Parliament and its Tasks

By R. J. DEACHMAN

The more I think of it the more astounding it becomes. We live in a democracy, government by the people for the people, and yet the men who rule over us are largely a product of hazard and chance. It takes about seven years to train a lawyer, six years or more for a doctor, five or six for a plumber or a chartered accountant but the members of parliament are chosen by chance or accident from the widest possible range of occupations. They lack experience. They know little of the tasks which confront them. The marvel is that we ssucceed in getting away with it and we do--at least after a fashion!

What happens whn the newly-elected members arrive at the House of Commons? They hope to shine in the field of politics. There are times when genius finds a way out to this group we give little and expect much. What do we do for the members when they are electedé Nothing! They are simply thrown into the House of Commons, left to the mercy of the Goddess of Luck. The party owes everything to the active membes --they should have more help.

Consider the new member. The chances are that he was not born to the job, few are. The task is new to him. He has much to learn. He must now confront men of wide experience. He is not, as a general rule, a student of political affairs. Everything is new to him. He is faced with many problems, he moves in a maze. What is being done to start him on the right road?

The work of parliament does not consist solely of speeches, delivered in the House. These are often dried bones of the past political efforts. The work of the committees is often more important than the work in the Chamber. It takes real effort to bring out the facts, to examine an issue as it ought to be examined. The new member will want to be on the committee which deals with the subjects in which he is particularly intreested. The methods followed in committee are often quite free and informal. They constitute a first class training ground for the new members. The qualities needed are the possession of a broad intelligence, a questing mind. Naturally enough, for the committees, members are chosen from different sides, there will be a wide divergence of opinion. Some members will have a certain amount of mis-information. The informed members the ones who know the field are invaluable. There is abundant mateiral on which the new member can feed. There will be those who have the capacity to use it. The committee moves forward gradually by the synthesis of divegent opinions. Above all the new member must retain an open mind. The capacity to anaylse the ability to form reasonable conclusions based on facts is of vital importance for any. M.P. When this is natural the member speaks with assurance and conviction.

The House of Commons is critical but tolerant. It has a measure of sympathy for the new member. When the subject turns to something with which he is familiar he should enter the discussion state his own point of view and sit down. The curse of the House of Commons and of Parliamentary Committees is the tendency of some members to keep on speaking when they have nothing to say.

Something might very well be done in the first session after an election to aid the new members in their search for facts. There is the Bureau of Statistics, the basic source of facts. The library of the House of Commons is also an amazing source of information. There are experts in government departments who are always willing to help new members of the House, drawing, of course, their wisdom from past experiences. Members should attend the party caucus and make some effort to speak upon questions which interest them. It is even helpful to the new member to ask questions if, for no other reason than to get acquainted with the sound of his own voice when heard at a public meeting.

Every effort of this kind when strictly party questions are under discussion will, of course, be confined to the separate parties but there should be in the early weeks of a new parliament, an opportunity to discuss in camera, the policies of the various parties including that of the government party. It is only in this way that the policies of the different parties can be examined, explained, bravely defended or seriously attacked. It is essential also that each individual member should study and know intimately the policies of the opposing parties as well as the policies of his own The more he knows on this subject the stronger will be his position in either attack or defence.

The young member ought to be able to answer off-hand every criticism against the party to which he belongs. If he knows the weaknesses of the opposing party he will be better able to attack and remember—the attack is almost always the best defence.

We have reached a stage in our political life when among the voters there is a growing indifference to political issues. They should be more freely discusssd, more carefully examined. I do not fear particularly the triumph of one party or the other but I do fear the indifference of the electorate—the attitude which smugly says: "A curse on both your Houses, I am not interested in politics".

DUNDEE DEW DROPS

A party of four hunters, led by Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Webber, South Bar, occupied the log cabin across the way, Monday through Wednesday. Though unsuccessful in their search of deer, they were content to take home with them a number of blue-winged ducks and some partridge. The Webbers have been annual guests to Dundee, for the past few years.

Currie and Charlie Geldard, Arnold Kin[illegible] and William Taylor, all of Truro, spent a few days in this vicinity. While here, they visited at the homes of D. D. MacRae and Alex H. MacKay, St. George's Channel.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Camps, of Cameloops, B. C., were recent motor visitors to St. George's Channel, visiting at the respective homes of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. MacRae and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison. Mrs. Camps is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Allan L. MacRae, formerly of St. George's Channel. She and her husband operate tourist resorts in Alberta and B. C. They will visit friends in Worcester, Mass., before returning to their home.

Mrs. Robert Morrison accompanied them to Mulgrave on Monday, 27th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Auld and little son Donnie, also Kenneth Duff and Charles Hadley, Mulgrave, spent the afternoon and evening here on Monday.

Lawrence MacDougall, of the Steel plant, Sydney, spent the weekend here returning on Sunday eve.

An epidemic of colds is prevalent in the surrounding communities. Due to a sudden and extreme change in temperature.

A successful dance was held at St. George's Channel school house on Saturday evening, from 8 p.m. to 12. Music by Amos Thibeau.

We are sorry to learn that Ms. J. H. MacIntosh, Dundee, has been in ill health, for the last few days, and sincerely hope for her speedy recovery.

Mrs. Louis V. Goldie, ace home baker of Gagetown, N.B., is an enthusiastic user of Fleischmann's Yeast.

Scores with Home Baking at 1951 Queen's County Fair

Queen's County, N.B., boasts some of the top Maritime home bakers, and competition at the Gagetown fair is mighty keen. So when Mrs. Louis Goldie's bread scores a first prize for the second year running, it's evident she's well up on the finer points of bread-making. Speaking of her success, Mrs. Goldie emphasizes that your first step is to choose the right ingredients—particularly yeast. "Your yeast must have plenty of pep—and that's why I recommend Fleischmann's Yeast," says Mrs. Goldie. "With Fleischmann's my doughs always rise light and my finished baking is tender and digestible."

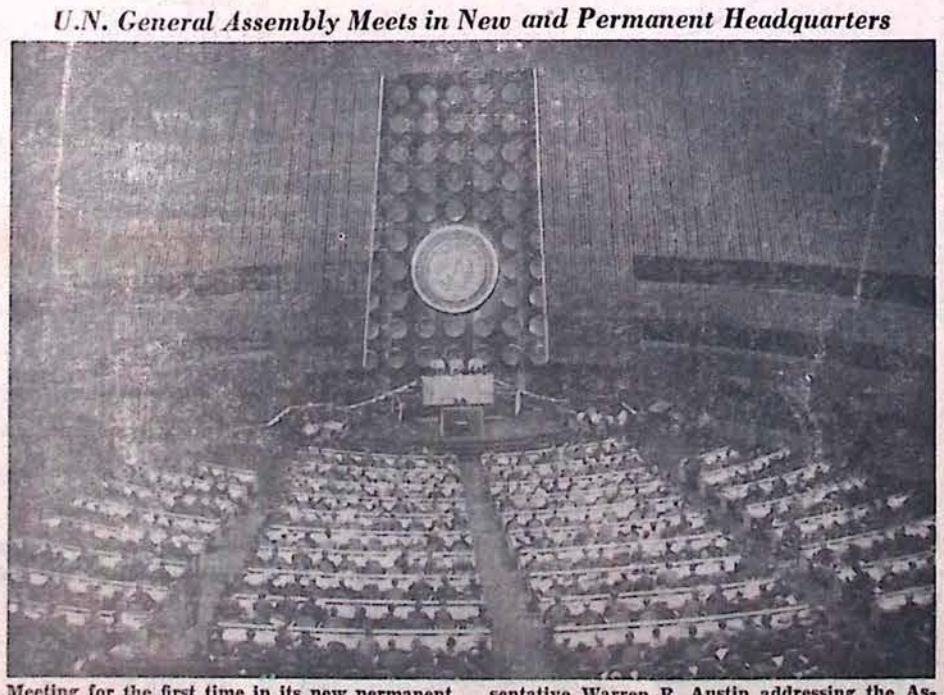

Yes, it's results that have made Fleischmann's Yeast the choice of prize-winning cooks —and the favorite of 3 out of 4 Canadian women.

U.N. General Assembly Meets in New and Permanent Headquarters

Meeting for the first time in its new permanent home, the United Nations General Assembly opened its seventh session on 14 October, faced by the heaviest agenda in its history. This view of the first meeting shows United States Representative Warren R. Austin addressing the Assembly. The gold-piped wall behind the speaker's podium with its sixty discs which will contain the coats-of-arms of Member Nations is an aesthetic as well as an acoustical achievement.

A Film Council Is Organized In The County of Richmond

An interesting meeting was held at the Provincial Building, St. Peter's, Richmond County, to organise a Film Council. The meeting was presided by Inspector R. J. Chiasson who spoke briefly on the work that had already been done in the county leading up to this meeting and that the group present this evening, October 16th, was representative of the different organizations at work in the county. Inspector Chiasson introduced Mr. C. Ellis of the National Film Board. Mr. Ellis explained that the National Film Board is a body set up by the Federal Government to oversee the use of films and visual aids, and their particular objective is to interpret Canada through the use of visual aids. It has been the Board's policy to set up a film service based on volunteer organizations. The Board is prepared to help this project to this extent: Set up depot of films at a convenient point which would be exchanged periodically, probably once a month or once every two months. The Board would also supply projectors for a period of six months or longer if the Council was making progress. Projectionists would also be trained to operate different types of projectors, how to care for them, etc., in a series of three evening courses and members would be supplied with the latest catalogues of films. The films of the National Film Board are informational and educational. The functions of the Council are:

1. To set up a central library which supplies films.

2. Supply training courses for projectionists providing the communities with a service that is available at all times. The Council would be a key body to provide films for different organizations to supplement a program or to fill a void on a program in a hurry. It was pointed out that setting up such a council would in no way interfere with already established circuit of films in the county. Full use can still be made of the Central Film library in Halifax.

Mr. Ellis pointed out that this council could be of great help to the schools. They are designed special programs for High Schools, and special block films for High Schools could be circulated through the country by means of the council. Thus a circuit could be established to provide schools on certain days of the month with films of educational value. Our rural children do not move, as a rule, very far from their home environment and they have a limited background of experience. High School teachers have the difficult task of building up and developing interest in their pupils on topics far removed from the natural field of experience of pupils. Through the use of films, their horizons could become acquainted with the world at large. Visual education is not meant to supplant other educational means but rather to supplement and fortify other class-room work. It simply means bringing another one of the senses to help the ear.

On discussion, it was found that there were already a number of projectors in the ounty and that propjectors would not be an objection to make the council a success. The different organizations all over the county will be invited to attend another meeting to be held in the County Hall, St. Peter's, on November 6th, to finalize plans. Mr. Frank Murphy of the Visual Education Division, Department of Education is expected to attend this meeting. We hope that there will be a good represent ation from all over the county. It is expected that the different organizations and schools will be asked to pay a very moderate fee to join the council. Such money will be used to operate the council, shipping of films, etc.

This is the second Council of its kind to be set on a County basis, the other one being in Ontario. Usually, the Film Councils are set up on a town or city basis. We feel that this Council if supported by the schools and organizations throughout the county will mark another step in the educational development in our country. May it be that means of stimulating an interest in cultural and educational matters in our school and adult population. We note that Antigonish town has recently organized such a Council. The following slate of officers was brought in by the Nominating Committee:

President, R. J. Chiasson; Vice-President, Mrs. Harry Campbell, Johnstown; Secretary - Treasurer and Librarian, Miss Emmeline MacRae of the Agricultural Office, St. Peter's.

Sporting Mountain Echoes

Rev. J. M. McLeod, of St. Peter's United Church held a cottage meeting a the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Goswell, Sunday evening.

We are indebted to our fraternal friend, D. A. McLeod, of Halifax for a nicely compiled booklet commemorating in prose and poetry the institution of Heather Lodge A. F. and A. M. at Framboise, N. S., Sept. 25th, 1952.

It pertains to the story and tradition of the good and hospitable people down there who merit to the full the eloquent tributes of Dr. W. W. Patton and others who contributed to the contents of the interesting little volume.

R. J. Chiasson M. A., was an official visitor to the Sporting Mountain Schools Wednesday.

Mrs. A. Burke and Mrs. H. LeBlanc of Cannes were on the Sporting Mountain hunting grounds Wednesday afternoon, but not in pursuit of big game.

They were content with partridges, and we were glad to note they were not disappointed.

Miss McPherson's dance in the interests of Seaview school, Wednesday night was profusely patronized and a pronounced success.

What with the fine weather prevailing and the inimitable music of the veteran Amos Thibeau assisted by Arthur Fougere, It was (as the boys decades gone by were wont to say) "just like a social in Seaview."

We were glad for a social call from Archy Morrison and his friend Reginald Ryan of Halifax when in the vicinity during the week.

They took in the dance Wednesday night and returned to the metropolis Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. McKinnon, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Dunn of Halifax comprised a recent motor party to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Goswell.

D. LeVallee, dealer in groceries and Watkin's products called upon his customers in Seaview, Tuesday.

Foreman Fougere, Bert MacDougall, Alfred Boudreau, Don J. McDonald, and John D. Ross were among the employees of Mindamar Mine at Stirling who motored up to the dance Wednesday night.

We were glad to have Dannie Sutherland of Chappell's Ltd. and Gerald Sullivan of Halifax as our guests for a couple of days during the week.

They were in pursuit of the fat fallow deer and were favored with fair luck.
