Capital chit-chat. There are 13,125 bicycles licensed in Ottawa and among the handle-bar riders are Air Marshal "Billy" Bishop, V. C., and members of the Russian Legation.

Adding to the Hall of Fame in the main central corridor of the Parliament buildings are new bronze busts of Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Robert Borden. Some of the refunds to persons who have overpaid income tax are already going out, but some will take time, palpably because each one of the 1,500,000 tax forms has to be assessed and that's some job.

Among the famous stars who will be heard via the airwaves during the V-Victory Loan campaign, according to Ottawa headquarters, will be Canadian-born Walter Pigeon, James Cagney and Norma Shearer; also Barbara Stanwyck, Jessica Dragonette, Oscar Levant and others. The St. Croix destroyer disaster brings forcibly to mind that all Canada has got to take a realistic view of this war; and that the end is a long way off; and that while the boys over there are "giving" we are only asked to "lend." Gosh, our kids over there are giving plenty and not calling it sacrifice, either.

As wages paid to hired farm help goes up, an interesting recap of the Canadian situation comes to us. When the employer provided board for the hired man the average wage for help by the day was $3.51 in 1943 and $2.50 the year before. "No board" in 1943 brought $4.74 as against $3.15 the year before. Wages for day help were highest in Ontario, but all provinces showed an "up." By the month average with board was $61.20 at August 15, 1943 as against $46.82 same date last year. Current rate of wages for farm help more than double that paid in 1940.

When the federal minister of agriculture asked farmers to refrain from marketing unfinished cattle during the fall months this year, it was because the expected hog output for the next few months would probably overtax slaughtering facilities. Besides they claim it an uneconomic practice when there is feed available in the country. Hog marketing will set new records this fall, while it is known that in the first 8 months of 1943, beef carcasses dressed an average of 20 pounds heavier than in 1942. This idea makes sense, doesn't it?

They're sure stretching this rubber research but will surely get results the department wants godiva and more milk weed for experimental purposes and will pay 3 cents a pound dry weight, with green and frozen stuff accepted too. It should be sent to H. A. Senn, National Research Council, John St. Laboratory, Ottawa. C'm on kids.

A quick glance at the order giving "priority to empty coal bins" requires coal supplies dealers to give priority in coal deliveries to consumers who have less than one-quarter of their annual fuel requirements on hand. This is limited to the one-quarter and applies to consumers who use less than fifty tons a year.

Facts: We know Canada is a great food producing country, but did you know that the gross value of our agricultural production has increased from about $1,205,000,000 in 1939 to more than two billion dollars in 1942. Exports of agricultural and vegetable food products, tobacco and its products, animal and fish products from Canada to the United Kingdom last year, exceeded $236,000,000. As a major source of war materials our export trade last year was more than double that of 1939. Imports on the other hand haven't varied much in the last two years. We have a very favourable trade balance right now, nearly as much for the first seven months of 1943 as for all of 1942.

Maybe you don't know how the cost of living bonus is arrived at: 25 cents for each point rise in the cost of living for all adult male employees and for all other employees employed at basic wage rates of $25 or more a week; one per cent of their basic weekly wage rates for male employees under 21 and women workers employed at basic wages rates of less than $25 a week. Every employer, except in a few exempted classes, must pay this.

Some 254 members of the Canadian Army have been decorated for gallantry in the field or mentioned in despatches since the war began. Of these 52 were for the campaign in Italy, in an item from the Army public relations. They won 192 decorations at Dieppe, including a Victoria Cross to Lt.-Col. Merritt.

More Farm Equipment Now Available

Greater supplies of farm machinery are now available according to orders issued by H. H. Bloom, administrator of farm and construction machinery, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa. These orders remove a dozen classes of farm equipment and machinery from the ration list.

Among the articles that have now been added to the "exempt" list of rationing, and therefore can be bought without permits, are, hand operated planters, one furrow walking plow, horse hoes, grape and berry hoes, scufflers, pulpers, watering equipment-cups and bowls, beekeeper's supplies and tank heaters. While metal well pumps, hand or windmill" operated in conjunction with pump jack and pitcher pumps are included in the "exempt" list, it is pointed out by W. P. Ellerton, Farm Equipment Rationing Officer for the Maritimes, Truro, that all power pumps and water pressure systems are still under rationing and essential application forms must still be completed for these and submitted to the Farm Equipment Rationing Officer for his approval before making delivery.

Formerly sprayers with a capacity of six gallons or less were not rationed. This group has now been expanded in the new order to include hand operated sprayers and dusters, knapsack sprayers and hand operated barrel sprayers regardless of capacity.

Few Rams Still Available

Rams graded to date in Nova Scotia include 168 Oxfords, 26 Shropshires, 2 Leicesters, 3 Cheviots, 3 Suffolks and 1 Southdown ram lambs or shearlings. This is considerably under the 1942 gradings. Rams on the whole have averaged 10 or 15 lbs. lighter all over the province, as the wet season has not been conducive to good growth. While most of the rams have been assigned to ram club members there are a few still available in Nova Scotia, and it may also be possible to secure a number in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Applications for rams should be addressed to J. A. Steele, Dom. Dept. of Agriculture, Truro, N. S. Deposits required on Ram Club purchases this year are $15 on XX ram lambs, $18 on XXX ram lambs, $21 on XX Shearlings and $24 on XXX Shearlings. All Nova Scotia shearling Oxfords have been sold. A list of older rams and ungraded rams may be secured on application to Mr. Steele.

Plowing Matches are Popular

Despite the strenuous conditions under which the farmers of the province are now working interest in fall plowing continues high, according to A. B. Banks, Superintendent of Exhibitions and Plowing Matches. Two well-attended and hotly-contested matches have already been held, the first at Northfield, Lunenburg Co., on October 6, and the second at Caledonia, Queens Co., October 14. Three more matches are scheduled for the week ending October 23. These include, Iona, October 21, Victoria County match at Baddeck Bridge, October 22, and the annual Hants County event at Noel Shore, October 21. While arrangements are not as yet complete it is expected county contests will also be held for Richmond and Inverness.

The re-establishment of the Provincial Plowing Match is being keenly anticipated by many plowmen, as part of the after-the-war program for fostering interest in things agricultural.

Butter Production Continues Favorable

The uptrend in creamery butter production in Nova Scotia continues. Reports issued from the office of Nova Scotia Dairy Superintendent, W. J. Bird, gave a total production of 724,112 lbs. for September. This is an increase of 14.1 per cent over the September 1942 production of 635,126 lbs.

For the first nine months of the year the production was 16.3 per cent over that of the corresponding period last year, the 1943 figure being 6,205,713 lbs and the 1942 figure 5,337,278.

Is Overcoming Sweet Shortage

A means of helping out the "sweet shortage" has been found by Mrs. I. N. Anderson, Kempt, Queens Co. It is a syrup made from waste sweet apples. The syrup has consistency and somewhat the appearance of light molasses, and in taste bears some resemblance to molasses.

In a letter to Miss Helen MacDougall, director of the Women's Division, Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture, Mrs. Anderson stated that she had made quite a lot of this syrup last year from all kinds of waste sweet apples and found it kept well in ordinary bottles with corks and put up hot.

Her procedure is to prepare the apples as for jelly, drain and boil down the juice to about the thickness of molasses or honey. Some are cooked thick enough for a spread like jam. It does not jell but it is a "ground substitute" for sweets. It may be used in mince meat or apple sauce as well as served instead of a syrup on bread. In making this sweet-substitute, Mrs. Anderson emphatically states, "I do not add one thing to the apples. I just boil down the juice.

"I have told the women around here about this syrup and many are doing some this year. I thought the idea might be worth passing along to others who are interested in helping out the sweet shortage."

GREATER NEED THAN EVER IN RED CROSS WORK

On the heels of the news that German raiders have again hit heavily at English cities and towns, Dr. F. W. Routley, National Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, said recently that there is a greater need than ever before for volunteer women workers.

"Canadian women have done a magnificent job in Red Cross," stated Dr. Routley. "Women in their homes, working quietly, without praise or glory have done yeoman service. They have given freely of their time and energies in the workrooms, blood donor clinics, prisoner-of-war packing plants and in Corps service."

"Supplies rushing well over the twenty-six million mark have gone overseas in a steady and undiminished stream because these volunteers have realized the bitter need."

"Major-General Price, our Overseas Commissioner has warned us that the regular hit-and-run raids on the coastal towns provide a steady drain on Red Cross reserves that must be made up," stated Dr. Routley.

"When you consider the thousands of tons of Red Cross supplies that have already gone into North Africa, it is easy to see what vast reserves must be built up to keep pace with the widening scope of Allied operations."

"To do this, Red Cross volunteers must keep up the magnificent pace they have set for themselves," stated the National Commissioner. "It is not time to sit back, yet. If we are to meet our commitments as they must be met, Red Cross volunteers throughout the Dominion must stick to the job and see it through."

"Here I am," says Hitler of the Dnieper line, "and here I stay." Presumably in the uniform he two years ago vowed to wear until Russia was crushed.

BY THEIR DEEDS

By Sigm. G. J. Coffey, R.C.C.S.

Another Victory Loan! So the government wants more money--billions of it, in fact. This surely is an expensive war, says you, you wonder where all the money is going. You wonder how much of it will actually get to "Speed the Victory", and how much will be wasted. You wonder if you'll get your money back after the war. You grumble, you complain: you're getting tired of those loans. However, you reluctantly sign on the dotted line and wish that this blankety-blank war will be over before another campaign rolls around.

Yes, we all wish this war was over, but let us not kid ourselves into thinking that Victory is just around the corner. There is a long, long road of suffering and sacrifice stretching ahead up which we all must climb with increasing courage and determination before we can stand on the hills of Peace once more.

So let us pause and seriously think awhile. Let us turn our eyes to the hills and vales clad in the scarlet robes of Autumn. Let us look up into the skies, so vast, so clear, so blue;--no terror, no hate, no death up there--just a squadron of geese winging leisurely to the Southward. All is so quiet, so peaceful, so beautiful here in our native land, that it is difficult to imagine that in another world, not so very far away, millions of men and machines are at this moment locked in a titanic struggle for survival. It is difficult to imagine that at this moment thousands of our own boys, just plain ordinary boys from our own towns and countrysides are fighting, blegding, dying on the slopes of Italy, in the flak-filled skies of Europe, and on the sub-infested reaches of the Atlantic. Yes, fighting and dying to preserve our way of life, fighting and praying for the day when they can go back home again, to their friends and loved ones and to all the little things they left behind.

Thousands of those boys have been gone a long time; thousands have followed in their footsteps and thousands more are waiting to go. Did they look for dividends in dollars when they offered themselves as human sacrifices upon the altar of Freedom? No, they but saw their duty clearly and counted not the cost. By their deeds, then, we must measure ours. We must not let them down. For unless we have suffered, unless we have sacrificed, unless we have tried to do our bit cheerfully and unselfishly, then we have no right to live, much less to cheer, when the bells ring out again and the lights come on again and the the boys come home again all over the world.

"TIME BOMBS"

It is easier to show up people, or to blow them up, than it is to build them up. But not nearly so effective.

That brilliant Jugoslav Partisan leader, who is nicknamed "Drug," is certainly poison to the Nazis.

Food shortage should not bother those who said that Russia was sure to be beaten. They can now eat their words.

Those who said the Canadian National Railways would never earn axle grease must find it hard to visualize 80 million dollars worth of axle grease in a year.

"Pre-war stuff" in some things may be superior, but today's armies do not win victories with pre-war stuff or pre-war staff either

A contemporary remarks that the only social function at which a man is indispensable these days is a wedding. It is pretty hard to get a proxy for a funeral.

U-Boat commanders are rumored to leave harbor, dump their torpedoes and return with reports of sinking a large Allied troopship. This pleases Berlin and does not annoy London.

Patrols of the Eight Army burst in on a German general asleep in bed. The general had carelessly omitted to hang out a "Do Not Disturb" sign.

Quisling is reported to have 172 personal guards, if he can be regarded as a person.

The unspeakable Japs have lost so much face, you'd wonder they have any left. But they were, after all, two-faced to begin with.

With November 1 the limit for getting Christmas presents to the armed forces, people are studying war post plans as well as post-war plans nowadays.

At present prices there's nothing that's a dime a dozen, not even peanut politicians.

Objection is taken by some to flags on pulpits, but none has been voiced so far to the jack on collection plates.

The Hun's great mistake is thinking in terms of population instead of people.

This week the fifth Victory Loan was launched, one more stepping stone on the road to victory. Canada has a record to be proud of in these bond drives, subscribed as they have been by such a great percentage of the Canadian people. And this fifth Victory Loan, asking for one billion, two hundred millionin dollars --just over $100 for every man, woman and child--like the others, will also go over the top.

For this is more than just another bond drive Every bond we buy is a stake in the future. It is a financial investment, something that will give us the purchasing power to buy that refrigerator we've done without or that washing machine that is getting old. Yes, it is all that, but something more. It is the practical way of saying, "Yes, I want to preserve the Canadian way of life."

As Canadians we fall heir to a great heritage--a wealth that cannot be measured in dollars and cents for it cannot be bought. It is that quality of character that pulled the early explorers through. The rugged outline of the Vimy Memorial stands as immortal testimony, even to those who have conquered the land around it, of the heritage that is Canada's. We have only to look at the mountains, the cities, the woods that have echoed to the pioneer's axe, the "sheer guts" of the early prairie settlers--all this and much more than words can convey are part of the heritage that is ours.

This heritage is theatened today from without. And anyone who says that because victory seems in sight we can start to let up, is sabotaging our united war effort. Any athlete knows that it's the last fifty yards that needs the extra effort, ball games are won or lost, very often, in the last five minutes, and it's that last quarter acre that is the hardest to stook. And it's all out effort we put into what we hope are the closing years of the war, that will determine how quickly it ends.

This heritage is also threatended from within. The bonds we buy will help protect us from without; it is the way we live and carry on that will see that this heritage of ours is maintained unsullied by alien philosophies. As well as buying the bonds to provide the physical armaments for war, we must also have that moral rearmament that will speed the victory, secure the peace and build a new world.

THE MORAL LAW

To the Editor..

Dear Sir: When men differ in political belief they differ because one or all have not knowledge. Knowledge leads to unity of belief. The lack of knowledge leads to diversity of belief, and the number of diverse political parties directly measures and reflects the ignorance of political truth that beset them. Politics is nothing more than the moral law that ought to regulate the actions of the individual, extended to the actions of men when associated as a political society, the same moral law being obligatory on multitudes that is obligatory on the individual. The moral law is the sole function upon which just and efficient government can be established. This conception of government in relation to moral principles is but little known or heeded by existing political parties. Only incidentally and rarely do our social laws conform to moral principles. Social laws merely represent dominant opinion confirmed by authority of a majority vote, an authority that is held to transcend all over, creating conditions that made the world war not only possible but inevitable. The demand for a new social order after the war, what is it but a demand that the moral law be the foundation of government, for without that foundation, no new and better social order is impossible.

WHAT WAR CAN MEAN

Sir: I have just listened to the news broadcast and heard that a great number of men are on strike at docks refusing to load war goods. If they could only realise their good fortune in being able to work in safety and still return home to their loved ones! I said good-by to my only son who is an airman and if these men could only know the terrible anguish and heartache at not knowing what will happen and when and if we will meet again, I am sure they would stop and think and thank God for the privilege of being able to work in safety. I am in sympathy with their problems, but what are dollars compared to heartache.

FARMERS AND FARM WORKERS

If Your Farm Work has Slackened for the Winter, You Are Needed Elsewhere in Essential Employment

Highly essential work—very important in Canada's war effort and for the welfare of the Nation—is threatened with shortages of workers. One of the few sources of men available for other high priority jobs is those men on the farm who will not be needed at home during the Fall and Winter. Heavy needs must be met in many lines—producing fuel wood and other necessary forest products; in food processing, in railway track maintenance, for the loading and unloading of ships. If you live on a farm and are not needed at home during the Fall and Winter, you are urged to answer this national appeal.

Farmers engaged in essential work during the off season will be allowed to return home when needed. Also, those on postponement under Mobilization Regulations will continue on postponement while in approved essential work during the slack season on the farm.

Please answer this vital call NOW.

Municipal Affairs

Politics should be divorced from municipal elections and from all municipal affairs. The Record has preached this separation of politics from municipal affairs for years, but it has fallen on deaf ears. Municipal interests should be the first consideration and everything else placed in the background.

Her father was a fine citizen and one of St. Peter's best, and we were glad of the opportunity of expressing our sympathy personally to the daughter on the passing of a very dear old friend.

WHAT! NO PAPERHANGERS?

Husbands whose wives are given to frequent regrouping of the furniture need not be surprised on returning home some night to find that the living room has acquired a new dress. Paralleling the "one-man top," enterprising manufacturers have designed a "one-woman wallpaper." Its reverse side is coated with an adhesive substance and the roll may be applied without benefit of paperhanger.

But the ready-pasted paper serves a purpose other than refurbishing a room. In the past, when the routine of domesticity palled, about the only recourse the homemaker had was to go downtown and buy a new ensemble (with matching hat). Now she can do the same for the house.

But while redecorating is always a trying experience, we wouldn't care to go on record as wanting to dispense with paperhangers altogether. They're much too useful--with one exception of course. Yes, that's right --you know who.--Christian Science Monitor.

Hammering It In

The current news that Hitler has again found it necessary to summon his heads of departments to earnest conference is generally taken to indicate that he feels the necessity of delivering more "pep talk" to invigorate his people.

It would be rash and unprofitable for the Allies to pin too much faith on what may, at any time, be the results of a degeneration of home morale in Germany in the face of continuous military set-backs. But the news that Hanover has again been bombed--possibly into the state of becoming a second Hamburg--and that the Musquitos are keeping Berliners in mind of what the long winter nights may have in store for them, makes one wonder how Germans, in spite of Gestapo stiffening, really are holding out.

The propaganda machine of Dr. Goebbell's does its best-- and a good best, too--to make the world believe that Germans can take it. But there may be something more than "cynical communique" recently suggested by the United States Air Force public relations men in London, to the effect that: "Large formations of huge American bombers attempted to penetrate western Germany today, but were driven off by hordes of our brave fighter pilots. Forty-seven enemy bombers were shot down. One of our bombers was lost. ONE OF OUR CITIES IS MISSING."

There was as much cynicism, if less humor, in Mr. Churchill's recent statement that: "we shall, in fact, produce conditions under which, with a small loss to ourselves, actual methodical destruction by day and night of every military target of significance in the widest sense will become possible." In neither statement is there much comfort for battered Germans.--Halifax Chronicle.

If we thought less of what we could own, and more of what we should own up to, the new world might come into its own tomorrow.

SEAVIEW

The sympathy of this community goes out as a unit to the bereaved widow and family of the late R. D. McKenzie whose characteristic calm and unobtrusive demeanor commanded and retained the respect of every acquaintance, and whose passing is being mourned by a legion of friends made in the long and agreeable associations of an active and extended life.

Similarly, the heart of Seaview goes out to the sorrowing widow and family of the late Harry Riley whose tragic passing is so widely and sincerely mourned.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison (Florence McRae), Mr. and Mrs. Willie McKay (Jessie McDonald), Hector McRae and Willie McKay, all of the "The Shore," were motor visitors to Seaview Sunday evening enroute from Pt. Michaud where they were guests of Mrs. Alex McLellan. (Ceretha McDonald.)

Last week Murdock Ross an old age pensioner of Oban had occasion to go to Port Hawkesbury. An exceedingly early riser, he arrived prematurely at Sporting Mt. Station, and finding it too cold to be comfortable decided to hike to the next stop. Taking the old "Post Road" from McLean's Crossing, he called at Dan Hill's for a cup of tea, and at Urquhart's Store for cigarettes, but still had some time to spare upon reaching Louisdale Station.

Post-War Planning

To the Editor.

Sir, I would like to express my opinion of our prime minister's recent radio speech. I believe that the sentiments of many other servicemen are, partly at least, in accordance with mine. As a war-reviewed speech, it was undoubtedly excellent. However, I do not believe that it was unfair to have expected a few statements on post-war planning. As for the accomplishments of our people in industry, the facts speak for themselves. The ministers chosen by Prime Minister King have proved themselves experts in their various fields. In other words, we all know what Canada is doing, but we want to know what she intends to do in the future. I thought Mr. King would have been diplomatic enough to give the men in the service some assurance of plans being formulated, if not already made, for their part in the future of Canada, which must, of necessity, keep in step with economic, industrial and social changes that will take place in every country in the world. If given the encouragement, men would go into battle with lighter hearts and an even fiercer determination to see the end of an evil which has spread like a pall over this earth.

AN AIRMAN OVERSEAS.

Good plans don't make people work. It takes good people to work a plan.

Wisecracks from people, like cracks in a wall, may indicate insecure foundations.

All the scrap that we've sent in
Brings victory to our labours;
But peace will mean that we must scrap
Our scrapping with the neighbours.

With October the fading year turns to rouge and lipstick.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

HALLOWE'EN

41

"What's inside?" This snapshot could well fit into a Hallowe'en series telling the story of Jack-o'-lantern.

MY snapshot calendar shows that Hallowe'en is just around the corner. It's time for owls to hoot, witches to fly, Jack-o'-lanterns to grin, and ghosts to walk through moonlit graveyards, no doubt clanking their chains. And for camera fans, the weird-picture season will open.

Weird pictures are interesting to take at any time—but even more fun at Hallowe'en. And with a few easy tricks, you can get effects that smack of genuine witchery.

Odd lighting effects are simple. In a group picture indoors, you can obtain a strange "firelight" effect by placing your photo lights on the floor in front of your subjects. Don't let the lights show in the finder or shine on the lens. To picture a face floating in air, put the photo light at the bottom of a long cardboard tube—and let the subject hold the top of the tube just below his chin. The room lights must be turned off.

Weird shadows are picture-material. Have a subject in witch costume stand in front of a photo bulb, and picture the grotesque shadow cast on the opposite wall. Or, place the subject close to the wall, illuminate it brightly, and let your subject sit between the camera and the light. Interesting silhouettes can be made in this way. A plain light colored wall is best.

Make "ghost" pictures by double exposure. Place the camera on a table, and take a short exposure of a corner of the room, including some furniture. Then, without moving the camera or winding the film, have a subject draped in a white sheet step into the corner, and open the camera for the second, shorter exposure. With correct exposure the "ghost" will be transparent—and the furniture or wallpaper will show through him. To be safe, try several shots with different exposure times.

Weird pictures are not all of Hallowe'en. There are children's costume parties, rich in possibilities for "memory" snapshots. Take them with odd lightings and shadow effects, and they will be all the better. And Hallowe'en preparations provide picture chances. You can make a splendid picture-story out of the Jack-o'-lantern . . . a series of pictures showing the purchase of the pumpkin, the carving, and the final result grinning from a front window.
