Do You Remember When?

BY OLD TIMER

A further memorandum from the Archives in Ottawa informs me that Arichat was a Customs House Port by 1786, but the actual date of its establishment as such is not known. This corrects the former information I had.

The Collectors of Customs before 1855 were as follows:

George Moore 1786—1813.
John Jean (not M.O. Jean as previously stated) . 1813—1848
George E. Jean 1848—1850.
A.F. Forbes 1851—1854.

One ship was omitted from the list of vessels built at Arichat: the CLARA & AGNES, launched in 1869. A two-masted brigantine, 244.50 tons. This changes the no. of vessels to 31, the total tonnage to 3,590 tons, the average tonnage to 156 and the no. of brigantines to 10.

Continuing the shipping registry:

$85,000 Sales Increase For Isle Madame Fishermen's Co-Op.

In his report to the general membership of the Isle Madame Fishermen's Co-Operative, Petit de Grat, Mr. John F. Samson, Manager, reported sales increases in both the grocery department and fishery department totalling $85,000 for a total business volume of $365,400. for the fiscal year ending December 31st. 1959. The fourth annual meeting of this producer-consumer co-operative was held in the parish hall, Petit de Grat, on Thursday, Apr. 21st., with Mr. Lubin Boudreau, presiding and Mr. Alphonse Landry as Secretary.

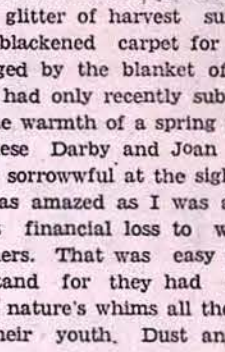

The fisheries department business was discussed during the afternoon session with approximately fifty fishermen from Petit de Grat and neighbouring communities in attendance. A message of congratulations, encouragement and caution was delivered by Mr. J.H. MacKichan, Gen. Manager, United Maritime Fishermen Limited, Halifax. At this session three directors were elected for a three-year term. These were: Mr. Amedee LeBlanc, Arichat; Mr. Benedict David, Little Anse, both re-elected and Mr. Theophile Samson, Petit de Grat, elected.

A large number of men and women attended the evening session of the grocery department of this fishermen's co-operative. At this session the emphasis was centered on the financing of the organizatio by the membership, the pursuing of a 'cash trading' policy and the continued support of the Co-op Label program. A 4 per cent patronage rebate was recommended by the Board of Directors and approved by the membership present. A portion of the surplus in the fisheries department was rebated to the fishermen and the balance, less

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Both elderly people had been fairly effervescing with excitement when they boarded the train at Winnipeg. Their joy was catching. In no time at all most of the passengers in the roomette car I occupied knew they were celebrating their Golden Wedding anniversaryy

While the transcontinental train clickity-clacked across the prairie, they told me a fascinating tale of pioneer days. Their reminiscences were inspired by the sight of acres of devastation caused, last fall, by an early blizzard. The ripened wheat, which had waved its golden glory in a glitter of harvest sunlight, lay blackened carpet for miles, ravaged by the blanket of snow that had only recently submitted to the warmth of a spring thaw.

These Darby and Joan types were sorrowwful at the sight, but not as amazed as I was at this great financial loss to western farmers. That was easy to understand for they had tussled with nature's whims all the years of their youth. Dust and hail storms, drought and frost had many times dampened their spirits and fractured their bank account, but never their enthusiasm for, or faith in, that flat rich land they had chosen to conquer.

Now his head rested lightly on her shoulder and little puffs of breath fluttered the handlebar mustache in rhythm with his gentle snores. In her lap she held his right hand in hers, while her topknot of silky white hair nodded above his sleeping profile.

As they dozed I tried to imagine how those masculine hands had brought their six children into the world without benefit of either midwife or doctor; how they had guided horse-drawn ploughs in spring and stooked grain for threshing in the fall, had made fagots of straw to stoke the stove in their one-room shack by winter and tilled a small kitchen garden through the blazing heat of summer afternoons.

I was in a romantic daze of yesteryear imagery when there was a muffled scream, "Harry, wake up, my teeth are gone."

"Great Scott, Dolly, it used to be your glasses I was always a-huntin'; now it's your new store teeth", said the gentleman, shaking off his slumber and fumbling in his vest pocket for his own glasses. For all his blustery mood, he was gentle in his questioning of where and when she had last seen the dentures.

In some one of her books, Cornelia Otis Skinner once wrote that she attracted incidents as inevitably as a blue serge skirt attracts lint. My trouble is, that I can never figure out whether I attract the incidents, or they attract me; for it wasn't long before I, too, was involved in the hunt for the missing pearlies.

I crawled on all fours up and down the aisle of the car searching and warning all passengers who entered en route to the diner to tread lightly. "Dolly" was sure the lost plates were in her lap when she dozed off. Surely they must have bounced away when the train lurched, she contended. But for all our hunting with the porter's flashlight under car seats and baggage, nary a bicuspid came to light.

When I had just about made up my mind her beloved would have to cut the bride's food into small bits so that she could gum her victuals for the rest of their belated honeymoon, there was a victorious howl. "Harry" had found her teeth carefully wrapped in a facial tissue and stuffed into the soiled towel receptable. I could hear his lecture of remonstrance and advice on the proper care and usage of a set of false teeth as I left for the lounge car.

The incident did not alter the admiration I had gained for this mite of a woman. I discovered she was of noble birth and had come to Canada from her native Ireland to marry this adventuresome Englishman. Our country Is a fine heriage for today's youth because women of her calibre struggled with great vats of hot lard and ashes to make soap; drew water for domestic use for miles by stone boat from sloughs and vanishing spring freshets and undertook to educate their children before the advent of one-room prairie schools.

This tale she told sounded almost too much like fiction to be real, until one caught a glimpse of the lines in the couple's interesting faces and saw their hands so gnarled from hard work. These

MOTHER' DAY—SUCCESS AND DEFEAT

Miss Anna Jarvis was the prime mover in establishing Mother's Day. During the period of mourning following her mother's death in 1905, she conceived the idea of establishing a Mother's Day for everybody, reports the May issue of Reader's Digest.

From her home in Philadelphia she conducted one of the strangest and most effective letter-writing campaigns in history. She wrote to anyone with any influence and received such tremendous response that she had to devote her time wholly to her crusade. Her own house was too small to serve as an office so she bought the house next door for additional space. She was invited to visit other cities and speak to various organizations about her plan. She wrote and published booklets about her idea and distributed them free of charge. The fact that her inheritance was dwindling away never bothered her.

U.S. President Woodrow Wilson signed the proclamation day in May, the anniversary of which urged that the second Sunher mother's death, be observed as Mother's Day. But this was not enough for Anna. She wanted the Day to be international and she was successful. During her lifetime Canada and 42 other countries adopted Mother's Day.

But Anna's triumphs were mixed with frustrations. Her Day was being commercialized by individuals and organizations who had found a way to make money out of it. Soon she was writing in despair to hundreds of newspapers complaining that she wanted Mother's Day to be a day of sentiment, not one of profit. She despised manufacturers of greeting cards, candy, and others who were exploiting her Day. She regarded- florists as her principal enemies; they were profiting from her mother's favorite flower, the white carnation.

By now the money Anna had inherited was gone. Suddenly she locked herself up with her sister in their home and refused to see anybody. She died in 1948, terribly bitter that she had ever started Mother's Day.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

A Visit From An Old Friend

Recently we were delighted to have a visit from Assistant Commissioner, Anthony MacKinnon, R.C.M.P., who is now residing in Halifax , after spending several years in Ottawa, as Assistant Commissioner in that city.

Prior to joining the R.C.M.P., he was engaged in the Preventive Service of the Canadian Customs. At that time he was stationed in North Sydney. Commissioner MacKinnon, will be remembered in Cape Breton, for the role he played in the Preventive Service, and the many daring seizures he made along the coast, during the years when smuggling was a profitable business, for those who were lucky enough to land a cargo not detected by the Canadian Customs.

Devoted to duty, his advancement in the ranks of the R.C.M.P. is most deserving and in conversation with our good friend, Tony, the other day, we had something in common to talk about, because, we, too, were connected in a small way to the Preventive Service, of the Canadian Customs while Commissioner MacKinnon was at that time in Cape Breton, and we always found in him a good officer and one whe was ever ready to help in guiding his fellow officers in the Service. His example set a record and the result of his strong character won for him a high rank in Canada's noted police force.

We hope some day, when we have gathered up more material we will bring a story on the happenings of "The Rum Running Days" off the Cape Breton Coast.

This was the first time we had a visit from Commissioner MacKinnon in over 30 years, and we regretted that his stay was so short.

Gustave Bouchard

The sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Bouchard and family in the passing of their beloved son, Gustave, who passed away at St. Anne's Hospital, here on Monday, April 18th, at the early age of 16 years.

Gustave was a popular boy with his many comrades, his friendly and happy disposition won for him many friends.

In failing health for some time, Gustave never complained of his illness. He was a patient for some time a few years ago at the Children's Hospital, Halifax, and returned home much improved in health and attended school and took part in sports in the Isle Madame Squadron of the R.C.A.F.

Suffering from a rheumatic condition, he took an attack while attending St. Joseph's University, Moncton, N.B., and was patient at Hotel Dieu, Hospital, in that city.

Gustave was an altar boy at Notre Dame Church here and was very religious and attentive in his duty.

God has called him to service in His Kingdom. His memory shall linger in the hearts and minds of his bereaved parents, brothers and sisters, as well as his aged grandmother, Mrs. Mary Boutin.

Surviving besides his parents are two sisters, Mrs. William Jardine and Miss Celine Bouchard, Halifax, three brothers, AB Conrad Bouchard, RCN, Halifax, Wilfred and Robert at home.

The funeral was held from Church of the Assumption with Very Rev. A.P. Poirier, pastor officiating at the solemn high mass. Rev. Poirier was assisted by Rev. Albert Doucet, deacon and Rev. C.P. Gerrior, sub-deacon, and Alysius Boudreau as master of ceremonies. Cadets of No. 678 Squadron marched in a body in command of E.L. Power and Adrien Bourque. Pall bearers were Richard Acton, Arthur LeBlanc, Edgar DeCoste, Bernard Marchand and Ralph Theriault.

Brother Ulysse LeBlanc, CSC, St. Joseph's University, Moncton, attended the funeral.

Funeral was in charge of C.A. Boucher, funeral director of Arichat.

Sympathy is being extended to the bereaved family. Mass Cards, sympathy cards and wreaths testify to the esteem of the deceased.
