SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

By Jove there's nothing like a spot of real, old-fashioned Canadian winter, what? Well, is there? What's that you say? You'll take the Bomb? Oh, come, my dear fella, that's no attitude.

We've had a delightful taste of it here. Thirty-six inches, a solid yard of the deep and crisp and even during the past week, and I must say, I rejoice in it. It's just a dashed shame that it can't be spread around a bit more. Here we are revelling in it and some of those poor devils in the unfortunate bottom end of the country haven't had more than an inch of it. Makes some feel rather selfish.

There's something about winter that gets me, right here (you'll have to use your imagination). Once the decadence of the holiday season is behind us, we hardy, rugged, virile Canadians can get down to some real living. Right? That's why we're so much cheerier and healthier and better-looking than those soft, southern races. Right?

o * o

Oh, winter has its little annoyances, just as summer does. As I shovelled out my driveway for the fifth time in five days, a still, small voice within me enquired, "Why didn't that thick-headed Irish grandfather of yours emigrate to Australia?"

But that is counteracted by the fun of winter driving. There's a dash to it, a good fellowship about it, that makes it more of a game than a chore. For example; the other day I started for work as usual. It was snowing. The hill was slippery, so I decided to go the long way around.

An hour and twenty minutes later I arrived at work. But it was worth it. Pushing and being pushed, I had met some of the friendliest people you could find. I had seen two dandy accidents. And though I had been forced to abandon my car half a mile further from work than where I'd started, I had the pleasure of mushing up the long hill with two charming ladies breaking trail for me. That's more than Sir Edmund Hilary had when he climbed Mount Everest.

o * o

There are lots of other joyous experiences in our wholesome Canadian winter, but I think it's our winter sports that make me feel more alive than anything else. You should hear me humming with pure pleasure as I rub the wax on young Kim's toboggan before sending her off for a jolly afternoon on the hill.

And I fairly quiver with excitement when young Hugh and I head out for the ski slopes. It's such a colorful, lively sport! The gaily-clad skiers with their bright-hued sweaters and sparkling white leg casts. The scarlet of blood against snow. The cheery moans of those with freshly-torn cartilages.

But the real thrill is careening down the big hill as gracefully as a gull, as light as a dart in a windstorm. I could watch him all afternoon, but it's sort of lonely, sitting there in the car, and besides, I have to get home and shovel out the front walk. We don't use it ourselves, but the postman complained this week. Said it was coming over the tops of his rubber boots.

Another great sport beckons at the curling rink. So it's on with the sweater and tam, grab the broom, and off to the club. It gets pretty hot sitting around there playing cribbage and all that stuff, with a big wool sweater on, but it's the atmosphere that counts.

There are so many other wonderful winter sports that it's difficult to take them all in. There's this great new golf series. Saturday afternoon television. That takes up a lot of time. And Saturday night there's the daddy of them all — the hockey game. No, no, not the one down at the rink. The one that oil company sponsors.

Nob ody but a real, red-booded Canadian would have the zest for living that all

The funeral took place from Notre Dame Church of which he was a devout member.

Very Rev. A. P. Poirier, was celebrant at the Mass and also conducted the service at the grave.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Love Thy Neighbour

Living in a small community is like a marriage- it is "for better or for worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness or in health"- you either fail in your human relationships, or you gain immeasurably because of them.

We moved to our small villag during the first year of the last world war. We had read a book describing how five acres could provide independence and felt secure in our venture because we had a bonus of three acres. We had visions of raising all our own needed produce, a flock of chickens and a goat for our milk supply. What greenhorns we were! We barely knew the front end of a goat from its udder and little or nothing about chickens. When the mother hen proved cannibalistic we discovered our first need of an understanding neighbour. He didn't smile and sneer down his nose "city slickers think they know it all". He just put blinkers on the mother hen and removed the half dead chicks to the warmth of a hover in his own barn.

To The Rescue

Almost within days he saved all our lives. Early one morning I heard a knock on the door and someone calling "are you all right in there?" When I jumped out of bed to assure him we were, the room swam before me and I literally staggered to the door. "Me and the wife been watchin' your chimney ever since you tore down that second storey. You weren't too careful and this morning when we didn't see any smoke I thought I'd better investigate how you all were." Before he had finished I had crumpled at his feet and he hurried into the house opening windows and doors and shaking the other sleeping members of the family.

His fears were well grounded, old bricks from our stint at demolition had fallen down the chimney and lodged in the flu. They had gradually slipped into a sooty mess preventing coal gas fumes from escaping. It took him hours to clean out the debris, but only a few moments for me to be grateful for his watchful eye.

We have lived side by side for more than 20 years. I've nursed my neighbors' children through all their childish illnesses and they in turn have comforted me through loss, sympathized with my failure at farming, shared their rations and helped with shortages of fuel and post war repair materials. My neighbor has mended my pipes, shovelled my snow, scythed my hay and shingled my roof. This fall, when the ravages of 1959 Hurricane Hazel were only beginning to be felt as the house began to sink at one corner, my neighbor was the one who noticed the slight list and offered to jack it up and cement the large crack that appeared in the foundation.

Yes, my neighbor knows a great deal about our personal life. He also very often knows what we have for dinner, for many times our tagle is laden with provender from his garden.

Are my neighbors gossipy? It is like pulling teeth to get anything from this couple who, having lived in the same neighborhood all their lives, hear all, know all and tell nothing, good, bad or sad news-- unless they think it will "do good".

I'll bet no city dweller has ever opened their front door on a misty summer morning and found flowers, still laden with dew, in a newspaper cornucopia or a basket of carrots, beets or chard, the good earth still clinging to roots, or perhaps a dish of plump raspberries or in season, the first apples. My neighbors know how much I love green apple sauce and though they must only guess at the fact, for they hate demonstration of any kind, my neighbors must know how much I love them for just being my neighbors.

HOW MANY KEEP THEIR SAVINGS IN A BANK?

Probably all of them / There are 10 million savings deposit accounts in the chartered banks, by far the most popular type. They are used by all sorts of people — wage-earners, businessmen, housewives, farmers, students — who know their money is safe, earns good interest, and is available whenever needed. And they like the efficiency and courtesy of the men and women who serve them / Your nearest branch is the place for your savings — and the one place you can do all your banking.

ANNIVERSARY PRESENT

There is a tense atmosphere around our home these days. It is my fault. I started it all, with the best intentions.

Recently we celebrated our 24th wedding anniversary, and I wanted to give Nora something special for having put up with me for all those years.

Then I had the hot flash. Nora is an extremely beautiful girl, so why not have her portrait painted, by a first-rate artist, and let that be our anniversary present?

Throwing caution to the winds, I telephoned one of Winnipeg's leading artists, and even before getting the price of the job (I was a bit too shy to start out in such a commercial tone with a real live artist), I had "commissioned" him, as they say, to do the portrait.

Nora was quite thrilled, as I had hoped she would be, but I had overlooked one fact. Ours is a house full of women -- four daughters, ranging from ten to seventeen. They are thrilled, too, and the posturing and preening that goes on around our place these days is just too much.

Nora has taken the sit-

He was born at Port Royal 68 years ago and had resided in Arichat since his marriage. Only a few years ago he purchased the dwelling of the late Joseph Petitpas.

Besides his wife he leaves to mourn two daughters and one son; Leo of Halifax; Mrs. Alphonse Marchand, (Anita), Arichat; and Edwina, of the Royal Bank staff, Arichat; also five grand-children.

Visit St. Peter's School

We had the pleasure of making a business call to St. Peter's High School, on Wednesday, and met with Mrs. Helen Gogen, Supervisor of the School, and a committee of students, to discuss plans, for the printing of a Year Book, for the High School.

We also met, Miss Margaret Maddin, Vice-Principal; Wm. MacDonald, Chemistry teacher; Mrs. MacRae, another teacher at the school and at the time of our visit our good friend, Inspector A. J. Saulnier, was on an official tour of the classes.

The year book committee are now at work and we do trust that business places will buy advertising to help defray the cost of this High School Year Book, which should contain interesting reading and photos for both the students and residents of St. Peters and surrounding districts.

We look forward to meeting the committee again to help draw up plans on layout and other details that go into printing such a book.

From Louisdale

Coun. Alex Marchand, of Louisdale, was a visitor to town during the week. Alex's friends are pleased to learn that his health is much improved.

ARICHAT OF THE MARITIMES

By Harvey Arthur Burton

The town was friendly quaint and gay,
That beautified a distant day
With lofty spires of gallant ships,
A toss beside her sheltered slips.

White bended sails of barkentines
Oft glorfied the harbour scenes,
And dipped a boom upon the crest
That offered them a havened rest.

The mounded rocks now mark the site
Where sailors hitched the hawsers' bite,
And periwinkes dot the piers
That bore the ware of other years

Receding tides reveal the logs
That held the bowlines in their dogs,
And weeds that nod from sunken beds
Have long replaced the figureheads.

The piling of the olden scenes
That peep from 'neath the ribbon screens,
Are prone upon the harbour floor,
Yet tells a tale of days of yore.

A painter's brush could ne'er display
The beauties of her bygone day
That gently tossed their lofty spars,
In silhouette against the stars.

Oh! lovely town to natives dear,
That flashes scenes of yesteryear,
Ye still possess the ocean's gold
And friendly smiles of young and old.

(The above poem was written by Harvey A. Burton, of Buffalo, N. Y., and a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burton, of this town. Harvey and other brothers visited their native Arichat last summer to visit relatives and old friends and to wander admist the scenes and haunts of their childhood. Harvey's wife Edie made the trip to Arichat with the party and was much impressed with the scenic beauty and charm of Arichat and other parts of Isle Madame. This poem was sent to Harvey's old friend, Sam Vigneau, and after reading it we felt it was worthy of publication and we have taken the liberty to publish this poem which should bring back pleasant memories to old timers and at the same time freshen the minds of the present day generation, that their native Arichat, was a paramount port in the days of "Wooden Ships and Iron Men."—Editor.)

LITTLE ANSE HOME AND SCHOOL

Correspondence included a resolution submitted for approval by the North Isle Madame Association concerning the appointment of a travelling music teacher. A card of greeting to the membrs of our Association from our Education Convener was received, who at the time was on the sick list.

It was moved by Oswald Samson and seconded by Anthony Samson that we support the resolution concerning the hiring of a music teacher. The motion was unanimously approved. A letter was then sent to the Municipal School Board to that effect.

It was then moved and seconded that gifts be presented to the Parish and to the Parish Priest in keeping with the Season. Father McDonald accepted the gifts. In a brief address he thanked the members for their generosity and in closing he wished everyone A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year.

A play and Christmas Carols were then presented by the pupils. This was followed by a lunch consisting of rabbit pies and coffee.

tings in her stride, and doesn't seem to have had her head turned too much; but the other four are simply insufferable.

,"Daddy, do you think my profile is best from this angle? Should I hold my chin higher?" It's getting a little annoying to say the least. A fellow can't get near a mirror to tie his cravat! And the other day, when I did get mirror room, I found myself taking a sly estimate of my own profile, mentally painting out the Adam's apple with which I was too plentifully endowed.

One thing, however, has been accomplished. The kids look at Mom with new respect, realizing something they probably had never even thought of before. She's a real beauty, aside from being a good cook, fine homemaker, and discriminating enough to see the sterling qualities that are hidden somewhere back of that Adam's apple that ruins an otherwise manly profile.

these winter sports demand. Aren't you glad you aren't rich, and don't have to go down south every winter and bum around swimming in that tepid water and loaf around getting fat on all that fried chicken, not to mention getting all dried out and leathery-looking from too much sun?

We should have an exchange program with some of those soft, lazy, southern races. A month or two in Canada at this time of year would make real men of those birds. We could send some of our old people down on the exchange, to places like Jamaica and Mexico, for example.

But it wouldn't work. You see, the people who organized it. chaps like me would have to volunteer to go along with our old folk, to arrange things for them, and we'd miss all the joyous excitement of this winter wonderland. There'd be no volunteers. I, for one, couldn't stand to miss more than 3 or 4 months of it. How about you?
