55 YEARS A PRIEST

Ven. G. A. Andrew Celebrates 80th. Birthday

(Friends in his native Arichat and throughout the Province, will join with us in extending congratulations and good wishes to Archdeacon, George A. Andrew, on his 80th birthday. But the occasion also marked the 55th anniversary of his ordination, 15 years of his priesthood at St. Michaels and All Angels, Toronto and 40 years of his marriage. The love and respect held for the Archdeacon and Mrs. Andrew, in his native Arichat and where ever the call of duty brought them, that same love and affection was ever present with their flock.

Our best wishes are also extended to the happy couple on their 40th wedding anniversary and may they both continue to enjoy good health.

The following story written by Aubrey Wice, of the "Toronto Telegram," will we are sure be of interest to our readers. We wish to thank Mrs. George Bickley the former Parnell Bridgeman, for so kindly sending us the clipping. Mrs. Bickley, is a daughter of the late Rev. Wm. Bridgeman, a former Rector of St. John's and Mrs. Anne Bridgeman, of Boylston.—Editor.)

"His friends had hoped to surprise Ven. Archdeacon George A. Andrew, DD, tomorrow night at the Anglican Church of St. Michael and All Angels on St. Clair Ave. W., but the secret got out.

The fact, however, will not lessen the happiness of this fourfold celebration for the 55th anniversary of his ordination, 15 years at St. Michael's and 40 years of marriage to a fellow missionary in China. Mrs. Andrew had gone there from Bath, England, and the Archdeacon from Arichat, Cape Breton Island, Canada.

I saw him at his home on Ellsworth Ave., and he was as pleased about tomorrow night as if he was graduating all over again from Dalhousie University and Wycliffe College. He holds a Doctor of Divinity degree from the latter.

BISHOP TO PREACH

Hundreds of old friends have been invited to the service and reception. The Lord Bishop of Toronto, Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson is to preach.

The Archdeacon showed me many of the curios from his missionary days that line his living room. Most are Chinese but one is a model, given him by his son, Douglas, of the white marble Taj Mahal in India. He once had taken a year from his mission field to fill an emergency as principal of a school in India.

After graduation in 1907, Dr. Andrew served churches in London, Ont., Sebringville (near Stratford), Winnipeg and on the east coast where he was born.

MISSION CHANCE

He had always wanted to be a missionary but actually had passed the maximum age of 32 before he got the opportunity. It came when a missionary on furlough told him that Bishop Charles White, of Toronto, now dead but then the celebrated head of Honan Diocese in China, needed someone badly.

His mission service spanned a period of close to 30 years up to 1948 when he was forced to leave because of the Communists. Otherwise, am sure he would be there yet because though 80, the Archdeacon doesn't shuffle to answer the telephone, he runs.

'DROVE OUT DEMONS'

The Archdeacon says that he has driven demons out of people as was done in Christ's time. He told me that in China he spoke to demons and heard their answers.

After prayers, gospel hymns and a service of exorcism, he said he drove demons from a Chinese man and woman.

Coming back to Canada, the Archdeacon joined the staff of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels. and for some time was also Field Secretary for the Anglican Church Bible and Prayer Book Society.

Once a month he fills in for an old friend, Rev. H. R. Howden, of Thornhill. Mr. Howden was rector of St. Michael's for 15 years and is sure to be at the service tomorrow night."

Scholarship Award

Mr. Gaston LeBlanc, who was recipient of a scholarship valued at $2300.00 from La Societe L'Assomption is presently completing his studies towards a Bachelor of Engineering Degree at Nova Scotia Technical College in Halifax. Previous to his entering N. S. Tech. he received his Diploma in Engineering from L'Universite St. Joseph, Moncton N. B. Mr. LeBlanc is graduating this spring from N. S. Tech. in the field of Electricity and will be taking up employment with the Nova Scotia Light & Power Commission. Mr. LeBlanc is married to the former Edwina Forgeron of Arichat and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. LeBlanc of West Arichat.

We congratulate Gaston and wish him continued success.

Sugar and Spice

By Bill Smiley

Watching television is all right, I daresay; a first - rate movie makes a pleasent night out; and for real pleasure, it's hard to beat a good book. But for sheer emotional wallop of an evening, there's nothing to touch cleaning out a dresser drawer.

About every three years we have one of these orgies at our house. It usually begins when my wife is looking for something important. Like the ball of wool to finish my curling sweater, which she began knitting three winters ago. Or the cherished clipping which states that she once came at the head of the class in Grade six.

She starts rooting around in our documents drawer — a big dresser drawer crammed with old love letters, receipts for ancient bills, lapsed insurance policies, membership cards for the year 1959, single earrings of every shape and hue, newspaper clippings about the kids' first music festival wins, odd shoelaces, combs with missing teeth and photographs, hundreds of them.

Pretty soon I hear yelps of dismay, snorts of outrage, and chortles of amusement. Grumblingly I join her to make sure she doesn't throw out anything valuable, like my German compass that doesn't work.

For a couple of minutes we work systematically, sorting the junk into piles, to be thrown out or saved. Then I catch her trying to chuck out a perfectly good picture of a WAAF corporal named Wendy, whom I knew well once upon a time. She retaliates by pointing out the undistinguished jerk in the class picture who was crazy about her.

From there on it's every man for himself, and within a few minutes we have about 12 different piles of stuff around us. "You don't want that silly thing, do you? she niffs holding up a dance program vintage 1939, with the name of a girl called Sylvia written in every space. "Oh, don't I though!" I retort, salvaging it though I can't even remember what Sylvia looked like.

Then we get looking at pictures of the kids when they were little, and are torn between tears and laughter. We linger over one of them in swimming in their bare bottoms, fat, dimpled and delightful, and our thoughts go with awe to the great walloping, expensive, lippy, ornery characters they've become.

And we find a snap of ourselves on our honeymoon. We look at it, at each other, and shake our heads in disbelief and sorrow. "Never mind, dear," she reassures, "you look much more intellectual with a higher forehead.' 'And gallantly I reply, "And you sweetheart, certainly have a lot more character in your face now."

Somehow, this doesn't hit the right note, and there's a slight frost in the air as we go on sorting. But soon we're absorbed again. She is reading with intense admiration an old English essay on which she received an A - plus mark. I am contemplating wistfully an 18-year-old snap of myself in which I had a vest, fighter pilot's handlebar moustache, and an evil glint in my eyee.

"Why don't you throw those mouldy old letters out?" I suggest as she sits there, a big bundle of them in her hand, gazing dreamily at the wall.

"Wouldn't you just love me to!" she taunts. "Listen to this." And she reads me a purple passage from one of the corniest, most nauseating love-letters I've ever heard, from some old flame.

Turns out his name is Bill. Turns out I wrote it. I get a cold chill down my spine, a red face, and snarl something about "getting this mess cleaned up. I've got work to do."

We fill a large carton with discardable items. We look at all the little piles we've sorted so carefully. We look for string to tie them into separate bundles. No string. We look for paper bags, to bag them separately. No bags, so we throw everything back into the drawer. And invariably, there's more than we started with, and we can scarcely get it closed.

FROM COAL TO WROUGHT IRON

The stature of a nation is often measured by the disasters it has weathered over the years. Canada has been fortunate in many respects for only a few times, with the exception of war, has there been a tragic toll of human life.

Early in the century, the village of Frank in the Rocky Mountains was wiped out by a landslide. It will be many moons before the people residing in the region that used to be called Upper Canada can forget Hurricane Hazel. Even fresher in memory are the coal mine disasters in Nova Scotia.

But, though remembrance often tickles our conscience, it is human nature to push tragedy out of our thinking processes and live very much just for today.

This attitude had something to do with my surprise and delight in the long range program of re-establishment being carried on for the miners of Springhill, N. S. Long before the disaster which closed down producing mines, oil and natural gas had reduced the potential earnings of these stalwart miners considerably.

Perhaps you have to live among the people of the Atlantic coastal provinces, or inherit one as a relative as I did, to realize their immense capacity for intestinal fortitude. It takes more than an explosion or other freaks of nature to defeat or completely disillusion a Maritimer.

They can, however, be forgiven the pall of depression which descended on the disaster - ridden town of Springhill. Only recently has an upswing in the town's economy lifted the gloom that followed experiences that would have drained the lifeblood from communities with less courageous citizens – says an article from the Industrial Review and Forecast for 1963, pictorially produced by the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, The Mail Star called, "The New Nova Scotia".

It told of many developments in this town which will eventually find employment for 200 miners. To me, the paragraph on vocational training for both men and women and the progress being made in teaching them crafts, was most

Of Many Things

LIFE ISN'T EASY

Reports from the Venus probe indicate that it is unlikely that planet can support life. Well, it isn't too easy to support on this one!

Parents make a mistake when they raise a child to think this world is an easy one. A child should be allowed to stub his toes early, to fall from bicycles, to get a black eye and broken lips, to do without, to share the work around the home. In the old days, there was wood to chop, water to carry and those chores were good for us. Today, too many lads enter the adult world with no toughening up to enable them to face difficulties.

I know one lad who owns an old car. When a part breaks down, he must save for a new one, or devise a part. He probably feels sorry for himself. In my opinion, he is better off than another lad whose father sees to it that he has a new car and that it is repaired on demand. One is developing character, patience, and other worthwhile qualities, while the so-called lucky lad is going to be soft. When life starts to batter these boys later on -- as it will do in one way or another -- I believe the boy that is learning to take knocks now will stand up better.

To stand up to one's own to the difficulties this life presents to each individual is not easy. It requires advance training. It requires an ability to take it. For the person able to do this, life is a thrilling experience.

Some parents deny their children this training. Then they are surprised when, at the very first buffeting, the adolescent caves in, because he has not been properly tempered. Instead of enjoying the security that comes from individual ability and strength, the child finds life just too much to face. Some end up in Mental Hospitals or similar institutions, the only place where they can find the so-called "security" their parents forced upon them.

NOVA SCOTIA HIGHLAND VILLAGE

An all day long programme of boat races, square dancing, fiddling contests, antique displays and Highland contests concluding with dancing under the stars is being arranged for Saturday, August 3rd. at the Nova Scotia Highland Village at Hector's Point, Iona Cape Breton.

Local lobster boats and pleasure craft will start the day by racing in Barra Strait;

The Cape Breton Square Dancing Championship, an annual Island wide contest, will have three age groups and will continue through the day. Pipe Bands will be in attendance.

Last year, a log cabin, seating around a natural ampitheathre and a stage of dance floor proportions were erected. This has been indicated at the recreational area and will not interfere with the intent of the village proper to be authentic as possible.

A committee under the chairmanship of Mr. A. Flemming of Little Narrows will set up a scale model of the area owned by the Highland Village Society. Using the topographers plan of the contours, this committee will decide the location and layouts of the village. The log cabins, store, museum, stone house, etc. will be sited on this model before any construction will begin, is to be established by 1967 — Canada's Centennial. This model will be on display so visitors can observe the progress of this undertaking to preserve the effects and memories of the Highland Settlers. A lookout is being considered back of the recreational area and the collection of antiques for the houses is continuing.

Last year's displays overflowed the log cabin and a great number of muskets and other items are being retained by their doners until such time as their permanent location is decided.

ACADIAN DAYS

Meetings are now being held in the French Village of Cheticamp in Inverness County of Cape Breton Island to plan for the Annual Acadian Days to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 11th 12th and 13th of July.

The event last year, a one day affair, will be increased in its activities length.

Boat races on the harbour will be a feature of the Saturday events and other events are being planned for the Community Centre on Thursday and Friday. A complete programme will be released soon.

It has been definitely decided that more horse and buggies will be available for sightseeing. Last year, the visitors were disappointed in not having an opportunity to visit the area in this manner.

POINT TUPPER CN STATION TORN DOWN

Another landmark of the CNR disappears as the old station at Point Tupper is torn down and burned. Many people down through the years boarded trains going to Sydney and the mainland. Point Tupper was one of the most important terminals in the province and before the completion of the Canso Causeway several hundred men were employed by the CN on the "Scotia", machine shop, roundhouse and yard crews.

The old station is the last building to be removed from the old CNR ferry Cape Breton terminal. Last year the roundhouse, the coal sheds, sand houses and other small buildings fell to make room for the Bestwall Gypsum Co., operations which is now in full use. In the pastweek three large bulk carriers sailed from the pier with about 60,000 tons of gypsum.

ARICHAT HOME AND SCHOOL

The February meeting of the Arichat Home and School Association was called to order at about 8:15 p. m. by its President, Mr. Leo Gracie. Due to the unavoidable absence of the secretary, Mr. C. D. Gordon was appointed to take the minutes of this meeting.

After prayer by Very Rev. A. Poirier, and roll call, the minutes of the January meeting were accepted as read. Since this meeting was in honor of Founder's Day, normal business was kept to a minimum as a rather lengthy entertainment was scheduled. Mother Amedee reminded the meeting that a fee of $19.80 must be paid to the Music Festival Committee should we wish our students to take part this year. On motion of Mrs. C. D. Gordon, seconded by Mrs. Boudreau, the meeting approved this expenditure. It was brought to the attention of the meeting that Canada Packers Co. were giving prizes such as dishes and pans, etc., for coupons which come with certain of their products. It was suggested that members turn these coupons over to the school for the benefit of the Home and School.

President Gracie complimented the Ways and Means Committee on the excellent concert staged by them in Petit De Grat a few weeks ago. Mrs. W. George, the chairlady of this committee, took this opportunity to thank most sincerely:

Very Rev. A. P. Poirier, for obtaining permission to hold this concert on Sunday; Rev. Father MacDonald, for the rental of the Parish Hall; The Rev. Sisters, for the use of the Convent Hall for rehearsals, as well as for the printing done; Mr. Norman Samson, for acting as M.C.; Mr. Lloyd Bourinot, for the posters and his help, Adelia Boudreau, Elaine and Edith Boudreau, Edith Binet, Betty Ann and Cornelia Boucher, the Baisley Sisters, Conrad Boucher, and Robert Bouchard, the out - of Arichat performers, mainly Fulbert Boudreau and his Orchestra and the Chisholm Sisters from Barra Head; The adult performers and also the helpers behind the scene. In one word, a sincere THANK YOU to all who helped make this concert a success.

Entertainment began with a play directed by Mother Amedee. This selection features six students, their teachers and parents. It was very well acted and told us all, the need of close co-operation between parents and teachers, through the medium of our Home and School Association in order that our children receive a well rounded out education.

Following the playlet, two motion pictures were shown. The first "No Greater Gift", was most entertaining and showed how the highly trained modern day teacher uses her many skills to educate properly our children.

The second film was a group singing and was enjoyed by all.

A very nice lunch was then served and a Birthday Cake donated by Eastern Bakeries was enjoyed by all. On motion of Leo Gallant, seconded by Very Rev. A. Poirier the secretary was instructed to write a note of thanks to Eastern Bakeries.

Just before adjournment, Mother Amedee reminded the meeting that it was customary on Founder's Day for the individual associations to send a Birthday Gift to the Parent Association and on motion of Mrs. C. D. Gordon, seconded by Mrs. W. George, the meeting approved a gift of $5.00.

Adjournment was moved by Mrs. Britten, seconded by Mr. Leo Gallant and passed by the meeting at 10:20 p. m..

The men's section, known as Springhill Community Crafts, though still on a shoe string, is producing hand - wrought metal articles for the tourist souvenir market. Since an emergency training program ended in August, 10 ex - miners in the over 45 age bracket have taken up furniture refinishing and wrought iron work on a full time basis. The Government of Nova Scotia launched the project and a committee of Springhill businessmen gave it their full support. Both are optimistic about the project's future.

COMPETITION IS HEALTHY

When I was excitedly telling a group of people about my summer CN tour of the province and of visiting Springhill after the disaster and viewing the almost hopeless dajection of its citizens and how I instinctively knew they would rise above their defeat, I was asked the question that often puts the halter on many budding souvenir industries: "How can they overcome foreign competition?"

Surely the answer is in producing artifacts others cannot match. For instance, hooked rugs. Have you seen the almost petit point beauty of those hooked by the women of Cape Breton? They are priceless. Tourists will pay for quality and design. That is why a course such as the Nova Scotia Government has sponsored is so important.
