NEW DEVELOPMENTS COMING

The choice of the former Provincial Secretary, Hon. Harry Nixon, as permanent leader of the Liberal Party of Ontario in succession to the Hon. Mitchell Hepburn is looked upon with great significance in political circles along Parliament Hill and well-informed observers expect that this choice will bring interesting news in the near future, particularly regarding the relationship between the Government of Ontario and the Federal Government in Ottawa. Under former Premier Mitchell Hepburn, there was a feeling of constant and growing hostility which reached a fever in recent times. However, the new Liberal Party leader, Hon. Harry Nixon, who was favoured strongly by the Federal Liberals at the recent convention, has always been on very good terms with Premier Mackenzie King personally as well as other powerful forces in the nation's capital, it is now recalled that Hon. Harry Nixon was the only Minister of the Hepburn Cabinet who was present on the platform with Premier King in an important political meeting in Toronto during the 1940 electoral campaign. Therefore, under the leadership of Hon. Harry Nixon, it is believed that not only will a close, friendly relationship result between the two political camps, but this may bring new developments in enlightening the people in regard to elections.

A WARNING

After a complaint was made that the Government in Ottawa was not providing one of the Provinces, Prince Edward Island, with adequate ferry service to the mainland, nor that proper steps had been taken to replace the ship lost a long time ago, Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National defence, who is a member for Prince Edward Island, made an important statement that not only was no person more intersted in obtaining this ferry service than himself but "if anybody has a boat that will suit the purpose, which we can beg, borrow or steal, we will have it." He emphasized in no uncertain language that the time it would require to build a ferry boat could be used to construct ten cargo ships or eight escort vessels and pointed out that the shipping situation was such that winning the war was more important than anything else, especially since he considered "the Battle of the Atlantic will be the biggest battle of 1943."

ABSENTEEISM

The English method of taxing a person for the next quarter on his total earnings in the previous quarter of the year has been suggested by a member of Parliament in order to defeat absenteeism since the person knowing what he would be taxed under all such cicumstances would not be inclined to dodge work under this plan. This suggestion, which has not been discussed as thoroughly as it should be in view of its importance to the nation, seems to have made an extremely favourable and deep impression along Parliament Hill.

PROCESS IS BEING DEVELOPED

There is a hope that a process for extracting oil from the tar sands in Alberta would be developed by autumn. This was reported by Hon. C. D. Howe, Munitions and Supply Minister, who stated that $500,000 had been appropriated for the plant. "We have the best men we can lay our hands on," he declared, "but one would have to be very optimistic to believe that we will be able to start any large-scale construction there before the spring of 1944." He continued to show that every known process has been tried and no entirely satisfactory process either for mining tar sands r extracting the oil economically had been developed, with erroneous ideas about them existing. "One would think that oil is running right out of these sands and that all that has to be done is to tap or pipe the oil and this country would have overcome its serious fuel shortage," he said, stressing at that time the facts do not bear out any such ideas and that this does not mean that these tar sands have no possibilities. However, he added that it was a problem that has to be worked out and that great advances had been made since the war in all these refining operations.

PROVIDE MORE LABOR

It is evident now along Parliament Hill that all conscientious objectors in this country will be used fully in the national interest in order to provide more labor for certain essential industries. For some time, some of the conscientious objectors have been ordered to report for alternative service in certain camps," said Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor. It was shown that a total of 1,273 conscientious objectors were employed in 29 camps a few months ago, though at that time about 2,188 had not been called out. In addition conscientious objectors would be used on farms where this was advisable, being paid as much as $35 a month, though anything over $25 a month goes to the Red Cross Society.

RECOGNITION

Yvonne Rivet, secretary to the Supervisor of Press and Information Service for the French Network, since the inception of national radio in Canada, has recently been promoted to the post of assistant to the supervisor, Leopold Houle. Miss Rivet is a native of St. Thomas, Ontario, received her education in Three Rivers and Montreal, took her arts course in the latter city. She is a gifted bilinguist, versatile, popular with a wide circle of English and French speaking associates, served brilliantly in the Dominion postal department before enteringthe radio field.

MORE ABOUT BEER

The widespread publicity throughout Canada that there is almost or practically "no beer" in this country, comparatively speaking, under the Government's present policies received a sharp setback in the nation's capital. "Before the war the consumption of beer was about 62,000,000 or 63,000,000 gallons a yar," said Hon. Colin Gibson, Minister of National Revenue, inmaking an explanation to members of the House of Commons "At the present time, the amount permitted for sale is 38,000,000 gallons. So there is a considerable quantity of beer in the country."

Control Armament Industry

International control of the armament industry after the war will be the only possible way to make peace permanent.—Jan Masaryk.

For Your Son And Mine

One of these nights soon, when darkness cloaks the enemy skies, your son and mine will be peering into the gloom, waiting nervously for the whispered signal to attack.

Our sailors will be there, manning the invasion fleet, ready for the screeching, diving enemy bombers. Our fighter pilots will be dressed for battle, ready for the grimmest test of air strength the war has yet developed.

Our boys who, not so long ago sang in Sunday school, poked nickels into juke boxes, sat on the store steps on Saturday nights, fixed the broken board in the cottage deck and walked arm in arm with the girl from a movie, are face to face now with death.

While their hearts and minds and bodies are steeled to the job of wiping out the cruel foe, does anyone believe for a moment that in that hour of waiting they will not be thinking about the scenes of yesterday?

Fully aware of the danger they face, that this great adventure may bring them to the end of the road and a soldier's grave, their thoughts will inevitably turn back for a moment or two to you and to me. They will have brief misgivings, little fears tugging at their heart-strings, a sudden mental question-mark as they wonder what we are doing in Canada at that moment and whether we are thinking about them.

Oh that we could miraculously appear beside them at that moment, grip their hand and say: Good luck, my boy!" If there were only some way, we say, to make them feel that we are standing behind them in spirit at least.

And yet we have just such an opportunity now. Let's not overlook this certainty, that if each of us buys all the Victory Bonds he can during the next few days, if we push above that billion and one objective, the news of it will be a heartening message to your boy and mine. They will know our hearts are in the right place, that the money we put up assures them all the reserves they are going to need.

Let's make the Fourth Victory Loan a rousing cheer for our boys overseas, a message of encouragement to them at the hour of attack.

"Seems I Can't Save Anything---"

WE MET on Main Street. Jim had his usual ready smile, even when he got telling me how hard up he was.

"Say, Johnny," he said, "I'm earning more these days, but I just can't seem to keep it.

"Taxes, Victory bonds and all those other things coming off my pay."

He paused, then went on slowly.

"At least it seems as though I can't save anything. Actually, of course, those war bonds are my savings. I'm glad I've salted away a few of them. And you can count me in on the Fourth Victory Loan too!"

BOMB DAMAGE AND CIVILIAN MORALE

(ARTICLE NO. 22)

By WALTER R. LEGGE

All Canadians are intensely interested in the bomb damage in Britain. We found on our return to Canada, that everywhere we went we were certain to be asked about it.

It has been said that there is not a village in England that has not had a bomb dropped on it, but I know of several places that up to the time that we were there had not seen a bomb. After landing and boarding the train for London, we were surprised to see no sign of bomb damage until after we had been travelling for several hours. There are few signs of bomb damage to be seen in any of the smaller places, except near the east and south coasts. Even in London there are large areas that appear to have been untouched. We began to realize how small a start the Germans had made toward the destruction of Britain.

Where a building has been totally destroyed, it is difficult for anyone who has not seen that building to visualize the amount of the destruction. For instance, when we were being shown around Bristol, one day, our guide halted in the centre of a large area that had been demolished Pointing to a part of it, he said, "That is where one of our largest departmental stores used to stand." We could see a heap of rubble, but never having seen the store it was impossible really to appreciate the extent of the destruction.

In other places where the walls are still standing, it is much easier to understand the damage. We drove through parts of London, and later walked through part of Bristol, on brilliant moonlight nights, and the moonlight, shining through roofless and windowless buildings, made a terrible picture, never to be forgotten.

We visited blitzed areas in London, Bristol, Bath and Portsmouth, but there are many other places that have badly battered areas — Hull, Dover, Coventry, Plymouth, etc.

In some cases areas of several blocks have been absolutely flattened, while in others one house in the middle of a block may have been demolished as if cut out by a huge knife.

We were told that there is a well defined pathway between London and the coast leading toward Germany, along which the fields were ploughed up by bombs which had been dropped by raiders who, unable to penetrate the London defences, had turned back and dumped their bombs at random.

In April, 1942, Hitler carried out what is known as the "Baedecker" raids, so called because they were aimed solely at destroying famous places, on Exeter, Bath, Norwich, York and Canterbury. Civilian casualties at Bath, Exeter, Norwich and York were 938 persons killed and 998 injured. Many of the killed were never identified. The pathetic description of one at Bath read, "Age, about two years; hair, fair; eyes blue-gray, division between top row of teeth; no other distinguishing features."

The most deplored architectural loss in Bath was the Assembly Room. The rooms, said to have been the most beautiful in Britain, were first opened in 1771, and had been refinished in 1938 at a cost of fifty thousand pounds sterling. These rooms delighted Charles Dickens, who made them famous as the scene of Mr. Pickwick's game of whist with the "three thorough-paced female card-players."

Bristol, we found, had been rather badly battered, principally in the winter of 1940-41 during which 2,239 houses were destroyed and about 46,000 received varying degrees of damage. Many other buildings were destroyed, including 22 elementary schools and 29 churches.

Our home in Bristol was the Royal Hotel, which was carrying on, although the back part, including the dining room and many of the rooms, had been bombed off. The rooms occupied by some of our party did not have any glass in the windows.

In four of the larger cities which we visited, we saw areas many blocks in extent that have been completely flattened. Since returning home, I have heard that up until December 31st, 1942, the number of Britons killed in air raids was 47,360 and the number injured was 56,410.

We heard many expressions of appreciation for the assistance sent to the stricken people by various funds in Canada.

One of the aims of the enemy was to destroy the morale of the people. It was interesting to study the actual effect. We found that the stories we had heard of the way in which the people had taken the punishment dished out to them were absolutely true. Their spirit is simply wonderful.

One of our guides in Bristol, who had been a prosperous merchant, showed us a mass of rubble in the midst of the bombed area, and quietly remarked, "That is all that is left of my life's savings." No complaints. Just a grim determination to carry on.

An official of an establishment where one of my relatives was employed, was bombed out of three places the same night, but he was on time at the office in the morning.

There have been cases of employees coming to work in the morning before some of their relatives had been rescued from the ruined buildings. England is a tight little isle packed with heros and heroines, even if they do not all wear uniforms.

Here's to heros and heroines, valiant and strong.

NOVA SCOTIA FARM NEWS

G. E. Samis is Chief Poultry Promoter for Province

G. E. Samis, who has been employed the past fourteen years by the extension department of agriculture as field poultry promoter in Ontario, has been appointed chief poultry promoter for the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, and is now on the job. Mr. Samis, who is a native of Burlington, Ont., succeeds C. E. Benoit, who is now with the Quebec Department of Agriculture.

The new appointee has taken a very active part in dressed poultry marketing and particularly in poultry pools. He has given a great deal of leadership to the turkey breeders of Manitoulin Island who have won national recognition as turkey breeders. More recently he has been working on the R.O.P., Flock Approval and Hatchery Approval work. He received his training at Olds School of Arriculture, Olds, Alberta.

Messrs Benoit and Samis visited a number of breeders, hatcherymen and agricultural representatives in the province last week which gave the latter an opportunity to get acquainted with the workers in the poultry industry and to see the type of promotion work which has been carried on so successfully in the province next year.

Farmers Should Make Known Labor Requirements

The seriousness of the farm labor problems is fully realized and a real effort is being made to meet farmers' requests for labor.

Right now there are available a goodly number of able-bodied high school students who have registered for farm work and who will be granted school leave when farm work is available. Another source of farm labor is men who have been working in othe industry or part-time permits and are now recalled for agricultural work. Then there came into operation this week a movement to take men from non-essential to essential industry. All these sources of labor will be called upon as requests for help come in from the farmers of the province.

Right now it is absolutely essential that farmers requesting help get in touch with their representatives or National Selective Service office.

Another matter that should be given attention by farm operators is the information cards, recently distributed, relative to farm machinery. All requirements for farm machinery, new or used, should be listed. The listingof requirements for new machinery is of special importance as requests received this year may have a definite bearing on the quota of new machinery allowed for this province next year.

It is also a matter of much importance that farmers list any farm machinery they may have and not need. Some one may be in the market for this machinery and may be able to make very valuable use of it. Without any further delay all labor and machinery equipment cards should be filled in and returned.

Five Exhibition Dates Announced

Definite plans have been made for the holding of five district exhibitions this fall and the probabilities are that the total will reach seven with two district livestock shows also a probability. In the definite column are Lunenburg, last of September; Annapolis and Oxford, the first week of September; North Sydney, Labor Day week; and Queens, the week of Sept. 21, 22, 23. In the probable list are Digby and Colchester, while the proposed livestock shows will be at Windsor and Yarmouth. District exhibition secretaries recently met at Truro in annual conference under the chairmanship of A. B. Banks, Supt. of Exhibitions, Nova Scotia Dept. of Agriculture. It was the consensus of the secretaries that greater effort should be put forth to have as much program as possible provided by local talent, not only because of

Many Soil Samples Being Received

Those interested in getting a soil analysis from the provincial chemist at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College should keep in mind that the right size of a sample is about one cupful or one half pound. Samples recently received varied in size from one ounce sent by air mail to one of twenty pounds sent by express. The soil should be taken from a depth of from five to six inches and from half a dozen or more different parts. It should be thoroughly mixed and from the mixture a cupful packaged and sent to the chemist. It is essential that the sample be representative of the area from which it is taken. Accompanying the sample there should be information covering the past three years as regards fertilizers used, lime application, crops grown and also crop plans for this season. In connection with samples from lawns and golf courses it is contrary to wartime regulations to use mixed fertilizers on either lawns or golf courses.

Dr. Smith, provincial chemist, reports that a very large number of samples have already been received with about half of them coming from gardens and half from farms.

To Continue Farm-to-Farm Survey

The farm-to-farm soil survey program of the Soils and Fertilizer Division, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, will be carried on this season with field men operating in Antigonish, North Shore and the Valley. Three members of the 1942 graduating class of the N.S.A.C., Allan MacKay, Scotsburn; Donald MacKay, Elmsville, N. B.; and Angus MacLean, Riverside, N. B., have joined the division and will be on survey work this season under the direction of Edgar Milligan and Willard Fraser. The work will start simultaneously in Antigonish and the Valley with both parties concluding the season in the North Shore area.

Women Urged to Join Garden Brigade

Bulletins on planning the victory garden have been sent to all the women's institutes of the province. An appeal appearing in the institutes publication, "Home and Country" urges all institute members to join the Garden Brigade. There is still time to join and make at least a kitchen garden yourself, says this appeal. "Aside from the money you will save in table expense and the extra satisfaction you will get from eating freshly gathered vegetables from your own garden you will be releasing more food for places where it is needed and cannot be grown."

A burden to his friends and neighbors is a man who can argue for hours without either seeing a point or making one.—Casket.

Sound Unionism

You can't help liking Bill. He's one who enjoys life to the full and doesn't believe in doing things by halves — fact that his family of twelve bears out. At the ripe age of forty-four his weekend "benders" stretched from one Saturday night to another. His wife said of him, "I'd reached the stage when I just didn't care whether he came back from the mine or not."

Yet underneath all this Bill had real capacities for leadership. He was elected President of his local union and was also one of the men's leaders in a slowdown that affected the whole industry.

Such was the fellow who walked one evening into a performance of "Pull Together Canada", the revue for industrial teamwork. One scene in particular gripped him. It dramatized the bottlenecks in industry today and showed how teamwork could be built when both management and labour admitting their own faults and put all their cards on the table. Bill was a more sober man when he left the theatre that night, and he set to work to apply this "pull together" spirit, as he called it.

The question was could it last? Bill's chance to prove it could came four months later when a disagreement between some of the men and the mine manager tied up the pit temporarily. The old Bill would have halfheartedly harangued the men and if they didn't go back to work, he would have shrugged his shoulders and gone off on a 'bender' while events took their course. As it was then Tuesday, that would probably have meant that the men would not have resumed work till the following Monday.

This time Bill appealed to the men and urged them to go back to work. However a lot of hotheads and 'pit lawyers' had their say first and the men refused to listen to Bill. He went home and decided to consult his wife and family. They had ironed out similar problems in the last few months at home, maybe they would have some ideas. They did. The outcome was that Bill decided to call a special meeting at the union hall the following night — Wednesday. This would not only give him a better chance to talk to the men but it would also give him the time to talk to the mine grievance committee and get united support of the more responsible element within the union.

The meeting went off like a dream. Instead of the usual three hours of cross floor chatter and bitter wrangling, Bill conducted the meeting in an orderly way. Everyone had their say and at the end it was one of the trouble makers who put the motion to resume work the next morning—Thursday. "All those in favour of the motion? Contrary minded?" It was carried unanimously.

It was a tired but happier Bill that told the family the news as they sat around the kitchen table that evening.

Bill had won a great victory for sound unionism.

FOR MEATLESS TUESDAY

HALIFAX, N. S.—When meatless Tuesday comes around a good substitute is a meatless shepherd's pie according to Nicholas Lacusta, chef in the Canadian National Railways hotel the Nova Scotian. This can be made, states Chef Lacusta, with macaroni, cheese, milk and green pepper. "Then," he continued, "there is rice with eggs and currie sauce or noodles with mushrooms and a little cheese." In these wartime days and with conservation of meat to the fore, Chief Lacusta advocates lamb stew which he says has all the flavor of a meat dish and besides has dumplings and plenty of good vegetables. While a pound of two of lamb goes into the stew, it will serve a big family.

L'ARDOISE MAN BUYS BONDS ARTIFICAL LIMB CAN WAIT

An example of loyalty and patriotism that cannot be unrecorded in Canada's Fourth Victory Loan has come to light right here in this County.

Arthur Bona, from the fishing village of L'Ardoise, had savings placed away in the bank with which to buy an artifical limb.

Like all savings account holders he received a bank letter at the campaign's start, pointing out the advisability of investing in a bond or bonds.

And Mr. Bona didn't hesitate. In a letter to the bank he advised them to take enough from his savings to purchase $200 worth of Victory Bonds.

"My leg can wait awhile yet—but our boys overseas can't," his letter said.

STATES WAR'S END CAN'T BE FORETOLD

Vernon Bartlett, London editor, commentator and Independent member of Parliament, in an interview in Edmonton during the week said Germany would continue to fight even after it was apparent to the German people they had lost the war.

Mr. Bartlett said it was quite impossible to make a forecast as to when the war would probably end.

"In the last war," he pointed out, "there was no Gestapo as there is today." And he added he had the feeling there would not be a revolt.

THE STORY BEHIND MEAT RATIONING

Food is a weapon of war, and we must share our supplies with those who are fighting to keep the war from our shores. After all special wartime demands are taken care of, only one half of the meat produced in Canada will be available for ordinary domestic consumption at home.

Meat supplies for our Armed Forces must be maintained at all costs.

Great Britain has to depend more and more on Canada for supplies to maintain even its present low ration rate of 28 cents worth of meat per person, per week.

Since the war started the consumption of meat by civilians has increased in Canada. Great defense projects such as the Alcan Highway and the Shipshaw Power Development have created new and large demands for meat in areas where practically no demand existed before.

Canned meat is required in large quantities by the Red Cross to send to our boys who are prisoners of war.

Places like Newfoundland and the West Indies, which previously secured their meat from other sources—must now depend to a great extent on Canada.

The many extra ships of the United Nations now calling at Canadian ports, must be furnished with meat.

RATIONING IS INTELLIGENT FORESIGHT INTELLIGENT PLANNING

Coupon rationing is the only way of ensuring equal sharing of the meat available for civilian consumption in Canada. Those with lots of money will not get more than their share—and those with less money will be assured of getting their fair share.

Rationing will help prevent local meat shortages such as occurred last year from becoming widespread and continuous throughout the whole Dominion. The incentive for panic-buying which empties butcher shops early in the day, will be eliminated.

THE MEAT RATION WILL BE AMPLE FOR HEALTH AND NUTRITION

Fortunately, our meat production in Canada has increased. So, although only half our production will be available for civilian use, it will mean a reduction of only about 15% to 20% in the average household consumption.

The proposed ration of 2 lbs. (carcass weight) per person, per week, has been approved by the country's leading food and nutrition authorities, as ample for the health and nutrition standards of everyone—regardless of age or occupation.

DATES AND OTHER DETAILS REGARDING MEAT RATIONING—SOON TO BECOME EFFECTIVE IN CANADA— WILL BE ANNOUNCED LATER

We Can't Have Idlers

The best way to insure against unemployment is to have no unemployment. There is another point; unemployables, rich or poor, will have to be toned up. We can not afford to have idle people. Idlers at the top make idlers at the bottom. No one must stand aside in his working prime to pursue a life of selfish pleasure.

—Winston Churchill.

VICTORY BONDS

WE'RE NOT DOING OUR SHARE

THE sale of Victory Bonds in this community since the opening of the Fourth Victory Loan has not been encouraging.

We are not buying the new Victory Bonds in anything like theway we should be buying them.

A quota was set for this community — and from present indications we will not meet that quota.

The quota is a modest one, too — an amount that should be easy to meet— a quota that can be met without inconvenience to any if each one does what he should do.

As a matter of fact, there should be no quotas in connection with the sale of Victory Bonds. The war is a matter of life and death. We haven't won the war yet. If we give the matter proper thought each one of us will buy Victory Bonds with all our available cash — and as much more — on the instalment plan — as we can pay for in the next six months. And we will scrimp to save to do this.
