SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

It's not exactly a dull world we live in, with its wars and rumors of wars, its rockets and spacemen, its horror movies and delinquent children, its constant threat of annihilation. No, you couldn't exactly call it a dull world.

But don't you occasionally become heartily sick of stories about the trouble in Laos and the trouble in Africa and the trouble in Cuba? Don't you become a trifle weary of the never-ending stream of pronouncements from the Americans and the Russians, every one sounding exactly like the last one?

Don't you get a little fed up with the endless flow of articles about outer space? Don't you sometimes wish they would just skin Eichmann alive, or turn him loose and be done with it? And don't you wish that, once in a while, they'd stop playing bongo in the Congo?

Sometimes I become so bored with the monotony of our daily fare of science, murder, violence and hatred, that I'm driven to reading the used car ads and the real estate ads, for some light entertainment.

• • • •

It isn't the fault of our newspaper people and our television newscasters, I guess. They do a conscientious job, on the whole, and make a desperate effort to extract some sense from the sound and fury that make up our world.

But they simply can't keep the stuff continually alive and vital for us. We've had too much of it. We're saturated. After a week of watching the greatest comedian in the world, we'd be yawning until the tears spurted.

Few of us could listen to even such great talents as Elvis Presley for more than 10 or 12 hours at a stretch. People who are interested in bird-watching don't necessarily want pigeon pie for every meal.

And that's what is wrong with the ordinary Gus or Gert. That's why our keen, intelligent Canadian housewives read the slightly vicious columns by young women who offer advice to the love-lorn, rather than the latest from Laos. That's why the cream of our Canadian manhood may be found with its head buried in the comics or sports page, rather than the editorial page.

We all know we SHOULD be concerned over China, riled about Russia, upset with the U. S., browned off with Britain, vexed with Venezuela and having connipications over Cuba.

• • • •

But we can't do it. We're pulverized with world affairs, after two decades of war, hot and cold, bombs, atom and hydrogen, and wind, mostly hot. Even the first story about a landing on the moon will likely elicit no more than a bored "And about time, too." from us.

This was the frame of mind I was getting into lately, and I had almost ceased to use the daily paper for anything more than swatting bees and wrapping garbage.

But I was saved by a couple of stories in the newspapers that revived my faith in human nature, and in the world as an interesting place to live, not merely a grim and gloomy sphere whirling about in the dust of man's destiny.

The first story contained a statement from a Mr. Samuel Shenton, secretary of the Flat Earth Society. He said flatly that these astronauts—Gagarin of Russia and Shepard of the U. S.—could not go into orbit, because there is no such thing.

If Gagarin thought the earth was round, during his satellite trip, said Mr. Shenton, he was simply repeating an error mankind has been making ever since Columbus. He added: "Humanity has been brain-washed by scientists into the round earth theory."

Well, all I can say is: "That's telling them, Mr. Shenton." More power to you and the Flat Earth Society. For years, we've been swallowing everything the scientists tell us, without a question.

I've never been convinced, myself, of that story about the earth being round, and I'm glad to see some healthy scepticism about it. And if the earth is warmed by the sun, how come it's so cold in winter? And what became of the Garden of Eden? And why are women so hard to get along with?

You see? The scientists have been telling us a lot of stuff about light rays and neutrons, but they shy away from the important things.

• • •

The second story to cheer me up was the one about the teen-agers at Blind River. As they pulled away from a service station, the attendant saw a human hand kicking out of the trunk of the car. He alerted police and they threw up road-blocks all over the place.

They nabbed the young men, but couldn't find the body. The lads were fined for creating a public mischief. That stunt tickled me, though I'm not keen on practical jokes.

Then I thought of the day a friend and I were out trout fishing, recently. We stood, up to our breast-bones in ice water, in the middle of a vast swamp created by a beaver dam. We couldn't tell whether we were fishing in the stream, or just in flooded fields. And we were happy as pigs, calling quietly to each other that "this is the life."

As long as people are still able to deny that the earth is round, to pretend that they have a body in the trunk of the car, and to delude themselves into fishing where no trout has ever trod, there's hope for the old, news-weary world.

A well attended meeting took place at the Knights of Columbus No. 4607 at West Arichat recently. The feature of the evening was an address by Mr. A. J. Saulnier, Inspector of Schools, who explained the new regional High School set-up for Richmond County. The

Home and School Reports From Richmond County Associations

HOME AND SCHOOL MEETING LITTLE ANSE

The eighth regular monthly meeting of Little Anse Home and School Association was held on the evening of April 23.

After adoption of the minutes of the previous meeting and the Treasurer's report, a letter from Mr. Donald Stone concerning the organization of a campaign for The Mental Health Society was read. Mrs. Idella Samson and Mrs. Bertha Mae Martell volunteered to act as house to house collectors for this worthy cause following a brief talk and considerable discussion of the subject.

The question of Regional High Schools was also touched upon as this was just prior to a special meeting to be held in that regard. Several questions on the topic were put forward and discussed.

After deciding on the date of the next regular and the annual meeting the gathering adjourned with The Queen.

The ninth meeting of Little Anse Home and School Association opened with the singing of O Canada. This meeting was a short one dealing chiefly with unfinished business to be followed by the annual meeting.

The chief items of new business concerned the appointing of delegates to Spring Council, arranging transportation for the delegates and the voting of twenty dollars for a treat for the pupils at the end of the school term.

I was reported that thirty-three dollars and fifty cents had been collected for The Mental Health Society.

After this the meeting adjourned and the annual meeting began.

Reports of standing committees were given and the annual financial statement was adopted as audited.

Retiring president, Mr. Anthony Samson, gave a very thorough report thanking every one who had helped in making the Association a success during his term of office.

During his report the Education Convener stated that the pupils had saved approximately five hundred dollars during the year. "The acquiring of a sense of thrift and the learning of money management is a very important phase of practical education," he said. A branch of St. Joseph's Credit Union has been in operation in our school for the past decade and during that time the pupils have saved several thousand dollars.

The election of officers followed. Mrs. Rose-Anna Benoit was elected president and Mr. Anthony Samson was chosen as Program Convener. All other officers were re-elected.

With hopes for continued success, meeting adjourned with The Queen.

HOME AND SCHOOL MEETING GRAND RIVER

The Grand River Home and School Association met on June 7 with Gillis MacKay acting as chairman in the unavoidable absence of John Cameron.

There were 6 members present and two guests.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

Mrs. Angus J. Morrison was appointed secretary for 1961-62 but appointment of the other officers was deferred to the fall due to small attendance.

A discussion took place as to possible projects for the coming year; and bills for tuning the school piano and conveyance of Home and School members to Spring council session at D'Escousse were ordered paid; also the entrance fee for Grand River school children to the music festival which was held at St. Peter's.

It was decided to hold a salmon supper on July 14. A meeting to make arrangements for same was scheduled for Monday, July 3rd.

Following adjournment, refreshments were served and the meeting closed with "The Queen".

ST. PETER'S HOME AND SCHOOL

At the May meeting of the St. Peter's Home and School Association, a cheque for Fifty Dollars from the East Local Richmond County Teachers' Union was presented by the President, Miss Margaret Madden to Mrs. Paul White, Chairman of the Richmond County Music Festival Committee. Miss Madden stated that it was the wish of the East Local members that this donation go toward obtaining adjudicators for the coming Music Festivals.

Miss Euphemia Oliver, Grade XI student at St. Peter's one of two Guides chosen to represent Nova Scotia at a Girl Guides' Meet at British Columbia last summer, gave a most vivid description of her month long trip. Representatives of 1st Company St. Peter's Girl Guides were present at the meeting to hear Euphemia's interesting talk.

Mrs. Katherine MacRae, President of the Association, read a letter received from Mr. Wilfred Higgins, Executive Secretary, Nova Scotia Federation of Home and School Associations, congratulating the St. Peter's Association for increasing its membership above the 20 percent objective.

Mrs. Justin MacKenzie, Mrs. Allister Calder and Mrs. Steve Nodge were appointed delegates to attend the spring meeting of Richmond County Council of Home and School Associations to be held on May 31st at D'Escousse. Miss Margaret Madden, Teacher Representative, and Mrs. Katherine MacRae, President, will also be in attendance.

Reports from Chairman of various committees revealed that a varied program of excellent Home and School work had been carried on throughout the term.

In order to try to impress upon the pupils the necessity of observing safety rules in operating bicycles, it was decided to endeavor to obtain a film on this topic.

A Fanry Sale to raise funds was planned for June 2nd.

"The Aylesford Maidens", which has been produced by the CBC in Halifax and in Toronto and by the BBC in England as well as in stage versions in several Maritime centres, was the choice of the Grade XII class of St. Peter's High School, when they presented their annual play, recently, in the school auditorium. The author, Miss Kay Hill, of Halifax, has based her play on a true incident in Nova Scotia history. The action takes place in a country rectory, near Aylesford, in 1835. The optional title, "Three to Get Married", refers to the parson's three daughters and their efforts to find husbands, when their father opens his home to travellers on the Windsor Road. The father, the Rev. Horatio Dogberry, was played by Dan Doyle, the three daughters, by Ann Morgan, Clara Hayes and Gwen O'Melia. The spinster aunt was played by Selina Burke and three prospective husbands, by Blair Landry, Wayne Ross and Kelvin Digout. Bill Proctor provided a humorous part as Otto Leedrebaum and Paul Hureau was a hit as a dry, shrewd countryman. The play was introduced by Ian MacAskill and in charge of preparations and staging were Christine MacKay, Barbara MacLeod and Ernest Langley. Assisting Mrs. Helen Gogen in the production was Mr. Jack Adams.

Three special acts added to the evening performance were a duet by Sylvia and Mary Adams, a stepdance by Muriel MacNamara and a Highland Schottische by three couples, Grace Doyle, Sylvia Adams, Norma Morrison, Gary Campbell, Joe Stone and Lionel Owens.

The proceeds from the afternoon and evening performances will be used for the annual High School trip to a mainland centre.

NEW VESSEL FOR CN SERVICE — MV Petite Forte glides down the ways of the Saint John Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company into Courtenay Bay. The 173-foot, twin-screw vessel was built by the Saint John company for the federal Department of Transport, and will be used by Canadian National Railways in its Newfoundland coastal service. The Petite Forte was launched by Mrs. Hugh John Flemming, wife of the federal Forestry Minister. The sleek vessel has diesel propulsion totalling 2,200 brake horsepower, a speed of 13 knots and can carry 77 passengers and crew members. (CN Photo)

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Tete A Tete

We were celebrating, my friend and I, his recent promotion. We chose one of those metropolitan bistros the author, Brendan Behan, in a critical mood described as being so dark one needed a seeing eye dog to find one's way to a table, and a menu in Braille to choose between a sirloin steak at $4.25 and a chicken pattie at much less.

Yuri Gargarin had just been the guest of God as he rode the skyway aboard the spaceship, Vostok. We were both rather astonished at how little excitement this feat had created, outside of Russia, in "the man on the street". We decided that amazing things have been happening so regularly since the first Sputnik was put into orbit, that the human race takes almost every event as casually as its members would a ride on the subway.

My friend, who was too young to serve with the armed forces in the last war, remarked that only the second coming of Christ or an atomic war could really jar members of his generation into a state of wonderment.

• • •

What Price Victory

We dwelt a while on the subject of space travel trying to analyse for our own satisfaction what, other than a political advantage, had been gained by the Russians. The world is well aware of the fact enormous effort and wealth was poured into developing a heavy thrust rocket but at what cost? What about the people of that vast country? Are they benefiting from this space race? What about farm production, has it improved, has their way of life become more pleasant or have they paid too high a price for their country's success in space?

The idea sat like a cold dumpling in the pit of my stomach. We tried to change the subject to reviewing the possibilities for creative accomplishment his new job offered, but because it is related to communiciations I couldn't help remarking about an article I had read only the day before. It was interesting for it recalled an event which had happened long before I was born.

This was the International Parliamentary Chess Match played in 1897 by cable between the legislative bodies of the United States House of Representatives and the British House of Commons. It is hard to comprehend in this age of rapid communications such as radio, TV or the CNR's Telex, the interest and excitement this event caused little more than 60 years ago. Communications of its kind between the two continents were then very recent innovations. Neither country lost face; the game proved to be a draw.

Our eyes had become accustomed to the dim lighting in the cafe and the glance we exchanged was one of understanding. It seemed to say "may the present race for supremacy in the universe end in a draw."

A cosmonaut's adventure, revolution in Cuba, the debacle of French generals in Algiers having all been well thrashed out, our luncheon chit chat discovered another morsel of mental fodder. This was the recent visit to Toronto of Mitsuo Fuchida, only surviving Japanese officer who participated in the bombing of Pearl Harbour. This man, who spent 25 years in the unhappy undertaking and contemplation of war, is devoting what remains of his life to preaching the gospel of the Prince of Peace. His conversion to Christianity he explained to a reporter was attributable to two things; he was miraculously spared six times from tragic death and into his hands fell a religious tract which impressed him because it had been distributed in Japan by an American who was captured and tortured.

WANTED-- MORE EMPLOYERS

Unemployment continues to be the number one problem in Canada. There is only one solution to it: more employers— more stores, farms, corporations, factories, oil fields, mines and the rest, able to employ men and women to do the work of the world.

All sorts of schemes are devised to try to help the unemployed. They are not and cannot be satisfactory. Men want to earn their way. Besides, no country can prosper by subsidizing enforced idleness year after year.

Unemployment has a cause. Those who would like to hire men and women for useful occupations can not afford to do so. Housewives would like to have domestic help; farmers nearly all need or could use a hired hand to good purpose; manufacturers, the largest employers of all,, would be reaching out hungrily for more manpower if they could sell their products at present prices.

The problem bothers all political parties. Yet none will face up to the cause-- because to enable employers to engage more help, tax rates would have to be reasonable. Political parties have all committed themselves to such heavy social welfare spending that they are afraid to suggest lower tax rates. Most politicians are so afraid to offend labor union leaders that they will not speak the truth about wages getting out of line with productivity.

I think the present government sees the problem and knows what the solution is. They have to face the voters, though, and they fear that the measures they should take are economically sound but politically unpopular.

In short, what is now required is statesmanship of a high order. Politicians should do what they know to be right. They should have faith that there are enough sensible Canadians who will, in due course, endorse such action. Employers must be given a chance to grow. Today, the government takes about half of all corporate profits of major enterprises. This means there isn't enough money generated to ensure growth or encourage investment.

If tax rates were reduced, unemployment would soon cease to be our number one problem.

Scenic and Historic Annapolis Valley

One of the most famous apple-growing districts in the world, Nova Scotia's lovely Annapolis Valley, has equally far flung fame for its beauty and history.

Ghosts of the illustrious and tragic walk the streets of the tree-shaded valley towns. Names such ac Champlain, de Monts, de la Tour and Evangeline are part of the story of the valley.

It was here that history began in North America, and it is this district that was made immortal as Longfellow's land of Evangeline.

The little village of Port Royal was the site of the first permanent white settlement north of Florida. An exact replica of the first habitation built by Champlain occupies the very spot that held the first building.

Social, industrial and cultural life of North America began at Port Royal. The first social club in North America—The Order of the Good Time—was organized here; the first converts to Christanity in North America were made here; the first vessel launched in North America was launched here; and the first North America drama was written and staged here.

WEDDING BELLS

CALDER—LATIMER

A wedding of widespread interest took place, at Notre Dame Church here, on May 6th, when Very Rev. A. P. Poirier, united in marriage at 9 o'clock Mass, Emily Latimer, daughter of George Latimer, and the late Mrs. Latimer, to Clarence Calder, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Calder of St. Peter's.

The bride looked lovely in a floor length white dress with sequins and rhinestones, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Billy Latimer.

The bridesmaid Mrs. Claire Hull, a sister of the bride, wore a blue knee-length dress with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The groom was supported by John Dan MacDonald.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride to 60 invited guests. In attendance at the reception were Very Rev. A. P. Poirier and Rev. Father MacDougoll. Father Poirier proposed a toast to the bride which was responded to by the groom.

Father MacDougall of St. Peter's Parish, also extended his congratulations and good wishes to the young couple.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cotton of Judique; Mr. and Mrs. Hector MacKenzie of Baddeck; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Latimer of Sydney and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Oliver of Point Tupper.

We join with their many friends in wishing this young couple a long and happy wedded life.

When the Census Taker calls please be ready with the answers he needs

Every household in Canada is being sent a list of questions the Census Taker will ask. Please study it and be prepared to answer all the questions or leave the answers with someone who will be at home when the Census Taker calls.

What will you be asked? Questions such as: what is your age and schooling; are you employed and what is your exact job title; how many hours do you usually work each week; in how many weeks did you work for wages or salary in the last 12 months; what were your earnings in the last 12 months?

All information is kept strictly confidential and by law is not available to any private organization or person, or any government department or agency other than the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Census is interested only in totals accumulated for all parts of Canada.

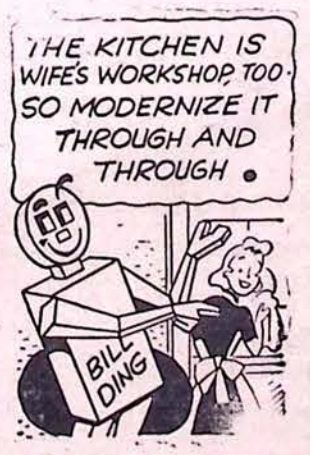

When the Census Taker calls, welcome him with your co-operation. Everyone will benefit when you help Canada count!

No Monopoly

It may be many years before a Godless nation is touched by the same inspiration that has converted a member of our one-time enemy country. It was rather revealing that this man had been accepted and welcomed here in Canada and in the United States, so few years after that memorable wartime disaster.

Rather a profound thought to masticate with a piece of French pastry was the realization that as sure as God made little apples, He also provided the knowledge that has given man the means of escaping his earthly bonds and of showing forgiveness and compassion. No one can possibly argue that a single nation has a monopoly on God-inspired scientific know-how, nor can it conquer the world through fear.

The young man sitting opposite me dipped up a spoonful of coffee, dropped a cube of sugar in the small brown pool of liquid and watched it slowly dissolve before adding the spoonful to his cup again. Prophetic? I think so. It is young men of his calibre and generation with their toes digging into the upward climb in the competitive field who must have the diplomacy to help sweeten the bitter brew of international strife.

MARKED GAS

These interested in buying marked gas after June 1, have been urged by the Nova Scotia Registry of Motor Vehicles to submit applications for certificates, that will be required for such purchases, as quickly as possible.

Officials said recently only 7,000 applications have been received and processed. Officials said a large number of applications will probably be received between now and the end of the month, and they urged purchasers to get their applications in quickly and avoid possible delay in receiving their certificates.

Application forms are available from gas wholesalers, retailers who sell marked gas and from the registry of motor vehicles. Some 50,000 applications have been distributed to gas wholesalers and retailers throughout the province.

Registry of motor vehicles officials said the new system that will go into effect June 1, is aimed at finding out how much marked gas is used in the province; what it is used for; and to eliminate the purchasing of marked gas by unauthorized individuals and other misuses.

Those filing applications will be issued with a book of 20 prepunched and prenumbered certificates. One of these certificates must be filled out and turned over to the gas retailer or wholesaler with each purchase.

Each book of tickets will contain an application for additinal certificates. This application should be filled in and returned to the registry of motor vehicles 20 days before the additional certificates are needed.

CANADIAN NATIONAL FERRIES SUMMER SCHEDULE

Canadian National Railways Northumberland Strait ferries will commence their summer schedule on Friday June 16.

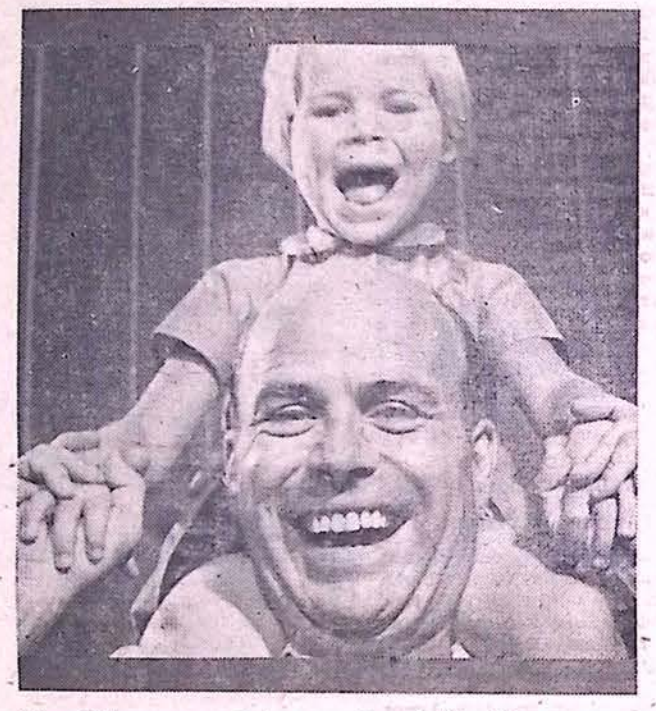

Instead of 10 daily crossings, the ferries will be making 20. On June 30 they will commence a tourist schedule of 28 daily trips.

The expanded schedules are designed to provide better service for tourists and visitors planning a jaunt to Prince Edward Island.

How do I save?

When it comes to saving here's a trick worth knowing. Avoid writing cheques against your Savings Account. Impossible? Not at all! Open a Personal Chequing Account at the "Royal".

Use this account for paying bills. Keep your Savings Account strictly for saving. The bank calls this the 2-Account Plan — a sure-fire way to save. It makes sense. Give it a try.

DOUBLED IN A DECADE

The amount spent by Canada's electrical manufacturing industry on raw materials in a year (467-million in 1959)) has doubled in 10 years.
