Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

A BIRD RECORDER

He wasn't a very big man and he looked more gnome-like squatting at the edge of our swamp with an over-sized pair of binoculars glued to his eyes.

Earlier in the morning he had knocked at our sunroom door and asked if he could borrow a piece of writing paper.

His request seemed mysterious and a bit creepy especially as I saw him tuck my offering of a sheet of canary copy paper in his brief case. He headed for the swamp and started industriously building a duck hunter's blind from the mellowing bulrushes.

The morning wore on and I could see him pering and jotting something on the scrap of yellow paper. No and then he dropped his glasses long enough to scribble at greater length.

I had almost forgotten about him when the sleigh bells,, our psuedo door bell, jingled. "I have counted 34 species of birds in less than an hour. What a haven for bird watchers", he said. Then he asked me if I had seen the blue heron.

He said he was an official recorder of bird life and migrations in this area. A neighbour of mine had phoned that a blue heron was perched on the edge of her swimming pool. Never having recorded a blue herod in this particular vicinity before, he had hurried out but all he had seen of the species were two smaller herons.

While I brewed him a cup of tea to thaw his congealed blood stream, I hospitably prattled about the splendid housekeeping habits of a pair of wrens who, each year before leaving for the south, clean out the rustic bird house that swings in the apple tree at the back of our home.

When he told me he had counted at least ten species of sparrow, five different birds of the warbler family and an equal number who owe their lineage to the robin strain, I decided I had better not brag that I can identify a chickadee. Heavens, he might tell me those little clowns are distant cousins of the mourning dove!

POOR LOST MIGRANT

My visitor had hardly departed when there was a swoosh and thud on the terrace. There was the heron standing on two wobbly legs. It was dazed, obviously starved and so exhausted its huge wings drooped to the ground. It didn't even scare as I opened the door, just blinked at me with one bead-like eye.

I knew this migrant would never get of the ground again without a bellyful of something. I searched in the encyclopedia and learned fish and mice were a heron's chief sustenance. There are no fish in our nearby brook and Buffy, our orange cat, keeps the mouse population to a minimum.

In short shorts, knee high rubber boots, tea shirt and curlers tied in a red bandana, I must have looked like a candidate for a straight jacket, salting frozen smelts among the pebbles in our brook as I waded up the stream.

I'll never know whether that heron relished my smelts or not. But, apparently replenished, the bird that should have been No. 35 in the recorder's notes took to the sky at sundown and headed south.

C. W. L. MEETING ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH

St. Joseph's parish Council of the C. W. L., Petit de Grat held their monthly meeting in the Parish Hall on Oct. 7th at 3 p.m.

Mrs. James Benoit, Vice-President opened the meeting with the League prayers. Roll call had only 19 members present.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and reports from the different conveners were tabled.

The Vice president then stated that the 4 new members will be consecrated in the League on the the 4th of November and a special day will be observed by all the members.

Mrs. Francis Samson volunteered to give the names of women to help at Bingo Games for the month.

It was then decided that the members would go to the home of Lawrence Samson, to recite the Rosary for the soul of his late father, Alexander Samson, after Benediction.

Rev. Father J. J. MacDonald, then spoke a few words on Education and stated that some financial help should be given to help our young boys and girls to enter Universities and in some cases to help them complete their studies. He suggested that we

NEW SCHOOL FOR ARICHAT CONTRACT AWARDED MacDONALD CONSTRUCTION OF BEDFORD

Tenders have been awarded for the building of a new half-million dollar district high and elementary school in Arichat.

The contract was signed last week in Arichat by the MacDonald Construction Co., of Bedford and Warden Byron S. Langley and County Clerk, Stanley L. MacLellan, for Richmond County.

The Contract Price is $427,8000 and when the school is furnished it is expected the cost will be in the vicinity of $510,000. Work on the new building is expected to start immediately.

The building will contain 22 teaching classrooms, a gymnasium auditorium, library, home economics department, industrial arts department, a physics lab, a chemistry lab and a shooting range.

The school will be equivalent of a 22-room school. It will serve Arichat common school grades and all high school students in Isle Madame and in Louisdale.

Architects for the New School are Napier and Napier, Halifax. It is expected that the school will be ready for the 1963 fall term.

The Richmond County Council, approved the building of the new school during the 1961 Session of Municipal Council. Bonds in the amount of $250,000 have been sold and it is expected the remaining $200,000 will be offered for sale soon.

Present at the signing of the contract were the county council building committee: chairman, J. E. Benoit, Arichat; John Cameron, Grand River and Frank Mombourquette, L'Ardoise.

A. J. Saulnier, Inspector for schools for Richmond County and Very Rev. A. P. Poirier, school board member, were also present at the meeting.

The new school will have an historic background and site since it is to be built on the old Academy grounds. The Academy dates back to 1861, when Rev. Hubert Girrior built a four-room school that was staffed by the French Christian Brothers.

Isle Madame was also the birthplace of St. Francis Xavier University which was founded in Arichat in 1953, and later moved to Antigonish.

A rather unique feature is the financial participation in the construction of the school by the Petit de Grat branch 150 Canadian Legion. The branch sponsors of the Air Cadets in the area, is contributing to the installation of a modern shooting gallery in the new school.

Canada Savings Bonds

simple to cash
good to keep

The new Canada Savings Bonds pay 4½% interest for each of the first three years; 5% for each of the next three years and 5½% for each of the final eight years —an average interest to maturity in 14 years of 5.11% per year. In dollars and cents every $100.00 you invest will grow with accumulated interest to $172.50 at maturity.

You can buy a $100.00 bond for as little as 29¢ a day, through the convenient Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Canada Savings Bonds can also be bought for cash, or on instalments at any bank, investment dealer, stock broker, trust or loan company.

They are available in amounts as low as $50.00 to any Canadian resident—adult or child—up to a limit of $10,000.00 per person.

Estates, too, may buy. Interest is payable annually by coupon, or on the higher denominations by cheque, if desired.

You can cash your Canada Savings Bonds at any time, at any bank, at full face value plus earned interest.

Buy new Canada Savings Bonds today—best ever!

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

For the past two weeks, I've been "batching it.".That is, if there's such a thing as a bachelor with two great galumphing children, I have. No, my wife hasn't left me. Nothing as exciting as that.

I hadn't been left alone with the kids for years—not since they were quite small. In those times we all enjoyed it thoroughly when Mom went away for a few days. Not only did we get the Old Battle-axe off our necks, but reverted to the pigs that men and small mhildren really are at heart.

We ate whatever and whenever we pleased. We let the dishes pile up in the sink and the dirt pile up on the floor, with equal indifference. We wore the same socks for days. It was a real holiday, even though we always caught supreme hell when the boss got home.

But something has happened since those days. Either I've grown a lot older, or the kids have grown a lot more complicated, or our household arrangements have increased immensely in complexity. This time, it was no fun. It was just plain boring. I've never been so glad to see anyone as I was to see the old Trouble 'n Strife when she walked in the other evening and starting glaring around to see what kind of a mess we'd made.

In the old days cooking was fun when I was left in charge. There was flair and imagination, vision and variety, in our menu. We might start off with a bowl of Pablum garnished with pineapple. The next course might turn out to be meat pies and ice cream. We'd wind up with chocolate bars and pop, or cherry tarts and French fries. The kids loved my cooking, and there was never a scrap left over.

Somewhere in the intervening years, these youngsters have been ruined. They've turned into horrible little conformists. They want meat and potatoes and regular dessert and milk and all that sort of junk that dirties a lot of dishes and is also pretty dull. And in between meals they have 12 little snacks each, strewing a sordid trail of cookie crumbs, banana skins and apple cores from one end of the house to the other.

I did learn one thing during this appalling fortnight. I found out that my wife was not just an old crab, as the kids and I had firmly believed for years. During the last decade, she has informed us at least twice a week, that we are a trio of "filthy bums" or alternatively, "dirty slops." She has told us faithfully, and to our faces, that we are selfish, thoughtless and useless. We just shrugged it off. We thought all women talked like that.

Well, let me be the first to admit publicly that she was right. At least she was right about the kids. It's inconceivable that two children who have been trained for years in the good, old-fashioned virtues of industry, cleanliness, helpfulness and obedience could be so lazy, dirty, unhelpful and lippy.

Here and now I make some promises. Never again will I walk out of my shoes and leave them lying in the middle of the kitchen. Never again will I leave empty beer bottles and heaped ask traps all over the joint. Never again will I snort contemptuously when my wife wails about the slopiness o fthe kids, and hand her that old bormide. "They're just normal children."

Never!

And I do further promise that forevermore hereafter, I will pick up my socks, wash the ring off the bath tub, wipe my feet at the door, and force the kids to help with the dishes every night. With a whip, if need be.

And I hereby retrac t every snide remark I have ever made about running a house being a soft touch. It's not. Looking after a house and raising a family is all right for the birds—birth them, feed them for a few weeks, then kick them out and move to a new house—but it crushes the sensitive spirts of such people as me and all the housewives in the land.

However, every skeleton has its closet, and there's a black cloud for every silver lining. With this in mind, and in the light of the last two weeks, I know that, should I be turned out of my present job, I could easily find another: capable, middleaged housekeeper; willing; experienced cook; good with children; to live in; top salary; no scrubbing.

DO IT WELL

The young fellow worked on a Winnipeg daily, a beginner. I discouvered him practicing the old routine, "NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO THE AID OF THE PARTY." He was using the touch system taught in the business colleges.

"How come?" I asked him. "Haven't you noticed most of the old time reporters bang out their stories with four stiffly - pointed fingers?"

"Sure," he grinned. "They sound fast, but they're not. If I'm going to be using a typewriter as one of the tools of my trade, I want to use it right. Even if I turn out to be a lousy reporter, I'll be a good typist.

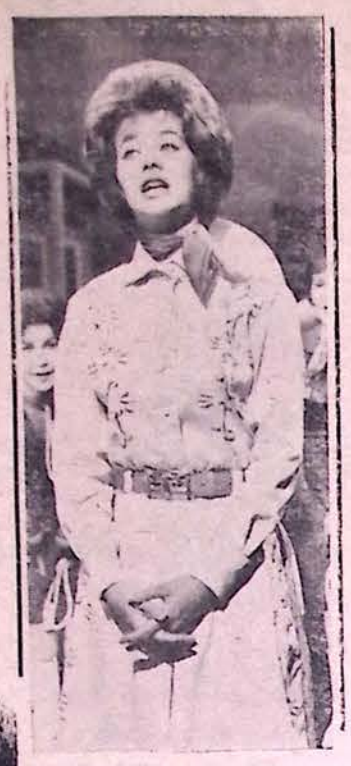

My guess is that he'll turn out to be a darn fine reporter....or a darn fine at whatever he tackles.

Years ago, between high school years, I worked for a master farmer in Manitoba. One day, stooking, we saw the neighbor's hired hand at work in the next field. My boss groaned. "Give me a half an hour with that man and I could teach him to stook right!" I could see that it pained him to think of a man going on and on, stook after stook, handeling the sheaves improperly, doing less than a perfect job. If that hire dman had had the gumption of my young newspaper friend, he'd have hopped the fence and asked for a lesson. Like so many of us, however, he was content to go on doing things half right for the rest of his life.

Poor performance is a sad thing to watch. There's a waitress in a cafe near my office who hasn't learned how to make change properly although she's been at it some years to my personal knowledge. Younger girls in the same cafe do it right, do it faster, because they learned the proper way.

Whether you bowl, play pool, stook, cook, combine, plow or type, learn how to do it right. Learn early, so correct movements become automatic. Don't be content to bumble along. Even the morning shave can be accomplished with more grace and speed if you look for tips from the experts—ask you barber about it! If each of us learns to perform his tasks well, we'll contribute that much more to the welfare of our country. Let's quit being sloppy Joes and start to our jobs well!

K. O. C. CUP FINALS

A two out of three Junior baseball series was played between the Petit de Grat Juniors and River Bourgeois Juiors during the month of September. This series won by Petit de Grat proved interesting all the way with scores like 1-0.

The Junior Baseball League was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus and the two teams were competing for the K. O. C. cup.

At a later date the winning team will be suitably feted at a banquet in the K. O. C. Club Rooms in West Arichat where the cup will be presented.

The Youth Committee of K.O.C. wish to express their thanks to all the teams and officials of this league for its success during the past season.

THE BURNING QUESTION

WHAT CAUSES THE FIRES THAT MEAN THE LOSS of SO MANY LIVES, JOBS and HOMES?

Last year 34 people were burned to death—of whom 13 were children.

This year 13 people were lost by the end of August—of whom 5 were children.

There were 2,553 fires last year, with property damage amounting to $3,093,709—with thousands of dollars lost in wages.

The Human Element is the Greatest Hazard!

REMEMBER—JUST ABOUT ANY CLOTHING WILL BURN

Some clothes, because of the way the cloth is made or because of the style of the garment, are more dangerous than others.

Beware of light weight, loosely fitting clothes, ruffles, flounces, kimono type sleeves, filmy nets and gauze. Also beware of sweaters with brushed long fibres for some ignite easily and burn intensely

Remember that most clothing fires occur because of the wearer's carelessness. Train yourself and your family always to be careful in the presence of open flames, heaters, stoves and other sources of ignition.

Select the safest material available. If a safe substitute cannot be found, it will be possible to reduce the hazard of some fabrics by flameproofing. Before attempting to flameproof any clothing consult your fire department about flameproofing formulas, or commercial compounds that will be effective on the particular material to be treated. Be sure to check the effect of washing and dry cleaning on flameproofing treatments.

Discuss flammability of clothing at civic and club meetings. For assistance and background material, go to your fire chief.
