Sporting Mountain Echoes

Open season is now over and thus the wily deer can now frequent our frontiers with impunity

Mrs. Willie McKay (Jessie McDonald) of The Points recently favored us with a generous selection of perfectly prepared products of the garden and orchard which reached us through the courtesy of her sister, Mrs. Alice Flynn.

We appreciate Mrs. McKay's kindly thoughtfulness and congratulate her on the ambition and ability to stock the family larder with such a choice variety.

Alice Flynn, Donald McDonald and Robert Ross Jr., comprised a motor trio from Oban, Sunday evening and were desirable visitors at the Boudreau home, and our little domicile by the roadside.

Jessie McDonald Jr., was a week-end visitor from Oban the guest of Florence LeBlanc.

Angus Morrison of Grand River was a business motor visitor to Sporting Mountain Wednesday.

The spacious Morrison home which Leonel LeBlanc lately acquired was the scene of a very successful card play for mutton and fowl Wednesday night.

We were glad that Harold McDonald the proficient and popular barber down at St. Peters had occasion to drop in on the way for thus did we get tidings of our old neighbour Jacob Isaackson whom he visited whilst motoring through the Cole Harbour district recently.

Mr. McDonald was very favorably impressed with conditions prevailing in the institution.

He said Mr. Isaackson was looking well and apparently well cared for.

George W. Grant walked to Oban Sunday and was a welcome guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A.W.H. McDonald.

Herbert McKinnon did a sensible thing the other day when he deposited several hundred dollars in the Royal Bank in anticipation of the inevitable.

Charles Kyte and Harold McDonald were outstanding winners in the big card game at LeBlanc's.

A.W.H. McDonald accompanied Teudy Martin when he motored Margaret McDonald back to The Strait where she will reside during the winter months with her brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McDonald.

We trust Miss McDonald's health will continue to improve and that we are destined to see her again in Seaview.

Fish Stick Popularity Increasing

OTTAWA — Canada's fish stick industry, main foreign supplier of raw material for United States factories, is more than doubling output of its own finished product this year.

The fish stick, which first appeared in the New England states late in 1952 and won admirers at a phenomenal rate, is being hailed as the biggest development to hit the fishing industry in 200 years. Since the start Canada has been the leading foreign source for the US of the frozen fish blocks and slabs from which the sticks are cut.

D. H. Cheney, Canadian consul and trade commissioner in Boston sees the demand continuing Writing in "Foreign Trade" fortnightly publication of the trade department, he reports that U.S. fish stick production will reach more than 70,000,000 pounds that year.

Last year, when U.S. production was 50,160,000 pounds, Canadian fishermen and processors supplied American factories with 86,000,000 pounds of frozen fillets. In the first six months of this year Canada shipped 44,100,000 pounds of fillets to American producers.

Meanwhile, Canada's eight fish stick factories—four in the Maritimes and one each in Newfoundland, Ontario, Manitoba and B.C. —were more than doubling their production. By the end of September Canadian fish stick output had reached 3,800,000 pounds compared to 1,600,000 in the whole of 1954, the bureau of statistics reports.

This production must be sold largely on the home market, for Canadian manufacturers, writes Mr. Cheney, "are prevented from shipping raw and precooked fish sticks to the American market by a prohibitive U.S. tariff of 20 per cent and 30 per cent, respectively

Mr. Cheney concludes:

"The industry has good reason to feel optimistic about the future it will continue its efforts to tap consumers markets farther from producing centres, with a good chance of success. In addition this new product has given a healthy stimulus to the whole precooked frozen food industry, including other types of seafood.

REINDEER ROUNDUP

Canada's most colorful roundup gets underway this week, but cowboys in blue jeans and ten gallon hats won't have any part in it. Their place will be taken by about 25 Eskimos on skis, dressed in caribou skin clothing, who will be driving nearly 6500 reindeer to corrals on the reindeer range in the Aklavik area of the Northwest Territories. During roundup 500 mature reindeer steers and surplus females will be selected for slaughter. The meat, nearly 70,0000 pounds of it, will be sold in the area.

The animals are in five separate herds, which roam over a 16-700 square mile area east of the Mackenzie Delta that has been set aside as a reindeer range. Resident trappers are allowed on the range, but the killing of reindeer is forbidden to all but the herders and their families. One of the herds is government owned and managed; three others are under native management and one is owned outright by the Eskimos. Each of the herds numbers more than 1000 animals

During the winter roundup animals from the government herd and one of the native herds are driven directly to the abattoir and the animals are selected for slaughter. Farther away Eskimo herdsmen from the other three herds drive their reindeer to a corral, centrally located on the winter range. After the animals from one herd are selected the remainder of the reindeer in that herd are taken back to their own range, and another herd is driven into the corrals. Later, the animals that will provide meat to feed residens of Aklavik area, are driven 60 miles to the abattoir. One or two herdsmen from each group accompany the animals on this drive.

The number of reindeer being slaughtered this winter is somewhat less than it has been in previous years. During the past year there has been a substantial decrease in the population. Around 7700 animals were counted during 1954, but this year the number dropped to about 6500. A contributing factor in the decline is a mysterious weakness which has become evident in animals in two of the five herds. The weakness, believed to be caused by a dietary deficiency results in bone fractures in the weakened animals. Backbones and legs are most frequently affected. The reproductiveness of the weakened animals is also believed to be seriously impaired. In 1955, the ratio of fawns to females in both the affected herds was lower than in the other three herds. During the summer four tons of mineral supplement were shipped to the reindeer station, in an effort to reduce losses in the herd with the largest number of weakened animals.

In the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, problems of the various reindeer herds are under continuous study. Plans are being made now for an intensive investigation in 1956 of forage and grazing conditions on the reindeer ranges. It is hoped that the survey will reveal the exact cause of the present weakness so that prompt action can be taken to prevent further losses of this kind.

Indirectly, the weakness in the reindeer may have resulted in heavier losses than usual to predators, such as wolves. During the long winter period of darkness, blizzards often wreak considerable havoc in the herds. When animals stray from the main herd it is often impossible to track them, as their footprints are covered in by drifting snow. In the spring and autumn, when there is no snow but quite often heavy fog, tracking strayed reindeer is practically impossible. The possibility that reindeer populations are affected by cycles is also being considered.

The demand for reindeer meat is heavier this winter than it has been in some previous years. Employment opportunities have increased in the Aklavik area during the past year, with the result that there is more purchasing power in the community. The bulk of meat is disposed of through a trading company and mission schools and hospitals; none is exported to southern Canada.

With the exception of the chief herder and his son who are Lapps all other herdsmen are Eskimos. Their animals feed on lichens during the winter, and willows, grasses and all sorts of herbaceous vegetation during the summer. Reindeer like mushrooms, and sometimes even vary their diets with young ptarmigan and ptarmigan eggs. They have also been known to eat fish. Unlike the caribou, they are domesticated. Several herdsmen have reindeer which pull their sleds.

The Queen Goes Modern Switches to Wallpaper

(Reprinted from "The Weekly News" — England)

The Queen has yielded to the modern style for wallpapers instead of painted walls, which have been the rule in the private apartments of Buckingham Palace for nearly 30 years.

Her own business room, boudoir and bedroom are being hung with papers in quiet modern designs against a neutral tinted background.

The "two-paper contrast" decorative scheme finds no favor with the Queen and each of her rooms is hung with only one-design paper.

The private Royal apartments in the north-west block of the Palace, overlooking Green Park, and the nursery suite of the floor above are being completely decorated in soft pastel shades.

Being repapered too, are some of the State rooms on the first floor where guests at official receptions and dinner parties gather. Here the new patterns are the same as those chosen originally by Queen Mary for these rooms 45 years ago — a plain off-white in alternating strips of glossy and mat finish or surface

This design was picked out as an ideal background to set off formal evening dresses.

The Royal paper designs are more exclusive than Paris fashion models. No other paper has been or will be printed with the same patterns as those chosen by the Queen.

FIFTEEN YEARS IN SHOWBIZ! Canada's best known and most popular comedians, Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, have just started their fifteenth season in showbusiness with their new television series on the CBC. It all began while they were at the University of Toronto; from there they moved to "The Army Show" during the war, and started on CBC network in 1945. Soon after that the first "Wayne and Shuster Show" made its debut on radio and, as we've said, is now in full swing on Canadian television.

Honored On Birthday

Rev. A. P. Poirier, pastor of Notre Dame Parish, Arichat celebrated his birthday anniversary recently.

The happy occasion was marked with a concert sponsored by the school children at OLA Convent under the direction of the sisters and teachers.

At the conclusion of the program Father Poirier, in a brief but fitting address, thanked every one for their kindness in remembering him on his birthday anniversary.

We wish Father Poirier many more happy birthday anniversaries.

Pontiac 1956 "Hardtop"

Catalina and Star Chief, "870" and "860" Series

Pontiac for 1956 introduces four-door "hardtops" in Star Chief, 870 and 860 series. In addition, the company is producing two-door Catalina "hardtops" in all these lines, including an all-new 860 model.

The new four-door "hardtop' features panoramic styling, Vogue two-toning, Strato-Streak V-8 engine and new Strato Flight Hydra-Matic transmission.

In the Star Chief series, the new hardtop is 212.6 inches long on a 124 inch wheelbase and is one and a half inches lower than the four-door sedan. It is also offered on a 122 inch wheelbase in the 860 and 870 series.

Engineering highpoint of the new Catalina sedan is the belt-high steel center pillar, to which the rear door is attached. Constructed of outer and inner posts which are joined and welded to the underbody, the pillar curves to a wide base at the bottom for exceptional support and rigidity by eliminating the full length center post the new Catalina four-door affords an unobstructed view throughout the length of the body.

Also of interest is the operation of the rear side windows. The windows move not only up, but also forward scaling the opening ordinarily occupied by the center post. This design also eliminates the need for a "Flipper" seal previously used along the roof.

This new design creates greater rear window area, exceeding the Catalina two-door back window visibility by 45 square inches of glass. Rear seat passengers will have more knee and hip room than in any previous hardtop model.

In the Star Chief series, the Catalina Sedan has a 227 h.p. Strato-Streak V-8 engine and the new Strato-Flight Hydra-Matic transmission. The interiors are tastefully trimmed in hand-buffed leather, or leather and nylon cloth combinations. New color combinations, Sandalwood tan and Sun Beige; and Catalino Blue and Nimbus grey, are exclusive with this series.

The 205 h.p. Strato-Streak V-8 engine will be offered in the Catatlina four door in the 860 and 870 series. These series offer interior trims of Morrokide, nylon and coated fabric in a wide range of choices.

Died at 111 years 9 months

Some time ago we read an article in the daily press about a man residing in Newfoundland who was a litle over the century mark

Residing in Pondville some years ago was one Thomas Henry Burge who was born in England on August 25, 1802 and died from the result of a fall at his home in Pondville in 1914 at the ripe old age of 111 years and 9 months. Up to the time of his death he had all his faculties, also keen eyesight.

The record of the late Thomas Burge's death is recorded in St. John's Parish Records. Burial service was conducted by Rev. G A. Andrew, now residing in Toronto.

Another old record from St. John's Parish is that of Sarah Tucker who died at the age of 102 years. She was a native of Mull, Scotland and came to Aricat when only a young girl. In the records can be found the name of the ship "Florence" in which she made the voyage from the old country. Possibly this was a sailing vessel of the fleet of Robin, Jones and Collas of Jersey which made Arichat a port of call on this side of the Atlantic. This fish firm operated a large plant here some years ago.

Wedding Shower

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. (Teddy) Latimer, were pleasantly surprised one evening last week, when friends and neighbors gathered at their new home to present them with a shower of gifts and to wish them every happiness on their recent marriage. A very fitting address was read by Miss Ernestine Boudreau and was responded to by Mr. Latimer who thanked their friends for the kindness showered on both himself and his wife.

A very enjoyable evening was spent by all at the conclusion of which a sumptuous lunch was served by the ladies.
