Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

National Investment

Pride is an emotional sensation most of us, if we are lucky, experience quite frequently. Usually it is associated with family, home or job, but now and then our National pride swells.

Mine – did just that recently when I toured the new CN building in Montreal. Part of the vision Donald Gordon had of filling that "wasteful hole in the ground", it has mushroomed beside the Queen Elizabeth Hotel and Central Station like a beautiful hybrid of industry and imagination. In its construction many thousands of the Canadian taxpayers' dollars are invested and because some of my hard earned cash was involved, I wanted to see what we are getting for our money. I was certainly both amazed and agreeably satisfied with prospects of ample return for the per capita cost.

For one thing, it is the most efficient, the most exciting and the most satisfying visually of any building this modern age has demanded for proficient production that I have seen during my vagabonding. Within its environs are the brains which must meet the demands of an expanding transportation system, find new possibilities for quicker, better and more economical working procedures and meet keen competition.

Though I have been schooled on this transportation problem for the past four years, studied it conscientiously because the CN system is publicly owned and therefore every Canadian's concern, the things about this hive of activity that fascinated me most were not so much the revenue possibilities from the rails, but its related industries.

In the most communications-conscious era of man, the CN has proved its leadership in this field. Telecommunications have put dollars into the pockets of our business concerns and time bonuses into our lives through speed and efficiency in relaying messages and information, not only Canada-wide, but internationally.

When I walked into the visitor's cessing offices, several of the observation room of he data pro- "juke box" machines were detailing information on tape. Two men watched the battery of colored lights that signaled heaven knows what information to them. I watched in awe this operation that used to require hundreds of human brains to control the whereabouts of freight and passenger cars. Now this line of computers can tell an operator in an instant where Car 123xwyz is located (or its equivalent).

When I saw Dr. O. M. Solandt, CN vice-president, on television recently extolling the satisfaction he is gettting out of his chosen career, I could appreciate his enthusiasm. I hadn't understood one bit of the explanation about those mechanical brains in that dust free, air conditioned room, but I did catch some of the vision that has made this progress in railway operation possible.

PHOTOS AVAILABLE

My next cal was in the inspiring photography and reproduction department. Framed colored photographs of all sizes and spectacular scenery, having lost nothing in the enlargement process, honestly thrilled me. I wanted to tuck a number under my arm and go forth to every office, bank and industry in the nation and hang them for all citizens to also thrill at this Canada of ours. Cameras don't lie and the detail they have caught on film in many of these pictures might escape the human eye. This department offers a great public service. It's information files and films are available to anyone in need of this service. The day I was there, a man was obtaining photos to reproduce on playing cards for the anticipated summer tourist trade.

ffIMy day was a compete success when I was invited to lunch in the employees' cafeteria, catering to some 3,000 hungry workers every weekday noon hour (with the exception of Saturday). I enjoyed soup, chicken pie, potatoes, a vegetable and cream pie, plus coffee. I don't eat that well at home for the same price.

Employees have a lounge too that is worth mentioning. Furnished by the Company, all recreational facilities are installed by the employees Recreation Society. Magazines, TV, a piano, card tables, cards and cribbage boards are al appreciated because each employee has contributed through his or her membership to the supply.

This then is Donald Gordon's vision materialized, the evidence of what a fraction of every taxpayer's dollar has purchased for not only today's efficiency, but for the tomorrows that lie ahead.

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

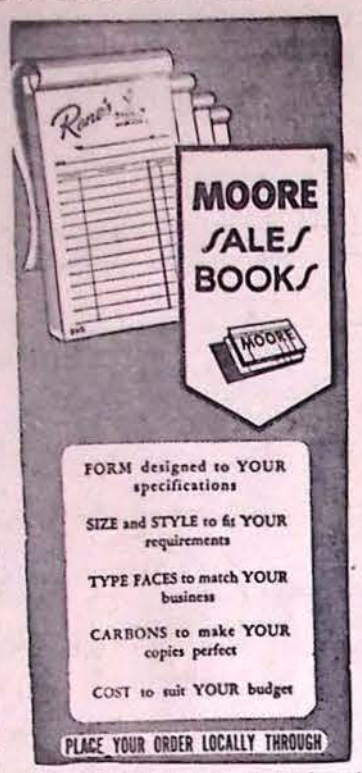

It is axiomatic in the writing trade that you can't make a hero out of a business man and sell a million copies. You must make your hero an aspirng fellow who hasn't made the grade yet, because readers are more likely to identify with him and appreciate him. They may respect and admire a tycoon, but they aren't likely to feel much sympathy for him.

I made this same point recently in this column. I said it took considerable courage for a writer or a politician to call for a better break for the business community, because such statements would surely be unpopular.

Just as I expected, the column was attacked by some who seem to hate business with all their hearts. They pointed to high profits made by one or two business firms. They used a few glaring cases of exploitation to damn the whole notion of yielding an inch in favor of business. One critic used as a horrible example a firm that had made, he claimed, ten percent on the sales dollar.

Very few business firms make ten percent on the sales dollar, but if he made a dime on every dollar of sales I shouldn't think it would be too much. These profits aren't squandered on riotous living They are used, in large part, to reinvest in bigger plants or better farms or stores, or more modern equipment.

Distinguished statesman, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, Mr. Pearson has attracted good candidates to the Liberal team.

$140 A MONTH FOR TODAY'S RETIRED COUPLE — UP TO $295 A MONTH WHEN YOU RETIRE. For people who are retired now: The Liberal plan for pensions will establish a new national minimum of $75 for today's old-age pensioners if they are single or widowed; $140 monthly for married couples.

For people planning their retirement: The Liberal plan will provide increasing pension, rising to a monthly income of up to $295 for a retired couple.

This would be $165 more per month than a retired couple gets now. The addition would be paid for entirely by contributions, not taxes. People will be able to start drawing a contributory pension at age 65 if they wish.

The pension will be completely portable if you change your job. The plan will provide benefits for disabled people, widows and orphans. Self-employed people will be encouraged to join in the plan.

You can take a stand for better pensions . . . vote for your Liberal candidate on June 18.

SEVERAL FIRES

Several fires have taken place during the past few weeks and in some cases, caused much destruction. A bush fire recenty burnt out some small spruce and fir extending from the rear of Rock Loaf Dairy to the D'Escousse Road. This could have resulted in a very serious fire and much credit goes to Sub-Ranger Edward LeBlanc and Constable Morin of the R. C. M. P.; also to to Chief Ranger Landry, who came from River Bourgeois. Men from Pondville and Arichat, helped to halt the fire before it spread to the opposite side the highway.

The recent fire destroying the home of John Boudreau, Arichat and all his household furniture was another serious fire.

The need for fire fighting equipment for Isle Madame is a must and we urge all interested citizens throughout the Island to attend a meeting at the Municipal Hall, Arichat, on Wednesday, June 13th at 8;00 p.m. At which meeting it is expected that a fire department can be organized.

BROKEN PROMISES ...

Five years have passed since Mr. Diefenbaker first made his five big promises. Let's take a look at the Big Five and what he has done with them.

FIRST, in 1957 and 1958, Mr. Diefenbaker solemnly promised to reduce your taxes. Instead they are up one-third.

SECOND, he undertook to balance the budget. Instead he has gone into the hole to the tune of THREE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS.

THIRD, the Tories promised Canada low interest rates. They're higher than ever.

FOURTH, Mr Diefenbaker said this government would cut government spending. It's risen from less than five billion dollars to seven billions.

FIFTH, "As long as I am Prime Minister, no Canadian will suffer from unemployment". Bureau of Statistics figures show it getting worse than ever in the Maritimes.

When you get right down to it, what these critics seem to want is a new system, where all business is run by the government. Russia has had such a system for forty-five years, and her people still have a low standard of living. Our profit and loss system has done much better by the ordinary man, and I hope we hang onto it. I am afraid we won't if governments are continually urged to tax the steam out of business.
