Stirling Mine To Operate Soon

By the HON. A. H. McKINNON
Minister of Mines

After an intensive and difficult development period of nearly two years, the new base metals operation at Stirling, Richmond county is expected to go into actual production in February.

Zinc will be the principal mineral extracted, with considerable lead and copper and possibly some silver and gold as well. Opening of this mine--which has been made possible only by the powerful assistance of the govrnment's mobile unit--one of the major mining events of recent years.

Apart from requirements of defence industries, there is normally a brisk demand for zinc which is not too plentiful in this part of the country. Once in steady production it is believed that Stirling has excellent prospects for a long and prosperous life.

With the assistance of other provincial departments, the boom town which is growing up around the mine is being developed on an orderly and systematic basis, and is expected to become a model community of its kind.

In the Brookfield area of Colchester there is proceeding a somewhat similar development in barytes, another not too plentiful mineral for which there is a brisk demand, particularly in the rotary drill end of boring wells for the oil industries. Production of barytes in Nova Scotia this year is 90,000 tons against about 74,004 tons in 1950.

Both these projects are expected to add substantially to the mineral output and employment of the province.

Coal--by long odds the backbone industry of Nova Scotia--at 6,477,000 tons for 1950 is maintaining practically the same output as last year and as yet shows little or no unfavourable effects from the increasing competition of fuel oils. Regular market prospects for the next few years are believed to be such that production will continue on a high level, and meanwhile active experimentation continues with a view to discovering new oulets to take up the slack if and when defence and other more temporary demands slacken.

Low temparature carbonization of coal and further development of the coal turbine railroad locomotive are two of the most promising leads.

Coal and coal produces account for about 85 per cent of Nova Scotia's mineral wealth.

Mechanization of mines with Federal and other assistance already is showing remarkable results. Dosco's new coal mining machine, which last year was only in an advanced experimental stage, now has been perfected to

100 FOOT LONG EELS MAY BE IN OCEAN

Monster eels, up to 100 feet long, may be swimming in the deepest ocean waters, according to Kakon Mielche, a writer attached to the Danish round-the-world deep sea expedition.

He said the expedition had found six-feet long larvae of eels at great depths off the Philippines "This means that monster deep-sea eels could exist," he said.

The 14 natural scientists aboard the specially-equipped Danish Navy frigate Galathea also found fish at 22,000 feet, the greatest depth at which fish have been found. Most of them had no eyes.

They also found good-eating shrimp at 5000 ft. each weighing one pound.

Hon. Harold Connolly Reports on Welfare

By the Hon. Harold Connolly
Minister of Public Welfare

The year 1951 will be ever memorable for the decision it brought to extend the old age pensions system to cover certain conditions existing in the age group 65 to 70.

It seems likely that in the welfare history of Nova Scotia this event will rank second only to that of the year 1934, when the original pensions plan was introduced.

Payments to those in the 65-70 group will commence in January, 1952, but at the moment applications still are being received and it is as yet impossible to hazard an estimate as to the number who will qualify in this province.

Since old age pensions were instituted 17 years ago, total payments to aged and blind pensioners have totalled roughly $65,000,000. At present there are about 22,000 persons on the rolls.

Mother's allowances are being paid to about 2,000 mothers, with approximately 5,000 children and represent a yearly disbursement of more than $1,381,000.

The Children's Aid Societies continue to be the most important units in the welfare structure. Halifax has many specialized social services but in most of the other centres of the Province the Children's Aid Society is the only social agency staffed by full-time social workers.

The wide variety of problems with which these Societies help include work with unmarried mothers, placement of children for adoption, keeping childen in their own homes, preventing neglect and family breakdown, counselling in marital problems, the making of sundry investigations and reports for the Department of Education, the divorce courts, Family Allowances and other similar agencies.

In addition to all of these duties--which are loosely described as preventive work--there is another and in a sense a more important task, that of caring for some 2,800 children under the care and guardianship of the Societies and the Director of Child Welfare throughout the Province. The Societies stand in the place of parents to these children who, for the most part, are in boarding homes and foster homes and a few in institutions.

The societies have been greatly affected by rising living costs as have the child caring institutions and similar agencies, and there is great need for increased public support. The money provided from all sources is just not sufficient to do the job they are expected to do in the community and every citizen must realize that unless encouragement and support is given to these voluntary child caring organizations they may become discouraged with the weight of the burden they are carrying.

Certainly those who are interested in preserving citizen effort and voluntary participation could do no better than look to our children's agencies and see to it that they receive adequate financial support during the coming year.

The task is not for one group or for government alone, but for all, and a glance at other parts of the world should surely teach us the lesson that the best way to keep our community life intact is to work at it.

Continued and steady progress has been made in the development of a modern and forward-looking program at the Nova Scotia Training School in Truro. The enlargement of the school by the addition of a new dormitory building began to take effect during the year, with the admission of several new pupils.

The Mental Health Grants have made possible the addition of several new highly trained staff members, and the department looks forward to an increasing emphasis on the application of progressive educational principles in the School.

In the northern part of Mexico towns and filling stations are far apart. Running out of gas in one of these lonely stretches of the Pan American highway we began to recall the unpleasant stories we had heard about such unfortunate tourists being charged exorbitant prices for enough gasoline to get to the next town.

But even as we considered this possibility, a Mexican truck pulled up behind us. The driver could speak no English, but signified that he had a reserve tank and climbed under the truck.

It took this Mexican driver some time to dislodge the unwieldy can and fill our tank. But when he had finished and we asked the amount of money he wanted he only smiled and shook his head, refusing payment for either his work, the lost time or the gasoline. B. L.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Sunsets over water make very effective pictures.

You'll Do It Sooner or Later

I'VE never known a picture-taker, no matter how casual his interest in snapshooting, who didn't sooner or later get around to trying a sunset shot. If he doesn't, it may be because he doesn't know it can be done with simple equipment. But it can.

It is difficult to establish any hard and fast rules for this snapshooting subject because such natural phenomena are more often characterized by beauty than uniformity. Normally, with the sun hidden by clouds, but still above the horizon, you could use an average snapshot exposure. This means that it is within the scope of the box camera fan. Later on, during the after-glow, a longer exposure—and therefore, an adjustable camera—will be necessary.

Color film, of course, is the ideal medium to capture the sunset hues in all their glory. It's heartening to know that if you miss the exposure a little, you'll still get a picture. Slight underexposure will merely deepen the colors a bit, while an overexposure will make them more delicate. Of course, you can go too far in either direction. But your chances will be good if you try the early parts of the sunset at about 1/50 at f/5.6, increasing the exposure as the scene darkens.

When using black-and-white film, you'll need to rely a little more on the contrast between cloud and sky to make an effective picture. With a sunset that is a riot of vivid oranges, reds, and yellows, regular snapshot film is best. Ordinary snapshot film will yield good results, in fact, may give a more striking effect than would a panchromatic type film since its contrast you want.

There are many ways in which you can enhance the beauty of a sunset sky. How you choose to do it will depend on the particular situation. However, framing the picture with tree branches is always effective and usually possible to do.

Yes, sir, that's Grannie, the sweet old thing with the poisoned claws who turns up occasionally on the RAWHIDE SHOW, broadcast Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays on the CBC Trans-Canada network at 6.40 p.m. Of course she does look a bit like CBC staff announcer Max Ferguson, but Rawhide, who says he's plagued with the same resemblance, claims it's just an optical collison. The picture was taken on the occasion of Grannie's first appearance before a CBC microphone with a clear conscience. "I slaved for weeks on a cold street-corner selling Christmas cards so I could buy my radio license and hold my head up," she explains.

What Are We Living For?

This question has come to a pioneer woman of Western Canada.

She had been listening over the radio to the description of the warm welcome that Their Royal Highnesses, Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, were receiving in all the cities that they visited on their tour across this great land of ours.

This Royal visit is reminiscent of 1939, when their Majesties the King and Queen visited us. Then as now the world was on the edge of chaos. Everywhere men longed for peace, and prepared for war. Then as now the greatest need of the world was for unity. In the farewell speech which the Princess made on the eve of leaving our shores she voiced this thought of unity. Referring to the words spoken by the Governor-General in Ottawa during the first days of their visit, she remarked: "He said then that the link with the Crown was a thing of real and tangible strength and one of the most important factors in uniting the peoples of the Commonwealth into one great brotherhood....Destiny has given me the privilege of being able to live my life for the service of that brotherhood...."

The Princess and her husband gave themselves unstintingly during their visit to bring about this unity. She has indeed provided an example for the women of Canada. It is not the destiny of all Canadian women to have the uniting qualities that we see in our Royal Princess--simple honesty, unselfishness, patience and humility? Position or place does not designate the qualities that reveal true womanliness--those qualities are available for all. Framed in the creativeness of a loving heart, they can help to achieve what every true woman is living for,--unity in her home, in her nation, an in the world.

Livestock Sales Exceed Dairy Products in Province

By Col. the Hon. A. W. Mackenzie
Minister of Agriculture and Marketing

For the first time in the history of the province sales of livestock, poultry and poultry products exceeded by a wide margin the sales of dairy products This, with increasing diversification of Nova Scotia farm products was the outstanding feature of 1951 Agriculture in Nova Scotia.

Livestock sales for the first six months of the year were $8,717-000 against $5,029,000 for dairy products, according to the returns of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. As it is a well established fact that such sales are heavier in the last six months of each year it may safely be assumed that the margin of lead will be even wider when the final results become available.

Reasons for this development are not far to seek: First--high beef prices which have induced many farmers to switch over from dairying to beef production Second--high labor and feed costs and attendant difficulty of manning dairy farms with adequate help.

This problem of farm labor is one of the most acute with which farmers have to deal. So serious has it become that some farmers have been forced to cut operation to the point where the farmer and his immediate family can handle all the work themselves.

Until the return to the farmer is sufficient to enable him to pay wages comparable to those of industry, the drift from rural to urban sections will continue, for attractions of high pay, a 40-hour week, holidays with pay, social security and other benefits outweigh the attraction offered by farm work.

Farmers have been tempted away from dairying by the current high prices of beef and lamb in both Canada and United States Statistical date clearly reveal the trend. Latest figures show that the number of milch cows in Nova Scotia has dropped to 98,000. A year ago it was 99,000.

The beef cow and heifer population on the other hand has increased to 11,300. A year ago the figure was only 9,500. It is anticipated that this drift away from dairying to beef will continue at least through 1952. Total cattle population at present is 202,000.

Generally speaking, 1951 has been a profitable year for Scotia farmers despite reverses in some specialized fields. The final detailed figures are not available. Farm prices are believed in some degree to have exceeded increase in farm expenses, with a final net gain. Thus the farmers of the province are in a slighaly better economic position than they were at this time last year.

Nova Scotia has gradually been changing its agricultural methods and here are some of the outstanding results:

Ice cream up 28 per cent at 1,567,000 gallons.

Fluid milk up 4,000,000 pounds at 93,366,000.

Poultry, one a minor sideline nearing $10,000,000 annually.

Eggs up 600,000 dozen to 12,-837,000 dozen, three times the output of 10 years ago.

Turkeys up from 34,800 to 46-000.

Dressed poultry exceeds the 1,132,000 pounds of a year ago; 35 silos stored 2000 tons. A clear increase of a thousand per cent.

Hay areas declined by 5000 acres put output up 64,000 tons

Ground limestone soil dressing up 8,000 tons.

Declines were shown in general milk production (down 4000 lbs. to 301,287,000), butter down 700,000 to 4,578,000 pounds.

The apple crop at 1,500,000 bushels was only one third of normal due to late spring frosts. Potatoes also had a year due to wet season, but the quality of those which escaped the blight was good.

The sheep population was down slightly at 127,000, and the output of strawberries also declined 66,000 quarts to 660,000.

Tomatoes, a comparatively new speciality, sold 25,000 baskets and 1700 baskets were employed in canning experiments.

Agricultural education is flourishing, and there is great activity among junior clubs which now have 8000 members, many of them the sons and daughters of previous generation club members.

Civil Defence Preparations

By Col. the Hon. A. B. DeWolfe
Minister in Charge of Civil defence

Although man in the street has not shown the continuous lively interest that the situation merits, it is gratifying to know that the Federal officials in charge of over all civil defence in Canada consider Nova Scotia by far the most advanced of all the provinces in the matter of readiness for the day when an enemy may discharge an atom bomb.

This fact was made known at the last Halifax conference between Federal and provincial representatives, and I believe will serve as a stimulus to still greater efforts on the part of local organizations throughout the province.

Preparations begun in 1950 have been pushed toward completion in 1951, and in its work the Civil Defence organization has had the fullest co-operation of the Red Cross the St. John's Ambulance Association, the Canadian Legion the RCMP and many others.

A committee under the chairmanship of Elliot S. Campbell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, has organized a complete communications system to go into action at a moment's notice. A headquarters has been established out in the province itself so that even if local facilities should be interrupted or demolished, in at any particular target point, there would be no delay in putting the appropriate machinery in motion for its relief.

A number of alternate plans have been arranged involving telegraph and telephone lines, commercial radio stations and amateur radio circuits so that no matter where or when the crisis comes, and no matter what it destroys, there still will be one or more channels of communication available between the stricken area and the rest of the province.

Another committee, the chairman of which is C. L. Kenney, assistant chief engineer of highways maintenance has organized all the heavy construction machinery of which there is a great deal in different parts of the province. In case of emergency, bulldozers, steam and power shovels wrecking cranes and similar equipment would move in quickly for rescue and demolition service in any devastated area.

A third committee under chairmanship of Dr. George G. Simms, assistant deputy minister of health, is in charge of medical and sanitary arrangements, one very important feature of which is the organization of surgical teams ready to move promptly into any center that may come under attack.

Mutual aid in fire fighting arrangements, which last year had been completed in the Annapolis Valley only, since have been extended to nearly every corner of the province.

Halifax city's organization- as might be expected of what is perhaps the primary target of the east coast--is in an advanced state of completion.

Other important target areas such as Sydney (shipping, steel plants, coal), New Glasgow (coal and steel), Yarmouth (vital air base adjoining town itself), Truro (rail hub of the province), are being organized separately and have made excellent progress.

Practically all of the precautions now being organized under the name of Civil Defence against A.B.C. Warfare, will be of equal value and effectiveness should the disaster that actually occurs prove to be not atomic in character but by guided missile, ordinary bomb, naval bombardment, ship or munitions dump explosion, or any of the other terrible mishaps of war

Mrs. Louis V. Goldie, ace home baker of Gagetown, N.B., is an enthusiastic user of Fleischmann's Yeast.

Scores with Home Baking at 1951 Queen's County Fair

Queen's County, N.B., boasts some of the top Maritime home bakers, and competition at the Gagetown fair is mighty keen. So when Mrs. Louis Goldie's bread scores a first prize for the second year running, it's evident she's well up on the finer points of bread-making. Speaking of her success, Mrs. Goldie emphasizes that your first step is to choose the right ingredients—particularly yeast. "Your yeast must have plenty of pep—and that's why I recommend Fleischmann's Yeast," says Mrs. Goldie. "With Fleischmann's my doughs always rise light and my finished baking is tender and digestible."

Yes, it's results that have made Fleischmann's Yeast the choice of prize-winning cooks —and the favorite of 3 out of 4 Canadian women.

Echoes

Well, we have winter both officially and practically now. However, the sun is consequently approaching with brighter days, whilst in summer heat it was on the retreat.

Thus are the extremes of either season modified.

John N. Morrison of the Assessment Revision Board went to the Shire Town Monday.

He returned Tuesday there being but a minimum of work.

The youthful and likable Albert Bouchard of Oban is now in the occupation army of Germany.

Would that word diplomacy diplomacy eventually settle their problems "over there," and our boys be left to engage in legitimate and peaceful pursuits.

We were glad for a visit from Mrs. Anthony Burke Tuesday evening.

It was surely nice to see her restored to her wonted health again.

Peace and good will would unavoidably prevail in a community of Obline's type.

Roy J. Morrison, an A student at the Provincial Normal College returned to the Nova Scotia hub, Saturday.

Jack Thibeau who operates a lumber area of his own in Oban drove over New Year's Day to spend the holiday at his home in Cannes.

Theresa Michael had occasion to come to Seaview from the MacLean home in Thibeauville, Wednesday.

Intelligent, with ability to do things, plus pleasing personality, we appreciated a social call from Theresa.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex P. MacRae, their two sons, and Thomas Matthews drove over from Grand Anse Wednesday evening and were guests of Mr. and Mrs Lloyd MacRae.

Alfred Boudreau and Angus MacDonald motored to Loch Side, Monday to transfer John Dan MacDonald's horse back to the farm.

We were cheered and stimulated by Yuletide greetings from the home of the Record, our associate scribes in New York and Montreal and Dundee, as well as a fellow teacher and scribe of by-gone days, D. A. Macleod of Halifax.

Supplementing these were many others from either side the international line, and among them it was pleasing to recognize the handwriting of our esteemed old friend at Kempt Road, Mrs. Barbara MacLeod.

Gifts! Yes, but space forbids their public acknowledgement except for a collection of choice reading matter from Mrs. Alexander MacDonald (Rena Morrison) of East Dorchester, Mass.

We duly appreciate it all, friends.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Conscience Money

(From Manchester Guardian)

A few years ago the old L.M.S. Railway received an anonymous letter from a Doncaster man who confessed that 6 years before he had carried tools weighing over 56 pounds between Wakefield and Bacoup without paying excess fare, in remembrance of which he had "suffered great agony of mind" ever since, and new enclosed a postal order in discharge of the debt.

Probably the tenderest railway conscience on record was that of a traveller who--also many years after the offence--remitted four shillings to the L. N. W. railway "as reparation for going into a first-class waiting room at one of the stations with only a third-class ticket.

It is healthier to consider the story of the man who wrote to the chancellor in plainer terms: "I regret to say I have defrauded the revenue of 10 pounds. However, my conscience has pricked me, and I enclose a cheque for 5 pounds. When it pricks again I will send you the other five."
