Tales, Tidings And Tidbits from Montreal

ATTENTION FATHER McEACHERN

Reverend Sir:--Something tells MacTavish you're good medicine for our home town, St. Peters. This impression was first formed when we heard you speak at a "Wet Blanket" water meeting last Summer. Now after receiving a picture of your Merry Minstrels, your Charming Choristers (male excluded of course), and your "Fiddlers Three" we are convinced you are the right man in a good place.

But Father, what have you done to our old friends, Digout, Boyd and Adams? Do you think is quite fair to sabotage Cameron's wholesale smile with a white goatee and make him fit game for an Alphine hunter? Do you consider it fair to moss up the good doctor's countenance and glass in those twinkling eyes so that even his best friends and the trout will flee from him? And Adams, that good natured hunk of human flesh topped with a stove pipe lid and smug behind a senatorial frown--is that justice?

MacTavish thinks it is a little bit of all right considering the sound purpose behind the venture --and the fun of it all.

MacTavish takes the liberty of tipping his woolly Tam to Hughie "Malcolm" whose skill with the bow has charmed under many a bright moon; to Charlie MacKenzie, who regardless of the moniker we tacked on him during school days has a right to crow when it comes to "fiddling"; to Angus Rankin, to MacTavish's niece, Shirley, and all the green decked damsels--and to all those who worked with you to make your latest venture the success we hear it is.

All in all we have a hunch that you are well pleased with the people of your large Parish. When you have from the "Northside" and the "Cove", the Jacksons, MacKenzies the Digouts and the Sampsons and "all those fine fellows", besides the MacDonalds, MacNeils and Mancinis the MacIntoshes and the Camerons and Curries and all the others MacTavish is confident that before long the inspirational spire of your church with its symbol of hope will once again point its white way to the blue of our Cape Breton skies, reminding man of a better life which is as it should be.

A hearty tip of the Tam to you, Sir.

Bon jour,
MACTAVISH

Mindamar At Stirling Ready to Operate Mill

The residents of this County, will be pleased to know that Mindamar Metals Corporation at Stirling in the Framboise District, will soon start production.

We learn that the outcome of diamond drilling has proven by tests that new ore bodies have been located adjoining the old workings.

Preparations of putting the mill to work got underway last week. It has been estimated that a capacity of 500 tons of ore will go through this mill every day when operations begin.

Some years ago British Metals operated the Stirling Mine, but ceased operation when the price of base metals took such a dip it was found to impossible to operate and was closed in the early part of 1930.

Much credit goes to the Nova Scotia Department of Mines headed by Hon. A. H. MacKinnon, Minister, for the part played by this Department in bringing into this County, the Mindamar Metals Corporation two years ago, when the price of base metals offered the opportunity of having this valuable Stirling area again go into production and every indication points to a noted success for the future of this industry.

A guaranteed sale of the zinc concentrate is assured by the British Ministry of Supply for the next five years. The sale of copper-lead concentrate has been arranged also for a two-year period.

We are also happy to report that St. Peters will be the shipping point from whence this mineral will be shipped by rail. The distance of the mine from St. Peter's is only 38 miles.

All's Well In Ottawa

By R. J. Deachman

Conditions are not particularly happy in the City of Ottawa when winter merges into spring. We have a heavy snow fall during winter but despite this the streets are kept fairly clean, so are the sidewalks. Of course this is all done by machinery but in the spring there comes a time when it rains and freezes, then thaws as the weather warms. So we have snow and ice and muddy spots obtruding on our beautifully clean sidewalks.

Now here there lies an economic lesson. The winter job of keeping the roads and sidewalks clean must be done by a central authority--no man would want to clear the drifts in front of his own home. Every householder, however, ought to clean the last of the frozen snow and mud from the sidewalk in front of his onw property. The exercise gives him a feeling of manliness, an exuberance of spirit. It helps his appetite, it brings the color to his cheeks. It would be little short of a crime for the city to do such things--thus robbing the citizen of his rights to exert himself with a little exercise.

Spring is here, so are the robins. On Sunday last one of my favorite sparrows returned to last year's nesting place, inspected the old nest, looked around, saw no sign of growth. He took another look at it chirped again. "Back in two weeks Joy" she whispered as she left. I thought she might make it a week but on that question I am no sage, so I said, "Glad to see you any time and turned away from the open window.

The political scene in Ottawa is brightening. The first political pamphlet of the season is out. Like the first robin it's welcome even if it is a harbinger of elections. This one was published by the Progressive Conservative Party I read it. I liked that document. I am betting dollars to doughnuts it will be read. Why? It's small--4 1/2" high as I stood it on its base end to measure it, 3⅛" wide. I thought I might state these measures in cubits but I looked it up--worse luck a cubit measures 22 inches, which is five times greater in size than this new document of a coming campaign. It's blue in color and the content in blue. Ten to nine George Drew will tell us that the country is blue He did it in these few pages. Hardened as I am I smiled. There is humor in the Tory Party now, a sign that things may be looking up.

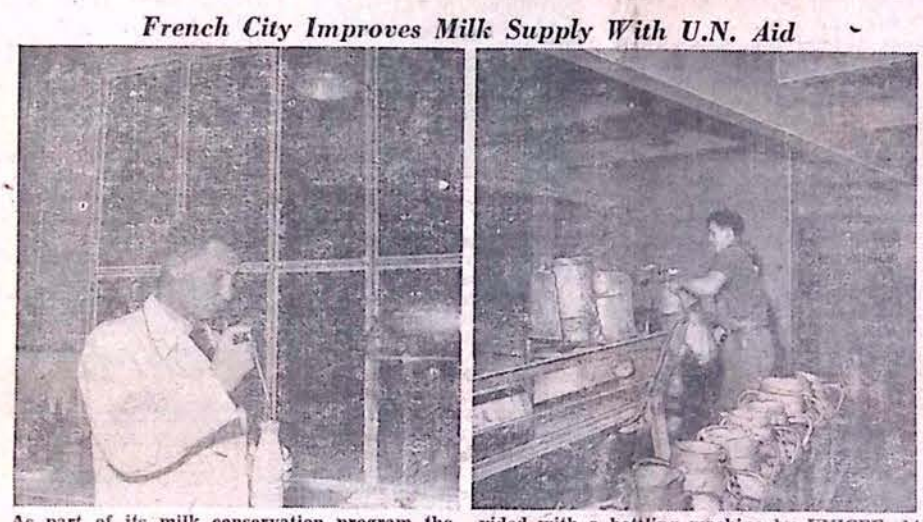

Now this book has only eight pages--it can be read in eight minutes. When I think of past elections I am grateful to George Drew for adopting a new style in campaign literature. If the other parties would adopt this method--what changes in color scheme --the whole face of politics would be lifted. It would save a tremendous amount of effort when the day of judgement comes and we, the voters, have to weigh the parties not on their own scales but on the scales of public opinion.

We want our campaign literature neat, compact, vest pocket

French City Improves Milk Supply With U.N. Aid

As part of its milk conservation program the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF), has supplied dried milk, bottling and pasteurizing equipment to several countries in Europe and the Middle East. Soissons was the first French city to make compulsory the bottling of milk sold at retail, and has been provided with a bottling machine by UNICEF. At the right, milk newly arrived from a Soissons farm is dumped into the pasteurizer, while the manager of the dairy M. Guerland (left) samples milk from a bottle which was filled on the machine furnished to the city by the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Home and School Meeting At St. Peter's

The regular meeting of the MacDougall Home and School Association was held at St. Peter's on the evening of April 9th. Members were pleased to welcome representatives from Louisdale and L'Ardoise Associations, as well as two student teachers who are spending some time at Grand Greve in observation and teaching practice.

After a brief business session the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. John A. Ross, Assistant Director of Guidance for the province, was introduced by Inspector R. J. Chiasson.

Mr. Ross' address was most interesting and greatly appreciated by the audience, particularly by the parents and teachers present, who derived from it many suggestions to help them in guiding the young people entrusted to their care. Mr. Ross, in his opening remarks, explained that he preferred to use the word "guidance" only rather than the term "vocational guidance", as in order to do vocational guidance, he said, it is necessary to include very often not only educatonal guidance, but also guidance in helping the individaul find emotional adjustment. He termed guidance as an effort to conserve human resources, and said that one of the basic fundamentals of a guidance program is based simply on the statement "people are different". His message to parents in helping them to guide their children's choice of profession or occupation was that they consider their boy's or girl's happiness rather than their own personal aspirations for the child.

In closing, Mr. Ross quoted the soul searching expression: "The fool wanders, the wise man travels". Guidance workers, he said, were seeking to help the young people "travel".

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Ross on the motion of Miss Helen Archibald, Principal of the school.

The interest in guidance Mr. Ross created in his audience was very evident from the spontaneous way in which many members took advantage of his kind invitation to ask him questions regarding the subject after his address.

A social hour followed during which several vocal selections were rendered by Mr. Jack Adams. Refreshments were served, and the singing of "The Queen" brought to a close this educational and pleasant program.

Anti-Cancer Movement

"The Canadian school teacher is one of the most valued allies of the anti-cancer movement."

This statement was recently made by Mr. F. G. Butterfield of Regina, National President of the Canadian Cancer Society. It is a statement backed up by the fact that the Society makes available to teachers more specially prepared material than to any other non-medical profession.

This material includes the 95-page handbook, "Cancer--A Manual for High School Teachers" and its accompanying text for students, "Youth Looks at Cancer." These have been distributed to the Grades Ten and Tewelve, Biology Classes, of the Province of Nova Scotia for the past several years with the co-operation of the Department of Education and the School Book Bureau.

In addition, such films as "From One Cell" and "The Traitor Within" have been widely shown in biology classes and this year the Nova Sectia Division has, for the first time, sponsored an essay contest among the students of Grades Ten and Twelve in those high schools within the Division's Unit areas. If the response is adequate this contest may, in 1953, be expanded to include all provincial high schools.

FELLED

A giant Douglas fir tree, recently felled on Vancouver Island for lumber, had a circumference of 15 feet, was 1106 years old, and must have been a huge tree when the Magna Carta was signed 1215. In spite of its venerable age there was still a lot of useful wood in this ancient giant of the forest.

Mrs. Louis V. Goldie, ace home baker of Gagetown, N.B., is an enthusiastic user of Fleischmann's Yeast.

Scores with Home Baking at 1951 Queen's County Fair

Queen's County, N.B., boasts some of the top Maritime home bakers, and competition at the Gagetown fair is mighty keen. So when Mrs. Louis Goldie's bread scores a first prize for the second year running, it's evident she's well up on the finer points of bread-making. Speaking of her success, Mrs. Goldie emphasizes that your first step is to choose the right ingredients—particularly yeast. "Your yeast must have plenty of pep—and that's why I recommend Fleischmann's Yeast," says Mrs. Goldie. "With Fleischmann's my doughs always rise light and my finished baking is tender and digestible."

Yes, it's results that have made Fleischmann's Yeast the choice of prize-winning cooks—and the favorite of 3 out of 4 Canadian women.

Sporting Mountain Echoes

Mrs. Leonel LeBlanc boarded the train at Sporting Mountain, Good Friday, en route to visit relatives and friends in her native New Brunswick, after an absence of sixteen years.

She should have a good and interesting tale to tell them.

In the time that has intervened she mothered nine bright and attractive children, the eldest of whom, Yvonne, is blossoming into womanhood.

If she is not too modest she may tell them too that she was a good helpmeet in establishing a farm which with its commodious and up to date buildings, modern equipment and facilities, makes the passer-by pause to observe; and that, moreover, these are all a complex product of honest thrift, hardy toil and good management.

We wish Mrs. LeBlanc a pleasant respite from domestic obligations.

We were glad to see "West Bay" back in your columns, and quite agree with our fellow scribe that the obituary of Mrs. H. B. Andrews was well done.

Dan T. Grant who has been employed on the C. N. R. since last fall is spending the Easter holidays at the old home in Seaview.

A pleasant period was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd MacRae the other evening when a number of friends surprised them on the occasion of their decade anniversary.

We wish our next door neighbors to the south of us many happy returns of the day.

Since coming here a stranger subsequent to World War II, Mrs. MacRae has engendered the respect and good-will of our citizens generally.

Joan MacPhail was a week end visitor from Oban, the guest of Yvonne LeBlanc.

Jack Thibeau and the Boudreau brothers (Alfred and Austin) were Sunday vistors from their lumber camps in Oban to their respective homes in Cannes and Seaview.

When little Roddie Burke went to grandpa Boudreau's sheep fold Sunday, he found the favorite ewe for which he had been stealing "Pilots" oats all winter had supplemented the little flock with twin lambs.

We were sorry to learn of Miss Bourinot's accident. We trust she will soon (not too soon though) be doing her part again with characteristic facility and precision. D.A.S.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

The low angle position of the camera gave this snapshot a sky background.

It Sometimes Helps to Have an Angle

IT'S a widely accepted fact that there are exceptions of every good rule. One such rule is that which says that the normal camera level is the subject's own eye level —and this holds true whether you're picturing an adult, a child, or the puppy. It's a good rule but there are times when you should take exception.

Try a high angle, or a low angle, depending on the situation. You can try the various angles without wasting film if you study your subject in the view finder from a number of points of view. You have a great deal of latitude in this angle business when you are shooting out of doors since there's more space in which to maneuver.

A different angle is also frequently a good solution to a background problem. If you don't like what you see behind your subject when shooting at eye level, look at the subject from a very low angle. Then you'll find the sky fills the view finder and provides a pleasant, neutral background. It also sometimes produces dramatic or unusual effects. The picture illustrating today's column is an excellent example of what can be achieved by shooting from a very low angle. It also has other points to recommend it. For one thing it certainly pictures a little girl engaged in an activity she likes and thus presents a subject whose lack of self-consciousness makes her appear unaware of the camera.

Getting back to the matter of angles, let's consider the opposite extreme. Don't be afraid to make an occasional shot from an unusually high angle, even if you have to mount a chair to do it. This way you may get a picture that's interesting and different, worth while because of its novelty. You can also employ this technique to gain a neutral background such as the grassy lawn in outdoor shots or the rug indoors.

Whether you shoot high or low, it's worth while to try different angles—once in awhile.
