Sporting Mountain Echoes

ELLIOTT MACLEOD

Citizens of this community were startled and saddened Wednesday morning to learn that their unoffensive neighbor, Elliott MacLeod had met tragic death the previous evening.

The fatal incident occurred when he was leading home a horse which stumbled and fell across his body crushing out his life.

The funeral took place Friday forenoon and was largely attended.

Burial was in the Sporting Mountain Cemetery at Oban, Rev. J. P. Matheson, of St. Peter's United Church officiating at the home, and in graveyard committal.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Sutherland (Kaye McNeil) and youthful daughters, Wilma Christena Andrea, and Margaret comprised a motor party from Sydney River Saturday evening.

It was pleasing to see the attractive family all together; pleasing to have them grace our little domicile for awhile; and particularly pleasing to have the fagots crack and the clocks dull tick substituted by the prattle of that lovely and prepossessing feminine quartet.

Lucille Marsell, of Little Anse, was a week end guest at the Boudreau home in Seaview.

John Boudreau, of P. E. I., is a visitor to relatives and friends in Seaview, Cannes and Barra Head.

Alex McPhee, skilled general mechanic of Cannes has the job of making Charles Nicholson's new home at Ance DeLoup ready for occupancy.

John N. Morrison piloted Rev. J. P. Matheson to our little domicile Wednesday evening.

It was surely a pleasure to make the acquaintance of the new minister of St. Peter's United Church with whom we were most favorably impressed.

Our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis and family of the Steel City gladdened us again Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. H. McDonald, of Oban contacted us the same evening when enroute from the McLeod home.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McRae and family were on their way from the Strait to the McLeod home on Wednesday evening, little Margaret insisted they must not bypass her old friend.

"We were right glad to see Peggy."

Fire Prevention Week

By proclamation the Governor General of Canada will decree that the week of October 9-15 be observed as Fire Prevention Week across the Nation.

This week is always the calendar week including October 9, the anniversary of the great Chicago fire of 1871. Such a disaster serves to underline the necessity of bringing before the public a much needed awareness of Fire Prevention.

Fire Prevention Week should not be regarded just as a seven-day period for projecting fire prevention programs, displaying posters all over the community, school drills and civic group meetings. Rather, it should be regarded as the week of initiation of a year-round activity promoted to make our country a safer place in which to live.

Fire Prevention Week is not a new institution. It has, over a period of years, developed increasing affairs of every progressive community in Canada and the United States. It signifies the commencement of a campaign which should be carefully planned so as to enlist the cooperation of every citizen and of every organization in the community for a concerted effort to prevent, as far as possible, loss of life and property as a result of fires.

Response to Fire Prevention Week should be spontaneous and enthusiastic. All citizens sincere in their desire to see the country's economy make progress have a stake in Fire Prevention Week. They realize full well that property destroyed by fire is irrevocably lost and the community and the nation suffer as the consequence of such loss. Economic disaster to a community often follows on the heels of a large fire.

Let us look at the latest available annual fire loss record in our country. The total property loss by fires was $84,270,896.00, representing a loss per person of 5.70 These losses represent an increase of about 4,000,000.00 over the previous year when the total lass was 80,902,205.00 with a loss per person of 5.61. The record shows 67,519 fires an increase of 3,416 over the previous year. The loss of life by fire was 477, as compared to 562 in the previous year.

It is indeed tragic to note the record shows that more than half of all the fires in Canada occur in homes. This fact alone should emphasize beond any doubt the need for fire prevention.

This hdavy toll of destruction of life and property by fire must not continue. A strong and vigorous campaign should be launched during Fire Prevention Week and followed up without restraint throughout the year.

LAUDS WEEKLY PRESS

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, who this week paid tribute to the Weekly Press of Canada in recognition of National Newspaper Week:

"I am pleased to have this opportunity to pay a tribute to our Canadian newspapers on the occasion of "National Newspaper Week."

The successful functioning of our democratic system depends in large measure to the extent to which Canadian citizens are aware of the issues with which their elected representatives at all levels of government are faced Those who have the responsibility of presenting those issues to their readers are playing an essential part in the democratic process for a free, responsible press helps to create a well-informed public opinion.

"I should like to mention in particular the important role of the weekly press of this country which serves one-third of Canada's population. In many areas remote from our cities the weeklies constitute the principal source of news for their readers who depend greatly on them to keep informed of public affairs.

"I feel confidant that the vast majority of Canadians would wish to join with me in extending sincere appreciation to our newspapers in Canada for providing us with local, national and international news and in wishing them continued success in their important work.
