Do You Remember When?

BY OLD TIMER

The first Vigneau came to Arichat? Of course you don't, and neither do I. But I thought it would be interesting to find out when.

The ancestors of all the Vigneau's (also spelled Venoit) in Eastern Canada was Maurice Vigneau, a Quebec carpenter, born at Saint Famille on the Isle of Orleans in 1664. He came to Port Royal in 1701 and after working several years on the fortifications there, settled in Beaubassin (now Amherst) in 1720

Their six sons were victims of the deportation of 1755 and were strewn on the shores of New England as far South as Georgia.

One of the sons, Jean Vigneau, left Savannah, Georgia, in 1756 and reached the Island of Miquelon. One of his sons, also named Jean, was born in Miquelon in 1764, and with 114 other Acadians came to Arichat in 1793.

Incidentally, he was the great grandfather of the Hon. P. J. Veniot, one time premier of New Brunswick, and later Postmaster General in Ottawa.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

About every six months I get a request by letter or telegram to be in Montrea on a certain date for a business conference. When this happened recently I scurried around, making my reservations for roomettes and hotel accommodation and settling on the single outfit I would wear for the brief trip.

My mother must have rocked me to sleep when I was an infant in arms for I prefer to travel by rail and by night the several hundred miles between my home in Aurora and Montreal. The rhythm of steel on steel and the gentle jiggling of the comfortable bed in my accommodation, I find, is a pleasant accompaniment to a sound sleep.

There is another reason I prefer to travel by night rather than by day on such a short journey. I like that last hot cup of coffee in the club car before retiring. There is usually another newspaper type there too en-route to an assignment. Guzzling the brew we often get into a healthy discussion on the state of the nation, or perhaps just politics in general.

On this recent trip, it wasn't the heat of the parley that smelled, but an acrid odor of burning wool kept puffing up in my face. My companion of the midnight coffee break was gesticulating wildly trying to make his point convincingly. Finally I got a word in edgewise. "Pardon me, but haven't you lost the glow on the end of your cigarette?"

He brushed a litter of ashes from jacket and trousers, sniffed once or twice, passed a facetious remark about my being burned up because he had the argument clinched and went right on throwing his cigarette around to emphasize his convictions.

When I returned to my roomette I found his cigarette had flipped all right. Right into the lap of my dress. Little holes were burned in a scattered pattern making my favorite jersey look like a target for BB practice.

On arrival I decided I would have to purchase another dress, but when I found the holiday spirit had inspired merchants to take advantage of all the profit the law allowed, I passed up the idea. Instead, I decided, I could wear my coat for what I anticipated would be only a brief meeting.

Luncheon seemed a propitious time in which to discuss this vagabond's itinerary for the next six months. As we approached the cafe, I was asked if I wouldn't like to check my coat. I tried to smile beguilingly, clutched it more closely to my frame and said I preferred to keep it with me.

I hadn't reckoned on a further conference in the office, or dinner later in the Beaver Club, the famous dining room in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Throughout the entire afternoon and evening I carted that fox-trimmed, interlined, pure wool coat around. As the day wore on, I was invited to "park that bed blanket" on numerous occasions. My tenacity only increased with each subtle suggestion that I get rid of the wraps and act like a normal human being. Gentlemen waiting to check their hats had a pitying look in their eyes as though they were thinking "this dame must believe all Montreal check girls belong to a den of thieves, or else she has an exaggerated evaluation of what that coat does her." Little did they know I was wilted to the core.

When I think that I passed up an invitation to indulge my gastronomic yearnings in a flaming shish kabob, a gourmet's delight for which the hotel is famous, because I visioned the pelt around my neck being singed, I quiver at my feminine obsession regarding my appearance.

It wasn't until my host was helping me into the arms of that burdensome, fox garnished apparel, which had been draped around my shoulders for hours, that I relaxed enough to enjoy his delightful sense of humour. "You certainly have this animal well trained. Why, he didn't even snarl at a single beaver."

Is there anything more foolish than a woman's vanity? By the romantic glow of candlelight in the Beaver Club, who would have noticed the tiny holes in a vagabond's dress. Worst of all, my mouth is still watering for a shish kabob and six months must pass before another conference.

More Efficient Service For License and Permit Renewals

HALIFAX—Hon. G. I. Smith, Minister of Highways for Nova Scotia, said recently that people will find a more efficient and faster service when they apply for licence and permit renewals this year.

The cost of licences and permits has been rounded off to even dollars in an effort to make change faster and more conveniently.

"The whole cost structure of permits has been changed," said Mr. Smith. "Some would cost less, others more. In nearly all cases the increase or decrease would be minor.

The cost of passenger vehicle permits are set at 300-pound increments and commercial vehicles at 500-pound increments.

"This means that all vehicles within a specified weight group will pay an amount which is the average cost within the group, roundel off to the nearest dollar."

Commercial vehicle registrations will become due January 31 instead of February 28 as in other years.

Licenses will expire on the same dates as in previous years: Chauffeurs licenses on December 31; and passenger vehicle permits and operators licences March 31.

"In 1961 the operators licenses will expire at the end of the holders' birth month. This means if a person was born in August, his 1960 license will expire at the end of August 1961.

"The changeover has been made to stagger the work load in the Registry of Motor Vehicles office and this should do away with the long lines that have been in evidence in the past," Mr. Smith said.

"He said that trailer fees have been rounded off to even dollars and on a new schedule corresponding with commercial fees. Farm truck fees have also been rounded off with the same st[illegible]ture as commercial fees except that the cost will be only one-sixth that of the commercial fe[illegible]

"The Sydney office, opened last year, will be able to issue permits and licence plates on renewal applications and on new vehicles only.

"Persons who obtained their 1959 licenses and plates at the Sydney office should apply there again this year.

"There will be no mail order at the Sydney office and all applications to be sent by mail should be directed to the Halifax office," said Mr. Smith.

"The size of licences and permits will be reduced this year. They will be small enough to fit into a billfold or wallet without having to be folded."

The physical structure of the Registry of Motor Vehicles Office has been changed so that the flow of people coming into the office will be moved toward the exit as they are being served.

A number of new machines have been installed in the office to facilitate IBM equipment which will be used for permanent recording of data on each individual who obtains a license or permit.

"This new method of recording information will tend to speed up service as will the new phsical structure of the office," Mr. Smith said.

Point Tupper Home and School

The regular monthly meeting of Point Tupper Home and School Association was held on November 17 at the school house at 8p.m. with 22 members present. In the absence of Mrs. Harold Oliver, President, the meeting was chaired by Vice-President Mrs. John H. MacNeil.

Main topic of discussion was a letter received from Dr. R. J. Chiasson, Inspector of Schools for Richmond County. Dr. Chiasson suggested that due to the poor condition of the desks in this school, the Association undertake as the project for this term the purchase of a complete set of new desks for the Primary Department. The cost of such desks would be approximately $300. A very lively debate took place on the subject. The members agreed the desks, many of which are makeshift, are in a deplorable state. However the opinion of the majority was that the Municipality should bear the cost of school furnishings and that such a purpose is outside the scope of the Home and School Assn. It was also stated that this community has borne the cost of all major improvements here other than the addition of the room built several years ago which gave a sorely needed fourth department. The community and the Home and School it was declared, have paid the cost of running water, drinking fountains, oil furnace and other such improvements and they feel that another such project is a matter for the Municipality. The result of a called vote was a substantial majority for the negative.

The meeting then unanimously moved purchase of vitamin capsules for all pupils by the Association.
