A Delightful Trip To Montreal

The visitor to Montreal can enjoy a variety of sight seeing tours and one of the most visited spots in that city is Mount Royal where especially on week-ends city dwellers and tourists come for a few hours relaxation.

You can make your way to the top of Mount Royal on foot or by horse drawn coaches operated by courteous coachmen who inform you that you are about a mile from the Chalet the weary visitor after walking up the steep incline for some minutes pays heed to the coachmen and settles back in the comfortable carriage, but to his surprise finds that he was nearer his goal than informed. There are several coachmen at the Mount and one can hardly blame them to use a little deception to bolster their trade. Cars are prohibited from going up the Mount.

On arriving at the summit of Mount Royal you find a beautiful chalet and within its walls is a canteen where you may buy refreshments and your guests sit at a table in the main entrance. A large verandah extends across the full length of the chalet and all along the summit a look-off rail has been placed.

The beautiful St. Lawrence and the city of Montreal can be seen from this point. Powerful binoculars are permanently set on the Mount for visitors to view the splendour below.

On the first Saturday of our visit to Montreal our brother, accompanied by his little daughter, Linda, and his brother-in-law and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. John DeVries took us on a delightful trip to Ottawa.

A splendid highway joins Montreal and Ottawa, however the Provincial Highways in Quebec are not as good as those of the Province of Ontario where many miles of Trans-Canada Highway have been completed. Premier Duplessis has not entered into the plan of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Enroute to Ottawa many beautiful and productive farms can be seen mostly the dairy type and in some cases beef cattle farms.

We read and heard much of the beautiful Ottawa River and one can visualize the early settlers paddling their canoes up and down this scenic river and how the poets found little difficulty to put into lines their very thoughts of this mighty river.

On entering the city of Ottawa the first prominent sight is that of the Parliament Buildings with the Peace Tower extending skyward in majestic splendour, giving one a feeling of great pride in being a Canadian.

No doubt to all visitors to Ottawa their first objective is the Parliament Buildings and in making your way to the spacious grounds little difficulty is experienced in parking your car.

As you leave your car and proceed to the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings, you can see a Mounted Policeman standing below the steps and many tourists are busily engaged with their cameras taking shots of Canada's famous "Mounties".

One American woman possibly over enthusiastic or romantic asked the Mountie if she could place her arm around him while her husband took the picture, the Mountie answered her saying, "Lady, it would be OK by me, but the service does not allow such action. However she did pose with the Mountie the customary way, standing beside him.

On entering the Parliament Buildings the main lobby is your first glimpse but as you want to ascend to the Peace Tower you await your turn on the first elevator (which can only take eight people at a time) to the second landing where another elevator takes you to the top of the tower. On your way up on the second elevator you can get a quick glimpse of the Carillon Bells.

At the top of the Peace Tower there are encased openings where a great view of the city of Ottawa and the River can be seen for miles.

The masonry in the Peace Tower is difficult to describe. Its excellence and beauty can only be appreciated by a visit to this noted tower with its significance denoting peace.

In the tower can be seen memorials to Canada's part in the great Conflicts which claimed so many lives in the struggle for freedom.

During our visit to the Parliament Buildings a tour was in progress which took you to the Commons Chamber. A visit to the new Library was much enjoyed and here placed on the walls are the coat of arms of the various Provinces which entered into Confederation. The Senate Chamber was not opened that day, however the Senate rest room was and the hall leading to the room were life size portraits of the various speakers of the Senate. One being Senator Miller of Arichat. On the ceiling of the room all speakers names are inscribed in squares and the first name which caught our eye was that of Senator Miller who made his home in Arichat in the property formerly owned by the Hureau family, now owned by A. A. LeBrun.

We were told the carvings with in the Parliament Buildings took 16 years to complete.

It would be impossible for one to absorb all the details of a tour of the Parliament Buildings but one can soon gather that here within the walls of this great structure lie the foundation of our great Canadian democracy.

The grounds around the Parliament Buildings are beautiful and here can be seen bronze figures of our great Canadian leaders and statesmen.

After our tour of the Parliament Buildings we visited the home of our cousin, Arthur S. Bourinot, retired barrister, a son of the late Sir John George Bourinot, C.M.G., LL.D., D.C.L., who during his lifetime was Clerk of the House of Commons and author of "Parliamentary Law and Procedure in Canada," "Manual of the Constitutional History of Canada" and other notable publications.

Arthur S. and his charming wife the former Nora Sherwood, daughter of Sir John and Lady Sherwood, made our visit most enjoyable.

Besides being an author and poet Mr. Bourinot is a very skilful artist and showed us several of his paintings.

A very modest and unassuming man he was much interested in Cape Breton and more especially Sydney, the birthplace of his late father. A photo of the old Bourinot property at Sydney is one of his cherished possessions, as this was the property of his late grandfather Senator John Bourinot, who for many years was French Consul at Sydney and for several years prior to his Senatorship represented Cape Breton County as the Conservative member from that constituency.

Arthur S. during his youth made visits to Sydney and is looking forward to another visit in the not too distant future.

In our next issue we will tell our readers about our visit to the Monitor Publishing Company where our brother Earl Bourinot is employed.

St. Francis Xavier's Dr. Coady on TV

On Tuesday August 27 the Maritime TV Network will present a living portrait of one of Nova Scotia's famous sons when Dr. M. M. Coady, founder of the extension department of St. Francis Xavier University and a founder of the Antigonish Movement, is interviewed on the "Profile" series. The program will be seen at 10.00 p.m.

Now 75, Dr. Coady is in active retirement as director emeritus from which he frequently emerges to give lectures and take an active interest in UNESCO the Columbo plan and other activities. But for many years his was the driving force behind a program of adult education designed to instruct Nova Scotian farmers and fishermen in ways that they could help themselves.

The Antigonish Movement, began in the depression ridden 30's is a combination of adult learning, credit unionism, ad co-operative projects that has spread far beyond the confines of the Atlantic Provinces to countries all over the world. Designed to bring some measure of economic security to farmers and laborers in Nova Scotia. Coady and Father Jimmy Tompkins worked out the basic ideas of the Movement. "Men, through adult learning and self help, should work out the economic problems of their lives. Through personal improvement and group action rather than by appeal to government agencies they can better their circumstances; from amongst the people themselves can come the leadership and direction necessary to democratic action."

As one of the architects of the Movement Dr. Coady participated in all the early struggles that had to be overcome—the apathy disinterest, Communist interference and Protestant Catholic rivalry; with his economist's training he worked out the practical schemes which made collective financing work, and with his active leadership the plan spread throughout Maritime villages and into the world.

On Profile Dr. Coady will tell the story of the Antigonish Movement as he is interviewed by freelance writer and broadcaster Ken Homer. The half-hour film was produced by a CBHT film crew at St. Francis Xavier University.

Major MacLean Visits Arichat

In a recent issue we mentioned where Major T. A. MacLean C.E., of Antigonish was a visitor to town. On this trip he was accompanied by his son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. A. J. MacLean of Toronto.

Major MacLean was engineer director of operations at Marble Mountain some years ago when the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. operated the quarry at that place.

While speaking about Moxham Castle at Sydney the Major informed us that he had the honor of laying out the site where the Castle now stands and owned by Mr. W. N. MacDonald who now occupies the Castle.

During World War I Major MacLean served overseas with the Canadian Engineers and was promoted to the rank of Major, while on active service in France.

A quiet and unassuming man Major MacLean has won prominence in the field of engineering and has held many important posts during his long years of service.

We extend our best wishes to the genial Major now in retirement and wish him many years of happiness.

MARGARET S. MacDONALD

Stricken in the home of Mrs. Margaret Nicholson, St. Peter's, Margaret MacDonald was conveyed by ambulance to St. Martha's Hospital, Antigonish, where her death occurred on Sunday, July 21st.

The remains prepared in undertaker A. N. MacDonald's proficient way rested at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dan R. MacDonald of Port Hawkesbury until the following Wednesday whence the funeral was held.

What with Rev. Dr. Christie of Port Hastings and Rev. J. Parker Matheson of St. Peters jointly officiating; Mrs. Christie presiding at the organ in her well known way; and a band of the Strait towns best singers in attendance; the service in the spacious and sumptuously furnished MacDonald home was a most impressive one throughout.

The quiet unassuming and unselfish Margaret MacDonald who was ever a ready friend to everybody in every sphere who needed friendship has thus passed on.

Friend of us all, farewell!

D. A. S.

(We had the pleasure of meeting the late Margaret MacDonald at the home of D.A.S., when on our first visit to our old friend's home by the side of the road in Sporting Mountain a few years ago.

A kindly lady whom we were pleased to meet informed us that when she resided in Boston, Mass., she attended services at the Scotch Presbyterian Church in that city, which at that time was in charge of the late Rev. John Calder, a native son of Richmond County.

Her passing is mourned, but the memory of her good deeds will live on as cherished memories by neighbours and friends.

St. Pierre Society

Each year, for ten years, the Societe St. Pierre of the diocese of Antigonish has been launching a campaign for funds. This society was organized in 1947 and in its ten years of operation it has already helped forty-five young men and women reach their goal of university education. Its Directors and members are justly proud of its accomplishments in the field of higher education and they look to more and better things in the future.

With the ever growing need of help to needy and deserving students the societe St. Pierre once more appeals to its generous friends to come to its help. We are faced today with two major problems in the field of university education—the high cost of living necessitates the universities to raise their tuition fees while at the same time more students are anxious to go to university. Many, the great majority, we venture to say, find it necessary to obtain help in the form of loans and scholarships. It is precisely for this purpose to help needy and deserving students reach university that the society was founded.

Last year fifteen scholarships of $250.00 each were awarded by the society. It is anticipated that this year there will be around twenty-five asking for help. Will the Societe St. Pierre have the funds available? The answer lies in the success of its campaign which was launched the week of August 11th. Last year collections amounted to $2,500.00 and the society awarded fifteen scholarships at $250.00 each or a total of $3,750.00. There was only one way the society could do it—it had to dip into its reserves and also some money was returned to the funds by students who had now completed their course and were earning their living. In its ten years of operation the society St. Pierre has loaned $17,000 which will come back to the funds gradually as the loans are repaid.

Our objective this year is $5000.00. Very soon you will see posters announcing the campaign. As you look at the posters depicting a young man and a young woman working in a university lab, think of the army of young men and women who are longing to get an education to meet the challenge of the modern world.

Think of the contributions that have been made to health, welfare and all fields of human endeavour by the scientists and men of letters, then open your hearts generously when you are called upon to give to the Societe St Pierre.

If no one calls on you and expect your contribution to your local director by your parish priest. Your contribution is good for Income Tax deduction. Your contributions will be gratefully received and appreciated very much.

MONCTON EN FETE IN RAILWAY WEEK

Moncton, — This bus transportation centre has a party air these days as residents celebrate a birthday. It is the 100th birthday of railroading in eastern Canada—100 years since the opening of the first section of the European and North American Railway.

On August 20, 1857 the first train made its way from Shediac to Moncton, starting an enterprise that was to see the tiny village on the banks of the Petitcodiac grow to a city of 20,000 that today is the hub of transportation and the principal centre of distribution in the Maritime provinces.

In modern Moncton alone, Canadian National Railways now employs 6000 workers who earn about $20,000,000 annually, and it is to mark this tremendous growth in the transportation industry that the city has planned week-long celebrations.

Among events which are being held to mark the occasion are a reception and dinner sponsored by the Moncton Board of Trade and the City of Moncton; the presentation of an illuminated scroll to the vice-president and general manager of the Atlantic Region CNR; and special newspaper editions and radio and TV broadcasts covering "100 years of progress".

SPORTS FISHING IMPROVED BY RAIN

Recent rainfall in Nova Scotia dampened everything but the spirit of anglers and with levels rising improved fishing is anticipated.

Reports received by the federal Department of Fisheries at Halifax showed that Atlantic salmon anglers were successful in pulling 84 fish from provincial rivers. Forty one, of which 29 were grilse, were hooked from West River, Sheet Harbor on the eastern shore and 18, 17 of which were grilse, from the Medway in Queens county. Five were taken from a Medway tributary, Deans Brook. Although only three salmon were gaffed from the La Have in Lunenburg county, large quantities of grilse and salmon were seen in estuaries of this river and also Petite Riviere.

Cape Breton's Margaree yielded nine from its pools and two good sized salmon, totalling 18 pounds, fell prey to anglers at North River.

Three were taken in the Oxford area and one each from the Inaram, Quoddy, and Tunnel Falls. In the Medway river area salmon were reported at Hemlock High Rocks and Little Salmon waters.

Striped bass fishermen were having a great time in the New Glasgow area pulling in 13 to 15 inchers weighing between four and seven pounds, with largest catches hooked in East River and Big Gut. Twenty five were taken from Tidnish river, emptying into Northumberland Strait.

Although catches were light, good-sized stripers were pulled in at Blue Beach and Starrs Point near Kentville and a few were taken from the Annapolis river.

Pickerel, a good fighting fish were taken from Yarmouth's Lake Milo and catches were reported fair.

Trout fishermen still continued to chalk up catches in many provincial areas. Good catches of speckled trout were reported in the River Denys area, Cape Breton, with Lake Ainslie producing 230, McLeod's Pond 95, Skye Brook 90, Trout Brook 55, and Mabou river 15.

Other good trouting spots in Cape Breton were Margaree and Ingonish River areas where 190 and 180 fish were taken respectively. Sixty trout were given up by the North river and 40 from the Baddeck.

Along the Eastern Shore 250 were hauled in from Beam Beeum river and 440 from Sheebrooke district rivers. Gaspereaux Brook yielded 72.

Cumberland county's River Philip produced 105 and 40 were reeled in the Oxford area.

In the Annapolis Valley's Lake George, near Kentville, 200 speckled trout were hooked by anglers.
