From Misery Point To Hearts Desire

JOHN FISHER recalls some colorful place-names of Newfoundland in this report broadcast in Westinghosue Presents Show.

They are proud of their island --these Newfoundlanders. It is a fierce, burning fresh pride, which lives deep in the hearts of these islanders who have been matching wits with the Atlantic for more than three centuries. When they placed their worth upon the Confederation table they enriched Canada enormously. They enlarged the house. They gave us a new doorstep to Europe. They brought their fabulous wealth from forest, earth and ocean. And, they added to Canada's table a priceless sense of humor--a softness and hospitality which is refreshing to those privileged to know her.

Too many Canadians think of Newfoundland as a hard, rocky, cold land wrapped in fog and living on codfish. The truth is that Newfoundland is one of the most genteel and friendly places on earth. Even if she were bent and old, she would still be rich in her sense of humour--her wit and her love of the poetic touch. They are realist on this island-and nowhere is the combination of wit, poetry and reality displayed so vividly as in its place names.

Unlike many of the colonial possessions in the Western Hemisphere, the Newfoundlanders did not slavishly copy the place names of the motherlands--as we have done in Canada. They used their names to tell the story of their island--to tell the disappointments, the hard ships, the triumphs and the jokes. The very name of struggle with the sea is heard in these place names:Breakhead Point, Misery Point, Empty Basket, Famish Cove, Gripe Point Bad Bay, Bare Need, Famish Gut, Mistaken Cove, Harbor by God, and even Damnable Bay. Some Newfoundlanders claim that Damnable Bay is a corruption of a shipping incident. A Newfoundland captain coming along the deck tripped over the cook's bell rope; the air was blue with strong words, but he did say "damn the bell" and in time is became Damnable Bay". When a clergyman thought this a little too strong, the name was changed to St. Chad's.

Oh, in Newfoundland they have names which make our main land ones seem stilted and pale. listen to these cheerful titles, expressing hope and thanksgiving: Happy Adventure, Fortune, Safe Harbor, Hearts Content, Hearts Desire, Cupids, Angels Cove, Honey Pot Harbor, Little Heart Ease and two delightful ones called Big and Little Paradise. These last two have nothing to do with beauty--they come out of Newfoundland humor. Big and Little Paradise meant coves that were hard to find--difficult to sail into, where as Hell's Mouth meant a much easier passage.

On and on they go. Some of them refer to animals, such as Fox Trap, Cat Gut, Double Mare, Lions Den, Whale's Gulch, Hare's Ears Point, Fox Roost, Dog Pen Mouse, Calves Nose, Hogs Nose, Cock and Hare Cove, and even Horse Chops. What humor and history behind these names!

On some parts of their long and cragy coastline, with its lovely contrasts of ocean gray and Irish green on the hills, they name their islands in pairs: Fair and False Islands, Lord and Lady, Bull Cow and Calf, Bread and Cheese, Girl and False Girl, and even, Our Ladies Babies.

Oh yes, they have a Snakes Bight, Turks Gut, Doting Cove, Leg Pond, Noggin Cove, Jerry's Nose, Nick's Nose Cove, Spy Hole, Iron Skull, Joe Batt's Arm, Hell Hole and God Almighty Cove. Can't you imagine some sailor naming that one? They even have a Sideboard Harbor and a place called Run By Guess. Of course you have heard about Blow Me Down, Come by Chance, Seldom Come By and Herring Neck. There is another called Great Rattling Brook and even one called Barking Kettle, Long Tickle, Ice Tickle and Squid Tickle.

The Newfoundlander with his poetic touch often reverses names He wouldn't call it Grace Harbor; it is much nicer to call it Harbor Grace. Bulls Bay sounds softer when called Bay Bulls--Harbor Deep and so on.

To the postmaster, perhaps these names are sticklers, but to Newfoundlanders they are very dear because they tell the story of conquest, toil, hope, thanksgiving and humor. In her place names, poetic, suggestive, realistic, humorous, are locked the adventures of pirates--the wars of the Spanish, Portuguese, French and British who knew her rich waters. In her names is the courage of her people and the pride of a newfound land across the seas. They reflect her independence of spirit--they tell the story of her people. No wonder they proudly sing these words: "God guard thee; God guard thee Newfoundland. We love thee, we love thee--smiling land."

For prize-winning baking, Mrs. Alvin Mundie, Moores Mills, N.B., uses Fleischmann's Yeast.

St. Stephen Fair Winner tells of Baking Success

Up and down the rolling farm country around Moores Mills, N.B., the home baking exhibit at the country fair at St. Stephen is an event of much interest each year. Veteran home bakers do their stuff and produce some eye-popping exhibits for the judges. Among these, Mrs. Alvin Mundie is a winner of long experience. "I always use Fleischmann's Yeast," says Mrs. Mundie, "because it gives me faster rising and lighter dough. And I know that Fleischmann's will give me the same results in every batch because its strength is uniform."

Well put! It's the dependable fast action of Fleischmann's Yeast that has made it the favorite in the Maritimes for four generations.

Sporting Mountain Echoes

ANGUS MacKENZIE

Old friends and associates were sorry to learn of the recent passing of Angus MacKenzie at his home in Boston, Mass.

A native son of Sporting Mountain, he was one of a family of ten nurtured on the farm now owned and occupied by Lawrence Burke at Oban.

Mrs. John N. Morrison, Seaview Mrs. Mary Bell Campbell. The Marshes, West Bay and Robert MacKenzie, St. Peters survive of that family circle and have the sympathy of the many who had occasion to have known them all, either personally or by reputation.

Date of writing is Janauary 10th but good motoring still prevails on the Sporting Mountain highways.

Our tri-weekly mail service functions with facility and dispatch, and for the first time in a series of years, John N. Morrison was able to motor from his own garage to the yearly meetings of the Board of Assessment Appeal in the Shire Town and St. Peters.

During the week,Leonel LeBlanc and Donald McInnis made transfers for some of our local lumbermen, including Hugh Angus McDonald and the McRae brothers Willie A. and Allan.

We welcome back our teachers Eunice McPherson and Frances Murphy looking well and fit after pleasant vacations at their respective home in Sydney and Barra Head.

"A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump" and our sluggish community life is always inevitably enlivened by the social leaven of these prepossessing personalities.

James Fougere and Alfred Boudreau were motor visitors to the Boudreau home Thursday evening. Geo. W. Grant made neighbourly calls in Seaview, Thursday evening and we were glad to learn that his brother Dan T., who was recently critically ill at The Strait is now making a good recovery.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place in the Immaculate Conception Church on Monday, January 12th when Rev. Fr. Doucett united in marriage Verina Roger, Port Royal, and Ernest Dorey of West Arichat.
