SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

This spring, I was confronted by a difficult decision. It involved making a choice between two ways of life. I wonder what you'd have decided?

Oh, it wasn't a world-shaking decision, like giving up smoking or drinking, or entering a monastery, or anything as serious as that. But it did require much mulling over, and I'd wager that the Old Girl and I got through about 400 cups of tea in the process of making up our minds.

It came about like this. An old acquaintance, and a very decent chap, had offered me an extremely interesting job. The salary was a big improvement over my present one. The holidays and fringe junk were as good. My training and background fitted me for the job, which was a challenging one. Green light all the way. Very attractive, even exciting.

Why didn't I grab it? Well, it was a matter of piling items on the scales-an advantage here, a disadvantage there—and in the process, my wife and I learned a lot about what we wanted out of life, for ourselves and our children.

I should mention that taking the job meant moving to a large city. It meant the second major dislocation of our children at school within two years. It meant saying goodbye to new friends we had made, and starting the process all over again. These were some of the things that took a little of the shine off the proposition.

But there were many items for the other side of the scales. I have nothing against large cities, and my wife likes them. They have cultural advantages the the smaller centre cannot provide. There is a certain excitement in the city, with its good restaurants, its major sporting events, its concerts and its theatres. There is a definite feeling, however little it may be justified, of being at the centre of things.

Taking the job meant saving money. It won't be long until the kids are ready for university. Think of what we'd save if they could live at home while attending college. Right now, it would save me about $7 a week, which it costs to get my son to the city for a music lesson

Credit Union Mainland Chapter

The Credit Union Mainland Chapter held its monthly meeting in the Auditorium of the Stella Maris School at River Bourgeois on Sunday evening at 8 p.m. This was one of the largest meetings held by the Chapter this season and was attended by some 80 people.

Walter Fougere, Chapter President opened the meeting by welcoming the outside people to River Bourgeois, which is his home community. After the reading of the minutes for the previous by Stanley MacPhee, acting secretary, and the passing of the minutes on motion, the Monthly Progress Report for the month of March for the different Credit Unions, were read. Five of the six Credit Unions included in the Mainland Chapter had members present. These were; Johnstown, Riverdale, Rankin, L'Ardoise and River Bourgeois. The number of members in these five Credit Unions was 1213 with $200,549,00 in savings, with 375 loans given out to the amount of $175,311,00. 12 new members joined the Credit Union during the month of March.

After the reading of the Reports a discussion was held on them and afterwards Essays on Credit Unions written by pupils of Grades 7, 8 and 9 at Stella Maris school were read by them. Those reading their Essays, which were very well done were the Misses Claire Boudreau, Susan Robertson, Marilyn Harris, Sylvia Boucher, Joyce Buckley and Joseph MacPhee.

Fr. Roach of the Extension Dept. was then asked to address the meeting. He told how the Credit needs of each community could be met if the people would only learn to save both small and large amounts in their local Credit Unions. This money could then be loaned out to the people cheaper than it would be from any Finance or Loan Company. Members should remember that the purpose of the Credit Union is not only to Loan out money but also to teach its members to save, and by saving does not mean putting your small change in the Credit Union while the larger amounts are deposited somewhere else. The interst you receive from money placed in your Credit Union is as high and in some cases higher than you would receive elsewhere. When a borrower comes to the Credit Union show them in dollars and cents what he will pay for the money he is borrowing and let him compare it with the amount he will have to pay for the same amount in Budget Clubs, Finance Companies etc. Members should be shown how the Credit Union works for the good of it's members by saving them money on their Credit needs and by turning over the profits made from Loans back to the members in the form of Dividends and Rebates to Borrowers. Also stressed was the fact that a good Educational program is necessary to have a good Credit

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

One of Canada's Great Women

Wasn't it John Buchan who titled one of his books "Memory Holds The Door"? I was reminded of this the other day when I read about the career Adelaide Sinclair has carved out for herself as deputy director for planning for UNICEF, the $25,000,000 United Nations Children's Fund.

The article held memory's door for me and opened into one of the rooms of my living during World War II when I was at Wallis House as a YWCA hostess. At that time my life was peopled chiefly by WRENS stationed there and Adelaide Sinclair was the director of this vital Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service.

I remember Mrs. Sinclair as an impressive woman with iron gray hair that folded over temples beneath her officer's hat like the wings of a dove. She had steel gray eyes that could be as cold as charity in anger and as warm as an April shower with compassion. These were two emotions often familiar to her during her disciplinary wartime responsibility.

We did not meet often, but when we did I felt the sincerity that motivated this energetic woman. I knew she could be adamant in her decisions yet her sympathy was ever close to the surface when it was deserved. It is these qualities which prepared her for her post-war duties as executive assistant to Canada's Deputy Minister of Welfare and her present position with UNICEF.

All Children Her Family

Suzanne Wilding Berol, writing in the Christian Science Monitor, quoted Mrs. Sinclair about her work.

"My job is to approve requests for aid from governments. If their plans for family and child welfare, nutrition and disease control are practical, the 30-nation UNICEF board approves and we put it in work.

"We're part of the hired help, members of the Secretariat and considered part of the International Civil Service. Personally, I'm on leave from the Canadian Government.

"UNICEF takes up all my time. I have no outside interests other than my roof garden on 52nd Street in summer. But when I retire I'll return to Ottawa."

"It was hard to imagine Mrs. Sinclair retiring," wrote Miss Berol. "The handsome, stylishly dressed woman looked perennially young. Widowed for many years, she is kept young by the millions of UNICEF children."

Pennies Count

I was interested in some of the statistics quoted in the article, for each year a few of my pennies go into the Trick and Treat baskets of neighborhood youngsters at Halloween and for UNICEF Christmas cards during the holiday season. These alone raised more than a million dollars for the fund in 1960 and children, chiefly in Canada and the United States, collected another $1,500,000 instead of candy on the witching eve to assist with the work of this great Save the Children drive.

"UNICEF's contributions rise each year," said Mrs. Sinclair, "but our needs are endless, the benefits global, and the rewards heartwarming." Dag Hammarskjold, the United Nations late Secretary-General summed it up by saying " . . . UNICEF activities are the heart of the matter in providing a basis for international co-operation."

NATIONAL PROBLEMS

The Board of Broadcast Governors held hearings in Winnipeg recently so I was able to sit in on most of their deliberations. I was struck by the fact that Canada's thin ribbon of population posed so many problems for broadcasting.

Thinking it over, nearly all our national services are hampered by the fact that our population is small, our country rugged, and our people divided by two different languages. In addition to these handicaps, we live beside one of the most dynamic nations in the world's history.

It is remarkable how much we have been able to get done despite these handicaps. We have become a great manufacturing nation, although the bulk of our potential market lies outside of our own boundaries. We have won a fine reputation among the nations of the world for our stability and good sense. We are, little by little, becoming completely bilingual.

A good deal is being said these days about "planning," and it seems to me that Canadians have been mighty good planners or we would not have achieved so much

The "MacDonald Bursary" in aid of the Coady International Institute, at Antigonish has in the past, been supported by contributions from the various Councils within the "State jurisdiction." Men and Women from all parts of the world are being trained in Social Leadership at the Institute and the continued aid of the members in this way very important work was strongly urged by Mr. Mooney.

"As a National Project" this year the Knights of Columbus in Canada have pledged to raise $50,000 to aid the work of the Bishops Committee in Latin America," stated Mr. Mooney and urged each Council to give its wholehearted support to the Project. "By doing so we are practicing the principle of true Christian Charity" said the State Deputy, who received a hearty round of applause at the conclusion of his address.

Mr. J. H. LeBrun, Past Grand Knight of this Council then gave a brief outline on the life of Laurence Kavanagh after whom the Council is named. A vote of thanks which was enthusiastically supported by the Meeting was moved by Past Grand Knight LeBrun.

After a recess for coffee and sandwiches, the meeting re-convened to conduct the regular business of the Order. Upon conclusion of the regular business, a full dozen candidates received their Second Degree in the Order.

The following delegates were appointed to the Council meeting. Mr. Stanley Digdon; Mr. Bernard Boudreau; Sr. Marie St. George; Rev. A. Doucet; Mrs. Roudolph LeBlanc, and Mrs. Etienne Babin.

On motion of Rev. Doucet, a vote of sympathy was extended to Mr. Stanley Digdon in the loss of his mother.

Ann Forgeron, was appointed by the meeting to be panelist at the afternoon session.

The meeting then broke up into group discussions. Much interest was shown by the parents on the questions which were prepared by the primary grade teachers.

Taking the job meant higher expenses. Parking, lunches, garage, public transportation, pre - lunch martinis, more costly entertainment: all these would easily neutralize those vast sums we saved in the last paragraph.

Accept the position meant moving from a house we like very much, set in a hugh lot currently festooned with tulips and daffodils, shaded by hugh, spreading oaks. We shuddered at the memory of all those dreadful little suburban brick boxes jammed in rows, with just room to park a car between each pair..

I seriously considered, with half my life spent, whether I could afford the sheer waste of time imposed by city life. Hours are stolen from each week, simply getting to work and home. More hours of traffic-battling and parking - frustrations are snatched from your leisure in the process of getting places, whether it's to visit friends or go to church or go golfing or go to a show.

Here a minimum of time is wasted in the boring business of getting where you want to go. I'm five minutes from work, golf course, curling rink; three minutes from church and shopping; five minutes from good swimming for the kids; 15 minutes from a trout stream.

Taking the job meant getting away from the heavy snows and deep cold of winters in these parts. It meant escaping the long, wearing drive to the city, so often necessary. On the reverse side of the coin, it meant sweltering summers in the city, or the expense of a cottage in the north country, and the long, wearing, drive to the cottage.

This sort of dithering went on for weeks. Finally, we found the item that tipped the scales. We decided that life looked a little better in this land of trout streams and trees, of black squirrels and blue water, of friends and flowers, than it did in the concrete canyons and the self - conscious suburbs. Do you know what swung the decision? We realized we were too darn lazy to tackle moving.

HIGHWAY TIPS

Never gamble your life on one jack, urges the Nova Scotia Highway Safety Council. Use blocks if you have to work under the car with the wheels off. No jack is infallible, and it is easy for a car to slip off a hand-jack, even in a garage. Never crawl under a car without visualizing what would happen if the jack gave way.

OF MANY THINGS

under difficult circumstances. Ours is certainly not an unplanned society--we have always had some national goals in view and we have aimed pretty high and well.

It seems to me that those who now urge upon us a "planned" economy instead of a free one really are urging compulsion rather than co-operate in freedom toward the achievement of national objectives. If they had not done so they could not have built so well in the face of so many difficulties.

We have our national problems. We know the cause of them is partly our lack of a large population. We are doing something about that -- too slowly, I admit -- and we are maintaining a very extensive schedule of social services. That is a pretty good score. It would seem to me that there is every reason to feel confident about our future.

CREDIT UNION MEETING

Union, and Education Committee Reports are to be read from each Credit Union at future Chapter meetings. Riverdale, one of the most interested and educated (memberwise) Credit Unions, perhaps in the province, reported the sponsoring of two School Credit Unions with membership of 85 pupils and Savings for the month of March of $162.00. Among the new projects started during March were; the sending of letters out to Adult members; kitchen meetings in one area; passing out to members pencils with Credit Union mottos on them and also Posting of Credit Union Monthly Reports in stores and other public places in the community. Other Credit Unions reported sending out letters telling about Credit Unions to both members and Non-Members in the community; the writing of Essays by the School children and all Credit Unions sponsored School Credit Unions. Some of the results of these Educational programs was the bringing in of several new members while several members who had bcome inactive became active Credit Union members again. Among future Educational plans were the writing of Essays in some schools; the making of posters and the placing of Charts in public places, comparing the cost of money from the Credit Union with the cost from other Companies.

After this there was a question and answer period, after which the meeting was adjourned. A lunch was then served by the ladies of the River Bourgeois Credit Union. The next meeting will be held at Johnstown, on May 20th. at 8 p. m.
