Group From Province Of Quebec To Visit French Dictricts In County

A group of approximately 75 Educators and Business men from the Province of Quebec will spend a full day visiting the French speaking centres of Richmond County on the mainland and on Isle Madame, on August 13.

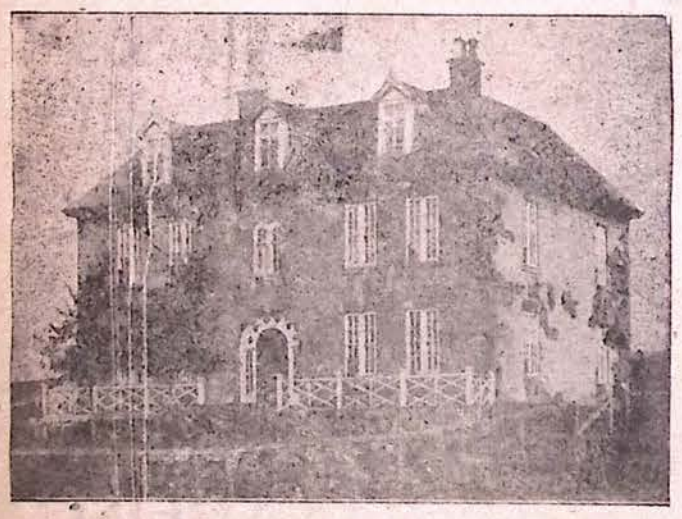

The Societe St. Pierre is acting as host to this delegation, and the Directors for Richmond County namely: Very Rev. A. P. Poirier., P. P., V. F., Arichat; Rev. A. Doucet, P. P., West Arichat; Mr. Dennis Britten, Vice-Principal, L'Ardoise; and R. J. Chiasson, Inspector of Schools; along with the help of a number of people in the County, have been busy preparing a program for this delegation

This delegation is composed on the whole by members of Le Conseil de la Vie Francaise, who for the past two years donated $500 each year to the Societe St. Pierre, which money has been used to give Scholarships to needy French speaking students of the diocese. These Educators and Business men are coming to visit our scenic county, but more than that, to mingle with the local people, to see them and to hear them speak the French language which they hold in common with the people of Quebec. They will be looking for evidence of the fact that our people still speak, and are still attached to, their Mother tongue, and will be looking for evidence of that in our road signs, and on the signs adorning our public buildings and institutions.

This may be only the beginning of a wave of tourists from the Province of Quebec which will help to develop one of Nova Scotia's major industries, namely, the tourist industry. The Director

Mrs. McDonald's niece, Miss Morrison of Sydney is their guest.

James A. Goswell of Halifax was a recent visitor to Seaview and St. Peters and we were glad to have our former good neighbor an overnight guest.

We appreciated a friendly visit from Ex-Councillor William Morrison of Loch Lomond.

We taught in Mr. Morrison's home section (Loch Lomond West) the year before World War One.

What a wonderful countryside Loch Lomond was in those days!

What prosperou s farms and hospitable homes!

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis and family and Mrs. Ida Rasmusson, of Sydney were to see us last Sunday, on the way from P. E. Island.

Roy J. Morrison who recently completed his Provincial Normal College course motored up from St. Peters the other day to contact old friends in Seaview.

We were glad to see Roy, and glad to know that he is resuming the teaching profession in which he manifested such rare innate aptitude.

He was assisted my Arthur Morrison.

Jimmie Cook is employed on the big farm at Bog Pond.

The Thibeau brothers (Henry and Peter) still do considerable farming and Peter Thibeau had Arthur Morrison motor him to Antigonish the other day to secure a special animal.

The good natured Jean MacPhail ministers to their aged mother, Mrs. Jane Thibeau who is now a nonogenarian.

We had a profusion of transient visitors Sunday.

Eileen Landry the popular and proficient Postmistress at Cannes was up to see us.

Miss Landry was numbered among those whom Simpson-Sears and T. Eaton Company were hosts in Sydney and had a most interesting tale to tell.

The spacious Boudreau Farm on Seaview was the scene that day of a family reunion of the Boudreau's and Burke's and they were all to see us.

We were particularly pleased when the Burke twins walked in.

Pretty as pictures, and possessing personalities, they are a sight to engage you.

Mrs. Mollie Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntosh and Roy Smetzer were up from St. Peters.

LOUISBOURG BI-CENTENARY

Colorful ceremonies are planned for the formal opening of the 200th anniversary of the fall of Fortress of Louisbourg on Saturday, July 26.

The historic past will be revived again with present-day soldiers parading in uniforms similar to those worn by British and French combatants at Louisbourg two centuries ago.

Troops of the 2nd Battalion Nova Scotia (Cape Breton) Highlanders will be divided into two formations, one unit wearing British-type uniforms of the Louisbourg siege period and the other garbed in the same period French military style.

Both will join, in a symbolic act of peace and friendship, in a cermonial march past, the salute to be taken by costumed officers representing the British assault commander, Amherst, and Druccour, governor of the once-great Dunkirk of the French in America.

The Highlanders are an affiliate of the 22nd (Chesire) Regiment, a distinguished British unit which won its first battle honours in the Louisburg siege of 1758.

Naval vessels will also be on hand, sailing over the hulks of gallant French ships scuttled during the siege in a futile attempt to block the harbour entrance.

Canadian tribal class destroyers Algonquin and Haida will be at Louisbourg three days — July 26, 27 and 28—and are expected to be joined by warships of the United Kingdom, France and the United States.

From 1716 to 1758 the Brothers Hospitallers conducted the King's Hospital at Louisbourg and destruction of the fortress in 1758 brought an end to their activities in Canada until 1927. From July 26 to the 28, six members of the Roman Catholic Order of Brothers Hospitallers of Saint John of God will honour their historic association with Louisbourg. On Monday, July 28, a requiem mass will be sung in Stella Maris church, followed by a ceremony at the French cemetery, the burial place of 12 members of the order who died in the second siege of Louisbourg.

Once the formidable part of armament of French man-of-war sunk during the siege, a three-and-half ton cannon will be brought up from its two centuries' resting spot on the floor of Louisbourg harbour Saturday afternoon, July 26. Under water the unusual event for a nation-cameras of the CBC will record wide television audience. The task will be supervised by amateur divers of the Cape Breton Sub Aqua Club. The ancient French naval gun will be presented to the Louisbourg Museum as an anniversary gift.

The mysteries of deep sea commericial fishing will be explained in an exhibit sponsored by the federal Department of Fisheries and provincial Department of Trade and Industry from July 26 through July 30.

The fisheries exhibition will include otter trawls, lobster traps, long-line, hand-line and jigging gear, angling and swordfishing gear, various types of nets, boat models and a mobile work shop.

A 100-page history of Louisbourg, covering events, people and landmarks, from 1758 to now, the work of the Women's Institute of Louisbourg, will be available during the Bicentenary, its publication coinciding with the observances marking the 200th anniversary of the second siege and fall of the old French fortress, the remains of which lie just a Louisbourg on the rugged coast mile from the present town of of Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia.

Premier Stanfield To Louisbourg

Premier Robert L. Stanfield of Nova Scotia will head the official party at Louisbourg, Saturday, July 26, for the formal opening of the Bicentenary marking the second siege and final fall of the great French fortress city of two centuries ago.

The official party will include the Hon. J. Leonard O'Brien, Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, senior diplomatic representatives of the United Kingdom, France, the United States and other dignitaries of church and state.

Flag Officer of the Atlantic Coast, Rear Admiral H. F. Pullen will also attend the opening ceremonies, sailing from Halifax in a minesweeper squadron, transferring his flag to the destroyer Algonquin and arriving in Louisbourg harbour early Friday evening and remaining all day Saturday.

In addition to the Algonquin, the Canadian destroyer Haida will also be in Louisbourg harbor for the three-day period, along with naval units representing the United States, giving a true International flavor to the great event. It is hoped that units of the French fleet be on hand also.

The British submarine Alcide will be at Louisbourg for the three-day period, July 26-28 to take part in the Bicentenary program.

Dundee Scribe Returns From U.S.A.

JULY 9, 1958— It is just three weeks since I returned from Boston. Being my first vacation in twenty-nine years and the first time ever to cross the border, the experience was, indeed interesting. As I reflect on the brief visit of eight days, and the many pleasant instances on the trip, it seems as though I were awakening from a pleasant dream.

Taking passage on the "Rail-Liner" from MacIntyre Lake on Thursday A.M. June 12th, we arrived at Truro by 1 p.m. This train goes through to Halifax, so we changed for Moncton, and changed again for St. John, arriving there at 7 p.m. A stop of over an hour afforded us an opportunity to meet the immigration officer, have supper in the station Cafeteria and then relax before leaving for Boston. By this time I was in company with a nice lady from Truro and our friendship had become closely woven, as we travelled together. In the waiting room, we conversed with other ladies who joined our company on the train. So we chatted throughout the most part of the night, as we rode throughout the lengthy State of Maine. At one brief stop, we ran out across the way to a restaurant, where we purchased cups of piping hot coffee in sealed containers and some delicious ham sandwiches. Returning to the train, we relaxed again and enjoyed our snack. We arranged our seats for a short nap, then watched for day-break. With our attention focused on the landscape along the way, time seemed to pass more quickly. We reached North Street Station by 9 a. m., arrived at John Campbell's, 14 Davis Ave., Brookline, Mass., at 830 where Emma, Norma and Grandma were taken by surprise. As the news spread around, the clans began to appear. The family clan of MacDougall having the greater number. We had Daniel, Bert, Murdo and Nellie (Mrs. Alex MacLeod) all of Brockline, and later, Laurence of Boston. By Wednesday evening the clan was increased by two, when Donald and Barry MacDougall arrived from California.

I had only a few steps to go around a corner, to the MacLeod home where I stayed, and was given a sisterly and brotherly welcome and had axcess to every comfort including a large sun-parlor, where I relaxed frequently looking out on an abundance of red and pink roses that clung

The Old Fortress Of Louisbourg

The bicentenary commimorations of the final fall of the once proud-and-mighty Fortress of Louisbourg in 1758 commence on Saturday, July 26, honoring the gallant French defenders and the British forces who brought the walls of this Dunkirk of America tumbling down. Ruins of the fort are part of the 328-acre Louisbourg National Historic Park, which will be the heart of this year's Bicentenary.

Attack on M. P. Renounced

A recent attack on a Chinese member of parliament, by a member of the Canadian Senate, was certainly uncalled for and has been renounced by leaders of all parties in the House of Commons.

After all if we take a look into our own racial origin, we will find that it is not so long ago that our ancestors came to this great county of ours and history has proven that many immigrants coming to Canada in recent years have distinguished themselves and at the same time have brought honor to our Canadian Nation.

Regardless of a man's race, color, creed or political affiliation, we should always be mindful of our great Canadian heritage which affords every citizen the right to live as a free man. We should feel proud of men of any racial origin who take on citizenship in this country and interest themselves in its affairs and like this Chinese M. P., receive a majority vote from the electors of his constituency—this should be proof enough, that he is a good Canadian and worthy of support.

MODEL OF OLD FRENCH FORTRESS OF LOUISBURG

To the thousands who will flock to Loisbourg on the east coast of Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, this summer for events commemorating the bicentenary of the last siege and final fall of the great Fortress of Louisbourg, one of the most interesting attractions undoubtedly will be the detailed model of the old French fortress city, contained in hte museum here, and giving a wonderful idea of what this city within walls looked like more than two centuries ago.

The model is the produce of hondreds of hours of painstaking study and work by Miss Katharine MacLellan, the museum's honorary curator.

Miss MacLennan has completed a repainting of the entire model and is now making several new model ships to be placed in the harbour—all in preparation for the opening on July 26 of the Bicentenary that will commemorate the final fall of the great North Atlantic bastion.

This is the second model of Louisbourg created by Miss MacLennan. The first one, much smalier at five feet by five feet, was lodged in a fisherman's white frame house on the rock-bound Louisbourg shore.

In 1936, when the present museum building was created, Miss MacLennan set to work on the larger model, nine feet by twelve feet. The outbreak of war in 1939 interrupted the project—as head of the blood donor clinic in Sydney, Miss MacLennan's craftsmanship as it is to her artistic sense and historical knowledge. The houses, hospital, convent, buildings and fortifications and made of wood, the terrain of plaster of paris. The iron railing around the model was designed and wrought by Miss MacLennan's nephew, John Kendall of Windsor, Nova Scotia.

Inspiration to build the model came to Miss MacLennan while viewing a scale reconstruction of old Quebec in the Archives at Ottawa. She made up her mind that something of the same order was needed on Louisbourg—and undertook it provide it. This is characteristic, for Katharine McLennan a member of a Sydney family with a tradition of dedicated interest in Louisbourg and the cause of its historical importance being properly recognized.

Her father, the late J. S. MacLennan, was the author of a book called Louisbourg — From Its Foundaton To Its Fall. Recently reprinted in a new edition, it is recognized as the definitive work on the subject.

SOCIETE ST. PIERRE HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. Arthur Mattie, Tracadie.

The meeting discussed the forthcoming campaign for funds which will be held in most cases sometime close to the week of tht 15th of August. It is hoped that the campaign will be even more successful than last year because the demands for help from needy students is increasing every year. The Society last year maintained at different Universities, including St. Anne's, Church Point; St. F. X. University; St. Joseph's University; Laval and others, over fifteen students. The only source for the Society is the money received yearly in its campaigns, and repayment on loans by students who have already completed their training. In most cases, students who have borrowed and are now earning their living, are faithful to their word of honor, and their obligation to the Society. However, there are a few who are not living up to their obligations. Tht Society is hoping that its friends throughout the area will make note right away of the forthcoming campaign, and will decide to support it in a generous manner. It shouud be pointed out that contributions to the Societe St. Pierre are deductible for income tax purposes.

HENRY EDWARDS

Henry Edwards 71 died suddenly at his home in Pondville, on Tuesday evening the 15th inst. Mr. Edwards had been about his evening chores when stricken with a stroke. His passing came as a shock to his widow, neighbors and friends.

For some years the late Mr. Edwards resided in North Sydney where he was employed as a carpenter. Returning to his native Pondville about ten years ago he took up residence in the property formerly owned by Mrs. Mary Ann Mauger.

A devout member of St. John's Anglican Church, Arichat he was a member of the Vestry for several years and always took a keen interest in the work of the parish. He was highly regarded by his neighbours and friends.

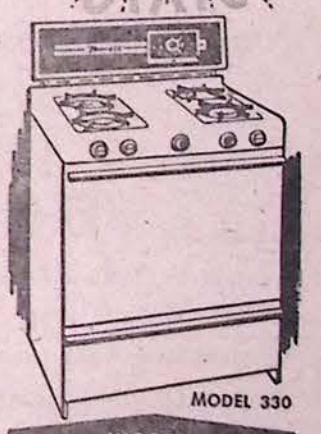

Surving are his wife, the former Alice Mauger, of Cape La Ronde; one brother, Albert and one sister Mrs. Louise Brown, both of Arichat.

Funeral was held from St. John's Church, Arichat, on Friday with the Rev. T. Turner, of North Sydney, officiating in the Church and grave. Mrs. James Dickie, presided at the organ. The funeral was largely attended.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved wife, brother and sister.

to the garden wall. There we were visited by Mrs. Anna MacKenzie, Mrs. Margaret MacInnes, also Mr. and Mrs. John Archie MacInnis. While at Davis Avenue, where I was invited one evening to dinner, I met Mrs. Harriet MacPherson, youngest sister of the late C. R. Leonard of West Bay. Miss Harriet and I were room-mates, when we held important positions with The Robert Simpson Eastern Ltd., Halifax. At Davis Avenue, I also met Mrs. Allan MacDonald and daughter, Margaret, formerly of West Bay.

On Sunday, I accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Daniel MacDougall, and daughter, Joanie also Miss Ann MacCuish to attend Communion Service at The United Presbyterian Church in Newton, Mass., where I was introduced to a number of people from Cape Breton. Among them were Jimmie Steward formerly of Oban and his daughter, Margaret and Steward Grey of West Bay. On one other occasion I joined Daniel and family when I enjoyed a delicious dinner in their attractive apartment. Having important engagements to attend, I was unable to accept a number of kind invitations extended to me. However, I appreciate the kindness and cherish the lovely gifts received while I was there.

We shopped in a number of the larger stores in town and finally accompanied Bert, Nellie and Grandma on a trip to Watertown, where we visited Bill MacKay and his niece, Miss Coleen Kachianas. We were much pleased to find Bill so comfortably situated in an attractive apartment over-looking and in close range of the beautiful Charles River. His sister, Mrs. Jessie Kachianas, was absent from home.

On Thursday (A.M.) after a full week and with misty eyes, and a heart divided between two homes, we left by car for Cape Breton. The party comprised: Emma, Norma, Grandma, and your correspondent. The morning was chilly and dull and it was only after we had passed a good distance through Maine that the sun came out and our trip became more pleasant.

We drive leisurely along, stopping in some of the towns and browsing around in the stores. In the hush of the evening, we came to Mechias, and registered for the night in two of the Lakeview Cabins, this place was in a quiet zone and certainly appealed to a weary motorist. It was most accomodating— comfortable beds, beautiful linens, bath room accomodations and an abundance of hot and cold water. Comforts enjoyed, it was easy to understand why every cabin on the spacious grounds was taken.

On Friday, after having breakfast near by we continued on our trip, at our ease, taking notes of important places as we drove along, and stopping at stores. We reached New Glasgow by sundown, and after some time spent at Dominion Groceteria, we decided to continue our trip home. We crossed the Canso Causeway about 11.30 p.m., and in all the interesting sights we saw on our trip, there was nothing more beautiful than the winding "Road To The Isles," all dotted with brilliant lights. We reached Dundee, at midnight, and were happy to find Hugh, none the worse for his week of lonely living and housekeeping. A surprise supper awaited us. A.F.
