Behind The Headlines

OTTAWA

BY DEAN WILSON

Specially Written for The Richmond County Record

It was explained in last week's column that every day of increasing tension in current world affairs brings an additional reason for well-informed observers along Parliament Hill to believe that to-day Canada is following a definite policy which is not only radically different from the activities of this country in the sphere of foreign affairs prior to the last World War but it indicates that Canada is now a full fledged world power and that she is now enjoying complete freedom of judgment and action, though alarmists are trying to create the impression that this is not true and that Canada cannot remain absolutely neutral in any war involving the United States or Great Britain.

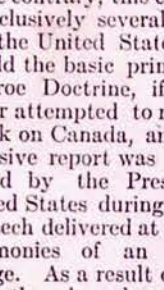

Notwithstanding all the stories to the contrary, this column reported exclusively several months ago that the United States intends to uphold the basic principles of the Munroe Doctrine, if any foreign power attempted to make an open attack on Canada, and lately this exclusive report was entirely confirmed by the President of the United States during the course of a speech delivered at the dedication ceremonies of an international bridge. As a result of this declaration there have been many alarmist rumours circulating in recent weeks concerning the relationship between these two powers, if the United States or Canada should become involved in any conflict, but it can be reported here that in official circles along Parliament Hill there is a tendency to treat these rumours as absolutely nothing more than vague gossip. In other words, there are no facts and figures to corroborate these stories which have been gathered by the man in the street.

Both the United States and Canada are following the trends of action of the democracies of the world, but there is no doubt that their reactions to any international crisis or problem are peculiarly typical of the mentalities and ideals of the western hemisphere. Then again, even with this consideration in mind it must be remembered that Canada is completely independent of any other world power, including the United States, though there are probably no two other human societies in the world to-day that have their financial, cultural and diplomatic interests so closely intertwined as these two democracies of the North American continent. They have a common frontier of more than 3000 miles; they derived their political background from the same motherland; they are important and vital customers of one another; since 1921 more than 1,280,000 Canadians have settled in the United States, and on the other side of the ledger, a great many Americans who were engaged in farming in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Minnesota crossed the international boundary to take up homesteads in this country; there is scarcely a home in Canada to-day which has not one or more members settled in the United States, and then again, some of the greatest Canadians were born in the United States, including two presidents of the Canadian Pacific Railways, Sir William Van Horne and Lord Shaughnessy; the tourist trade from the United States has become one of the major sources of revenue; the American people have invested in Canada more than $3,500,000,000 The net results of these important facts have been a steady growth of mutual understanding and friendly feeling between the masses of these two neighbouring lands.

Of course, there are many reasons for the maintenance of contrary policies in international relations, and these two countries have travelled in different dirrctions on several occasions. There are certain old prejudices against the United States that time has weakened in intensity but it has not been able to remove them. There are many Canadians who do not like the penetration of American capital in Canadian industries; there are a large number of people in this country who are anxious to do almost anything which would assure the maintenance of a separate identity; Canadians do not like the basic lawlessness which is tolerated in the judicial systems of their American neighbours since throughout the Dominion of Canada the administration of law is both just and sufficient; there are strong opinions in Canada about the war debts attitude of the people of the United States since they enjoyed an enormous profit at a time when terrible casulity lists were bringing grief to thousands of Canadian homes, with the United States waiting two and a half years before entering the conflict on the side of the democracies; there is a lack of understanding in Canada why the United States did not join the League of Nations; Canadians believe that the United States is trying to put something over them in the Pan-American Union ideas; though Canadians live in a so-called monarchy, with the added remark that the governmental system in this country is more responsive to the public will, they believe that they enjoy a greater degree of liberty than the Americans.

Nevertheless, both Canada and the United States are gradually adopting a common policy in international affairs because they have many interests in common in their relationships with the rest of the world. They have destroyed the old axiom that "neighbouring nations are never friendly," and to-day the Canadian people not only live in peace and amity with their 120,000,000 American neighbours but the two countries have never been as close in their entire history. This has raised an extremely important question. Does Canada intend to follow a policy of foregoing her position as a autonomous partner state in the British Commonwealth of Nations for the sake of possible greater economic returns and protection in the event of a foreign attack on this country, both of which have been virtually promised by the United States? This momentous question will be answered in next week's column.

RURAL TEACHERS SHOULD NOT BE LEFT UNPAID

Too Many Teachers Go Without Their Pay at the End of the School Term and This Should be Ended

Any school district that "hires a teacher"—as they call it—should be prepared to pay him or her for the work. If the money to pay the teacher is not in sight the school should remain closed.

We had a call last term from a young teacher. She had secured a school in a fairly prosperous district. She started in high hopes to enter the teaching profession. Her people, who were in very moderate circumstances, had made sacrifices to put her through Normal College and to buy her clothes so that she might look respectable.

The little school teacher who started away in such high hopes had tears in her eyes when we met her. She had taught all term and had put up with poor board and with other inconveniences and at the close of the term was informed that the trustees had not been able to collect her money and that she would have to go home without any salary for her full term's work.

We know for a fact that the young lady teacher referred to is only one of scores of teachers in the province who have had similar treatment from the trustees and from the school districts in which they taught. It is time that this outrage on the teachers is stopped. Of course the teacher has the legal channels of collecting his or her salary and can even seize the school building But no teacher wants to go to all that trouble.

These conditions shoutd stop. They are a disgrace and the Department of Education should see that justice is done by passing a regulation that tBe trustees have the money in hand before engaging a teacher, or that some similar guarantee be given in all cases which will make it impossible for rural schools to hire teachers and then fall down on their salary, as is too often the case.

Commentary on the Highlights of the Week's News . . . by Peter Randal

BOON FOR BUSINESS: If the West's 1938 wheat crop turns out to be as bumper as predicted, our prairie farmers are going to have money in their pockets again—to spend, to pay their debts with. Canadian business will be given a big lift.

It will help the railways out, too. Both the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. have long been saying that if the West could grow just one good crop, the revenues resulting from heavy freight hauling would cut operating losses and substantially reduce the railways' indebtedness.

MATTER OF FACT—Little good though the Runciman mission to Czechoslovakia is likely to do, (the Czechs didn't even ask Prime Minister Chamberlain to send him), this much is certain, that, while he is on the scene studying the situation and preparing to arbitrate between Germany and Czechoslovakia, Hitler cannot afford to make an open move against the little republic. 'Twould be a bad breach of manners for him to do any such thing at a moment when he is courting the favor of the British.

The delay may be maddening to him, but Herr Hitler will just have to stand aside politely till Lord Runciman's through. But then, boys, ah! then . . . .

WE'RE BEAUTIFUL—The well-known English landscape painter, F. M. de la Coze, arrived in Canada for the first time, is full of praises for our country. He had no idea it was so beautiful.

Neither had some of us. We are used to thinking that far-away fields are greener, more lovely than our own. We have developed an inferiority complex on the subject of our own country and its beauties; we roll our eyes in the direction of Europe or the States instead.

Now that someone who should know has told us unequivocally that Canada is beautiful, we may learn to believe it, to feel pride and joy in our Canadian countryside, our own particular sweet corner of Ontario.

BEHIND SCHEDULE—The Chinese may not be such hot fighters but they are managing to hold their own against the Japanese invasion. Their aim now is not to drive the Japs out of the country in a big offensive but to draw them further and further afield till the Nipponese war machine can be finally stalled.

When the undeclared war began, the Japanese military heads had a schedule doped out which must be adhered to if succes is to be theirs. They expected the campaign to last but a couple of months. Now, more than a year later, when Chinese resistance has slowed up the scheulde to a point where it can scarcely be said to work any longer, the Japanese chances of success are becoming smaller and smaller.

THIS WEEK'S QQUESTION—How many Eskimos are there in the Dominion of Canada? Indians? Answer: 6,000 Eskimos and 123,000 Indians (approximately).

NAMES IN THE NEWS

HON. P. M. DEWAN

"Through co-operation lies the salvation of Ontario's rural life," is the central theme of our Provincial Minister of Agriculture, Hon. P. M. (Patrick Michael) Dewan, (pronounced to rhyme with "swan").

That farmers should organize in their own interests is the message of this public-spirited Irish-Canadian, born a farmer himself (near Osgoode, Ontario) and trained from the earliest age to the problems of a farmer. He has had plenty of experience in co-operation, too, having graduated from St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S. (the cradle of co-operation in Canada), and from the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. In 1925 he became manager of the Oxford Co-operative Association, has advanced it to first rank among such enterprises in Canada. He has also been a successful Secretary-Treasurer of the Woodstock Agricultural Society.

"Educate the People"

Always interested in people and events, Mr. Dewan was inevitably drawn to politics. In 1931 he won a seat on the Woodstock City Council; in 1934 entered the Ontario Legislature as Liberal member for Oxford; following last autumn's election he was chosen by the Premier as Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Dewan would like to see the mass of our rural people live prosperous and happy lives. Co-operation, in his fervent belief, would help to bring about that end. His mission is to educate the people to its value; he would like to have a staff of instructors go out into the Province on an educational crusade for the co-operative movement, but in this he is sadly handicapped because the government isn't prepared to spend money on such a project. (Not only farmers but people generally would benefit by participation in co-operatives, Mr. Dewan says).

Wants Wheat Pegged

Again, the Minister of Agriculture: "If our young people are to continue to live on the farm, rural life must be made attractive to them."

At present, Mr. Dewan is urging the federal government to set a minimum price for payments to Ontario wheat producers, as well as to western growers. He points out that the price for Ontario wheat now ranges from 35c to 65c, instead of 80c, per bushel.

New Brunswick's Silver Salmon

600 Miles of Coastline Provide Rare Sport for Anglers

If there is one species in particular to which the Province of New Brunswick owes its inclusion on the angler's map of the world it is the Atlantic silver salmon.

Although small in area when compared with the Central and Western Provinces, New Brunswick is blessed with 600 miles of Atlantic coastline. On the south the tides of Fundy lash her shores from Passamaquoddy Bay to the Isthmus of Chignecto. Northumberland Strait lies between the New Brunswick east coast and Prince Edward Island; and Bay Chaleur, that inreaching arm of the open Gulf separates the north coast from the Gaspe Peninsula of Quebec.

Patients Arise After Operation

Rumanian Surgeon Has Been Successful With New Method Of Treatment — Believes It Unnecessary to Stay In Bed.

In a hospital at Brasov, Rumania, a man was operated on for the removal of his appendix. As soon as the operation was completed he got up from the table and acted as assistant to the surgeon at the same kind of an operation on the following patient. This is not an unusual situation at Brasov. Here the great majority of the patients get up from the operating table, dress, walk to their room or out into the garden and remain ambulant instead of going to bed. Dr. Livius Campeanu, surgeon at the hospital, has been working for years under the theory that it is not only unnecessary for patients to remain in bed for long periods of time after an operation, but that it is beneficial for them to walk around.

A Psychic Stimulant

Since 1934 Dr. Campeanu has performed 3,150 abdominal operations in which the patients left their beds on the day following the operation. Since the beginning of 1937, encouraged by his earlier results, he has had patients, operated on under local anesthetics, get on their feet from the operating table.

When operations are performed under spinal or general anesthesia the patients are on their feet the second day. They return on the seventh or eighth day for removal of stitches.

Dr. Campeanu states, according to a report on his work in "The Journal of the American Medical Association," that getting up immediately after an operation is a psychic as well as a physical stimulant and curtails the duration of disability. Among the 1,300 patients operated on since January, 1937, there have been three deaths.

Desert Yields 1848 Skeletons

Believed to Be Of Eight Men Who Went on Expedition Into Interior of Australia

The skeletons of eight men, believed to be members of an expedition led by a German explorer, Friedrich Leichareit, which left Moreton Bay, on the Queensland coast, in 1848, to cross the continent and disappeared in the interior, have been found in the Simpson Desert in the northern part of South Australia by a ranch-owner while rounding up cattle.

Grouped In a Circle

Seven of the skeletons were grouped in a circle, suggesting that the men were around a campfire when they were surprised by blacks and speared. The eighth skeleton lay two miles away and the presumption is the wounded man fled and later fell exhausted and expired.

The expedition was last reported at Innaminaka, just over the South Australian border, thirty miles east of where the skeletons were found.

The South Australian Government is organizing an expedition to examine the skeletons, comprising an anthropologist, ethnologist, surveyor and a cinematographer. It is believed that torrential rains probably uncovered the skeletons.

Campaign Against Hatless Germans

Geruany's Latest Slogan is "Buy a Hat"

Hard-up Germans have been economizing and joining the hatless brigade, with the result that there has been a terrific drop in the sale of hats.

Apart from an intensive advertising campaign, women are being asked not to walk with hatless men. It is "primitive," say the authorities, for a man not to wear a hat.

For Seagram Gold Cup

Last year, as the cut shows, Ralph Guldahl got his hands on the Seagram Gold Cup but that was all. Lighthorse Harry Cooper, one-time Hamilton boy, got the cup, the $5,000 cash and the Canadian Open Golf championship. Now Guldahl is burning up U. S. golf courses, retaining the U. S. Open title, winning the Western Open and leading all the golf stars as point winner of this year. He's one of the biggest threats for this year's Canadian title, to be played at Mississauga-Toronto on August 18 to 20. So, for that matter, is Cooper, and there are a hundred other threats, including ace golfers from Bermuda and South Africa, coming for the first time to Canada.

POLL TAX FOR WOMEN

Barrie town council has endorsed the proposal to make women who earn over $100 a year, subject to the same municipal poll tax as men. There is really no valid reason why there should be any more discrimination between the sexes in taxation than there is in giving employment. Some day the provincial legislators may have courage enough to place both upon equal terms in the matter of poll tax. In the meantime, the fair sex have little cause to worry over the matter.—Barrie Examiner.

Casa Loma Tunnel Relieves Hay Fever

Fifty thousand people, from every province of Canada, every state in the United States and from a score of foreign countries, have visited Casa Loma, Canada's outstanding showplace, so far this summer, W. C. Davidson, K.C., chairman of the Casa Loma Committee of the Kiwanis Club of West Toronto, announced last week.

At least another 100,000 people are expected to visit the Castle before November, swelling the Kiwanis Club's "Underprivileged Children's Fund."

Guides at the Castle reported that the uarter-mile tunnel between the Castle and the quarter-million dollar stables is the most fascinating spot to tourists. The tunnel is said to be the only one of its kind on the North American continent.

Hay fever victims are expected to swarm the tunnel starting August 15. Last year scores of them spent hours in tho Castle tunnel and claimed to be relieved of their ailment so long as they remained in the cool pollen-free passageway.

A Hollow Nail

When screws are tightened home, they stay fixed. Nails often work loose. But now a nail has been invented that fits more securely than any screw. It is hollow, with a soft core, and the shell is tempered by a secret process so that when driven into half an inch of hard concrete it takes a pull of reveral hundred pounds to free it.

Wheat at 1.30 p.m., Biscuits at 4.15

WOODSTOCK. — Earl Golding, a farmer residing near Thamesford, started cutting wheat one day last week at 1.30 p.m. At 4.30 p.m. George H. Hogg of the Hogg Mills in Thamesford announced that the first of the wheat was threshed, purchased, ground into flour and made into biscuits which were out of the oven ready to eat at 4.15 p.m.

HAVE YOU HEARD

FRIENDS — —

Friendship is the greatest thing in life, and lucky indeed is the man who has the power to make friends. This is not so difficult as many persons believe. It is merely a case of reciprocity. There is just one way to make a friend, and that is to be one.

ENEMIES — —

It used to be said that a man was known by the enemies he had. But is it really necessary to have enemies? Few of us want to be an enemy to anyone, therefore we know others are not anxious to be our enemies. Hatreds never bring happiness.

Timekeeper — "I am very sorry to hear of your partner's death. Would you like me to take his place?"

Boss — "Very much, if you can get the undertaker to arrange it."

Don't get discouraged! It has been said of Columbus that when he started out, he didn't know just where he was going; when he got there, he didn't know where he was; and when he came back, he didn't know where he had been.

An old time farmer went into a store to buy a shirt and the clerk tried to sell him a trunk also.

Farmer — "What would I use a trunk for?"

Clerk — "To keep your clothes in."

Farmer — "Say, do you want me to run around naked?"

Jones — "How are you getting along in your new 8-room house?"

Smith — "Oh, not so badly. We furnished one of the bedrooms by collecting soap wrappers."

Jones — "Didn't you furnish the other seven rooms?"

Smith — "We can't. They are full of soap."

A man in an insane asylum sat fishing over a flower-bed. A visitor, wishing to be friendly, walked up and said:

Visitor — "How many have you caught today?"

Man — "You are the ninth."

AFTER VACATION

I wish I were a little rock,
A settin' on a hill,
A-doin' nothin' all day long
But just a-settin' still.
I wouldn't eat, I wouldn't drink,
I wouldn't even wash,
I'd set and set a thousand years,
And rest myself, by gosh!

Hiram walked four miles over the hills to call on the girl of his dreams. For a long time they sat silent on a bench by the side of her log cabin, but after a while Hiram sidled closer to her.

Mary's Mother (who was awakened) — "Mary, is that young man thar yit?"

Mary — "No, ma! But he's gittin' thar!"

Storing Human Eyes Proposed

Doctor Says Transplantation Supply Too Low

The establishment of an "eye bank," in which the eyes either of donors or of dead people could be stored for use in eye operations, is proposed by Dr. Louis Lehrfeld of the eye department of the Philadelphia County Medical Society.

Such an establishment, he said, was the only hope for restoration of sight to many people doomed to permanent blindness, because there were not enough eyes for use in transplantations.

From The Dead

"The number of victims of eye diseases who require extraction of a whole eye—with an unaffected cornea—is too small to provide for all of the transplantations required," Dr. Lehrfeld added. "Surgeons must depend on occasional donors of eyes stricken by a blindness which does not affect the cornea. Surgeons will not remove a perfect eye from a living person, despite the willingness of mothers in many cases, to sacrifice an eye to give their children sight."

Solution to the problem, he said, was extraction of perfect eyes from the dead, immediately after death. Th perfect eyes of still-born babies had the greatest value.

What Science * Is Doing *

Carbon Dioxide Is Necessary

Carbon dioxide, which has been identified for decades by laymen and physicians as being the main ingredient in foul or used air, is now regarded by medical research workers as being a necessary constituent of the breathing process.

McGill medical research workers point out that the despised carbon dioxide is really what causes us to breathe. It acts as a stimulant on the respiratory centers. This is the reason that in modern resuscitation work oxygen is mixed with a small quantity of carbon dioxide which, when it enters the lungs, stimulates them into action.

Cures Apple Ills

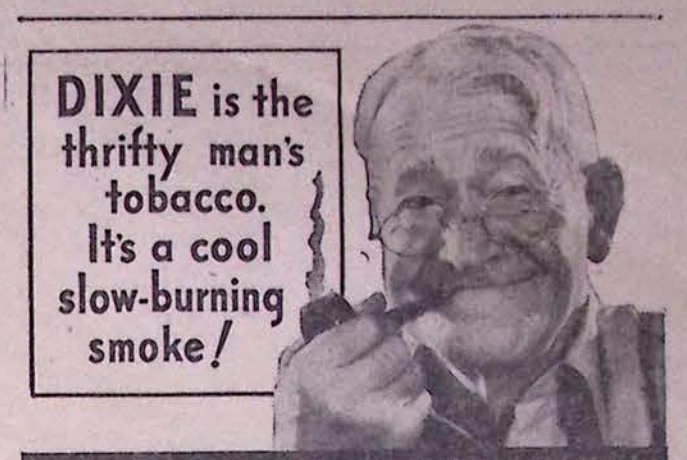

Injection of a chemical known as boron into the trunks of apple trees afflicted with "corky bore" is said to give almost 100 per cent. control over this bane of apple growers.

The discovery is reported by L. C. Young, horticulturist, and associates at the Dominion Experimental station at Fredericton, N.B. After several years' work they are experimenting to see if boron can be applied as a soil treatment.

New Cancer Method

Invention of radium threads, a new method of treatment for cancer, was announced last week at the New York City Cancer Institute.

The threads are made by taking ordinary "sutures" used by surgeons for sewing up wounds, and inserting in them, spaced like beads, tiny gold or silver "seeds". The seeds, long used in cancer treatment, contain radon, the gas from radium, which gives off exactly the same rays as radium.

The seeds are so small that the surgical radium thread is smooth enough to be sewn into, or around, a cancer. The advantage for the "thread radium," according to its originators, Dr. Fred Hanes and associates, is the certainly of placing the burning substance in precisely the best locations.

The 93rd Element

The noted physicist, Jean Perrin, informed the French Academy of Science his collaborators have discovered what is believed to be the 93rd chemical element —a substance heavier than uranium.

The scientist, president of the academy, said the element had been found in stable form in minerals containing uranium, notably pitchblende.

By using a powerful spectroscope, he said, his colleagues had distinguished four new spectral lines which were believed to have been caused by the presence of transuranium, a nucleus whose atom would contain 93 positive charges.

Starch-Making Animal

The discovery that one small, barely-visible water animal can make, in 25 days, more starch and fat than the whole United States could eat, was described last week at the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Mass.

The animal is Chilmonas, a flagellate, so termed from the fact that he swims by lashing with fine, hair-like arms called flagella. Scientists got interested in him because, unlike virtually all other living things, he is able to make starch and fat without light. Starch and fat are two of the three essential foods. Protein is the other.

Hens Require Some Privacy

Before going into the privacy of the henhouse it's a good idea to rap on the door, says H. W. Titus, a poultry expert at the national agricultural research station, Beltsville, Maryland.

"Then the chickens know what to expect, come to attention and face the door," he explains. "There is no fluttering — no alarm."

Otherwise, the birds are apt to get excited, flutter, and injure themselves.

THE DOOMSDAY MEN

By J. B. Priestley

It is in a light-hearted mood that Mr. ("Good Companion") Priestley, having swapped English mists for desert spaces, has come on what he calls "a fairy-tale in Western rig."

"Fairy-tale" indeed suggests only part of the story of "The Doomsday Men." Buried in it lies most of the makings of a murder mystery. It has more than a "tinge of a Western" and a generous slice of romance. There is a beautiful damsel in distress, who has a brace of wicked uncles and a father who is a modern magician, a scientist. There is an impecunious but undaunted suitor; an innocent scientist, a domestically inclined soldier of fortune, a dare-devil, a delightful widow with gray curls. Over all of them and many other millions hangs a fate that it would be unfair to disclose. You enter the book by way of the murder mystery. Then both love and suspense thicken, and the tale winds its fabulous way up a canyon near the edge of Death Valley. It is ridiculous to suppose that youth and virtue will not triumph, but nevertheless it is a relief to note that the final chapter is "Doomsday—and Afterwards."

...Gardening Notes...

PLANT THEM NOW

August embraces many garden operations which usually are associated with the fall. This is particularly true of the planting of certain bulbs. Madonna lilies usually do the best if planted in August. The reason for this is easily explained by the fact that it is the nature of the bulbs to develop some broad foliage before the arrival of winter.

Oriental Poppies

August does not seem to be a favorable month for planting perennials, yet it is at this time that the Oriental poppy (Papaver orientale) is most successfully planted. Unlike most perennials, the plants die down gradually after their flowering in May and June, until by August they have become entirely dormant. During this dormant period transplanting of the long tap-rooted plants is accomplished with the greatest success. In the early fall the plants resume both top and root growth, and recently moved plants establish themselves for the winter.

To grow really fine Oriental poppies the soil should be prepared 18 inches deep. A good loam, enriched with well-rotted manure or compost is ideal. Fresh manure should never be used, as there is danger of its rotting the fleshy roots. If well rotted manure, or compost, cannot be obtained, dried sheep manure and some commercial form of humus may be substituted. These should be thoroughly mixed with the soil before planting.

DISCOURAGE EARLY BLOOM

Some chrysanthemums, and dahlias of the large flowered exhibition type, may be showing buds now, but it is best to discourage early blooming. Both of these fine flowers are late summer and autumn subjects and require cooler weather and particularly longer and cooler nights, to develop to their best.

Early blooming not only exhausts the plants prematurely, but the flowers that are produced are usually poorly formed, and not so good in color as those that develop later on. Insects which attack and deform the blossoms are also more prevalent now than later.

Therefore another pinching back of the plants — even if this has already been done once or twice — is in order.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Give the pedestrian a break," pleads a correspondent. That, unfortunately, is just what some motorists seem bound to do.

One of the most boresome expressions is "it augurs well"

Thirty schools are said to be closed in Alberta through lack of teaches. Teachers, after all, cannot live on promises of a social credit dividend.

It is not on account of scarcity of teachers if some schools in this county are closed, but because of lack of funds to pay them.

That man mentioned in our last issue who can drink beer while standing on his head will no doubt be asked how he does it. And his natural answer will be, "I just drink it up."

A Contrib. sends this one: "Hitler and Mussolini sat fishing together on one side of the lake, and Mr. Chamberlain on the other. But while the British Prime Minister caught fish after fish, the two dictators could not raise a bite. 'How do you do it, Neville'? they asked across the water, 'there don't seem to be any on our side.' 'The fish are there all right,' replied Mr. Chamberlain, 'but they don't dare to open their mouths.'"

White leghorns are reported diving for minnows, says a contemporary. It sounds fishy and there may be a catch in it somewhere, but for divers reasons it makes interesting reading hennyway. Modern ideas are evidently playing ducks and drakes with those leghorns.

"We want to be happy in our own fashion," says Hitler, a remark which will lead people to surmise that fashions in happiness are almost as crazy as fashions in hats.

If visitors to the province are sometimes misinformed, it is because they fall into the sad error of imagining that the voice of Halifax is that of all Nova Scotia.

A contemporary claims that "Canada, on the stage of the world's theatre, is pretty small potatoes." That doesn't sound well. It sounds as though Canada were something thrown at somebody. How would potatoes get on a stage otherwise?

Some think that Old Sambo was nearer right than he knew when he called 'em "demockeries".

To Ethiopia, Spain and Czechoslovakia, the League of Nations must seem like a Lag of Nations.

The foor-power conference has given the world a rest from the threats of dictators who were evidently bent on the conquest of smaller nations which were not strong enough to defend themselves. Hitler gets what he was after at the expense of Czechoslovakia, which was thrown to the wolves by the powers sworn to protect her.

An elderly lady rang a fire alarm at Halifax when she tried to post a letter in one of the alarm boxes. The firemen did not wish to throw cold water on her attempt, so went back to their firehall.

Nova Scotia Farm News

Issued by the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture

Large Increase in Fall Ploughing

Reports received by the extension division of the provincial department of agriculture indicate that a considerably larger amount of fall plowing has been done in various parts of the province than for some seasons. Conditions have been particularly suitable for this work, and the fact that a larger acreage has been plowed gives rise to the expectation of a larger acreage in field crops next season. A strong appeal to farmers to get as much fall plowing done as possible this year was recently issued through an advertisement issued by the provincial department of agriculture. The extent to which fall plowing forms part of the farm program on a farm is a fair indication of the extent to which farm planning is carried out. The appeal issued by the department of agriculture points out the value of plowing as much land as possible in the fall, thereby saving valuable time in the spring when farm work is pressing. It permits also the regular planning of definite and increasing acreages in grain and root crops, a crying need on the farms of the province at the present time.

First of the Short Courses

First of the series of 14 short courses planned to be held at the agricultural college at Truro during the fall and winter, is scheduled to to be held from October 11 to 21, on the grading of dressed poultry, the course having been postponed for one week from the dates originally announced. This is one of the courses being held under the joint auspices of the federal department of labour and the provincial department of agriculture, and is designed to give young men from the rural districts training in the grading of poultry. During this course instruction will be given by both federal and provincial departments of agriculture officials, and will include instruction in killing, plucking, pre-cooling, grading and packing of poultry. Birds to be used in these demonstrations are being obtained from the federal experimental stations at Kentville and the experimental farm at Nappan, where they have been on feeding trials, so that useful information will be available in connection with feeding and finishing of market poultry. Indications are that there will be a good attendance at this course.

Hog Shipments on the Short Line

Shipping of live hogs to market by farmers who are members of agricultural societies and shipping clubs along the short line, has during the past nine months, surpassed all previous records. For the first nine months of the current year, a total of 1978 head have been marketed co-operatively through the farmers' organizations which compares with a total of 2333 head for the whole year of 1937. Present indications are that this year's marketings will set a new record, since it is expected that the next two months will show the heaviest "per month" marketings for the year. Quality has been well maintained in the shipments, even breaking previous records. The per-centage of "A" grade to date stands at 41 percent, a very high rate. Prices have been generally good, though it has been necessary to make several shipments of hogs to Montreal to take advantage of the higher prices offered on that market. The farmers throughout the short line territory, states H. Graham Longley, markets fieldman of the Nova Scotia department of agriculture, deserve great credit for the manner in which they have co-operated to build up their own organization for the marketing of hogs.

Commuuity Fairs a Success

Community fairs in Cape Breton county registered large attendance and good exhibits this fall, according to H. F. MacIntyre, district agriculturist for that county. Attendance at Marion Bridge fair was estimated at 2000, and at Coxheath close to 1500. Marion Bridge fair had the largest exhibits of cattle and horses ever shown, with 156 head of dairy cattle and 56 head of horses, and 20 head of sheep. The new fair at Mira Gut was also a greater success than anticipated, reports Mr. MacIntyre. The sweepstakes were held at Coxheath, and eleven silver cups were presented to the winners as follows:

» INVERNESS NEWS «

The Convent group of the Inverness Home and School Association, held its first meeting of the present school year last Tuesday evening. Owing to the unavoidable absence of the President, J. A. McKenna, the chair was occupied by H. P. McKinnon. The Treasurer's report showed a substantial betterment in the financial condition of the Association over the preceeding year. The reports of the Provincial and National Conventions, held at Wolfville and Halifax respectively, during the past summer, were presented by Miss Sadie McMillan who represented the Inverness Association at both conventions, and elicited high commendation. Several other matters engaged the attention of the meeting, including the sponsoring of a resolution requesting the Town Council to enforce the curfew regulations in effect a few years ago, but since allowed to become dormant.

The following visitors from Port Hood were in Inverness last week: Alex MacInnis, L. L. B., J. W. Gillis, Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. MacDonald and Mrs. Steve MacEachern.

Mr. and Mrs. Dougald MacEachern, Creignish, accompanied by their son, Angus, were in town on Saturday returning from Dunvegan where they attended the obsequies of the late Mrs. Duncan MacEachern.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, accompanied by their daughter, Isabella, were visiting at Port Hood and Colindale on Sunday last.

The Inverness Mine has worked full time in the past two weeks and it is earnestly to be hoped that this will be the order during the fall and winter months, at least.

On September 18th the death occurred at St. Mary's Hospital, Detroit, of Mrs. Duncan McEachern, who before her marriage, about six years ago, was a Miss McIsaac, of Dunvegan, Inverness County, daughter of Mrs. Flora and the late Angus McIsaac. She had been ill but a few days and her unexpected death came as a severe shock to her family and many friends both at Detroit and her native home. Her remains were brought to her old home, at Dunvegan, arriving on Friday morning, accompanied by her bereaved husband and young son. The funeral took place on Saturday morning to St. Margaret's Church at Broad Cove, where a High Mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Stanley P. MacDonald, a cousin of the deceased. Father MacDonald preached a touching and appropriate sermon in Gaelic. After which interment was made in the parish cemetery, Father MacDonald, assisted by Rev. P. A. MacLennan, P. P., conducted the services at the grave.

The deceased was highly esteemed by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance and much sympathy is being extended to her husband, who is a native of Creignish, and three children, in the loss of an estimable wife and mother, in the prime of life, she being in the 30th year of her age. Surviving also are her mother, three brothers and four sisters. The brothers are John A., in Alaska, Joseph, in British Columbia and Colin, at home. The sisters Mrs. A. R. McDonald (Florence) of Detroit, but presently visiting at her old home, Mrs. J. H. Smith, (Margaret) of Roxbury, Mass., Jessie, residing at Boston and Alice, who also accompanied the remains from Detroit. The large number of spiritual and floral offerings testified in a silent but eloquent manner to the esteem in which the deceased was held. The wreaths presented by the Ford Motor Company, with whom the husband holds an official position, being very beautiful. Following his sad mission to his native County, Mr. McEachern expects to return to Detroit in a few weeks.

Leo Boudreau, son of Mr and Mrs D C Boudreau, was united in marriage to Miss Blanche Sampson, daughter of Norman and the late Mrs Sampson, in the Catholic Church by Rev Father Monbourquette on the 5th of October. Joseph Boudreau, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman, while Violet Sampson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. They left for Sydney after the ceremony and from there proceeded to New York, where they will reside. Best wishes of their friends are extended for their future happiness and prosperity.

D D Boyd, M L A., who was in town on Monday, recently returned from Halifax, where he got in touch with the Nova Scotia Power Commission and persuaded them to supply electric energy during the international vessel race off Boston between the two old rivals, the "Bluenose," of Lunenburg, and "Gertrue L Thibeau," of Gloucester. The race, one of the season's most interesting sporting events, takes place on Oct. 9th, and we believe the Bluenose will be able to show her heels to the Gloucester contender on this as on a former occasion, providing there is a good stiff northwester blowing when these two fast vessels meet this time.

A candidate for Parliament declaimed: "The people of this country must grow more wheat."

"How about hay?" yelled a heckler.

"I'm talking about food for mankind," retorted the candidate, "but I'll get around to your case in a minute." This is just the sort of smart retort one might expect from G. W. Kyte, ex-M. P., or the late E.P. Flynn, ex-M.P, who were noted for their witty retorts to any heckler who interrupted them when addressing a political meeting.

Death of Mrs. Vic. Power

The community was saddened as well as shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Victoria Power, who passed to her eternal rest on Monday at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Although in indifferent health for some time, Mrs. Power's death came as a great surprise not only to her family but to her very many friends. She was the widow of the late L. G. Power, one of our best and kindest neighbors and public-spirited citizens. Mrs. Power was noted for her kindness and many a poor person has reason to bless her name for her charitable deeds. Those who are left to mourn the loss of an affectionate and devoted mother are: Gertrude, at home, a valued municipal official: Clara a registered nurse, Boston; James M., postmaster, Arichat, Oswald, Boston. To one and all, living here or elsewhere, we extend our sincere sympathy in their affliction.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Power took place on Thursday morning, and was largely attended. Rev. Father Monbourquette celebrated High Mass in the Catholic Church, of which deceased was a devout member. Interment was in the family plot in the Catholic cemetery, where many assembled to pay their final respects to a loyal friend and good neighbor while the Rev. Fr. Monbourquette recited the prayers for the departed.

EPILOGUE

The entrance hall of "Owl's Croft" presented a more cheerful appearance than Digby had yet seen.

A trim parlour-maid served tea, a cheerful fire burned on the hearth and over the whole apartment an atmosphere of well-being was suffused. Upon the hearthrug sprawled the form of a big dog; who sprang up at Digby's entrance, licking his hand with great affection.

Hunter laughed. "Looks more like a dog now-a-days, doesn't he?"

"Yes," agreed the owner of Owl's Croft, "your days of hunting are over, aren't they, old chap?"

The dog wagged his long tail in reply.

Seated round the apartment were Hunter, Digby and the superintendent. Likewise, looking very much upon his best behaviour, sat P.C. Bright, steadily and noisily consuming toasted scones and tea.

Mrs. Barlow, too, was seated in a chair facing the detective, and by her side stood her furtive-looking husband. The woman looked pale and ill, and the uncomfortable man, at the back of her chair, shuffled from foot to foot.

Mrs. Barlow was speaking.

"So, you see, sirs, it was a very great temptation for my 'usband an' me. We was Mr. Benson's 'ousekeepers in London, and 'e brought us down here when he came, that was before he built the big 'ouse opposite."

By Hook Or By Crook

"Why did he build that place, Mrs. Barlow?" the question came from Hunter.

"Why, sir, becos, we found it was nigh impossible to drive Mr. Digby's uncle out. That was our instructions, sir, to get 'im out by 'ook or by crook. You see, Mr. Benson knew all about Owl's Croft before we came. He bought the secret from a German gunman in America. All this cliff was to be an arsenal in the days of the war, if the German troops had landed here. For years they had prepared the caves and passages below as an arsenal and store for war materials. Benson wanted to get it all, but when Mr. Digby inherited the property, why he was a worse proposition than his uncle. When we got him thoroughly scared, he went off to London and brought you back, sir."

"I see," commented Hunter, "and what were you and your husband to receive for this scaring away business?"

"A thousand pounds, sir. We should a' been comfortable for life."

She sniffed and looked as though she had been robbed of that amount.

"That's all very well," breathed the fussy superintendent. "But you don't explain why Benson and his confederates wanted the place so badly."

"I fancy I can explain that, superintendent," chimed in Hunter.

"You see, Benson did a remarkably fine trade in the States with his whisky, because in the days of the fake whisky in America, this stuff of Benson's did actually come from Scotland. A pretty stiff price he got for the stuff, too, I guess. Having been distilled in secret in Strathleven, it was carried here by the motor craft."

"The access to the secret ways, I suppose he built for himself?" added the police chief.

A Remarkable Story

"I fancy there is still a remarkable story down in the village, of the vast number of foreign workmen employed and the length of their stay. There can be no doubt whatever that one of those workmen was none other than our late friend, Cranston."

"But Old Shageen was a very live story here-abouts," interposed the superintendent, "long before Benson ever came upon the scene."

"Quite so," agreed Hunter. "He simply adapted to his own ends the fearsome story of a ghostly hound that walked the shore."

"And Cranston, otherwise The Scarecrow?"

"He came dogging the footsteps of Benson, McClintock, and West, the three gunmen who killed his only brother in America. He too, when the affair happened, was supposed to be shot. His recovery was a marvel."

"By the way, Mrs. Barlow, I'd like to know the secret of that portrait in the library. The gentleman who was supposed to have been beheaded."

"The passageway to this room leads to the panelling above the fireplace in the library," Barlow chimed in. "Come with me, sir, I'll show you."

Nothing loth, Hunter, Digby and the Superintendent followed the man. He stepped to an antique leather screen and deftly opened a panel behind it. The mechanism was beautifully made and well oiled, permitting not a sound or scrape to escape in the process.

The Secret Passage

Stepping within the oaken panelling he beckoned. A candlestick with candle and matches stood on a small shelf within. Lighting the candle, he went ahead, stooping to avoid the low-pitched rafters in the secret way.

A dusty, narrow passage it was that they traversed, cloyed with innumerable cobwebs. About twenty paces and then a turn to the right and another immediately almost, to the left, brought them into a wider stretch.

"Peep through here, sir," said the man, lifting a small canvas flap.

Hunter applied his eye and saw that he was looking down into the library.

"You're looking through a peephole in the big frame of the portrait now, sir. It can't be seen from the other side. An look sir, this is how we make the portrait bleed."

He indicated a half circular patch on what was the back of the canvas of the picture.

"That's gauze, that is, sir. An' we soak this sponge in red stain and just press it to the gauze, and the colored moisture oozes through."

"Very clever," agreed Hunter, "but whoever took the trouble to invent and install such a device?"

"It was the work of Herr Straumann, the German gent who used to live here in the pre-war days, when they were preparing for the great war. He was a regular inventor, he was. He wanted to be able to scare off undesirable tenants."

Returning to the hall lounge, they disturbed P.C. Bright attacking the last of the scones.

A Great Wrong

"It beats me," murmured the Superintendent, "what a lot of trouble Cranston took to kill three men, when 'e might ha' shot at 'em any time; I daresay years ago."

"Everything he did," said Hunter in a low voice, "was planned with theatrical effect. I know he was a qualified chemist before he became a vaudeville performer. His knowledge of drugs alone placed the lives of these men in his hands. At any moment he might have dealt out a slow and painful death. The theatrical strain forbade him, and he preferred the dramatic.

"Well, for all his faults, and having no sympathy with a man who takes law into his own hands, I cannot but help feeling a great sense of understanding with this man Mysticus, or Cranston. His was a great wrong, but equally so his was a great vow and a terrible fulfilment."

— THE END —

Natural Line Favored For Winter Styles

Skirts Short, Waistline Normal

PARIS.—The winter fashions feature a natural line, an essentially feminine silhouette. Skirts are short, waistlines either normal or slightly higher. Elaborate sleeves constitute an important detail.

The new silhouette takes two directions: The close-fitting sheath and the flared-skirt, tight-bodice line known as "Versailles," evoking as it does French court fashions of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Rich Materials Used

Rich materials and gay colors are seen in all the shows. Sumptuous brocades, glittering lames, stiff moires and gleaming Duchess satin are used in profusion.

Last season's tendency toward a lower waistline has given way to a higher line sometimes clearly marked in certain evening gowns by a corselet bodice as tightly adjusted as the jerkins of the Middle Ages.

Florentine Sleeves

Skirts are full, sometimes hanging straight and sometimes pleated all around. Certain formal evening skirts are narrow, clinging, and taper off into long trains, but there are just as many for evening wear which are made fuller by godets and stop short of the ankle.

Bishop and mutton sleeves reminiscent of the 1900's are popular, but no more so than tight-fitted Florentine sleeves tapering off to a point at the back of the hand.

Summer vacations in the Arctic are popular among Russians this year.

JELLY MAKING Tradition

By KATHARINE BAKER

That magic phrase "home jelly" brings to mind rows of gleaming, colorful jars on a shelf, shimmering glasses of various hues all ready for winter use. It's more than an art, more than even a pleasant occupation, jelly making is a tradition. A tradition is usually a custom which is handed down from one generation to another and that used to be so with jelly making. It was a tradition in the sense that mothers used to have to teach their daughters the secrets of jelly making; how and when to choose the fruit, how long to boil it and numerous other hints to secure a good batch of jelly. But even then it didn't always turn out as hoped. Sometimes fruit had to be thrown away with a great loss of sugar, time and fuel because it did not jell.

Jelly making is still a tradition in the sense that good cooks pride themselves on their ability to capture delicate summer flavours for winter use. But the hard part of the tradition, learning how to do it, has been removed by modern jelly making methods. The reason that some jellies wouldn't jell in the old days was because they lacked sufficient pectin and even after long boiling, which robbed the fruit of much of its colour and flavour, the results couldn't be depended upon. Modern cooks use fully ripe fruit, add bottled fruit pectin, boil for only a few minutes and turn out delicious jellies, the texture of which they know will be right.

Plum Jelly

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice
7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

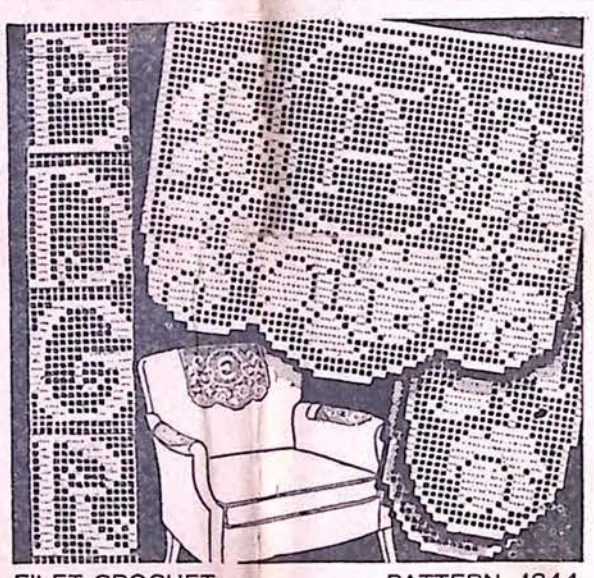

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly 4 pounds fully ripe fruit. Do not peel or pit. Add 1 cup water. Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place in jelly cloth or bag; squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each.)

Baked Stuffed Apples

6 large, firm well flavored apples
1/3 cup chopped dates
1/3 cup seedless raisins
1/3 cup Bee Hive Golden or White Corn Syrup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter
2/3 cup Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup.
1/3 cup water

Wash apples, remove peel from top third, and cores to within ½ inch of bottom, and stuff with combined raisins, dates, 1/3 cup corn syrup and lemon juice. Add butter to diluted corn syrup and pour around apples in a buttered baking dish. Bake in moderate oven until tender, basting often with syrup in dish. Serve hot or cold with cream.

Shoe Styles

Fall Footwear to Feature More Color

In buying fall shoes remember:—

Color is threatening the long rule of black, particularly for daytime wear—

Choose your colors with discretion; each has been selected by the tanners and manufacturers for a real reason; don't try to make one color do the work of another too often.

Smooth leathers increase in favor for all-round wear—Watch suedes for lessening significance, especially in black—

Pattern types are less differentiated—that is, one pattern adopts features of another, but pumps are increasingly important, and oxfords have new appeal by reason of their easy adjustment—

Things that "stick out," at throat or side-front, are an entertaining feature of pump decorations, often the means of introducing contrast of bright color.

Says Romance Is Unnatural

Wife of Belgian Explorer Declares It Is An Innovation Of Civilization—Savages Know Nothing About It.

Soft glances, soft words, hands touching slyly—in short, romance—are not natural to the human race at all. They are just some of the innovations of civilization. People who have been untouched by the slow process of civilization have never found a need to romanticize the urge of men and women for companionship with the opposite sex.

That is the conclusion of sophisticated Leila Roosevelt Denis, wife of the Belgian explorer, Armand Denis. She formed her opinions about romance after living for a year in the Belgian Congo—land of pygmies, giants, wild elephants, strange customs—while her husband photographed the life of the natives for the Belgian government.

"Dying Swan" Look Acquired

Armand Denis agrees with his wife that romance and love-making are unnatural. He learned the lesson well when he made a film about East Indian natives, in which a love story was enacted.

Making a native look lovingly at a girl was something. The only way that Denis could evoke the "dying swan" look that movie-goers expect in the first stages of a screen romance was to put a tempting meal before the hero. Then while he looked lovingly at the food, Denis substituted the heroine for whatever edibles appeal to a native of the tropics.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON VIII

Hannah: Godly Motherhood
1 Samuel 1:1 — 2:10
Printed Text, 1 Samuel 1:9-18; 2:1-5

Golden Text — "Her children rise up, and call her blessed." Proverbs 31:28.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time — The events of this lesson cannot be definitely dated, but fell possibly between 1170 B.C. and 1140 B.C.

Place — Ramathaim-zophim was situated in Benjamin; see the lesson for further explanation. Shiloh was a city in Ephriam on the north side of Bethel.

It is quite remarkable how many women of pious homes, in both the Old and New Testaments have been for many long years childless, Sarah (Gen. 16:1), Rachel (Gen. 30:1), Manoah's wife (Judg. 13:2), Elisabeth (Luke 1:7). And get God, in preparing Samuel to do a great work in Israel, was also preparing Hannah to be the mother that a great man such as Samuel would need. God had to get a woman before he could get a man. Hannah had in her the making of the woman he needed. God honored her by choosing her, but she must be changed before she could be used, and so there came those years of pruning and sifting and discipline.

9. So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk. Now Eli the priest was sitting upon his seat by the doorpost of the temple of Jehovah. 10. And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto Jehovah, and wept sore. Trouble will do one of two things to a believer; it will either harden his or her heart, or it will bring that one to God. Hannah is led to the throne of grace by the agony that is in her heart. The word "Shiloh" means "rest." It continued to be the religious center of the entire nation until after the loss of the ark in the disastrous battle of Ebenezer (see Jer. 7:12). When Hannah had come up to Shiloh to worship, she found Eli the priest there lazily idling away his time before this sacred object that had been committed to his care. The fervor, beauty, and efficacy of Hannah's prayer did not depend on the purity of any priesthood.

Pledged By A Vow

11. And she vowed a vow, and said, O Jehovah, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thy handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thy handmaid, but wilt give unto thy handmaid a man-child, then I will give him unto Jehovah all the days of his life, and there shall no razor come upon his head. The prayer which Hannah offered was in the form of a vow in which she promised God that, should he grant unto her the privilege of becoming the mother of a son, she would dedicate that son to the life of a Nazirite as long as he lived. "The Naziriteship included three things — the refraining from intoxicating drinks, the letting the hair grow, and the avoiding all ceremonial defilement by corpses even of the nearest kin. These strange restrictions and customs had an inner signification. The untouched hair, which here is especially mentioned, was a public protest, that the consecrated one had determined to refrain from intercourse with the world, and to devote the whole of his strength and fullness of life to the Lord's work.

12. And it came to pass, as she continued praying before Jehovah, that Eli marked her mouth. 13. Now Hannah, she spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard: therefore Eli had thought she had been drunken. 14. And Eli said unto her. How long wilt thou be drunken? put away thy wine from thee. 15. And Hannah answered and said, No, my lord, I am a woman of a sorrowed ful spirit; I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but I poured out my soul before Jehovah. 16. Count not thy handmaid for a wicked woman; for out of the abundance of my complaint and my provocation have I spoken hitherto. Eli here supremely shows himself to be utterly unfit for the priesthood. When a man who is supposed to be devoting his life to spiritual things, to the care of souls, to leading others in spiritual growth, is unable to tell the difference between a woman pleading with God in prayer and a woman drunk with wine, he should let some one else come in and do what he is thereby proving himself incapable of and unfit for doing.

A Most Earnest Worshipper

17. Then Eli answered and said, Go in peace; and the God of Israel grant thy petition that thou hast asked of him. 18. And she said, Let thy handmaid find favour in thy sight. So the woman went her way, and did eat; and her countenance was no more sad. Yet when Eli comes finally to recognize that the woman whom he had so falsely accused of intemperance was probably the most earnest, devout worshipper who had come up to the house of the Lord for many a day, he had the grace to bestow a blessing upon her, and to add his own hope to hers, that her petition soon would be granted.

Shortly after Samuel's birth his father went up to Shiloh to offer an early sacrifice and to perform a vow which he had made, which also shows that not only his wife but he also had made a vow concerning the birth of a son (cf. Deut. 12:11).

Song of Thanksgiving

For the mercy and loving-kindness which the Lord had showed unto her, Hannah utters her thanksgiving in a song which reaches far beyond the occasion which gives it birth, and rises into the region of prophecy.

1. And Hannah prayed, and said:
   My heart exulteth in Jehovah;
   My horn is exalted in Jehovah;
   My mouth is enlarged over mine enemies;
   Because I rejoice in thy salvation.

The word "horn" refers first, of course, to oxen, whose strength lies in their horns. The word was a favorite Hebrew symbol, which had come to mean simply "strength" or "power." The phrase "to exalt the horn" means "to raise to a position of power or dignity." (Ps. 89:17; 148:14).

2. There is none holy as Jehovah;
   For there is none besides thee,
   neither is there any rock like our God.

God is frequently compared to a rock, which is, of course, a metaphorical way of ascribing to God strength, faithfulness and unchangeableness.

3. Talk no more so exceeding proudly;
   Let not arrogance come out of your mouth;
   For Jehovah is a God of knowledge,
   And by him actions are weighed.

Undoubtedly Hannah is here referring to the sneers cast at her by her husband's second wife during the barren years before Samuel was born, his birth bringing to an end cutting remarks about her own childlessness.

The song rises now from a consideration of God's goodness to Hannah and her immediate family to a consideration of God's goodness to all of Israel, and closes with a marvelous paean of praise to God regarding "his King" and "his Anointed," which, we bleive, can refer to none other than the Lord Jesus Christ.

Hannah was a woman of faith, i.e., faith in God, manifested by her constant prayer to Jehovah. She was a woman of infinite patience and tenderness, for we do not read of a single bitter, hasty word that escaped her lips during the days of her great trial and insulting persecution on the part of Peninnah. Hannah was a woman who considered it the very greatest honor that a son should be given to the service of the Lord for a perpetual ministry in the temple of Jehovah.

Shave Often and Save Your Shirts

Other things being equal, the man whose shirts last longest is the man who shaves most frequently, J. Fred Oesterling, research assistant in textile chemistry at Pennsylvania State College, said last week.

"Neck whiskers, if they are not shaved off every day, abrade the fabric of the shirt at the collar. Of course, this lessens the life of the collar and of the shirt as a whole," he said.

Research at Penn State has shown an ordinary shirt can be washed and ironed 25 to 30 times before it shows pronounced signs of wear. Some have been washed and ironed 50 times, but they were not worn between washings.

Home Should Be Run Like Business

Something Wrong When The Current Expenses Exceed Income

The woman who enters upon the enterprise of homemaking assumes definite economic obligations. The home is an investment—in part, a financial investment. If the home is maintained on a paying basis, then it is a sound financial investment; if on a losing basis, there is something which needs correcting. Should the question arise: "How does one know when her home ceases to be on a paying basis?" The answer is: "When the current expenses are not compatible with income, and the balance sheet at end of month shows financial loss instead of gain." No business undertaking could hope to succeed if those in authority did not understand the technique and fundamentals involved. The same laws which make a business organization successful are essential to the prosperity of a home.

Find Where The Leak Comes

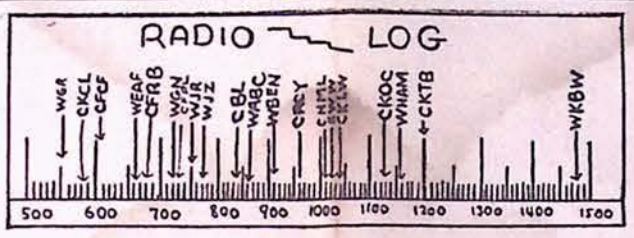

In order to place a home on a businesslike basis one must determine what portion of the assets shall be set aside for current household expenses, such as: rent, food, clothing, fuel, gas, and electricity. If at the end of the month the resources are in excess of the expenditures the home investment is sound. This can only be consistently and successfully accomplished through a budget plan which enables one to look at facts squarely, and helps to prevent the leakage that frequently occurs in household expenses.

Refrigerator Tips

Keep food in covered containers. Remove paper bags or paper wrappings from food before storing in refrigerator. Clean vegetables and wrap in waxed paper or some of the new transparent bags; wash the inside of the refrigerator thoroughly with a mild washing soda solution at least once a week; defrost automatic refrigerators regularly, or when the unit is frosted no more than a quarter in. Do not overcrowd. Refrigerators give best service when there is a free circulation of air throughout.

TOSCANINI RETURNS

Arturo Toscanini, noted leader of the NBC Symphony Orchestra, will return to the air on October 15th with a new series of programs. If you remember, it was Toscanini with his gifted baton who brought such favorable comment to the NBC Symphony Orchestra in his first programs last year. The new series will consist of at least 12 programs conducted by the famous maestro. In addition the orchestra will make a tour of several American cities. For lovers of symphonic music we highly recommend Toscanini's new Fall series (commencing on October 15th).

CONGRATULATIONS

Don Ameche, popular young screen and radio star, is scheduled to return to the Chase and Sanborn hour on September 4. The young singer and actor recently underwent an emergency appendix operation in Holland while on a European vacation. He is recovering very well and will be back to please his thousands of radio fans on September 4th for certain. In regard to this program, we feel laurels are due to Edward Arnold for his splendid work in Don Ameche's place. Congratulations — Edward Arnold!

GOSSIP OF THE AIRLANES

Here is another advance notice — Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, who have been off the air for nearly two years, will return on October 8th over NBC Red Network, with a brand new program for Groves Bromo Quinine. The show will present a group of forty instrumentalists, vocalists, comedians and other entertainers.

"First Nighter" — a series of three act dramas presented in the mythical Little Theatre Off Times Square, starts as a Columbia feature on September 2 and will be heard every Friday from 8:00 to 8:30 p.m., E.D.S.T.

Harry Owens who wrote "Sweet Leilani" (from Bing Crosby's picture "Waikiki Wedding") was the discoverer of the steel guitar. It seems that he was in Hawaii sitting on the beach playing a guitar when a native dropped a steel knife on the instrument. The result was a metallic ping — and from that to the discovery of the steel guitar which is now one of the essential instruments in every band. Harry Owens and his orchestra are heard via NBC from the Royal Palm Roof of the Biltmore Hotel, New York.

Martha Raye, that swinger of scintillating symphonies, and Dave Rose, her musical arranger, are scheduled to say "I Do" on September 12th.

Tony Martin is returning to the orchestra business for at least ten weeks. At the close of the George Burns and Gracie Allen series, Tony will take out an orchestra on a series of one-night stands.

Larry Clinton, the swing-hearted NBC conductor-composer now finds composing tunes easy but titles — oh!!! Many of Larry's compositions rank high in the "swing repertoire." Some of his well-known compositions are "The Dipsey Doodle"; "Satan Takes A Holiday"; "Study In Brown"; "Midnight in a Madhouse"; "The Shades of Hades" and "Abba Dabba."

A marked advancement which gives a greater convenience to radio reception is the new Magnetic "Finger-Tip Tuning Control" being introduced by the De Forest Crosley new 1939 Automatic Radios this season.

By just the simple press of a button any 6 or 10 of your favorite stations respond instantly, accurately and automatically.

"STARDUST" ARRANGEMENT

Music by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Sir Edward Elgar, Anton Dvorak and songs from several of the most successful United States and British writers of popular melodies, will be presented Sunday, August 21, 9:00 to 9:30 p.m., E.D.S.T., over the CBC's national network, when "Music for You" is heard under the direction of Geoffrey Waddington, with Virginia Woods soprano; Dorothy Alt, rhythm singer, and William Morton tenor, as the assisting artists. Albert Pratz, member of the violin section of the orchestra, will provide the violin solo, a Russ Gerow arrangement of Hoagy Carmichael's best known 1929 hit, "Stardust."

Answer to Previous Puzzle

POINT PELEE, Ont.—Canada gets longer and shorter every once in a while, according to J. H. Byrne, senior assistant engineer with the Department of Mines and Resources. He explained Lake Erie is continually building up and tearing down Point Pelee, southernmost tip of Canada's mainland, forty miles southeast of Windsor. The change, Byrne said, would amount to only a few feet in a decade.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

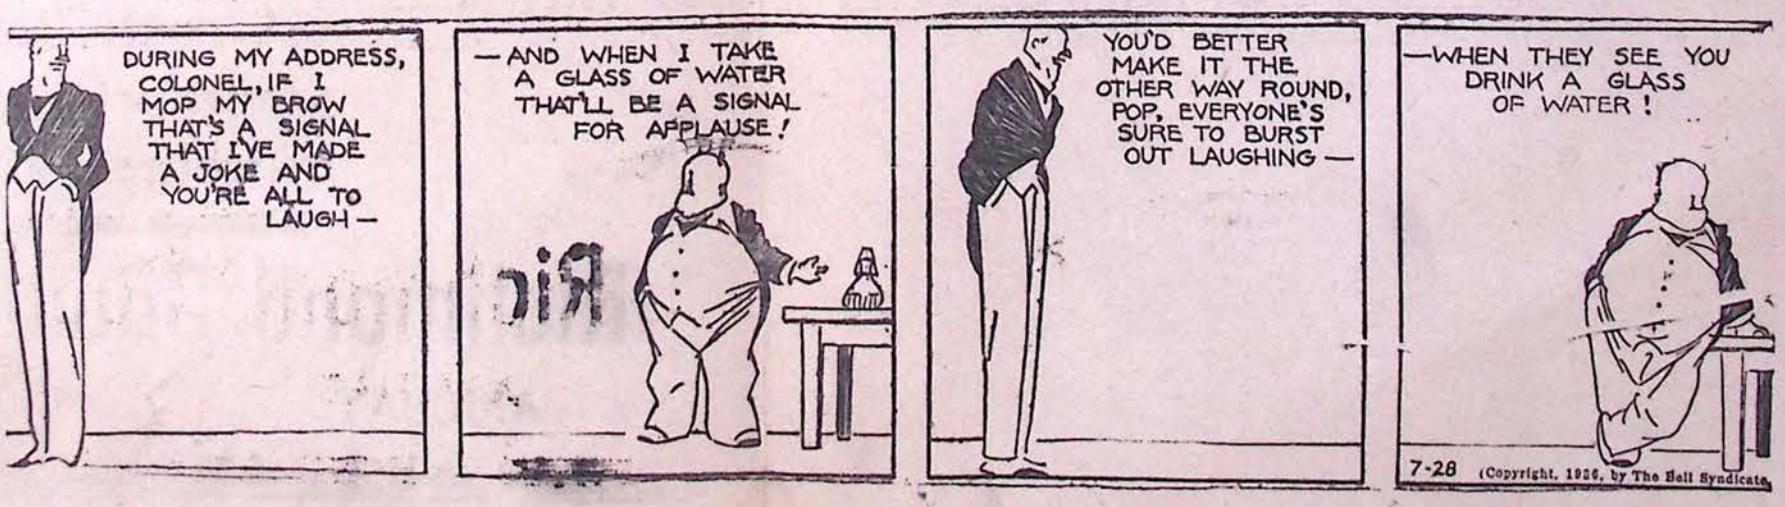

AN ACRE of ground contains 43,560 square feet. A 1-inch rain on the acre would amount to 3630 cubic feet of water and, since each cubic foot of pure water weighs approximately 62.4 pounds, the weight of this amount of water would be about 113 tons.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY DISTRICTS

Seaview Notes

A feature of our community life throughout the summer season were the Gospel tent meetings conducted by Messrs Martin, Hiltz, Crandlemire, and Pollock. The major obligations here were assumed by Mr. Martin truly a man of rare capacity. Eloquent in simple vocabulary that a child understand, and with almost marvelous aptitude for the interpretation of Scripture, his comprehensive and lucid expositions, night after night, held the rapt attention of an intelligent audience gathered from an extended compass.

Messrs Martin and Hiltz are now at the Points, whilst Messrs Crandlemire and Pollock are established at East Loch Lomond. From the worthy citizens of these districts where "stranger" is a holy name, we bespeak a good reception for the talented Bible expositors.

Rev. R. A. Patterson visited this section of his charge on the 29th ult.

Professor Benoit visited Seaview school on the 26th ult.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McLeod, of Sydney, accompanied by the Misses Florence Phillips and Dolena McLeod, John Morrison and Rod Munro, were motor visitors to Seaview on Sunday.

Mrs. J. J. MacMellain, Sydney, is visiting her mother, Mrs. John W. Goswell.

The many friends of Mrs. J. H. MacIntyre, who recently renewed associations here after an absence of thirteen years, will be glad to know that she is home again at Niagara Falls, N. Y., after having visited in Halifax and Montreal, en-route. Thus all our summer guests have returned to resume their various vocations.

So far, this season, the roads in this vicinity have been ignored absolutely. Recently a professional man, who had occasion to travel over them, complimented the citizens upon their long suffering patience.

YOU CAN'T PUT A PADLOCK ON YOUR PURSE

But you can put your money where you will not be tempted to spend it. You need a plan for saving, just as you need a plan for your own work or your child's education. Start your savings plan with the first dollar you can spare. Open an account with the nearest Post Office Savings Bank and let nothing stop you from adding to your savings regularly. Just as buttons accumulate, one by one, in the drawer of your sewing machine: so will dollars accumulate in your Post Office account. Compound interest at 2 per cent. is paid and withdrawals may be conveniently made at any time you require some cash. But don't withdraw except in case of real need. Cultivate the habit of thrift.

Fishing continues to be very dull at this port, and is by far the poorest season ever experienced by our fishermen.

The Little Anse and Samson's Cove fishermen did not harpoon a single swordfish during the season.

Fall fishing will start at the end of the month, and may bring along better results. The Government is operating a fish collection service under the direction of the United Maritime Fishermen. By this service fishermen can market their product at Halifax at prices paid at that port. Whether this service will be beneficial remains to be seen.

Leonard Boudreau, a member of the crew of the tug Lisgar, spent a few days with his parents, Capt. and Mrs. Dominic Boudreau. They are doing work at St. Peters.

The Misses Germaine Samson, the efficient clerk at A. D. Samson's store, and Bernadette Marchand were visiting friends in Arichat on Sunday.

The breakwater at Little Anse was completed on Tuesday, and is one of the best on the Nova Scotia coast. Contractor J. C. Gaudet, foreman Patrick Armstrong and associates deserve credit for the splendid job and the fast time in which they got through with the work.

The M. V. Connoisseur, Capt. Lowe, one of the boats operating re the fish collection service, was in port this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gaudet, Pat Armstrong and others left for their homes in Digby county on Tuesday, They made many friends during their stay, who wish them a pleasant trip and look forth to a visit from them at some future time.
