Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

ACROSS A PROVINCE IN MINUTES

It is not possible to travel from one end of British Columbia to the other in the space of three and a half minutes. That is if you travel as I did, aboard a gantry in the B. C Building of the Pacific National Exhibition at Vancouver It is there that te famous relief map of the province is on view every day of the year.

George Challanger took seven years to construct this spectacular map. It was erected as a hobby in his basement where he worked in sections building in accurate detail a visual history of Canada's third largest province with almost a million pieces of plywood. Challanger's map is not only a minature of the terrain, rivers, roads and railways, mountains and lakes of B. C., it is an account of tht exciting story of British Columbia and its people.

The B. C. Government bought this map and spent some 50 thousand dollars before finally completing its assembly in the building where it is now a popular tourist attraction. Ten thousand visited the building in April. This is only a small segment of the numbers who are welcomed annually by Mrs. Camilia Fleming, a person of considerable charm who came by her job through the more sedentary position as secretary to the General Manager of the Exhibition.

Mrs. Fleming is a splendid hostess. She welcomes not only individuals as though they were dignitaries of some high rank, but is tireless in her lectures to groups of school children and convention visitors.

The day we were there, she let young Rickey operate the push-button motor that activates the gantry while he traced the adventure of Simon Fraser through mountain gorges and down the treacherous river named after this intrepid explorer. His little boy enthusiasm and knowledge of Canadian history amazed both our hostess and the lad's teetering grandmother, as I tried to keep my balance during the fitful starts and stops inspired by young Rickey's enthusiastic operation of the gantry.

INDUSTRIES AND RESOURCES

This map occupies 32,000 square feet of exhibition space and details vital forest, mining, agriculture, petroleum and natural gas, fishing, power and communication industries, all unfolding the diversified economy of this vast coastal province.

I think I was so impressed by this map and other outstanding exhibits depicting B. C.'s trade routes, electric power and oil refining, not to mention its collection of Indian artifacts and native crafts, because it is making use of a building that might otherwise lie idle from one exhibition to another. To me this is the epitome of public relations.

Both Rickey and I learned more about British Columbia in an hour than we could possibly have absorbed from books in months of research.

Another aspect of admiration inspired by the afternoon's visit to the pavillion was the fact that Challanger started his task of building the map when he was 65 years old. He was assisted by his children, chiefly his son, Robert A. Challanger, who worked with him to accomplish the undertaking in seven years I mentioned previously it took to complete the map.

This must have made quite an impression on young Rickey tor his father tells me he has been working like a beaver since his return, shoulder to shoulder with him building a dock at their summer home. Not exactly a history making feat, but if Rickey got only this much from his travels abroad the ganrry across mountains and lakes of a province in miniature, he has gained a sense of accomplishment and its reward.

Sugar and Spice

By Bill Smiley

This week my wife and I had an anniversary. No, we didn't celebrate it. We just had it. There are no celebrations when these milestones loom up, out of the domestic fog. We merely observe them, with a mixture of wonder, awe and incredulity.

Sixteen years of wedded bliss. Hah! Sixteen years of sharing bed and board with a strange woman I'd never even laid eyes on until I was 25. As the kids say, "How crazy can you get?"

Into each life some rain must fall, as the old song puts it. But it did'nt forecast a full - scale storm. It was raining hard the day we were married, and it's been thundering and lightning ever since.

One thing about our marriage, though. We started off on the right foot. And we've never been in step since.

Yes, we were well organized, financially secure and emotionally mature. None of this rushing into a hasty, ill-considered, poorly - matched union that we see so often among the young people today. Everything was well planned and carefully prepared before we leaped into the quicksand.

We were just starting fourth year of college. I said "Lets get married." She said "All right." We dug up a minister and a few mourners, and plighted the good old troth. We then jumped into a borrowed car and took off for a honeymoon in a borrowed cottage, where we lived on love and borrowd money.

And when we returned, there was none of this business of moving in with the folks. No, I'd rented a smart little apartment where my bride and I were going to live just like real married people. The neighborhood was a little on the shabby side — just a block from the red - light district, but it was only $10 a week. I made sure we arrived after dark and she didn't even notice the poolroom next door.

I wish I could say that I carried her over the threshold. I'd planned to, but I couldn't find the dam' key. And there followed our first fight, one of those brief and bitter altercations that have been so frequent in the subsequent 16 years as I have looked for various keys in front of various doors all over the country.

Perhaps this incident took the keen edge off her thrill at entering our first home. At any rate, when the crumby old landlady finally let us in, the bride didn't stand there and squeal with de-

LANDRY — BOUDREAU

The marriage of Yvette Boudreau eldest daughter of Mrs. Agathe Boudreau and the late Clifford Boudreau, of this place to Herman Landry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Landry of Petit de Grat, was solomnized at Sacred Heart church, Sydney on the 3rd with Rev. Father Edward Tobin, officiating at the ceremony.

The birde wore a grey suit with blue accessories and was given in marriage by her brother, Clifford Boudreau. Miss Viola Landry a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a blue suit with white accessories. Guy LeBlanc, a cousin of the bride acted as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Isle Royale Montel, Sydney, to twenty guests.

Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered two showers, one at the etit de Grat parish hall and the other at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ulysse LeBlanc, Arichat. At both showers the bride received many valuable gifts.

The young couple spent their honeymoon touring the Cabot Trail and other points in Cape Breton.

The young couple will reside in Arichat. The groom is employed on the office staff of the Booth Fisheries, Petit DeGrat.

We extend congratulations and best wishes to the young couple and every happiness throughout their wedded life.

To ask wisdom of God, is the beginning of wisdom.

THE NEW NOVA SCOTIA

Industrialists, businessmen, bankers, investment dealers and representatives of the media of Toronto and Montreal will be given a comprehensive view later this month of the "New Nova Scotia."

A new industrial promotion film bearing the title, New Nova Scotia, will be shown at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, September 24, and at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Montreal on the following day.

Special presentations of the film are being sponsored by the Department of Trade and Industry of the Province of Nova Scotia; Industrial Estates Limited, a crown industrial development corporation of the province, and the Halifax Hearld Limited.

The film was produced by the Nova Scotia Information Service, a division of the Department of Trade and Industry, under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Perry. The camera work was done by Mrs Perry and E. B. (Ned) Norwood of the Information Service.

Hon E. A. Manson, Minister of Trade and Industry, said the Toronto and Montreal presentations from one of the most important projects the province has undertaken to correct the false impression that many Canadians have of the province.

"After talking with influential people from other parts of Canada and from the United States, there is no question in my mind that Nova Scotians must get out and make known the fact that there are many opportunities here for business, industry and investment.

"We feel that this new film and an attractive booklet that compliments the film, will help us to achieve our objective."

Mr.. Manson said that arrangements have been made with a film distribution company to make the film available in nine offices in centres in the United States and Canada.

It will also be distributed through the Department of Trade and Industry offices in Halifax, Boston, New York and Toronto. The complimentary booklet also is available from these offices.

NATURE STUDY

"Look," I said, "ripe pincherries. Oh boy!"

"They're chokes," Fanny said. "They're just not ripe."

"Pincherries," I insisted.

"Then how come, "asked Martha, "that they're growing on a chokecherry bush?,,

Every time I go walking in the country with my twin daughters I get some lessons in nature study. Have to hand it to their teachers at school. I'm a country boy born and raised, but my city-bred youngsters know and recognize more plants, birds and animals than I do, and walking out with them is thus a sheer delight, and sometimes good for my humility as well.

The satisfaction is mutual. The twins at ten, enjoy putting me straight, and for my part I love walking in the country even when I walk in ignorance. This is our favorite time of year when the prairie sky is a high blue color and the bushes are loaded with sun-ripened wild fruit.

The wild fruit goes almost untouched these days. In earlier days the Indians from a nearby Reservation used to gather and sell the crops as they ripened. I'm told they are now convinced that fruit that grows on government welfare vines is much easier to gather, so they have deserted the bushland almost entirely! Oh "Progress", what sins are committed in thy name!

R. M. A. TO OPEN REGIONAL OFFICES

At a joint meeting of the management committee, Maritime Division, with the national general manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada Incorporated, held in Moncton August 30th., the Association resolved an objective program to establish regional branch offices throught the maritimes within the next twelve months. These regional offices will be located at strategic points among which will be Charlottetown, P. E. I., Fredericton, N. B., Campbellton, N. B., Saint John, N. B., and Sydney, N. S.

This decision is the result of urgent requirements to service the retailer at local community level and to step up the services of the newly developed R. M. A. Collection Department to help retailers meet their heavy pressing financial problems, some of which stem from the recent policy of the chartered banks to disallow overdrafts.

President George Horton of Sussex also announced the appointment of Richard G. Evans to the position of R. M. A. organizational manager. Mr. Evans was formerly associated with the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association Ltd, and is well known throught the Maritime Provinces.

MESSAGE FROM THE MINISTER OF NATIONAL HEALTH AND WELFARE in support of National Immunization Week September 23—29th, 1962.

"The fight against the epidemic we have vaccines against several diseases never ends. Fortunately of the one-time killers such as diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough

NATIONAL IMMUNIZATION WEEK, which begins Septemeber 23 and is sponsored by the Health League of Canada, affords us a timely reminder that unless we use these vaccines the disease could become rampant again.

In view of the recent release of the new Sabin oral vaccine against poliomyelitis, NATIONAL IMMUNIZATION WEEK has special significance and as Minister of National Health and Welfare I am happy to endorse the work of those whose campaign could be summed up by the slogan "Be Wise—Immunize".

light, as I'd expected. She took one swift glance around, threw me the first of several thousand murderous looks, and burst into tears.

I didn't understand her then, and I've been trying since that September day 16 years ago with no more success. That was a perfectly good room, with a pull-out bed, a two - ring gas burner, and a bathroom just up on the next floor and down the corridor a little way. And I've been spoiling that girl ever since.

We've been through a lot together in the ensuing years; better and worse, richer and poorer, sickness and health, children and mortgages. And you've only to take a look at us to know which one has thrived on it.

I've lost quite a bit of my hair, a good many of my teeth, most of my illusions, and all the arguements. All I've picked up is a small pot, a heap of obligations, and a hunted look. The Old Lady hasn't lost a thing. She still has the slim figure, the fine dark eyes, the dark hair, the white teeth and all the rest of her good looks. And she's picked up two children, a joint chequing account and a maddening air of infallibility. It isn't fair.

However, that's the way things have gone, and I'm not complaining. As the old proverb has it, "A man works from sun to sun, but a woman sits around watching television." No, I don't object to having worked my head to the bone for the last 16 years to keep her and her children in style. I've written all that off as experience.

What gets me is not the past, but the future — the knowledge that I will have to live, until death do us part, with a woman who is not only better looking and smarter than I am, but knows it.

THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION ENDORSES NATIONAL IMMUNIZATION WEEK SEPT. 23 to 29th.

It requires only the occurance of a single case of smallpox to remind us all that the happy state of immunity to many communicable diseases is not attained without some effort on the part of each of us. The virtual disappearance of many of the killing diseases such as diphtheria, smallpox and tetanus tends to suggest to some people that the danger is over and that it can't happen here.

Nothing could be more misleading. None of us are born with lasting immunity and every member of every generation requires to be protected. Parents have great obligations to their children but they also have great opportunities to give them protection from many diseases. Every child and every adult in Canada may readily be made immune to diphtheria, smallpox, whooping cough, tetanus and poliomyelitis. Your doctor stands ready to protect you and your family. Consult him in the normal course of events and don't wait until an outbreak occurs.

The Canadian Medical Association is grateful to the Health League of Canada for the annual reminder of Immunization Week. We suggest that you examine the state of immunity of yourself and your family and if any gaps exist take the simple steps required to safety.
