Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

WOMAN IN THE WILDERNESS

If someone were to ask me if I found the prairie provinces backward in development as I tripped about during these past few weeks I would be quite corny and say, "Not by a dam site". I learned more about hydro developments, kilowatt potential, expected industrial growth, paradise for fishermen (when all those dammed up rivrs produce man-made lakes that will b setocked with sporting fish) and of all things the system of groutng, than I have been able to absorb during the years I have existed on this planet.

Th only way I could absorb this whole burgeoning process was to actually be thre. I watched men working all the daylight hours at Manitoba's Grand Rapids Power development, hardly concerned with the fact they had ben slugging at the job for more than eight hours. Here was the old spirit of pioneering, reborn. There was no clock watching, few took advantage of their "coffee break" to visit the commissary for cold drinks. They were all aware of construction's chief enemy, weather, and on this sunny day they were each and every on of them putting ther backs into the task.

They are getting paid for their labor and well; for work in these isolated areas demands a high wage. But there was something completely divorced from a monetary aspect in their attitude toward ther job. Maybe it was the challenge of harnessing nature, or wrestling with limestone and conquering the chances of seepage by forcing concrete into pockets where shale could seriously weaken the structure. It could have been all of these things or only one, for each group of workers had their own deadlines to meet.

There are 1400 men on the job this summer where eventually there will be about 48 in residence at the dam site. They can come in by road, built by the Manitoba Government and Hydro as fast as a mile a day when construction first started, or they can fly in and out as we did. There is no longer complete isolation on these projects. And yet for the most part, they and their families —many residing in trailer camps and some as squatters in tarpaper shacks, are contnt to stay on the job.

Many Benefit

I was flown 275 miles due north as the guest of the Manitoba Government for they want the citizens of Canada to learn about this provincial government's contribution toward helping to solve the country's economic problems. Prospects of what this power development may mean to industry and even tourist trade was enlightening.

Two hundred thousand tons of cement wil be required before the job is finished, more than half for grouting purposes. This must be transported. With no rail service into the area, the CN is using trucks to handle freight. Heavier commodities such as steel for reinforcing is brought in by barge during the summer months and stockpiled. Quantities of cement are stored in four huge steel silos. This all fans out like fingers from a palm providing jobs in many other categories than construction and eventually through this vast electrical potential attracting new industries.

A splendid school has been built where Indian and white child alike integrate harmoniously. There is a modern hospital where babies are born, alcoholics are sobered up, operations performed and broken bones set. There is a smart motel, and a shopping centre is also planned.

DUKE OF YORK MEADOW NOT OPERATING

When one mentioned the Duke of York Meadow, in past and recent years, it was associated with a high quality of cranberry grown on this vast meadow. Then again the name Latimer had to go along in the production of these berries. This meadow was established nearly 70 years ago by Dr. Josslyn of Cape Cod, U. S. A., and was operated by the late John Latimer for some years.

Nearly fifty years ago Josslyn Latimer, son of John, took over the ownership and operation of this cranberry industry and by hard work and study produced a berry that found a ready market and was considered one of the best quality berry, to be found in the Maritimes, Although the American berry came on the market much earlier than the berry marketed by the Duke of York, this however, did not hinder the sale of the famous Hildabrand cranberry produced by Mr. Latimer and named after his good wife and faithful partner, both of whom spent many happy and active years at the Duke of York Dwelling, caring for their nice family, doing some farming and their most exacting and special duty was the care of the tender cranberry vines, more especially dur-

PRESENTED WITH MEDAL

Antigonish — Mother M. Ignatius of the Sisters of St. Martha, has been awarded the Medal "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" by His Holiness, Pope John XXIII, it was announced recently. The announcement was made by the Most Reverend William E. Power, D.D., Bishop of Antigonish on the Feast of St. Ignatius.

Mother Ignatius served as Mother General of the Sisters of St. Martha for thirty years. First elected in 1925 she was elected or re-elected five times in subsequent years and finished her final term of office in 1961.

In 1957 Mother Ignatius was appointed to the Hospital Services Planning Commission established by the provincial government to draw up a hospitalization plan. This eventually became the Hospital Insurance Plan inaugurated in Nova Scotia on January 1, 1959. Mother Ignatius served on this Commission until serious illness forced her to resign in January, 1959.

St. Francis Xavier University conferred an Honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon Mother Ignatius in 1950, the Golden Jubilee year of the Sisters of St. Martha. In the same year she was received in private audience by Pope Pius XII.

Mother M. Ignatius, the former Mary Catherine Floyd, was born in Springfield, Antigonish County, and entered the Congregation in 1910. Following her First Profession she graduated from St. Martha's Hospital School of Nursing in 1916. She was then sent to Michael's Hospital, Toronto, for four months.

On her return she was appointed Directress of Nurses at St. Joseph Hospital in Glace Bay, and in 1919 was named Superior of the institution. Under her leadership, St. Joseph's became one of the first hospitals on the North American continent to meet the requirements of Standardization set by the American College of Surgeons.

The decoration "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" (for the Church and the Pontiff) had its origin in 1888 under Leo XIII. The medal bears the likeness of Pope Leo and is given in recognition of outstanding service. Others in the Diocese of Antigonish so honored have been Mr. Patrick J. Nearing, Dominion; Mr. Joseph Pickup, New Waterford, and the late Mr. John A. MacDonald, Antigonish.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

There is something deeply comforting to the human spirit in fire. Whether it's a log in the fireplace, chuckling cheerily or burning with a slow, dream-making flame a bonfire on the beach pushing back the darkness, or just the gleam and warmth from the kitchen stove, fire soothes and renews the inner self.

I'm writing this column by the tiniest flame of all— a candle There's been a hydro break and the lights have been out for hours With the soft, little, yellow, glow of my candle beside me, I don't care if they ever come on again. At the moment, and in my present mood, I would not trade this one candle for all the lights on Broadway, all the power that pours over Niagara Falls, and a light bulb personally autographed by Thomas Edison.

It's a brave small red candle, left over from Christmas. There are only about three inches of it left and in an hour it will be just a burned-out candle. But right now it brings me comfort, companionship and memories.

It's flame brings back the nights of wonderful cosiness, as a child at the cottage in summer. Snuggled in bed wth my young brother I'd watch the grotesque shadows flicked over the ceilingless interior by the fireplace flames. But there was no real terror in the weird leaping figures.

On the other side of the partition, my parents talked in the low peaceful tones of people half-bemused by an open fire. The coal oil lamps cast a sturdy, orange glow that chased the leaping shadows. The whip-poor-will on the hill behind the cottage called his cheerful goodnight. And I drifted into sleep with a sense of security I've never had since.

The candle flame reminds me of the first time I fell in love. It was at a huge bonfire. I was 11. After the marshmallows and the sing-song, we grew silent, watching the deep red of the hottest inside of the fire as it burned lower. This freckle-faced girl with the brown eyes and the white teeth and the golden arms was sitting beside me. She got a bit dopey leaned against my shoulder, and fell asleep. I didn't move. Just sat there being madly in love.

Next day, I proposed to her, believing it was mutual. She gave me a bloody nose, and I was off women for years.

My candle flame brings back other "fire" memories. Prison camp in Germany, December 1944. The wind howls out of the Baltic. The only light in the room is a red flame shining through the crevices of the crude stove. The only sound is "drip, drip drip..." Eighteen young flyers of half a dozen nations lie silent and watch the firelight dance on the walls.

They are of a single mind. Escape? Home and loved ones? A thick juicy steak? No, they're all listening intently to that "drip, drip" emanating from the homemade still hooked up to the stove and wondering if the potato whiskey it's producing will be fit to drink in time for the New Year's party.

Yes, fire is truly a blessing. Under its soothing light and warmth even the chattering of women's tongues will desist. Under its influence, businessmen who would sell their own grandmothers into slavery if the net profit were right wax imaginative, sentimental and idealistic.

We have come a long way from the days when our primitive ancestors crouched before a fire in a cave, dimly wondering what was for breakfast. We don't wear skins any more. We wear bikinis and strapless bras. We don't kill people with club any more. We use push-buttons. We don't tear the liver out of a newly killed animal and eat it hot and raw and juicy. We pay 60c a pound and eat it dry and gristly, with onions.

But firelight has the same magic for us, after all the progress, as it had for our ancestor Slob the Caveman. It can take the bitter lines from around a woman's mouth and turn her into a Madonna in T-shirt. It can put a look of sheer hellery into an old man's eyes as he looks into the flame and sees himself as he was 50 years ago.

It would be a sorry day for mankind if he lost, somehow, the great gift of fire. In the meantime, however, my column is finished, I feel like eating a fried egg sandwich. You can't cook eggs ovr a candle and I wish the hydro boys would pull the pickle and get the power on again.

By AMBROSE HILLS

RELIABILITY

Just at this moment I am so pleased with a large Winnipeg department store that I'd lke to give them a plug in this column, but can't because it would be free advertising.

The reason I am pleased with them is that I bought an expensive item a couple of weeks ago, discovered when I got to my cottage that it was defective. I should have returned it immediately but didn't, because it was a nuisance. I just now got around to phoning the department involved and telling them about it. The respons was just what I expected. Bring it in at your convenience and we'll credit your account with the full amount.

"And will you bawl out the manufacturer?" I said.

The lady on the other end of the line said, " We sure will. They put you to a lot of inconvenience and that doesn't make you feel good about our store."

I wish the bawling out could go right down the line to the man who did the poor spot welding job on the machine, and to the inspector who let it get by. They'll possibly never know the grief it caused me, the sale they lost for the department store and the loss their Company will take when the machine comes back to them.

Last week we bought three items for our cottage, and every single one of them had something wrong. A sprayer leaked. A water cooler leaked. The insect catching gadget had faulty spot welding and tumbled from its perch. It was enough to disgust an otherwise amiable consumer.

All these items were Canadian made, because my wife and I had looked for items of Canadian manufacture. Usually, Canadian items seem to me to be sturdier and better suited to our climate. In these three cases, however, some workman had let me down ——and let his country down a bit too.

REFLECTIONS

'Tis good to hear the evening chimes
Or some far vesper bell;
Like echoes from ye olden times
They somehow cast a spell.
And it is good to roam the glen
At sunset or at dawn.
But O to walk and talk again
With those that since have gone.

RETIRE FROM CBC RADIO

The world of broadcasting loses two of its most durable performers when Eric Vale and Mary Grannan retire this year from their regular work on CBC radio. Eric Vale is known to listeners of Leicester Square as "The Old Stager" and Mary Grannan is the writer of the children's programs, Maggie Muggins and Just Mary. Vale began in showbusiness 50 years ago in Vancouver with his comic recitations and songs reminiscent of the English music-hall. Mary Grannan who has been on CBC radio for 23 years, has had 26 children's books published in three countries.

DUKE OF YORK MEADOW

ing frosty periods.

Josslyn knew the importance of irrigation and some years ago had built of cement two large dams at a cost of several thousand dollars, which resulted in a great saving water during the dry season. Many other improvements were made to his meadow in the picking and packing of the berry.

About two years ago Mr. Latimer was obliged to sell this productive meadow, due to ill health. The meadow was sold to parties in Pictou County, who operated it for one season and closed down operations last year. The meadow at present is not in operation.

In the successful operation of any industry one must put forth their best efforts and it can be truly said that Josslyn Latimer, performed such a duty during the many years he devoted his time in the study, production and sale of his valuable product.

Today Mr. and Mrs. Latimer are residing in Truro, and we are sure they often have pleasant memories of the Duke of York Meadow and their friends here on Isle Madame share the same thoughts.

May Josslyn and Hilda enjoy every happiness in their well-deserved retirement.
