Yarns Spun On The Old Spinning Wheel

By Norman L. MacLeod (The Annex, Otisville, N. Y.)

It is late in the season to write this acknowledgement of the many fine messages received from my friends at the Christmas season. I would like to send you all a personal note but physically it would be too much for a creaking, wobbly old Spinning Wheel to undertake. You have been fine in your kind expressions regarding my health. Please accept this as my sincere appreciation. It was indeed heartening to hear from so many of my old friends as well as the many new ones I have made through the Old Home Weekly. I consider my case rather unique, that after nearly 50 years I should contact so many old school pals, and in some cases their children and even their grand-children, none of whom I have ever seen. I have heard from them from the ages of 15 years to 83 years. They are scattered from Maine to California, some are in the Southland, some in the Northwest, besides those throughout Canada. May God's richest blessing rest upon all and may we all be here to again greet each other at the beginning of 1953.

For several weeks without any Malik aforethought or wishing to do any Stal(l)in(g) on the job I have been teaching you with consideration in that I did not invade the serenity of your hearths with my weekly wheezes on the Old Spinning Wheel. This is to serve notice that I am about to resume my attacks on your bastions, citadels or what have you, with continuous fusillade. There will be no cease fire unless the Old Wheel jams again. With these few opening remarks we will now see what's on the agenda.

The coming year promises to be an eventful one and a preview of the days ahead would only be guesswork of the sheerest kind. It is Leap Year which gives an extra day to bring about or obstruct whatever helps to keep this derelict old world on even keel. The Old Wheel will not attempt to right the old ship. We have our hands full paddling our own little canoe.

I would like to sound a note of warning to the budding swains who are about to emerge from their teens and for the first time face a Leap Year. Beware! The "fems" are on the loose and when they strike -- again. I say Beware. Even plug-uglies are not immune from their attacks. Some times they advance alone, sometimes in pairs, but when they descend upon you in droves or with the whole family, brother you are liable to get stung. They have all the answers, they know the right move to make and when to make it, and they were never more alluring. Those who are not naturally beautiful are as synthetically so as the cosmetic counters and beauty salons can make them, and if you are not a sophisticate you will find it hard to tell the geniune from the artificial.

Always being the working girl's friend I refute the dire inneundo that they are all synthetics. It just ain't so. Perhaps you have the wrong perspective. A hunter who returned from Africa was asked he if met any missionaries while there. He replied: "Why no there are no missionaries there but I saw hunters and elephants." A missionary replying to the question if he saw any hunters said: "Why no, but I saw other missionaries." They were on different guests--the former invaded the wilds, the latter the villages. Say Bud, where are you heading? Look where you are going, but don't always go where you are looking.

Fellows, cache your whistles. You will have no use for them for at least a year. During 1952 you will be the "whistlee" and not the whistler. The girls will take your place on your favorite corner and their shrill voices will ring out with "yahoos" often in lieu of a whistle. Some girls cannot whistle, others believe the old cliche that "whistling girl and a crowing hen will come to some bad end." Perhaps you better pass them up. The best anglers cast their lures in some quiet nook and quietly await the fish to strike. Better examine the bait well before you bite for once you are hooked you are in for a penning of some kind. Occasionally you make get a raw deal, but as a rule you will be cooked. Don't take things too much in your own hands or you might get pickled.

Now girls as you cast your lures into the swirling or placid waters as the case may be, you will find a lot of poor fish eager to grasp at it. Try to evade them, and remember that there are better fish in the ocean that have ever been caught. It was not until 1950, not quite two years ago, that the largest tuna was captured, when Col. Hodgson landed a 977 pound bluefin in St. Ann Bay, C. B. almost half a tun of tuna. Be patient. That big boy will weaken yet, and when he strikes play him well, don't be too anxious and try to reel him at once or you will lose him. Shucks! they all fall sooner or later.

To both the 'fems' and 'mascs' I woul say, before you take the leap, be sure everything is in order. You may zoom aloft with a beautiful take-off and soar peace fully along for some distance, when suddenly something snaps and you begin to lose altitude, but if you snap out of it in time you may make a good landing and avoid a smash-up.

I am not posing as an expert on the different issues I present to you. I never give advice--that it, not much! What I am doing is acting as your research reporter and giving you a faithful account of the what, where, when and how did it happen of events as they turn up on the point of my spade as I dig for the facts. Otherwise I don't know what I am talking about. I am giving you the yarn as it is spun on the Old Wheel---do your own knitting.

I my next effusion I will tell you how an old pal "treated me like a Prince." That is an old saying which is merely a figure of speech generally, but it really did happen to me. In the meantime brush up on our curtesying etc., so that you will not appear awkward in the presence of Royalty.

Urquhart Shield and Richmond Record Trophy Presented to Red Caps 1951 Baseball Champions

Petit de Grat, Jan. 14 -- The Petit de Grat Red Caps Baseball club held their Presentation Banquet in the Parish Hall on Monday evening.

Representatives from practically all the Baseball Clubs in Richmond Co. Baseball League were in attendance as well as several invited guests.

The luncheon was in charge of Miss S. J. Sampson, domestic science teacher, assisted by the Petit de Grat School Domestic Science class. Much credit goes to Miss Sampson and her pupils for a delicious chicken supper.

After the banquet Percy Jollymore, Jr., President of the Richmond County Baseball League, welcomed all the members of the various baseball clubs throughout the County.

Due to the unavoidable absence of Earl W Urquhart, M. L. A, the donor of the Urquhart Shield, emblematic of the Baseball Club in highest standing, Rev. A. Boudreau was called upon to make the presentation of the Shield to the Red Caps, on behalf of Mr. Urquhart, and in his usual graceful manner congratulated the Red Caps on their victory. He also paid tribute to Mr. Urquhart for donating such a splendid shield, which he felt, would make competition in the League much greater in the future. Father Boudreau then presented Cletus Boudreau, veteran ball player and Captain of the Red Caps. On behalf of his team, Mr. Boudreau expressed his thanks.

Later in the evening The Richmond County Record Trophy was presented to the Red Caps by the Editor M. J. Bourinot who thanked the Petit de Grat Club for their kind invitation to their banquet. In the course of his address he remarked that it took good sportsmanship to win any game, but that it took greater sportmanship to be the losers in a game and that he was happy to see representatives of all the League teams of the County in attendance to share in the victory of the Petit de Grat Red Caps, the 1951 champions.

With great applause Cletus Boudreau, better known in baseball circles as 'Grandpa' Boudreau, received the trophy on behalf of his team, this being the second consecutive year that both the trophy and shield have been won by the Red Caps. River Bourgeois won the trophy the two previous consecutive years.

Other speakers included, Walter Fougere of the River Bourgeois Club.

Keats Williamson of the St. Peter's who congratulated the Red Caps on their victory over the St Peter's Royals.

Leon Landry, manager of the Red Caps also made a brief address.

Joseph T. Boudreau made a brief address in which he outlined the history of baseball in Petit de Grat.

Charles Gordon the popular manager of the Booth Fisheries plant at Petit de Grat, congratulated the Red Caps on their victory.

Harry T. Boudreau was also heard in a brief address. Also Coach Fulbert Boudreau.

Percy Jollymore acter as master of ceremonies and conducted the proceedings in a very creditable manner.

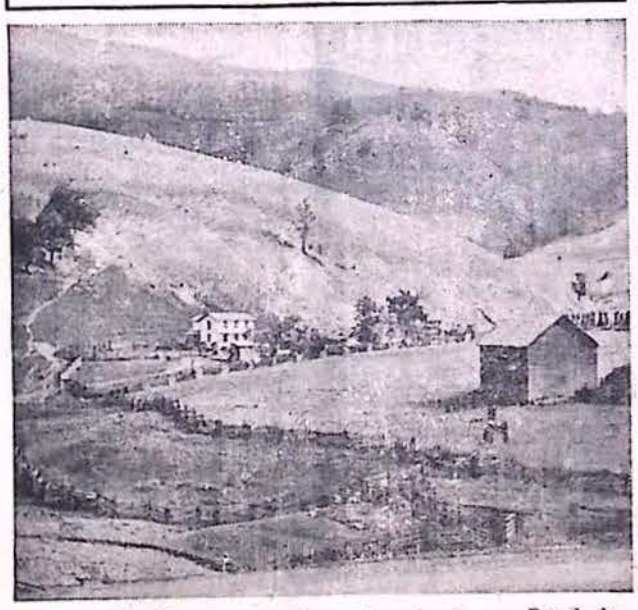

After the banquet dancing was enjoyed by one of the largest gatherings ever witnessed at the Petit de Grat Parish Hall. Music by Fulbert Boudreau and his orchestra.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

A scene like this may tempt the movie maker to pan. But don't. Shoot—hold it—and shoot some more.

A Tip for New Movie Makers

NINETY-NINE out of a hundred new movie makers (and some not so new) have a common tendency to approach the first scenic view and panoram-like mad. As a result, the movie they put on the screen is jerky and hard on the eyes.

In making movies, the camera's function is to record motion, not to provide it. So when you want to film different areas in a vast scene, take your finger off the exposure button as you move the camera to take in the next part of the subject.

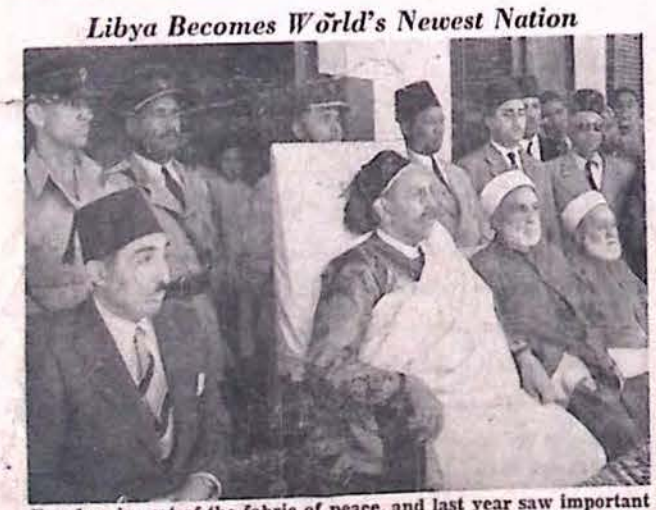

Panoraming isn't a good idea in amateur movie-making because it is an unnatural way of looking at the scene. When your eyes survey a big scene they don't sweep across it. You may gradually turn your head to take in the whole view, but your eyes fasten on one spot until they're ready to go on, and then jump to the next point of interest, skipping over any dull area that may be in between. Since you want your movie screen to reflect a scene as you saw it, you'll be better off shooting it that way.

Why does panoraming make my movies jerky is a frequently asked question. The answer lies in the way the camera works. Most amateur movies are filmed at 16 frames per second. That means the film pauses that many times behind the lens while the shutter opens and closes. When you hold the camera still in shooting, this doesn't show on the screen because it happens so fast the object being photographed is in the same position in several successive frames. But when you start panning, the object is varied in its position relative to the camera in successive frames. And that is what gives you eye strain and a film that isn't as good as it could have been.

If you just have to pan with your camera—do it s-l-o-w and s-t-e-a-d-y, moving from the point of least interest to the peak—and never retracing the scene.

Trade and Industry Report

By the Hon. W. T. Dauphinee

Trade and Industry Report

The year 1951 has once again brought encouraging progress in our development programs, and given cause for even firmer faith in Nova Scotia's future industrial development.

Our development program have of course two main objectives, the establishment of new industries, and the provision of all reasonable assistance to existing industries.

One vital aspect of development of new industries is the exploration of our resources and means of utilizing them more fully. To this end, we launched nearly a year ago a survey of the Province's resources of raw materials for chemical industries in cooperation with the Nova Scotia Research Foundation. This survey produced indications of favorable conditions for further salt-based chemical industry in the Province, which appeared to justify more intensive investigation. As a result of this investigation, I was able to announce a few months ago the discovery of large beds of salt and limestone, favorably situated with regard to transportation, near Antigonish. We hope to see the development there of a new chemical industry to produce salt-based chemicals, in particular soda ash. A number of leading chemical companies are following our exploration of these deposits with close attention. The more general survey of the Province's chemical resources is continuing.

Much of our current work aimed at establishing new industries must remain confidential, since disclosure would hamper or destroy the prospects of establishing the industry concerned. However, I can report that my officers have during the year negotiated with many North American and European firms and that in several cases prospects are most encouraging. In some cases these negotiations have already resulted in the establishment of new or expanded plants here. I have previously drawn attention to the acquisition by the W. R. Case and Sons Cutlery Company of the plants and equipment formerly operated by Pictou Cutlery Ltd., a change of ownership which is expected to be followed by a very substantial expansion of this industry.

The operation commenced by Scotsburn Distillers Ltd. at Bridgetown provides a new market for apple products and further employment in processing of materials formerly shipped from the Province. It also adds a new class of products to the growing list of "Made in Nova Scotia" goods. At Church Point, pearl essence is being extracted from herring scales, and will be made into artificial pearl by a process perfected in the Netherlands. Furthermore, new products are being made by a number of Nova Scotia plants, and our officers have assisted in making the necessary arrangements in a number of cases.

In our effort to encourage suitable industries to establish here, the problems presently associated with moving of capital from most overseas countries to Canada present one limiting factor. Several years ago the Government set up loan funds to assist in the establishment and expansion of industry, where other sources of capital were not available. Such loans, at low interest and repayable over fairly long periods, have been very helpful in stimulating industry orginating within the Province. They have also proved extremely useful in attracting to Nova Scotia industries which otherwise might be unable to establish themselves in Canada. In all cases, it is of course necessary to satisfy ourselves as fully as possible that industries so assisted have every prospect for success, which, the federal Department of Labor, to train fishermen to navigate larger needless to say calls in many cases for detailed and intensive study by several branches of this department. During 1951, the legislation governing these loans have been amended and consolidated, and our procedures for examining loan applications and administering loans after they are made are likewise being revised.

In recent years it has frequently been possible to place incoming industries in existing buildings, at much less than the cost of new buildings. Existing plant space in the Province is now almost entirely taken up and new industry must reckon with the necessity of finalizing new buildings at a time of high cost, material shortages, and certain federal restrictions aimed at discouraging non-essence building. We receive excellent cooperation from the federal authorities in dealing with shortages and controls, and we have been pleased to note in the past year an increasing awareness amongst municipal authorities and Boards of trade, of the possible advantage of local groups being prepared to put up plant facilities on a non-profit rental or rental-purchase basis. This is done in many towns and cities in the United States and other parts of Canada. We also enjoy excellent cooperation from local authorities in the Province in making industrial sites available to incoming firms at minimum cost.

Having discussed in a general way our work in industrial development, I would like to make special mention of one of our most vital industries, the fisheries.

Nova Scotia's position as the fish pier of the North Atlantic is being recognized increasingly as the main fishing areas shift eastward and as technical advances make it possible to distribute fish economically and in good condition further and further inland.

There have been at least three outstanding examples in 1951 of the expansion of our fish processing facilities. Louisburg Fisheries Ltd., which has been announced previously, will be in operation within a few weeks, and the benefits of this development are already being felt in the area. At Petit de Grat, Booth Fisheries Ltd., are establishing a substantial processing plant, their first in the Maritimes and it likewise will be in operation in the near future. At Canso, British Columbia Packers Ltd. are establishing their first Maritime processing plant. These developments not only are valuable in themselves, in terms of employment and earnings, but they are significant of what we have reason to believe is a continuing and accelerating trend.

Complementing this development of processing facilities is further improvement of distribution equipment and organization. Nova Scotia frozen fish is now being shipped to Denver, Colorado and we expect a large growth of this inland market. A number of problems impede the rate of improvement of distribution facilities, and these are receiving our close attention in cooperation with federal and other provincial agencies.

The Department is continuing its efforts to improve the efficiency of the equipment and methods used in the fisheries. The new "long liners" designed by our engineers and built under their supervision are drawing a gratifying amount of attention from fisheries authorities of other areas as well as from Nova Scotia fishermen. Through loans to fishermen for improved vessels and equipment, we are continuing to give a practical incentive to keep equipment up to date. All our courses in navigation and engine maintenance for fishermen are being fully attended, and appear to be highly useful to those enrolled.

A new school has been established at Lunenburg in cooperation with vessels than those they previously handled. This school was felt necessary to assist fishermen to advance their navigational training in keeping with the trend to the use of larger vessels in the fisheries, and has been welcomed in the industry.

Assistance to our other established industris continues to be rendered in a variety of ways. We have assisted a number of companies to make appropriate contacts with Canadian and United States government purchasing agecies. Our officers have provided liaison with federal agencies on such problems as tariffs, priority and materials controls, and immigration. We have assisted many companies by providing

Sanding of Roads In District 6

The Editor,
Richmond County Record,
Arichat, N. S.

Dear Sir:

Road conditions in this district have improved considerably during the recent lull in storms. However some of the by-roads are left in a very dangerous condition.

In River Bourgeois sand boxes and sheds have been placed at regular intervals but those left in charge refuse to use the sand.

The trucks which are supposed to do the sanding are busy otherwise, and their drivers won't authorize any other truck operaters to use the sander.

In order to reach the highway from Church Point, Rev. Fr. Sampson used his truck, his shovel and his energy to do this sanding. It took him a few hours but he made this piece of road safe for vehicular traffic.

On one occasion five cars were stranded and not one-half mile away lies a sand filled shed. It could be that the authorities plan to use this to resurface the roads, but it is badly needed on our by-roads for both car drivers and pedestrians.

Would it be possible for the authorities concerned to have this matter looked into, so that vehicle operators can reach the main highway without having to inconvenience themselves by using their equipment to sand roads, while certain trucks are equipped with the necessary machinery to do this work but their operators are busy at some other occupation.

This is in the interest of all tax payers.

MORSE'S TEA

Health And Progress

By R. J. DEACHMAN

I was quite young at the time. I had been plowing all day but to a youngster, in his early teens, what does a day's work amount to anyway! I put the horses in the stable, shoved some hay into their mangers, gave them their oats, then a rub and a promise with curry-comb and brush and walked down town--the attraction was a free show. The professor claimed to be a doctor--the claim may have been justified, he looked like one. He had taken the town hall for a night and promised an excellent talk on how to keep well. It wound up as such things often do with a story of the origin, uses and doses of a great family medicine. This time it was "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa."

With him on the platform were two Indians who put on a dance. The doctor told us of the magnificent specimens of humanity on the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains. They lived in the open in God's free sunshine. They had learned from their own medicine men the virtues of certain plants and herbs which grew on the lower slope of the mountains. They developed these products--you can guess the rest. After years of careful study a wonderful remedy "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa" was given to mankind. It was not a stab in the dark, the great council and sub-council of the Kickapoos had studied the problem for years. They had tried it at home, it had brought them health. Now they were able to give this great remedy of the Kickapoos to their brothers and sisters throughout the nation regardless of color or creed.

Nice of them, wasn't it? There was a magnetic swing to his talk. There was music in his voice. I I don't know where he went when he left the Village of Gorrie (Huron County, Ontario) but we never heard of him again. Nor strange to say, never since that night have I ever heard of "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa". I lived in the West for 21 years but so far as I can recall it no Indians of that name turned up with a bottle of "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa." If they did they escaped my vision.

THE LOST REMEDY

Yesterday I entered a drug store where I usually buy these essential needs of the man who must at times take a shave. I went in for some blades. He reached into a drawer and handed me a package of my favorite brand. "What are the others?", I asked, for the drawer was full of blades. "These", said he, "are the ones which fell by the wayside and the place which once knew them for a day now knows them no more.

Then I thought of my old friend, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa"-what a lovely name! It ought to sell the product even if it was a doubtful value. I asked my druggist friend if he remembered it. Was it a friend of his in the old days? He raised his eyebrows and thought for a few moments, his mind leading him back through the years. "I can look back a long distance in the drug business," he said, "and I think I can recall that name but I fear the Indian

POIRIER - MARTELL

A wedding of great interest to the community was held at D'Escousse St. Hyacinth Catholic Church on Thursday, January 10, when Miss Leona Martell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Martell of Poulamon, became the bride of Wilfred A. Poirier son of Councillor and Mrs. P. D. Poirier, D'Escousse.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. A. Boucher, P. P., followed by a Nuptial High Mass.

To the strains of a wedding march the bridal procession entered the church led by Miss Susan Bonin, cousin of the groom acting as bridesmaid, dressed in a beautiful floor-length gown of mauve net and lace, withshoulder veil and accessories to match and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations. Leonard Fougere acting as groomsman. They were followed by Miss Shirley Paon, cousin of the bride, also acting as bridesmaid who wore a beautiful pale green taffeta with veil and matching accessories and a bouquet of pink carnations. Lloyd Poirier brother of the groom, also was groomsman. Then followed as matron of honor, Miss Norma Paon, cousin of the bride, who wore a beautiful gown of yellow sheer with veil and accessories to match and a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Willard Fougere, uncle of the bride was best man.

The groom followed and took his place at the altar, when Lois Poirier, neice of the bride acting as flower girl proceeded down the aisle, followed by the bride on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Bert Poirier who gave her away in marriage. The flower girl looked lovely dressed in a floor-length gown of pale blue nylon and shoulder veil and bouquet.

The bride was attired in an attractive gown of white satin and lace styled on fitted lines and enhanced by a shoulder veil held in place with a dainty coronet and carried a bouquet of red roses.

After the ceremony the Bridal Party drove to the home of the groom where a reception was held in their honor. Rev. A. P. Poirier, cousin of the groom proposed a toast to the birde and was responded by the groom in very fitting words.

A sumptuous dinner was served at the home of the bride to a large number of friends and relatives.

The evening meal was served at the home of the groom where a large number of guests showered the newlyweds with congratulations. Rev. A. P. Poirier proposed a toast to three grandmothers of the honorees and was responded by the master of ecremonies, Mr Bert Poirier.

The wedding gifts, money telegrams and best wishes received shows the great esteem in which they were held.

They will reside in Poulamon for the winter months after which they will leave for Ontario where they will make their home.

The best wishes of the community goes to them for a long and happily wedded life.

BIRTH

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richard at Isle Madame Hospital on Jan. 8th a daughter Marie Yolanda.

"I have never had a failure with Fleischmann's Yeast," says Mrs. Allan Armstrong, who bakes for a table of 13.

Wins Eight Baking Prizes at St. Stephen Fair

Home arts flourish on the stately Armstrong farmstead at Waweig, N.B. In the midst of canning wax beans, blueberries, and mackerel, Mrs. Allan Armstrong still finds time to do a batch of baking for the St. Stephen Exhibition. And when the judging at the 1951 fair was completed, Mrs. Armstrong had taken eight prizes!

Commenting on her success in the field of yeast-raised baking, Mrs. Armstrong says: "I can certainly recommend Fleischmann's Yeast to any one who wants to turn out tip-top baking. My own experience is that you can't beat Fleischmann's for dependable fast rising. I use it constantly."

Good advice! Champion bakers all over the Maritimes make it a rule to use only Fleischmann's Yeast.

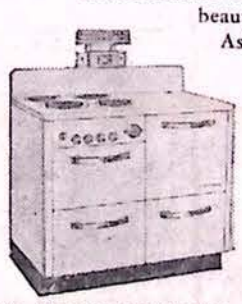

"Mother was right ...there's nothing like an Enterprise"

● Wise is the bride who realizes that Mother's reputation as a fine cook was made with the help of her Enterprise Range! For today's new models combine the same rugged construction with modern features that Mother's range never had — tribute to the Enterprise policy of constant improvement.

See the new Enterprise Ranges at your dealer's. Note the generous cooking surface, the roomy oven with its heavily insulated, spring-balanced door. Gleaming enamel and rounded corners and sparkling beauty, make the new Enterprise so easy to clean.

Ask about the hidden features that make Enterprise the fastest-cooking, most durable range on the market — the chassis with all-cast underfront that ties body and base into one rigid unit . . . the pressed steel, no-warp oven bottom . . . and the streamlined flue and scientifically designed plates for graduated top heat.

If the Enterprise Range model that you want may not be immediately available, it is worth waiting for.

Sporting Mountain Echoes

To veteran citizens the big snow storm was reminiscent of old timers in their younger years.

Our supplies were running low but betimes Monday morning, James Goswell drove up the secluded and sheltered 'Little Road' with our grocery order which will suffice to tide us over until Ground Hog Day.

Messrs. MacPhee and Sampson transported Mrs. MacPhee to the school house in the old trustworthy way with horse and sleigh but she was unable to get back home till the snow plough opened up the road, Friday.

Our triweekly mail service failed to function during the week, the route being impassable for either Chevrolet or dapple gray, but what with some rain yesterday (Friday) and snow ploughs bucking the banks, we expect Ceretha will be along again this evening, with Nelly impatient for delay, and chomping on the bit.

Mrs. Kaye MacPhail of Oban was a recent guest of Mr and Mrs W. J. Grant.

Frank Burns has gone to Sydney to spend the winter months with his two sons and family connections there.

Frank must have had a presentiment, his going being opportune.

We hope our old neighbor will enjoy his sojourn in the Steel City and return looking as well and fit as he did last spring.

We note by the Post-Record that Rev. N. S. MacDonald B A. B. D, of St Peter's United Congregation has accepted a call from a Sydney Mines church.

Personally we have occasion for sincere regret that this popular pastor of rare attainments and sterling attributes is destined to take leave of us so soon.

Mrs. Elliott MacLeod gave us a forecast Sunday evening we had never heard before.

She said, "The snow has a bluish tint and will be followed by rain." Well, it was.

Lloyd MacRae was over to Grand Anse, Thursday for his horse which he was obliged to leave there in the snow blockade.

With regard to the teachers strike, a wit with a surplus of children in the home made the following comment:

"I wish they'd get five hundred dollars a week, and teach twenty four hours a day.

Speaking of our own school, some claim to have done more than others for it.

Well, come to think of it, down through the years of the old regime we feel that we have done as much as anybody else, and as far as doing it gratuitously is concerned, its dollars to doughnuts that we have done more.

However, we claim no credit for any improvements under the "New Unit" these being amply paid out of our maintenance money as the secretary's accounts will demonstrate.

market information, contacts with selling purchasing agents, location of sources of supply, and information on engineering problems. On request, we have participated in negotiations for manufacturing rights for new products. We have begun to build up economic research division so as it develops will be in a position to analyse and advise upon the more basic problems of concern to Nova Scotia businessmen. All these services are at the call of Nova Scotia to make use of the Departments's services in dealing with special problems in which our personnel and experience can be useful.

The handcrafts development program of the Department has continued successfully throughout the year, and it becomes clearer from year to year that the reputation of Nova Scotia handcrafts is spreading. Although accurate statistics are not presently available, it also appears that cash returns from handcrafts are improving and providing an increasingly important supplement to other income for many families, especially in outlying areas where alternative employments are not always available. There are two main aspects of our hand crafts program. The first is the increase and improvement of production through personal and correspondence instruction, provision of technical literature and the promotion of exhibitions to provide a competitive impetus for handcraft producers. The second is the improvement of marketing through publication and distribution of "Where to Buy Handcrafts in Nova Scotia," product exhibits and liaison with quantity purchaser. Both approaches are being followed vigorously by the staff of the Handcrafts Section.

A year ago, in concluding a similar review, I said, "As the year closes in international tension and a rapid speed-up of defence preparation, we face new problems and new challenges. Given the same cooperation which business men have so freely extended to us in the past, I am confident that in 1951 we can, in spite of all difficulties, further diversify in the industry and enrich the economy of our province" We have certainly being given that my confidence has been vindicated. The international outlook is perhaps even darker than a year ago, and the defence program and associated anti-inflationary controls have thrown some new strains on non-defence business, but once again I feel that in the coming year, with public support, we can make a real contribution to the growth of Nova Scotia's economy.

Health And Progress

doctor didn't sell much "Kickapoo" in Canada.

Then I was in Gorrie last summer, the little village close to the old family home. I was there in August. The visit stirred up many memories but not since the night of that distant meeting, years and years ago, have I thought of "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa" and "Kickapoo Healing Salve". My druggist had the answer. If a product isn't good it makes no difference who produces it or who puts it on the market it must have a real value. If it hasn't it will reach the trash box in a few short weeks. If it has value, in time, it may find a market and survive, at least until a better one comes along! I doubt if there are many remedies today which can make a market by peddling the product from house to house. It costs too much.

Are our doctors and druggists worth the price? There is an easy and simple test for that blunt question. The health of the people of Canada is improving. The death rate is declining. The babies born into the world have a far better chance of living than they had in the past. There has been a sharp decline in infant mortality. In a thousand live births in the average of the years 1921-25 the mortality for the 1st year was 98. In 1948 it was 44. This is a great improvement. Maternal mortality has declined steadily since the 1921-25 level of 5 per thousand live births to 1.4. The general death rate has fallen from 11.2 per 1000 population to 9.3.

The change reflects a great improvement. Our medical bills are high but the results are satisfactory. The improvement is diffused throughout the nation. The change has been brought about by the greater skill and greater knowledge of medical fraternity and coupled with this better hospitals, better nurses and beyond question-better patients.

Our trade returns, exports and imports, industrial production, car loadings, bank deposits and loans reflect a healthy condition of our economic affairs but the basis of economic prosperity lies in the health of our people. We must guard it as one of our great national assets.
