Yarns Spun On The Old Spinning Wheel

By Norman L. MacLeod (The Annex, Otisville, N. Y.)

The North American Newspaper Alliance quoting from Pour Tous, Lausanne, a short time ago, said that a Dutch housepainter fell from an extension ladder and as a result "discovered his gift of a sixth sense -- divination." Having regained his senses he noticed that he knew in detail the intimate life of his doctors, could translate a Chinese text, was able to drive a car at full sped through the thickest fog, answer questions that were about to be asked, and read a sealed letter after having touched the pen that had been used to write it."

There was another housepainter in Germany a few years ago who possibly fell from an extension ladder and thought he had a gift of divination too. He developed such a bump that he wrote a book called Mein Kamp and told the world what he planned to do. By telling the truth he deceived everybody and all said he was crazy. He then proceeded to carry out his plans and gained quite a head start before the rest of the world woke up. His sixth sense of divination, being demonology, so obsessed him that he ruthlessly dealt with all who would not willingly become subversant to him. He was finally bumped off and has not been heard of since.

I have never discovered that I acquired a sixth sense from any of the innumerable bumps that I received along life's highway. I have seen stars as a result on most occasions, but I was never transported to the stratosphere above to get an inkling of some of the things that can be seen through a telescope. It may be that in order to develop one of those magical bumps a direct hit must be made.

During the past four years I have seen a considerable number of doctors but know nothing about the intimate life of any of them, either through divination or rumor. Having no desire to know I give the gossip mill a wide berth.

If I never could read my laundry ticket I certainly never could translate a Chinese text. I would simply pick up my bundle, ask "How much Wong?" He would count on the old abacus and say, "Slixty Sients" and there was no translating necessary.

Whether as a result of bumps developed from falls or not, there are a lot of peaple who open up all the throttles and at full speed plunge through fog and over every hazard only to find out that they are not only devoid of a sixth sense but of all the others. Sad to say we constantly hear and read of the havoc they have wrought over week-ends and holidays.

There is a breed and you will find one of them in practically every group who can come up with an answer to any question before it is propounded. It does not have to be a question--it may be something of real importance that someone is about to relate Grasping the opening statement one of those pests will steal the show and if not squelched will travel from Dan to Beersheba as they bring in everything that has ever happened to them and their relatives. As a result something worth listening to has often gone unsaid.

I never met any of those boys with the magnetic power in their finger-tips that would reveal the contents of a sealed letter by merely touching the pen by which it was written. I have seen fakers at freak shows answer questions written on slips of paper by members of the audience, while they (the fakers) were blindfolded. I always regarded it as a good trick but never took the trouble of finding out if the pencil was given to the faker to touch.

Avoid falling off ladders if possible, and be content with the senses you now have or you may have them all knocked out.

The following item appeared in the N. Y. Times a short time ago which may be interesting if not of news value to Record readers:

Extension Lakes

"Bras d'Or Lakes which cover the heart of Cape Breton Island in Nova Scotia with their "arms of gold" are so extensive that the island has been termed "a lake surrounded by mountains." The big salt lakes are really inlets of the sea, tapping the Atlantic through two narrow northern channels, says the National Geographic Society. In common with the Mediterranean, however, they are almost tideless."

On this, the fourteenth day of a record heat wave, with the thermometer soaring over 90 degrees most days, drifting in a boat or canoe on the old Bras dO'r would be most welcome. The following poem by Harvey MacKenzie pays full tribute to the Bras d'Or and the surrounding country

My Native Land

I care not where I go or what I see
The charms of old Cape Breton stick with me;
Like limpid lakes and silver singing rills,
Or moon-dawn lingering on her ancient hills;
The beacons flaring from her capes at night
Or lamps that shed their soft religious light
From windows where there's joy and peace profound,
Where love and pure contentment still abound.

I care not what I do or where I be There's nothing yet can stir the heart of me
Like prelude of the wind through swaying pines,
When golden light of evening
softly shines
Upon the scenes that knew my early years,
My aspirations, honest hopes and fears;
For I shall miss, no matter where
I roam,
The blue Bras d'Or and my Cape
Breton home.

ST. PETER'S ROYALS WIN URQUHART SHIELD

9 St. Peter's -- Petit de Grat 5

Playing sharp baseball behind the clutch pitching of Ambri "Mickey" White, St. Peter's Royals defeated Petit de Grat Red Caps 9-5. The Royals win also gave them the Earl Urquhart MLA shield of the Richmond County League Championship during the regular schedule.

Starting pitcher for the Red Caps was Louis Sampson who did a creditable job until the 7th inning when a couple of walks and basehits sent him to the showers. Vincent Boudreau relieved him and when the fire was finally put out four St. Peter's runs had crossed the plate. Boudreau held the Royals in check the final two innings coming up ,with a good relief job. "Mickey" White gave up but one hit in the last three innings and in the last of the ninth found Vince Boudreau and Louis Sampson both dangerous hitters to stop any hope of a home team rally.

Fielding star of the game was Royal left fielder Lloyd Pottie who had seven putouts and on at least three occasions robbed batters of what looked like sure base hits.

Peter Boudreau of Petit de Grat also came up with a sparkling performance in the Red Cap outfield and along with Louis Sampson picked up a couple of basehits.

Todd Wambolt veteran player for St. Peter's had two hits and played a sound game after a long layoff.

First baseman Bill MacEwen and shortstop Everett Skinner had three and two hits respectively Ewen Ross had three walks and led all batter in that department and also came up with two timely bunts which were good for hits.

The game played on the Red Caps sharp looking ball park was watched by a large crowd of fans and took only one hour and fifty-five minutes to play.

Umpires were, at the plate Fulbert Boudreau; first base, Walter Fougere and at third, A. Terrio of D'Escousse.

Sport Shorts

Gerry Kennedy playing in perhaps his last game for the Royals before being transferred, turned in a fine job at second base. Art Williamson filled in at third for brother Keats who was sidelined with a back injury.

Petit de Grat really have their playing field in excellent condition, and it shows the working spirit that their ball club has.

League playoffs should starts in another week and on the season's play they are going to be a real battle all the way.

A meeting of League officials will be held this week to draw up playofff schedule for the semi-finals.

Tales, Tidings And Tidbits from Montreal

MACTAVISH IN THE BOSTON STATES OR HELLO HECTOR

It has taken a kink in vacation plans and a quick trip to Boston to get your MacTavish back to the typewriter.

Wheeling into a city which was a vague memory of thirty-eight years ago could be a dubious project. But MacTavish found Hector and this through the goodness of Allan Morrison and his cooperative wife Flora. We regret Allan, that time and tide did not permit us to call.

Who is Hector? He is not a Cape Bretoner, but he approximates that high distinction. He was born in Barre, Vermont, the city of granite and maple syrup. His mother was a MacKinnon from Whycocomagh and his father hailed from near Inverness. And to make sure that he will always be welcome on that beautiful Island he took unto himself a wife who was born in Grand River. Kaye MacLennan who pursued a successful nursing career in Montreal and in Toronto migrated to Boston some four years ago. There she found Hector and he wooed and won her. And to Mr. and Mrs. Hector Matheson we the MacTavish's owe a debt of gratitude. For:

Within an hour after arrival we were shaking hands with Malcolm Ferguson and his wife Isabell (Isabell MacLeod, Framboise;) with Angus MacLeod and his spouse Ann (Ann MacIntchie, Little Narrows); with A. K. MacLeod and his wife (Sophie MacDonald, Mount Auburn, sister of the late Rod MacDonald).

And we talked and it was hot and we didn't mind for the company was good and we were on common ground.

Later we visited the home of Bill MacDougald, who was uprooted from Glace Bay some thirty-years ago and who has but rediscovered Cape Breton these last six years. And his wife Anna was there (MacLennan, Grand River); and Alice Morrison was there Angus's wife, Grand River)

And we talked and it was very hot and we cared not a whit for we were on common ground and the friendship was fine indeed.

And later we sat with Jack MacKenzie (Alex, Cape George) and his wife Anna (Ross, St. Peter's) and his wife (Catherine Ferguson II) and his sister Isabell (Bella to old timers) and it was yet exceedingly hot and we demurred not for we were friends of old and we were on common ground.

And Sunday our friends Hector, Kaye, Malcolm, Isabell, Angus and Ann packed us in and wheeled us to the Cape and Buzzard's Bay, and we met Walter Smith and his wife (Kate Ferguson, Sydney) and we ate clams and lobsters and cold chicken and we dipped our warm bodies in the brine of the Atlantic. And it was sweltering hot and we cared not for it was all fun and friendship and we were on common ground.

And we were glad to talk on the phone to Mrs. Russell (Rena Ross. Roberta) and a fellow Montrealer J. K. (Royal Bank) Ross who flew down with his family. You can't keep a good man down. And Rena's daughter goes to the altar, Saturday, Aug. 2nd. And we're getting old my dears.

And we phoned Archie (Taylor) MacDonald, West Bay bred, and we learned that his wife Annabell and her two sons are visiting her father, John H. Cameron, Grand River.

And we spent an hour with Edwin Bissett, proprietor of the Alston Sign Company, and Cape Breton is in his very bones and he fain would set up shop in Sydney.

And we were told that Don MacInnis is vacationing in New Hampshire (D. D. to old timers); that Annie and Percy Bennett were on a protracted tour of N. S.; that Emma Pringle works near North Station and lives out Jamaica way and that she is unattached; that Sadie Pringle is married to a Glasgow Scot-David Ross; that Duncan Stewart (Oban) lives near Jack MacKenzie; that James Ross (Johnnie Alex) and his wife Catherine I. live comfortably in Concord, N. H., that their daughter is graduating in nursing this Fall and that they are still in love.....

So my friends, as you see MacTavish and his Winsome Woman, although thwarted of the planned trip to our beautiful Island did the next best thing and landed fair in the lap of a transplanted Cape Breton.....

"The woods is full of them."

Bon Jour,

Canada's Industrial Progress Attributed Largely to Howe

Canada's industrial expansion in the past 12 years is "the most impressive development of any nation in the world," and the man who has contributed most to this progress, says a recent Reader's Digest article, is Clarence Decatur Howe, 66 year old Minister of Trade and Commerce and Minister of Defence Production. The Digest article is condensed from Time.

An engineer who made a million before he was 40, Howe entered the Canadian cabinet as a political novice in 1935, when Prime Minister Mackenzie King asked him to be a Liberal candidate in the federal election. Howe refused at first to run, but later was persuaded. After his election he combined his two portfolios---Minister of Railways and Canals and Minister of Marine--into a single Ministry of Transport.

One of Howe's first steps was to put the government into the aviation business, when private capital demurred, by founding Trans-Canada Airlines. Later, in charge of Canada's war production, Howe took over a national industry that was producing a handful of planes and rifles a year and so few ships that only 4000 men worked in all of Canada's shipyards. Under Howe's high-speed expansion, new factories were built to turn out $10 billion worth of war materials. Canadian aircraft production rose to 4000 planes a year; the shipyards took on 122,000 men and built more than 8000 ships. Uranium output was stepped up.

Postwar, Howe sold virtually all government-owned plants to private industry, and a depression predicted by various prophets of doom failed to materialize.

Born in Waltham, Mass., Howe is a member of an old American family whose ancestors include Julia Ward Howe, author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and US naval hero Stephen Decatur. Graduating from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Howe stayed on as instructor, later took a teaching job at Nova Scotia's Dalhousie University in Halifax.

In 1913 the Canadian Board of Grain Commissioners offered Howe the post of chief engineer. Howe accepted, and took out his Canadian citizenship papers. In 1916 he set up his own engineering firm C. D. Howe Co. Ltd., in Port Arthur, Ont. His subsequent activities, the article says, "made him a walking encyclopedia of Canada's businessman production problems and geographic situations," and brought him to the attention of Mackenzie King.

Today, as chief of defense production, Howe has full charge of speeding the fulfillment of Canada's $5 billion defense program.

DO YOU KNOW?

Pharmacists are quite versatile in their contributions to Society. The Eighteenth Century French apothecary—Antoine-Agusten Parmentier--introduced potatoes into France and popularize tfieir use as a food.

The word "Pharmacist" comes from Pharmakon meaning remedy." The "ist" means pertaining to. Hence a pharmacist is one whose work pertains to remedies.

Millions of prescriptions are compounded each year with scarcely an error. This exceptional degree of accuracy is the result of the specialized training the pharmacist receives.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Any boy or girl who goes to camp will find many wonderful opportunities to make snapshots that'll make his gang at home green with envy.

Campers and Cameras

FOR the boy or girl at your house who's going to camp this summer, a camera ought to be on the regular list of things to take along.

Many camps have photographic programs and the youngster will be able to participate in them much more extensively if he has his own camera. But completely aside from the educational point, the youngster can come home with a snapshot record of his camp life that he'll treasure for many years. You'll like it, too. Parents are noted for their curiosity about what goes on at camp, and he'll be delighted to have his pictures to show you the high points of his stay.

Camp staff members and counselors will be delighted to encourage his picture-taking ventures, I'm sure. He can make shots of his friends, the place he sleeps, the place he eats, and the various sports activities as well as more general shots of the camp itself. While the emphasis at camp is always on the out-of-doors, there has to be quite a few indoor activities. Some of these will undoubtedly be good subject material for a picture record, so it is a good idea to send a flash attachment and a supply of flash lamps along with the camera. Practically all of the modern simple cameras are designed so that they can be easily used with flash. In fact, the same press of the button that takes the picture flashes the lamp at just the right minute.

There's now available an interesting little booklet that the camper will also find useful. I received a review copy just the other day. The title of the booklet is "Picture Taking in Camp" and it costs just a quarter. You can buy it from photographic dealers.

Children Present Fountain to U.N.

Funds contributed by school children throughout the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands paid for this beautiful fountain in the plaza in front of the United Nations Secretariat Building. The highlight of the presentation made on June 23 was the unveiling of a plaque which notes that the gift was made as a gesture of friendship to children over the world and as a reminder of hope for peace through the United Nations.

Sporting Mountain Echoes

MRS. BARBARA McLEOD
(Barb Nicholson)

When the Post-Record of July 3rd reached us, it was with deep regret we noted the obituary of our esteemed old friend, Mrs. Barbara McLeod of Kempt Road.

Upwards of two score years ago we boarded in the McLeod home for two successive school terms and down through all the decades that have intervened had occasion to cherish grateful memories of her kindly and unselfish ministrations.

Perhaps in that period of our imprudence we didn't duly appreciate it all but we lived to learn in life's rough school how rarely assembled and combined are the aggregation of attributes personified in that chaste and wholesouled woman.

Her well-known husband, Hugh A. McLeod, a man of most pleasing personality and numbered among the outstanding intellects of Richmond County predeceased her some nine years ago, and to the worthy family of worthy parentage we extend the sympathetic sentiments of their fond mother's native Sporting Mountain in the hour of bereavement.

Forbes McDonald, R. N. Port Hawkesbury, who is home on a furlough from south of the border, motored his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McDonald, his sister Joy McDonald R. N., and a guest, Richard White to "The Shore" and thence over Pringle Mountain to Sporting Mountain, Sunday afternoon.

They made friendly calls at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Campbell, The Points; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. H. McDonald, Oban; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ross, Seaview; and finally our house by the side of the road.

Roy J. Morrison of Halifax was home for the week-end and returned to the Metropolis, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Stockley (Agnes Cooke) and little son Brian, are visitors from Ingonish guests of Mr. Stockley's sister, Mrs. Lloyd McRae.

Ceretha McLennan and Alice Flynn were Sunday motor visitors to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gordon (Kaye McDonald) Coxheath.

Little Jas. Gordon accompanied them to join his newly arrived brother, Glenn Aldon.

Mrs. Anthony Burke, her daughter Clare and Yvonne LeBlanc were recent visitors to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McNeil, Barra Head.

While here Mrs. Burke had occasion to see her two uncles, Maurice Boudreau, who lives with his daughter and son-in-law and Elias Boudreau who is down on a visit from St. Catherines, Ont.

John McLeod Jr., North Sydney joined the other members of the family on the D. A. Morrison farm during the weeke.nd.

It was interesting to enjoy a reminiscent chat with Thomas Morrison when he was a motor visitor from Ance de Loup, Thursday evening.

Through the courtesy of James Morrison, Lynn, Mass., his sister Mrs. A. J. Campbell, The Points Mrs. Wm. Ritchie, Sydney, and his niece Mrs. Stanley Parker enjoyed a recent motor tour of North Cape Breton, and whilst in Baddeck put up at the Chesnut Inn.

The party supplemented by Mrs. Parker's twin sons Norman and Lloyd were transient motor visitors to Seaview Friday morning enroute to Sydney.

With all due deference to the others, we were especially glad to see our old pupil Mrs. Ritchie (Sadie Morrison).

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Kyte, Charlie McKenzie, John Jackson, Arthur Morrison, George W. Grant and Alex Grant comprised two cheerful motor parties from down St. Peter's way Friday evening.

They made calls at J. H. Ross's, our bachelor retreat and the Smith home.

The skilled musician Charlie McKenzie favored each visit with some choice bagpipe selections.

In a recent Record "Gilbert" had an interesting item concerning Mrs. Thompson's courageous flight from Los Angeles, California to the Sydney airport and thence by motor to the old Morrison homestead at Dundee.

Having regard to the many changes through all the years that have intervened since she took leave of her native heath, it was nice that the old home stood steadfast still, with a sister to receive her and a remnant of her youthful associates round and about to greet her.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURING SUMMER SPORTS

It is very simple to stop motion in a picture if you snap the shutter when your subject reaches the peak of action.

SUMMER sports, regardless of where you are or where you go, always make exciting snapshot subjects. People are out playing golf, tennis, badminton. They ride horseback, swim, go fishing, and do many other things, all of which make good picture subjects.

Stopping the action of summer sports is relatively simple. It's a good idea to always stand back a little way from the action—say twelve or fifteen feet, more in some cases—so that you'll be able to get and keep fast moving subjects in focus. Then too you'll have to use a somewhat higher shutter speed than normal. Where for ordinary snapshots you might set your shutter for 1/25th or 1/50th second at f/11, for action shots you'll have to increase those speeds to 1/100th or 1/200th second and set your lens aperture at f/8.

If you'll just try to catch your subject at the peak of the action, you'll make it easier for yourself to produce summer sport pictures which have the force and drama desired in every sports shot.

Catching the subject at the peak of action is really a trick practiced by many professional photographers—and you'll benefit by following their method. It simply means snapping your shutter at the moment when the action is at its best. Technically, you might say that action reaches a peak whenever it has progressed as far as it is going in one direction, and then pauses for a bare instant before the return begins.

In diving, that moment would come just as the diver reaches the top of his leap, as shown in our illustration. If you snap your pictures at moments like this you'll be able to record what appears to be very fast action at average shutter speeds.

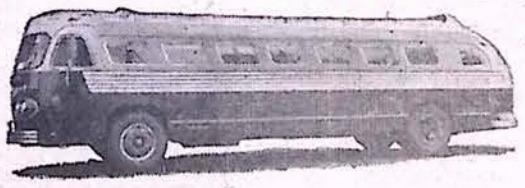

That comes under the heading of good photographic technique, just as does teaching yourself to anticipate pictures. Photographically speaking, anticipation is merely a matter of having everything ready in advance—so that at the proper moment all you need do is point the camera and release the shutter.

You should, for one thing, focus your camera on the spot where the action is to take place. If you don't do that in advance you won't have time later on. Next, you should have the lens aperture and the shutter speed properly adjusted. Finally, choose your angle of view carefully so that there will be nothing whatsoever to prevent you from getting fine results every time you make an exposure.

Undoubtedly some of your friends or relatives will know the people appearing in your sports pictures, so be sure to have extra prints made to send to them in your letters.
