"FIRST KID"

By L. W. GOGEN, (VIC)

When you held in your arms, for the first time,—your first Kid—It's hard for a fellow like me to say in words, what that kid meant to me—But all at once, I started to remember things I had forgotten—In one second, you were like a little boy at Mother's knee—You remembered her prayers— you counted the years since—You remembered all your promises and the things you did —It was like coming home—it was the end of a long road—At last, you had found rest for the first time, and you were all clean and nice inside and not tired any more. It was like music so soft and sweet and tender—like a lullaby of tree-tops from a mountain side—it was like a storm at sea—it was peace and hope—it was fear and pain—it was goodness and love. No, you can't say with words—you can't make a song or a poem and keep it in time—not about a thing like that —the memory of your first kid, in your arms, for the first time. You want to say what it's like and how you feel—but you can't find the words—no, you can't say —no poet can write about that second—it covers so much space—it's all things together.

No, he hasn't time and words big enough and fine enough to describe this moment—not unless you could take a moon-light night, hold it in your arms and all the stars and the star-light and let them shine from one liftle pair of eyes, and all the flower gardens and all the flowers known and unknown and water them with rainbows and fill them with sunbeams and edge all with gold and make all small which you could hold in your two hands—and all this happens in one little bit of a kid in one second—there is no day nor night—all the years before don't count—all pain and sorrow and hate stop—for in that second, you are strong and fine, your head is high like a tree deep in the forest fighting for its place in the sun. It's an appeal to courage. It echoes of rain and thunder. It's silence of the valley; it's half challenge,—half prayer. And it doesn't stop there but keeps on and on and gets bigger and bigger. You never forget, never, the little toes, how they wiggle—the little hands on you face—you remember her eyes always—you get to known each eye-lash and know even when one is missing.

Soon she walks, soon she talks —the first time she calls your name—the first time she is hurt, each tear like a knife, cuts deep in your heart. Oh! the joy and the pain of it all.—The first time she leaves you—her first day in school how long that day is until she returns, and the fuss you and mother make—Her first grown-up dress—her first compact —No, you can't say with words— you can't time the memory of that one second—and all the other days and years..

We all know there is a next life—but you can't say what it's like—not in words, you know but you can't say—But it must be peaceful and restful when those you hold from the first, return to stay always—And I know that if ever I see that next life, it will be because I remembered that one second.

Now, she is tall and skinny and far away—but time and space can't take her out of my heart ever—Maybe if I had gone to school. I could now say in words what's in my heart—Maybe, I don't know—I only know I could give all things away, and never be poor—never—for deep inside, I have more gold, more worlds, more love, more dreams and hopes than I could give away.

You can't say what's locked away, deep in your heart—it's too nice to write about—it's something you mention only in your prayers.

I know that if she called out to me from across the sea, I should hear—and if she needed me ever, I should swim a thousand seas mile after mile and not be tired—I would travel on my hands and knees across desert sands, waterless waste-lands, through burning hells, across worlds, all worlds—all space and time would be wiped away—all things pushed aside—and at the end of all this travel, I would still have strength left to break apart anything or all things that reached out for my kid.

Maybe this will tell you, how it feels to hold in your arms for the first time, your first Kid...

HON. R. H. WINTERS

Minister of Public Works

November 30, 1956

Dear Mr. Editor:—A special Session was called last Monday to give Parliament an opportunity of approving or disapproving of the action the Government has taken in sending Canadian troops to Egypt as part of the United Nations Emergency Force.

It has been the practice, which has been established by precedent, to summon Parliament within ten days after the Order-in-Council is passed authorizing troops to be sent abroad. In this instance they were despatched as part of a force which was set up on the recommendation of Canada in order to try to prevent a full scale world war and at the same time restore peace.

This has been one of the most serious crisis in my time in Parliament. Not since 1939 have we teetered so precariously on the edge of war and never has there been a situation in which there have been more stresses develop between old and traditional bonds international friendship.

When the Anglo-French forces went into Egypt, the Eastern members of the British Commonwealth were so distressed that they were on the point of withdrawing from this association of nations which we in Canada regard as having been such a tremendous influence for good in the world. While other associations and alliances have come and gone, the British Commonwealth has endured. It has stood the test of time and remains as a powerful association which has succeeded in bridging gaps of color, race, creed and geography, more so than has any other association of nations.

The Canadian Government assumed it as part of our responsibility to endeavour to hold this association together. On the other hand, we have signed the charter of the United Nations under which we have undertaken to resort to peaceful means for the settlement of differences. This, at the same time, imposed upon us an obligation to this large alliance of nations. The problem was to find a solution which would maintain both these structures intact and avoid further conflict at a time when the Russians were poised very threateningly and ready to strike into the Middle East.

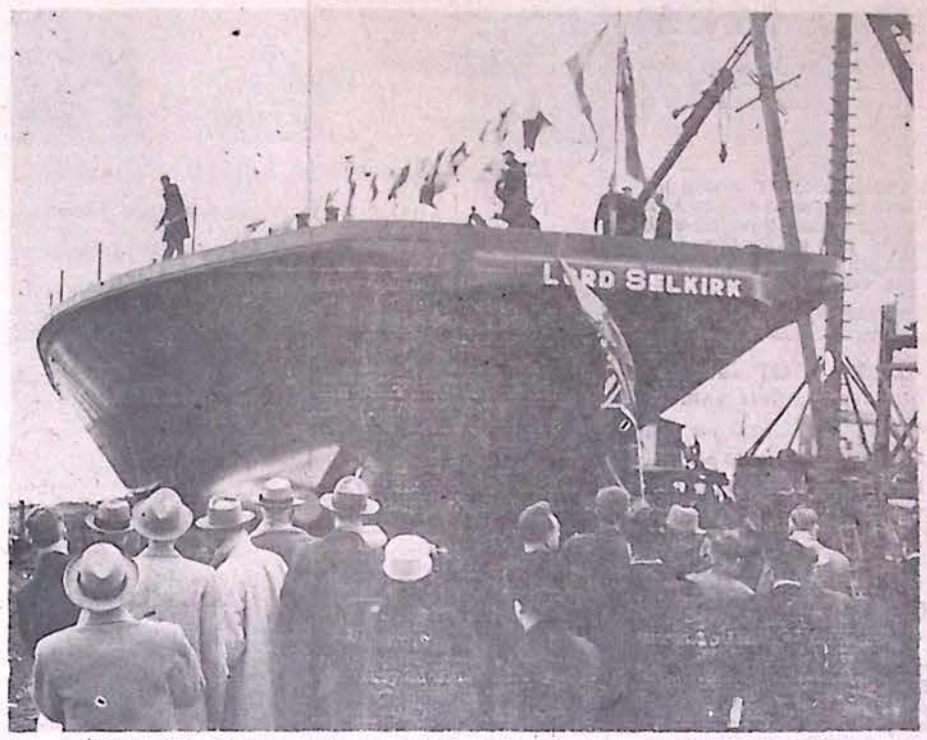

Canada's suggestion of a United Nations Police Force was eagerly seized upon and has, in fact, been the means for restoring peace and maintaining it to date even though it is an uneasy truce.

In Parliament, the Progressive Conservatives introduced a vote of censure but the C. C. F. and Social Credit parties voted with the Liberals in defeating it. I think it was then a credit to Parliament when all parties stood together in approving the Speech From the Throne which dealt with the despatching of troops to Suez and also Canada's assistance for Hungarian refugees.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT H. WINTERS

New Ferry Launched at Pictou

The 52,000,000 Lord Selkirk, 259-foot car-and-passenger ferry to ply between Carribo, Nova Scotia and Woods Islands, Prince Edward Island, launched last week at Pictou from the ways of Ferguson Industries Limited, is anticipated to play a vital role in stimulating greatly increased tourist trade between both provinces.

Societe St. Pierre of Eastern Nova Scotia Has Successful Year

The Societe St. Pierre of Eastern Nova Scotia is ready to close its books after another successful year. The week of August 15th a campaign for funds was launched and the folliwing contributions were received:—

Inverness	$30.00
Pomquet	95.50
Arichat	116.00
West Arichat	117.25
St. Peter's	28.80
D'Escousse	2.00
Petit de Grat	115.25
Sydney	301.35
Louisdale	43.11
L'Ardoise	190.00
Cheticamp	562.61
New Waterford	92.00
St. Joseph du Moine	130.75
Margaree	120.35
Annoymous donor	50.00
Conseil de la Vie Francaise, Quebec	500.00
Total	$2494.97

The contribution of $500.00 from Conseil de la Vie Francaise, Quebec, came as a pleasant surprise to the society. Every year the school children of the province of Quebec subscribe thousands of Dollars to help organizations such as the Societe St. Pierre, French colleges and schools all over Canada. All funds of the Societe St. Piere are loaned in interest free scholarships to deserving and needy studnets from Eastern Nova Scotia who otherwise might not be able to obtain a college education. Among others, the society this year is helping the following students:—Marie Helene Boudreau, Louis Levis Boudreau, Yvon Chiasson, Daniel Poirier, of Cheticamp; Marie Yvonne Chiasson, William S. LeBlanc, Leo Chas. LeBlanc of Margaree; Paul Martin Baccardax, Oswald Baccardax of Poirierville, Richmond County; Raymond LeBlanc of Arichat; Leon C. LeBlanc, Michael Peter AuCoin of Sydney; Alfred Doucet, Grand Etang, Inverness County; Emmanuel Poirier, Petit Etang, Inverness County. Besides these, there are a number of students finishing their courses this year who have been studying for some years under scholarships from the Society. Approximately 43 students have been helped since 1947 when the Societe St. Pierre was founded. More could be helped of the Society had the funds for each year some applications have to be turned down. With the increasing number of students going through High School and Universities, more demands will be made on the funds of the Societe St. Pierre. The Directors hate to have to say "no, no money in the funds." They are looking for a better and bigger year next year with the support of its friends and benefactors.

Worthy of special mention is the gift of $500.00 from the Conseil de la Vie Francaise of Quebec.

Each of the four counties on Cape Breton Island has three Directors who direct the affairs if the Society had the funds for Annual meetings of the Society. They will be pleased at any time to give you more information on the work of the Society.

J. W. Stephen's Offers Timely Advice to Builders

Most people take it for granted after the first snow falls or when the weather gets a little cold around December to postpone the work around their homes and business until the Spring. This has been the practice in Cape Breton for many years which has caused considerable unemployment in the construction industry during the winter months. It is our contention that work should continue on throughout the winter months without any interruption even though we may have frosty weather and the ground covered with snow. There are so many inside jobs to be done that could be done more economically in the winter months. For instance:—Your lumber dealer carries a large stock of Sheetrock, Donnacona Board, Interior Doors, Finish, plastering supplies, all of which could be used for changes and decorating the home or business. Also, it is a good time to house-clean the home or business place using Canada Paint Products and the famous Kemglow and Kem-Tone lines. Also, it would be a good time to install a Space Master door in the home or change the kitchen by installing Youngstown kitchen cabinets and sinks.

J. W. STEPHENS is a home industry and have a most modern factory and mill and employs only skilled workmen and each man employed in STEPHENS factory is unionized. We invite the public to visit our modern woodworking factory. Our window frames and sashes are finished 1⅝" thick taken out of 2" Ponderosa Pine and the sashes are dipped in Pentrox which is a wood preserver and keeps the sashes from rotting. Only Canadian glass is used in the sashes and glazed with Tremglaze which is twice as expensive as the other putty but will definitely stay on and keep the glass in place.

STEHENS cabinet makers are noted for the excellent quality of the workmanship displayed in the manufacturing of kitchen cabinets and other units.

When you buy from STEPHENS you are getting the best in material and workmanship and you are supporting a home industry and keeping employment at a high level which will result in good conditions throughout a usually dull period of the year.

Any work you may plan to do, can be arranged under our Home Improvement Plan. Will you please keep this in mind and keep the wheels of industry moving by phoning your lumber number 5554 today.

Liverpool Advance

We note where our good friend Cecil Day, od the "Liverpool Advance", has reached the 5,400 mark in subscriptions to his progressive weekly.

We watched the Advance soar to over 4,000 and were waiting to congratulate Cecil when he reached the 5,000 mark and in looking at the top left hand corner, only today, we see where Cecil has exceeded the mark by 400. Now we are looking for 6,000 turn up and if the name "Advance" has anything to do with it, that objective will also be reached.

We also note where Cecil and his wife have arrived from a tour of the British Isles and where they were the guests of the town of Liverpool, Eng. While in the old country they wore outfits tailored from Nova Scotia tartan and receive favourable comment throughout the British Isles.

Fred Beattie of the "Monitor", Bridgetoyn, and his wife were also in the party to the old country.

Our wife had the pleasure of viewing the spacious interior of the "Empress of Britain,, while on a visit to Montreal, the day before our friends embarked for England.

Nova Scotia's Oil Supply Assured

Nova Scotia will not be hit by an oil shortage due to the Suez Canal difficulties. At least that is the opinion of W. Harold Rae, Canadian Oil Companies Ltd., who says tat lang-term contracts with tankers to haul oil from South America ports, and that only a major war, disrupting shipping, could bring about an oil shortape.

He also said that Canada can be self-sufficient in oil within a few years, but so far as the East coast is concerned it will always be cheaper to bring in South American oil than to run a pipe line from the Alberta oil fields to Halifax.

MISS ANNIE E. MADDEN

Sheriff D. O'C. Madden, of this place, recently received word from South Weymouth, Mass., that his aunt, Miss Annie E. Madden, 89, had died in a South Weymouth nursing hime.

A native of Arichat, Miss Madden moved to Boston 35 years ago. She lived with her niece, Mrs. Ruth Titus, in South Weymouth for more than 20 years.

A retired school teacher, she was the daughter of the late Daniel O'Connell and Johanna (Phalen) Madden, of Arichat, she is survived by several nephews and nieces throughout Canada and the United States.

For many years the late Miss Madden was on the teaching staff of the Arichat Academy and also taught in other parts of the County and Province.

Only last year the late Miss Madden visited her sister-inlaw, Mrs. Alice Madden and nephew, Sheriff Madden of this place.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated at the St. Francis Xavier Church in South Weymouth of which she was a devout member.

Interment was in the Elmwood Cemetery, South Weymouth.

We extend sympathy to Sheriff Madden and other relatives.

"ORENDA" MAKES HISTORY

When the 26-foot yawl, Orenda was anchored on the South Side, of Arichat Harbor, opposite the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Stone, (better known as Robins post office), for several days the past summer, how little did interested spectators think that the little yawl and its two man crew, Alan Battersby and Bert Smith, of Toronto, would brave the Atlantic, and live to tell the tale of their experience.

During the week Charlie Stone, showed us a photo of the Orenda, before she was lanuched at Toronto, with Alan Battersby and Bert Smith on her deck. Both these men signed their autographs to the photo as follows: "Best wishes from Alan Battersby, Bert Smith. Toronto to Plymouth England 1956. Thank you for all your kindness."

Leaving Arichat harbor one afternoon to take on supplies in another port, they ran into a big wind storm and make North Sydney the next day. From that port they set sail and after making several hundred miles on the journey across the Atlantic, they were obliged to return due to a leak in the stuffing box of their propeller shaft.

Although late in the season and cautioned by old seamen at North Sydney, the two started once more after the necessary repairs were made.

After many days the Orenda was reported by a liner in mid-Atlantic, with a broken spar and sail dangling in the water. No sign of life was visable aboard the little craft. Several days later the Orenda, was sighted by a freighter, who came to the assistance of Alan Battersby and Bert Smith who refused to take passage on the freighter. After taking on food and necesssary material to mend their sail and spar then continued on their voyage and accomplished what they set out to do: "the crossing of the Atlantic."

Many a stout ship left the port of Arichat, in the days of "Wooden Ships and Iron Men", for ports across the Atlantic and other oceans, but never was it reported where a ship the size of Orenda, left this port bound for so long a journey and land safe at its destination.

The Orenda was a well built little craft and we understand was the work of the two dauntless men that sailed her.

PERROT — FERLAND

A wedding of widespread interest took place in St. Charles Church, Montreal, when Theresa Ferland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorius Ferland of Montreal became the bride of Vincent Perrot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Perrot, formerly of West Arichat, now of Montreal.

The bride was a charming picture in her floor length strapless gown of Brussel lace and imported illusion over heavy slipper satin fashioned in long princess lines. The fitted lace bodice was trimmed with sequins and mother of pearl and was fashioned with a maudarian collar and long lace sleeves terminating to lily points at the wrists. Her bouffant skirt had three lace panels one of which cascaded into a chapel length train. Her long veil of imported illusion was caught to a Queen Elizabeth crown trimmed with sequins and mother of pearl. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses, satin streamers tipped with tiny rosebus. She wore silver slippers.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jacqueline Ferland and Miss Bertille Perrott. Jean Boursier and John Boucher attended the groom. Flower girl was Diane Icavella with Dannie Ferland as page boy. Miss Ferland wore a floor-length gown of pale blue net and lace over taffetta with matching lace jacket featuring short sleeves with which she wore lace mittens. Her headdress was of pleated nylon net studded with pearls from which fell her shoulder length veil of silk net with scalloped border. She carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums. She wore white satin slippers.

Miss Perrot wore a floor length gown of pink nylon sheer with French de point lace appliques throughout fashioned with high neckline and short sleeves with matching mittens. Her elbow length veil of nylon tulle bordered with lace fell from a pill-box head-dress of matching tulle trimmed with sequins. She carried a nosegay of American Beauty roses and ivy. She wore white satin slippers.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at Notre Dame Hall to over two hundred guests. The hall was tastefully decorated with wedding bells, streamers and autumn leaves. Later they left on a trip to the United States, and various points of interest. On their return a wedding recepton and dance was held to a large number of guests.

The bride's table was a picture of loveliness with a white damask Irish linen cloth centered with a four-tier wedding cake topped with a minature bride and groom encircled in tiny flowers, flanked on either side with vases of lovely autumn flowers completed the setting. The cake was cut in traditional manner by the bride and groom, apportioned to the guests by Mrs. Ferland mother of the bride and Mrs. Perrot, mother of the groom.

The happy couple were the recipients of many lovely gifts including a large sum of money.

They will reside in Montreal. We join with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.
