Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Poets have written inspired stanzas describing it, composers have become lyrical and natives have exaggerated about springtime in the Rockies. They needn't have, for Vancouver in April needs no exaggeration to sell tourists the idea that they gain a weather bonus to add to summer's short season by planning to visit the west coast at this time of the year.

Sure it will rain. It did the day I quickly unpacked my train case to hurry makeup repair before embarking on my first jaunt to West Vancouver. It beat a tattoo on my plastic raincape and big fat drops trickled off the edge of the hood and down the bridge of my nose. I was oblivious of this discomfort for I was enchanted with my surroundings. I watched the bus that had brought me across Lions Gate bridge disappear around a bend in the road as I started a slow climb on foot to the home of a friend.

The smell of wet earth was hauntingly familiar. I paused just for a moment to watch the red mud slither from the roots of a huge pine tree a bulldozer had recently uprooted to make room for another home. This was one of the most beautiful residential developments in all Canada. I was told British capital had been poured into the project and month after month, new homes climb higher and ever higher up Grouse Mountain.

Flowers everywhere reminded me of a quilt I once made with my grandmother's help. When the sun peeped through a wandering cloud, their bright colours were even more intense. Unbelieveable yellows and their bright blues blended with strong purples and pinks in a massive spectrum.

For an untrained mountaineer the climb left me slightly breathless and I paused a moment to perch on a huge chip off the old mountain.

It was then I noticed the little cripple boy poking at a clump of flowers with the end of one of his crutches. At first I wanted to chastise him and then I noticed he was trying to firm the earth around their roots.

"Let me help", I said as I approached the youngster, my green thumbs itching.

"Thanks, but they come popping out every time we have a heavy rain, like last night. Then my mother lets me come out of doors when it stops a little and push them back underground again", he said.

I asked him what the small flowers were and he replied in some surprise, as if all adults should know every flower that blooms, that they were Job's Tears.

When we had patted the little bulbs safely back in their bed of good earth he asked me if I knew the story of how the flowers got their name. He was so eager to tell me that I forgot my luncheon engagement and settled down with the brace on his little leg perched on the rock beside me.

In dramatic, hushed tones only a child can use when enthralled with the story he is telling, my newly found friend recalled the entire Book of Job. He told of

Point Tupper Home and School Hold Regular Monthly Meeting

The reguar monthly meeting of the Point Tupper Home and School Association was held in the school at 8 p.m. with 18 members present. The meeting was presided over by the President Mrs. Harold Oliver who opened the evening with the Home and School Prayer. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary Mrs. Patrick Bolger and the report of the Treasurer, by Mrs. Lester Swain. It was voted unanimously that the Association would, in accordance with past custom, donate $5.00 to the current Red Cross Drive. Purchase of a set of encyclopediae for the school was then discussed but it was agreed that the Books of Knowledge already in the school were of more value to elementary pupils and the matter was closed with members in agreement that such a purchase is not necessary at this time.

The President then called upon Dr. Remi Chiasson to address the meeting. Dr. Chiasson, Inspector of Schools for Richmond County has received an appointment to the Extension Department of St. Francis Xavier University, and his was his last meeting with us in his present capacity. He has been a most welcome visitor many times in the past and it is with sincere regret that we see him prepare to leave Richmond County. His contribution to education has been invaluable and he has been a staunch supporter of Home and School in the County.

Dr. Chiasson opened by speaking of two items which had recently come to his attention. First was a copy of the minutes of the first Home and School Association in Nova Scotia formed in Baddeck in 1895 from an idea brought there from the US by Alexander Graham Bell.

The second item to catch his eye, said Dr. Chiasson, was from an article in a teachers magazine. This article said we should ask ourselves this question: What can my husband and I do for the education of our children

Dr. Chiasson went on to say that it is today more important than ever that the Home and School continue the work they are doing.

The greatest satisfaction he has had in his eight years in this County was in working with the Home and School, and he said he could not have faced the problems confronting him without their support. It is his hope that the people will continue their backing and interest in Home and School, for we in this County stand at the crossroads in education. The need for rural high schools is imperative. Regional libraries are also needed, for it is ridiculous to educate children when they have no books to read. The people of Richmond County must face the problems of education and work them out. Dr. Chiasson stated that he leaves no monuments in Richmond Co. but he has tried to encourage education. There are many things he would like to see accomplished but they will come with time.

In closing he told his audience that if at some future time he received an invitation to visit Point Tupper Home and School Association he would find it very hard to resist.

The President thanked Dr. Chiasson and then on behalf of the Association, Mrs. W. G. Langley presented him with a parting gift as a token of the high esteem and personal liking in which he is held by the members of Point Tupper Home and School. In her address Mrs. Langley told him he can look back with pride at a great advance in educational standards in Richmond County under his leadership, and at the great strides made by Home and School with his assistance and strong support. She also assured him that the invitation of which he spoke will be forthcoming and of our hope that he will be able to accept.

The pupils of Grades 9 and 10 then presented an Irish reel and a lunch was served by the Refreshment Committee assisted by Grades 9 and 10. An impromtu half hour of talk with Insp. Chiasson was held before the meeting closed.

Grand River Home and School

The regular monthly meeting of Grand River Home and School Association was held in the school on April 4th at 8 p.m., President D. G. MacKay in the chair.

Mrs. Arch MacKay acted Secretary of the meeting in the absence of our regular Secretary, Mrs. Donald MacAskill.

A resolution introduced by Mrs. D.G. MacKay re the necessity of making mathematics compulsory in order to obtain a high school pass was unanimously passed by the meeting and forwarded to proper authorities.

A resolution against more lax liquor laws was unanimously passed and forwarded to the authorities of the Liquor Commission.

The President read correspondence from Mr. Belanger of the N.S. Power Commission stating that a meeting would be held in the school in the interest of Safety and Fire Prevention from el-

The Way of the Worry-Free

There's the high road and the low road. The anxious road. The fretful road. The hazardous road.

And there are those who think of all of these when they plan to go from here to there.

Ask the venturer who leaves his car behind why he rides with Canadian National Railways. Invariably you will find his reason — it's the way of the worry-free.

Luxury, restfulness. Quiet and roomy comfort. All of these are there.

But beyond these is assurance.

It is this, contracted with the teeming and relentless traffic of today's highways, that is making a growing number of motorists say — "When it's over 100 miles, I take the train."

WEEKLY REPORT FROM THE Legislature

By EARL URQUHART

This will be the fifth and last report from the Legislature, because it is now expected that the Legislature will prorogue either Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Since you received my last report, the activities of the House have been devoted solely to a discussion of the Estimates for the various departments of Government. In all departments of Govednment the Estimates for the coming year have shown an increase over the previous year. As a matter of fact, the budget for the current fiscal year amounts to the staggering sum of slightly over 93 Million Dollars. It is interestng to note that the last Liberal budget was approximately 60 Million Dollars, which reveals that the Conservatives now have 50 per cent more revenue to spend than did the last Liberal administration. Certainly any Government, even though it is inefficient and incompetent, as this government is, should have produced really worthwhile public services for the people of Nova Scotia, without increased taxation.

Each Minister, as he presented his Estimates, was asked whether or not he accepted the recommendations made for the re-organization of the Department by the Jerome Bornum Associates, the expensive American consultants, who cost this province $1,000 a day. With the sole exception of the Minister of Highways, each and every Minister stated that he had not put the Barnum recommendations into effect, and indeed, some Ministers indicated to the House that the findings of the Barnum people were incorrect, and this was especially true in Agriculture.

It is apparent to all that the expenditure of half a million dollars in fees to the Barnum Associates was a waste of money in view of the fact that their analysis of the working of Responsible Government as we know it was neither practical nor desirable in most instances.

Amendments to the Workmen's Act provide for increased benefits for a broadening of the basis of grating new pensions in the future. It should be noted here that the Workmen's Compensation Act was originally passed by a Liberal Government in 1915, over the opposition of the Conservative Members of the House of Assembly of that day. The amendments which were passed last year and those of this year embodied the recommendations of Judge Alex H. McKinnon, who headed the Royal Commission on the Workmen's Compensation Act. Judge McKinnon was a Minister of Labour in former Liberal administrations.

By the end of this week all the Estimates were completed with the exception of the Premier's Estimates on Education and the Capital Estimates, which had to be held over until the tail-end of the Session, due to the Premier's absence all this week in England.

Legislature Report

He travelled to Great Britain as a guest of T.C.A. on its inaugural flight instituting direct service between Halifax and LLondon.

This Session, from the Government's point of view, has not been very productive for the people of Nova Scotia, with the exception of the improved social welfare measures which include additional Workmen's Compensation benefits, and the granting of benefits under social assistance to those who were totally and permanently disabled who did not qualify for the disability pension. In general, it can be said the Session was a routine one, with the Government, on every occasion, endeavouring to make political capital out of its past performance and its new legislative measures.

The Premier, during the Throne Speech Debate, gave a purely political speech, and created a precedent in the House by turning his Budget Speech into a highly controversial political speech.

This was a new departuse in our House of Assembly, because the Budget Speech and the Reply thereto by the Opposition, have hitherto been factual and straight-forward, non-political addresses.

Since all the speeches of the Cabinet Ministers were laced with political over-tones, more so than in other years, it leads us to the conclusion that an election is in the offing. Whether it comes in the Spring or in the Fall, we feel that the record of the Liberal Party and its statements of policy for the future will, once again, commend themselves to the electorate of this province.

Job's wealth and large family which were all taken from him at the heght of his power. "When Job had lost everything he held dear, his faith in God was sorely tried", related the child precociously in phraseology far beyond his years. His round eyes fairly popped as he related Job's struggle and how, when the Lord blessed him for his sustained faith, Job put his head in his hands and cried with joy. "His tears fell on the earth and flowers grew where they were. My granny says that for centuries Job's Tears have multiplied in anyone's garden who believes in God", said the boy.

The tale was finished and the little lad hopped down from the rock and started to hobble toward his house. Then he turned and came back to where I was standing. "I think you should have some of Job's Tears. I am sure they will grow for you." With the tip of his crutch he pried out a little clump and wrapped them carefully in a tissue from my pocket. Will they grow in my garden? I am sure they will, for the faith of a little child renewed mine and gave it more meaning at this resurrection season.
