OTTAWA

Important Transfer Proviso

Based on an exchange of notes between Canada and the United States with respect to American citizens in the Canadian armed forces, every United States citizen is given an opportunity to transfer to forces of his own country, if he wants to do it, though a proviso is that the Canadian authorities may withhold permission for a transfer if immediate transfer would prejudicially affect the common war effort. There are now in the Canadian armed forces at home and abroad about 15,000 to 16,000 U. S. citizens, including 9,000 to 10,000 in the army, 6,000 in the air force, and 42 in the navy.

Curb On Tin Use Is Essential

It is known in Ottawa that the drastic curtailment of the use of tin is the only answer to the question being asked about the supply of this metal in this country at the present time. Under normal circumstances, about 50 per cent of tin used in Canada is consumed in the production of tinplate. With the severe restrictions, cans for pork and beans, spaghetti, curtain rods, bread boxes, etc., will be a thing of the past and these conditions will prevail for a long time.

Billion Dollar Gift Not In Cash

Notwithstanding all impressions to the contrary, the billion dollars free gift to Britain by Canada does not mean sending this sum in cash to the Motherland but rather it does mean that Canada will pay for a billion dollars worth of munitions and supplies to be obtained in this country upon the order of Britain.

"Naming" Member Is No Precedent

When Liguori Lacombe was "named" in the House of Commons on account of seemingly showing a reluctance to submit to rulings of the Speaker, no precedent was set in Parliament because in the last 40 years another member was "named" by the Speaker, this taking place in a stormy debate over the Naval Bill when Speaker Sproule "named" Dr. Michael Clark who respresented Red Deer constituency at that time. Liguori Lacombe, M. P. withdrew from the Liberal Party some time ago and established the Canadian Party, causing much discussion in the lobbies of Parliament by his action at that time.

Starting A Fight To A Finish

Although the Government's much needed enforcement of the National Resources Mobilization Act seems to the average Canadian throughout the country that everybody, within certain age and physical limits, will be merely assigned to certain categories of balanced service in the armed forces, in various other war undertakings, or otherwise in activities approved by the authorities, yet an experienced observer must report at this time that behind the scenes along Parliament Hill it is held that what the Government has done so far in this direction is really only a start in carrying out any plan of total mobilization, particularly since under the present scheme of national selective service about three-quarters of the population will be left precisely for some time where they are now. Indeed, the new mobilization orders, the numerous regulations to control commerce, industry, and the relations between capital and labor, the rationing of certain materials, and the restrictions of luxurious living have caused great changes in the life of the average Canadian, but what is sure to follow now will affect much more every family in this country, involving revolutionary changes in the way of life such have never been witnessed before in the entire history of Canada.

Speed Limit Is Vital Measure

Since there is no doubt that both rubber and gasoline can be conserved by the motorist if excessive speed of travel is discontinued, a similar request is being made in Canada to that made recently in the United States by President Roosevelt, with the reaction favouring a general maximum speed limit of 40 miles per hour.

Newbridge Lends A Hand

Newbridge, the up and at 'em town which is fast becoming a household name in every Canadian home, is setting a fine example in several departments. The people of Newbridge are busy bolstering morale, rounding up enemy aliens, promoting the local war services and generally behaving in a steady fashion. Now Tom Roebuck, J. J's son, is going on the farm in the summer vacation just like thousands of other youngsters all over the country who want to help win the war. Here is a typical rehersal scene with most of the east and John Duncan, the well-known harpist, whose melodius chords sound the invitation to "Newbridge" each weekday evening at 7.30 p. m. EDT, 830 p. m. ADT, from Toronto studios of the CBC.

Why We Should Watch Our Step

Again and again in the past, facts have proved that when a belligerent country is divided internally it is in a grave situation. Modern times and our country, are certainly no exception to this rule which applies not only to Canada or Britain but also to all our allied countries together. This is the reason why there must be cooperation between the allied nations, which should act in this war as one single country, giving help wherever it is needed.

We are all aware that there has been some trouble lately in England, especially after the fall of Singapore and a few other inevitable misfortunes for the Allies. The people seem to have less confidence in Churchill, a movement no doubt caused by ideas set out by bad critics. Is it Churchill's fault if Singapore fell? Of course not; a few years ago, when neither you nor I would have even bothered looking at him, Churchill warned his people to fortify Singapore.

Yes, critics can do much harm in a country; we must be careful when criticizing our government, because it knows many things which we ignore.

Many people bring about big quarrels on political subjects about which they know absolutely nothing. You may think that there is no harm in that, but in such disputes one may say all sorts of foolish assertions and convince others of them. He then keeps on living with these ideas well stored up in his head, and unwilling to believe otherwise; he just keeps on saying things against his government and country and has none or very little patriotism. Such people in a country, if there are enough, bring about almost revolting parties who try to spread their false ideas. The cenutry is then on a pretty straight road to internal divisions.

We should therefore be careful about what we hear and say. We must not accept as true all that reaches our ears, because most of it is half bluff, started by ignorant critics trying to be smart. Above all, we must be careful as to what we say about our country, allies and leaders, and not repeat all we hear.

Let us be real patriots and always remain loyal to our country, and help England as much as possible, because if England falls, so do we. Let us do all we can to defend Canada and avoid internal disagreements and divisions. Let us not be afraid to face a few miserable moments in life if they can help us attain victory. The sufferings we now face are absolutely nothing compared to those we would have to face in German hands, such as those of the patriots of tortured France.

Forewarned is forearmed.

NOVA SCOTIA BUILT BOATS FOR ESKIMOS

HALIFAX, N. S., April 8—Boats built in Nova Scotia are going to the Canadian Arctic to be used by Eskimos as tenders for small schooners on seal hunting trips. Eight of the deep open rowboats, each about 20 feet in length, were built at Scott's Bay, N. S., by Joseph Thorpe, himself a veteran of the Arctic with the Hudson Bay Company and who leaves shortly for the Far North. The boats, loaded on a flat car, passed through the Canadian National Railways' yard recently on their way north.

Subsidies And Price Ceilings

In order to keep prices well within the established ceilings, certain subsidies are paid on particular classes of imports or domestic products, but so far it has not been determined what the aggregate amount of these subsidies will be, though it is considered that the policies will be worth the cost if it is between fifty million dollars and seventy-five million dollars. However, if the cost will be very much more, it will be another story. In any case, it will take much more time and actual experience to decide on the benefits of the price ceilings policies, which so far seems to keep prices well within prescribed limits or ceilings and to indicate that payment of subsidies are comparatively cheap investments when it helps to maintain a proper price level.

CONCERNED ABOUT CHILDREN

To the Editor.

Sir: Please let it be known that many of us here in Canada are in dire need of help from our government. To [illegible] one of the duties of the [illegible] to keep up the morale of [illegible] but how can we [illegible] up a brave front [illegible]

It's fine if [illegible] children in the family. A woman by herself can manage on the [illegible] pay she receives. But what about us mothers with two or more children? Tax money we get is just enough to feed us and our children if we shop thriftily, but the children need clothes and medical attention, too. I am not ashamed to walk in the streets in old and tattered cloths, for I know my husband is doing his bit in our great hour of need. But when my children come down with a serious illness and there is no money for a doctor or medicine, pride cannot help. Why not open special medical centres where soldiers' children can receive proper medical care, and clothes centres where they can be properly outfitted. Is it not their right to expect these? For myself I ask nothing, but for my children I demand clothes and medical attention.

UNITY ESSENTIAL

To th Editor.

Sir: In the last war the Allies went through many difficult and discouraging times before the war ended. One of the countinual problems was the lack of unity in the armed forces. When finally the armies in France were unified under the supreme command of Marshal Foch the change in our fortunes came swiftly and decidedly. Our many misfortunes in the present war have been due largely to lack of unity and it would seem to be the part of wisdom to avoid possible breakups and confusion by closer cooperation. The defence of the west coast offers a fine chance for unified command. From Panama right up to Alaska it is all one problem, and there is nothing of much account to lose and much to be gained by being prepared ahead of time.—J. L.

QUEEN'S CANADIAN FUND

The Editor, The Richmond County Record, Arichat, N. S.

Dear Sir,

On the first birthday of the Queen's Canadian Fund, and as the press reaches the million-dollar mark, the Chairman and Executive Committee wish to offer their profound gratitude on the success of the [illegible] Province of Nova Scotia for their generous and consistent gifts to aid the civilian war victims of Britain.

The subscription lists from your Province have shown that all sections of the community have contributed, and that the methods of raising money have been most ingenious and varied. It is clear that the people of Nova Scotia appreciate the value to those in distress of spontaneous sympathy and that they realize the importance of maintaining the morale of the civilian defenders of the fortress of Britain.

I am proud to convey also the grateful thanks of Her Majesty the Queen, as expressed to me recently in London, to those who have subscribed towards the splendid total contribution of the Queen's Fund.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN G. McCONNELL,
Chairman.

Oxen Replace Trucks

SHELBURNE, N. S., April 7—"Gee" "Haw", "Whoa", are being heard with increasing prevalence in these parts as more and more farmers and lumbermen turn to the faithful ox to take over the problems of transport with the private motor vehicle going into the discard as a result of the war. Oxen were much used in the early days on the south shore of Nova Scotia as a beast of burden and survived here and there throughout the years, states J. M. Nickerson, Canadian National Railways' Agent at Shelburne. Teams of oxen being driven along the highways were objects of great interest to tourists visiting the picturesque south shore section of the province and now they are again back in harness taking over jobs heretofore done by trucks.

Saving is now proclaimed a National Need if Canada is to carry on, full-out in this war. Upon the shoulders of each one of us falls some part of the responsibility for helping to finance the war.

THE CHARTERED BANKS

NOVA SCOTIA FARM NEWS

SHORTAGE OF CHICKS LOOMS

A shortage of baby chicks in Nova Scotia is forecast by C. E. Benoit, Truro, chief poultry promoter, N. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Already most of the Nova Scotia hatcheries have [illegible] chicks booked well to the end of April and some to the first of May. Poultrymen who are planning on getting chicks before it is too late should have their orders placed with the hatchery as soon as possible, and so give the various hatcheries a chance to co-operate in the filling of orders.

Information regarding surpluses of chicks that may possibly be available at any particular time by any hatchery can be obtained from any county agricultural representative, from the department of agriculture at Truro, or from the dominion poultry services, 100 Sackville Street, Halifax.

WEATHER CONDITIONS FEBRUARY

Rainfall at the college station, Truro, for February amounted to .56 inches, same falling on three days. Snowfall was 17 inches, falling on ten days. This gives a precipitation for the month of, 2.236 inches as compared with the 32 years average of 2.91. The maximum temperature for the month was 44 degrees on February 8th, while on five days it was over 32. The minimum temperature was 5 degrees below zero. On two days it fell below zero while only one day did it go above 32. Thus the month was moderate temperature with only light fall of snow and rain.

CONSERVE MILK CANS

The prospects of getting tin and sheet iron for the manufacture of milk cans is very poor, according to Mr. W. J. Bird, N. S. Dairy Superintendent. On his return from a conference at Ottawa Mr. Bird stated that he was more convinced than ever that the best use possible should be made of the present supply of cans. He said he was doing his utmost to get the necessary materials but there was a shortage all over Canada, and when present stocks were exhausted he could not say what would happen. The mills are piled high with war orders, and war materials have the priority. The manufacture of milk cans, he stated, has been reduced to two sizes, 25-pound and 40-pound.

Another curtailment that looms before the dairyman is that of milk and cream collections. No official orders have been issued as yet, but marked restrictions are expected including the elimination of all duplications in truck collections and the possibility that producers may have to do their own trucking to the main highways.

INTEREST KEEN IN SOIL TESTING

Nova Scotia farmers are showing a keen interest in soil testing. Close to a score of applications are being received each day by Dr. George Smith, Truro, provincial chemist, for soil testing forms. The department would like the farmers to fill out the forms before sending samples. Soil samples, intended for examination by Soils and Fertilizer Division at Truro should be taken to plow depth, and in order to be representative of any particular field should be taken from at least six or eight different places in the field. After a large number of samples have been taken from various places they should be thoroughly mixed and about one-half pint of the mixture sent to Truro for analysis. It is important that along with the sample as much information as possible be given by the farmers about the treatment of the field during the past two or three years, and also that the farmer state what he plans to grow on that particular soil during he coming season.

USE CLEAN WATER CONTAINERS

A large number of samples of water for analysis are being received by the provincial chemist, at the Nova Scotia agricultural college, Truro. It is useless to examine some of the samples received because the containier in which the water has been placed had not been thoroughly cleaned. In taking samples of water it is recommended that a pint self-sealing jar be used and that it be thoroughly washed and then rinsed with boiling water. The water for analysis should be taken from clean part of the well and the container would be rinsed several times with the water before it is finally filled and tightly sealed. The bottle should be carefully packed in a box and addressed to the department of agriculture, soils and fertilizer division, Truro. Farmers should fill in a form, which is free on application to the department before sending in samples of water. No charge is made for the testing.

PREPARING FOR GARDENING BRIGADES

The Nova Scotia garden brigade is now being organized as one means of promoting a needed increase in the production of vegetables. The object is to enlist all citizens, young and old, who are in a position to cultivate a garden plot, no matter how small the plot may be. The slogan is, "a garden for every home." The plan is to have garden companies, with a limit of 20 members, in every community. Last year there were 54 garden companies in the province. With the urgency for greater food production pressing in on all sides it is hoped that there will be many more companies this year. All vegetables produced by members of the garden brigade are to be for home use and not for commercial purposes. Helpful literature on gardening may be obtained from the Nova Scotia agricultural college.

PLOWING STARTS IN DIGBY

The season is well advanced in Digby county according to information given by R. A. LeBlanc, Meteghan, in his report of March 25, covering conditions in the county. He states: "heavy rains during the week helped to take all the frost out of the ground. Several farmers began plowing on dry spots and found the land in fit condition. Some have already made drills ready for planting potatoes, peas and early garden crops."

Chicago Takes More Canadian Fish Products

Fresh and frozen fishery products reaching the Chicago market from Canada are on the increase, according to the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian National Railways. Last year receipts were approximately ten per cent over the previous year and accounted for twenty per cent of the total. Canada's quota was 12.74 pounds out of total receipts of 65,569,000 pounds. The three leading species were fresh and frozen halibut, 13 per cent; shrimp, 11 per cent; and lake trout, 9 per cent. British Columbia and Manitoba were the principal Canadian sources of supply with 13 and 11 per cent respectively. Of fresh water fish from Canadian sources, Manitoba is easily in first place with Ontario and Alberta about even and Saskatchewan about half of what those provinces contributed. 90,042 pounds of frozen smelts were received from New Brunswick and 7,729 from Nova Scotia with Quebec contributing 16,945 pounds of eels. British Columbia supplied 7,000 pounds of frozen sturgeon. Nova Scotia supplied 274,670 pounds of frozen cod fillets, New Brunswick 12,600 pounds Frozen haddock, Nova Scotia 130,568. New Brunswick 32,000 pounds. Nova Scotia also supplied 7,000 pounds of swordfish which are caught in the waters off Cape Breton Island. In shellfish, New Brunswick supplied 112,953 pounds of lobsters, Nova Scotia 640 lbs; lobster meat, New Brunswick 1,209 lbs. 5,000 pounds of frozen tails were supplied by Nova Scotia and 500 lbs. of frozen squid. Over seventy per cent of the total receipts of fish products moved into the Chicago market by railway.

Historic Cannon To Be Melted

PICTOU, N. S., April 7—The old historic cannon which looked out over Pictou Harbor and were a familiar sight to the many visitors to Pictou have yielded to the exigencies of war and will be melted down to make new guns, stated Gordon W. Foster, manager of Pictou Lodge, the de luxe seaside summer resort owned and operated by the Canadian National Railways. When Their Royal Highnesses King George and Queen Elizabeth visited Pictou on their Canadian tour back in 1939, a royal salute was fired from this old battery site. The old guns were never used in actual combat.

NOTE and COMMENT

And now there is talk of something even more insidious than a fifth column, namely, a sixth column. It will take a sixth sense to detect that.

Tailors will now have to do without leg cuffs, but the police no doubt will continue to use handcuffs.

A government statement that a woman's new Easter hat must last for the duration of the war would be much more sensational than the declaration that tires cannot be replaced.

A man who does not believe in form and ceremony cannot be true to his principles these days. He has to go through the ceremony of filling out income tax forms.

Russia seems to be proving that the sickle and the hammer are effective military weapons.

Life for militarily eligible men under thirty is becoming just a lottery.

Mussolini's paper, is said to have protested against posters in unoccupied France addressed "To the lions of Verdun who have submitted to the control of the rabbits of Capcrette." What's wrong with that? It flatters the rabbits.

An orator who speaks in liquid accents finds it easy to be intoxicated by his own verbosity.

It takes a crowd of at least three to make a riot. That made it all the more unusual when the Speaker in the Ottawa House read the riot act to a party of one.

German boys of 14 must attend a service at which they hear long sermons based on texts from Hitler's bible, "Mein Kampf." This puts them in the right frame of mind for kicking Polish babies. The brutes.

A pacifist wants to beat a sword into a plowshare. A realist wants to turn it into a tank or a big gun.

Vichy France has opened a labor office in Berlin. France supplies the labor and Germany the jobs.

Norway's Quisling has recruited a bodyguard. The devil guards his soul.

—:V:—

A Queer State Of Mind

A Protestant minister of Montreal has resigned his charge because he is "a hater of all wars" and thus presumably finds himself at odds with his congregation. The minister, a pacifist of long standing, said he had no desire to see the Nazis win, and he had confidence in the outcome of the struggle, but apparently his convictions stood in the way of any active participation or even passive acquiescence.

As the Ottawa Journal well says, it is a curious point of view which, if generally held, would open this country to the unopposed invasion by Germans and Japanese, even by the Italians. If that happened, all of us, even pacifist preachers, would have to do what we were told to do by the invaders and there would be no freedom of worship nor freedom of anything else. If Britain had 45,000,000 pacifists there would have been no Dunkirk, because the British Army would not have gone to France, no Battle of Britain because Hitler long before that would have set himself up in Buckingham Palace. If all Australians were pacifists the Japs before this would have taken over that continent, perhaps to repeat there the barbarities of Hong Kong.

Pacificism would be a splendid thing if everybody and all nations held it. Applied unevenly, it is simply an invitation to the aggressor to take what he wants without the bother of fighting for it, if he is consistent, would oppose force in civil affairs. One wonders if this minister would holler for the police if he found a burglar in his house, or stay quiet while the marauder made off with the jewelry!

Retailers Should Make Themselves More Visible

Every retailer knows that cellophane-wrapping has helped enormously to increase the sale of goods. Confectionery, shirts, blankets, vegetables, cereals, figs, raisins, toothbrushes, and scores of other products have become self sellers just because they use a kind of wrapper which permits them to be seen, and which adds to their sensuous appeal. No matter how attractive may be the packing of an article, it is what's inside that interests buyers most.

Most of us have the quality of curiosity in large measure. What we like to know about people, and what they are doing and saying, or have done and said. We like going to auction sales because there we learn things about persons, their possessions, and the degree of their future. We like listening to conversations. We flock to pageants and processions and places of tragedy or crime.

And all of us like to know what retailers are doing for us. Retailers are our volunteer servants. Of their own free will they have made themselves suppliers of things which we need or desire. Our curiosity extends to retailers. We want retailers to tell us what they have for us, and about what they have for us, and about prices. We cannot get along without retailers, but we like best those retailers who wrap themselves in cellophane, as it were, who let us see what's inside their stores. Shop windows are not enough. They are just samples. It is what is contained inside and what goes on inside that matters most.

This sort of exposure of what is inside a retail store is affected by newspaper advertisements. By the use of printers' ink every retailer in our community can make his establishment and what goes on inside it visible to all our readers. Our readers have a curiosity which will make them read what retailers say.

Visibility. Retailers who make themselves visible get plenty of custom.

SABLE ISLAND PONIES WILL HAVE TO WORK

HALIFAX, N. S.—Rubber and gasoline shortages are about to bring an end to the nomad life of the wild ponies on Sable Island, known as "the graveyard of the Atlantic." Brought from the Canadian Government about five years ago by Fred B. Huntley of Kentville, N. S., he has plans for bringing the ponies to the mainland to help out in town delivery problems that have arisen since motor operated vehicles have been hit by war priorities. The Sable Island pony is tough and shaggy, stands about four feet six inches off the ground and weighs in the vicinity of 700 lbs. They are descendants of a shipload of thoroughbred French horses wrecked on Sable Island several centuries ago, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways.

With the season opening near at hand the Richmond Fishermen's Co-Operative Ltd. is now busy repairing their wharf and building a new fish shed in anticipation of a large fish business the coming season.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PHOTOGRAPHIC NOTEBOOKS

Do you keep a photographic notebook? It's the easiest way to remember the facts about your snapshots, and to assure good results in the future.

THE most valuable thing in the world, it is said, is experience. But the question is, how can we profit from this experience? Shall we rely on memory alone? Photographically that isn't a very wise plan. It's much better to rely on a photographic notebook—one which, for ready reference, contains the essential facts about each negative. These should include: lens aperture used; shutter speed; type of film; filter, if any; general light conditions; time of day and location.

If you're taking pictures indoors, jot down such data as the number of lights used, distance of each light from the subject, and exposure. You might, if you wish, include a rough lighting diagram.

These facts, if you study them in relation to your results, will be extremely valuable. For permanent reference number your negative file to correspond to pages in your photographic notebook, and by all means take time to study your prints in relation to the written facts. Ask yourself, "Is this picture satisfactory?" If so, "Why?" If not, "Why not?"

That's the quickest way to understand why your best pictures—like the picture serving as our illustration—are really good. Furthermore, you won't be letting your hard earned experience go to waste. You'll be conserving and using it wisely.

Regret The Omission

In the obituary notice in our last issue of the late W. I. LeVesconte, we inadvertently omitted the name of Rev. W. J Bridgman, the officiating rector, and also that of Mrs. Reynolds Smith, who presided at the organ with her usual grace and efficiency.

Not A Consoling Thought

A young man thinks everybody's crazy except himself. An old man thinks everybody's crazy including himself.

Main Street In Bad Shape

Arichat's Main St. is in a wretched condition. Deep holes everywhere and travelling by car is not a pleasure but a torture. We hope to see the tractor in operation before the state of the roads become worse, if they can become worse.

A Good Bus Service

The Gordon Bus continues to give the people of this county a good service and the people whom it serves appreciate it. Mr. Gordon is a man who believes in providing a Bus Service second to none in the province and in this he is receiving the patronage his enterprise deserves. Mr. Gordon was in town on Monday and his many friends were glad to see that his recent severe illness left him with no ill-effects.

We Avoid Sensationalism

If the Record indulged in the sensational it has plenty of material to publish in serial form; but what good could it accomplish except perhaps wound sensitive souls who are innocent of any wrongdoing. No; the Record keeps its columns clean and above reproach. Lurid details of a sensational nature we leave for other papers.

Gravelled Roads

A visitor to Halifax from Isle Madame the past week saw Hon. I. D. Currie, Minister of Mines and Labor, and he stated that the latter informed him that the roads of Isle Madame would be gravelled the coming summer. This will be greatly appreciated by the people of this island. If this war was not the costly one it is, it is likely that Mr. Currie would have had a more important pronouncement to make—a paved road between here and Grandique, or maybe as far as Grand Anse. But the finances of the province will not permit of this large expenditure this year or while the war lasts. Thanks Mr. Currie; we deeply appreciate the interest you are taking in the county.

A Low, Criminal Race

The Japs have been doing a lot of dirty work since they entered the war on the side of Hitler and his gang. When they capture a place they bayonet the prisoners and commit all kinds of cowardly crimes on men, women and children civilians. The Huns are bad enough, but they have nothing on their brothers in crime —the Japanese. They have proved themselves the scum of the earth and retribution will follow them in due time, or as soon as the United Nations gather in strength enough to put them out of business. May that day come soon.

Dundee Visitors

John C. Calder accompanied by J. H. MacIntosh and J. Scott Nelson were business visitors from Dundee on Friday. They gave the Record a call and were much interested in the operation of our linotype.

COSTUME PORTRAITURE

Want a pleasant way to spend a winter's evening? Try costume portraiture, you'll like it.

AT THIS time of year picture-making often comes to a complete standstill as far as some amateurs are concerned. The one thing, however, that never seems to be taken into consideration is that life, unlike picture-making, is never temporarily discontinued.

For instance, now that winter has enveloped the country, are the members of your family less photogenic than they were last June? Has anyone you know changed so greatly that it is now an impossibility to picture him at all?

Of course not. The only reason fewer pictures are made in winter than in summer is that pictures are not as obvious. But on the other hand, winter is replete with possibilities which are just as good picture-material as any summer photo.

What are these possibilities? I'd say that costume portraiture heads the list. When the weather's nasty that's an excellent way to spend an interesting week-end afternoon or an evening at home.

In costume portraiture there are countless variations—each of which will make a memorable addition to your album. And if, when you try costume portraiture, you exercise your ingenuity in improvising costumes, you won't have to buy or rent a thing. It's surprising how many ordinary objects make excellent props. For example, curtains and coverlets can be made to serve as drapes for pictures with an Old World tone. Furthermore, it's easy to make a turban out of a bath towel. Just pose and take these costume portraits, as you would any good indoor picture, and you'll undoubtedly secure successful pictures.

Here's another tip—Instead of single snapshots, make a series of pictures—say in sets of three or four so that they tell a simple easily understood story. A series has many times the appeal of even a striking single snapshot.
