Zebulun? 7. And I will draw unto thee, to the river Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thy hand. Already known in Zebulun and Naphtali as a man of bold temper and sagacity, Barak was in a position to gather an army corps out of those tribes, the main strength of the force on which Deborah relied for the approaching struggle. Better still, he was a fearer of God.

The Victory

9. And she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding, the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honor; for Jehovah will sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh. To enter into the force of Deborah's statement, we must remember the humble and almost downtrodden position of women in the East, so that it could hardly fail to be a humiliation to a great warrior to be told that the chief glory would fall to a woman.

We can imagine Deborah in that time of trial growing up into tall and striking womanhood, watching with indignation many a scene in which her people showed a craven fear, or joined slavishly in heathen revels. In vain she looked for a prophet, a leader, a man of Jehovah to rekindle a flame in the nation's heart. A flame! It was in her own soul, she might wake it in other souls.

12. And they told Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount Tabor. 13. And Sisera gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles, unto the river Kishon. 14. And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which Jehovah hath delivered Sisera into thy hand: is not Jehovah gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him. The tremendous moment has come. "Up," cries Deborah. She has waited till the troops of Sisera are entangled among the streams which here, from various directions, converge to the river Kishon, now swollen with rain and difficult to cross. Barak, the Lightning Chief, leads his men impetuously down into the plain. The Kishon sweeps away many of the Canaanite host, the rest make a stand by Taanach and further on by the waters of Megiddo. The Hebrews find a higher ford, and following the south bank of the river are upon the foe again. Only the fragments of a ruined army find shelter within the gates.

Symbol of Conflict

The defeat was crushing. The immediate enemies of Israel were utterly routed. The Hebrews were safe for years to come from the warlike tribes which held so tenaciously to the land. We cannot help looking upon these conflicts in the book of Judges as certainly symbolic of the great conflict that every Christian knows as he wrestles, not with flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, and spiritual wickedness in heavenly places. Victory is certain only when the Lord is with us and only when we walk in his will and contend against evil in his power. We are more than conquerors, but only through the Lord Jesus Christ.

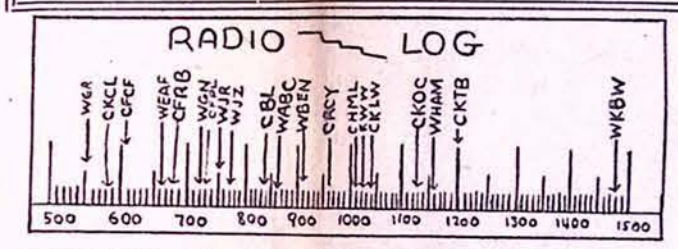

The Song of Deborah. Judges 5:1-31. Commentators of every age, conservative and liberal both, have vied with one another in their praise of this remarkable ode. The song of Deborah is unsurpassed in Hebrew literature in all the qualities of poetry, and holds a high place among triumphal odes in the literature of the world.

While Germany is reckoned, by tradition, to be a nation of beer-drinkers, figures show that Britain is, in fact, the greatest beer-drinking nation. The consumption per head of beer in the British Isles is given as 136 pints, while in Germany it is 118 pints. England ranks first as a beer consumer, Austria is second and Germany third. Germany, however, drinks more hard liquors and wines per person than England.

POPULAR CANADIAN SINGER

Frances James, CBC artist at Toronto, hails from Saint John, N.B., and is in private life Mrs. Murray Adaskin. Born of a family that has been Canadian for four generations, Miss James has married into a well-known musical family. Murray, her husband, is an accomplished violinist and has played with the Hart House String Quartette and the Toronto Trio.

FRANCES JAMES

It never has been any effort for Frances James to sing. She cannot recall a time when singing was not a delight to her. The Canadian Pacific Railway Festivals have engaged her recitals in many parts of Canada, and she has toured the country several times. She spent last summer at Banff with her husband, who was playing with the Toronto Trio at the hotel there for the season. When not on tour, Miss James and her husband live in Toronto.

Frances James is one of Canada's foremost classical singers. She prefers recitals to any other form of work except singing with the Toronto Symphony and the Mendelssohn Choir. She sang the leading role from Wagner's "Die Walkure" with the Symphony last year, and considers it the highlight of her singing career to date.

In radio, Miss James has appeared frequently as guest artist on various programs for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Last season she was heard on "Strike Up The Band" and "Christie Street Capers," both from Toronto.

How To Brew The Best Tea

One Teaspoon or Bag For Each Cup Is Recommended

Some of you may enjoy the English custom of serving an early morning cup of tea with a buscuit. Or you may like tea with any meal. Or perhaps you look forward to the afternoon tea hour. However you like your tea, it must be brewed right, says Katharine Fisher, director of Good Housekeeping Institute, who gives this advice on how to brew tea:

Be sure the water put on to boil for brewing tea is fresh from the tap. Use one teaspoon of tea or a tea bag for each cup of tea. If you like you can add an extra teaspoon or bag for the pot.

Then heat the teapot with hot water, drain it, and add the tea. Over the tea pour the bubbling boiled water and let stand in a warm place to brew. Never pour the boiling water in the pot or teacup and then add the tea.

A brew of five minutes — or in some cases a little longer, depending on the tea you use—will bring out the flavor of the leaf. Some people prefer a shorter time.

Goes to Antarctic

James (Red) Lymburner, above, of Montreal, will replace Herbert Hollick-Kenyon as No. 1 pilot of the forthcoming Ellsworth expedition to the Antarctic. Another Canadian flier, Burton Trerice, of Amherst, N.S., will take over Lymburner's old post as second pilot of the expedition.

Britain plans to spend $500,000,000 on military aircraft in 1938.

She Comes Back Eighth Time For Title

Losing only four games to her arch-rival, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody defeated Miss Helen Jacobs on Wimbledon's famed centre court to capture the all-England women's singles tennis championship for the eighth time in her career in straight sets. The scores were 6-4, 6-0. The veteran Californian was invincible in the climax to her Wimbledon comeback while Miss Jacobs was hampered by a leg injury. Mrs. Moody is shown here in a typical action picture.
