Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

DR. SIGMUND SAMUEL'S GENEROSITY

Not all of our Canadian ancestors pioneered in log cabins furnished in crude pine stained with buttermilk paint and that made from lamp black. This was obvious when Clyde Batten, information officer of the Royal Ontario Museum arranged an afternoon for the wives of Ontario Weekly Newspaper Association members to view the outstanding Sigmund Samuel Canadiana Gallery during the recent convention of editors in Toronto.

This gallery is a permanent monument to a man whose "abiding passion for the arts and crafts of Canada was matched by his zeal for their preservation". Because of his generous gifts to the museum, including funds for the building and the acquisition of many of its treasures, priceless additions are being discovered, while others have been loaned to enhance the collection.

I was lucky enough to be included among those who attended and were greeted by Mrs. Helen Ignatieff, acting for the curator, Scott Symons. Having been an enthusiastic collector of Canadiana in several form, I was particularly impressed with the small, but authentic, collection of early Canadian silver and glass. Mrs. Ignatieff pointed out the exquisite workmanship in several Quebec pieces of furniture with their 18th and 19th century influence, especially that of Louis XIII. Many of the English - Canadian articles were of tiger maple, curly maple or cherry.

A lover of old pine and one who has put much elbow grease and effort into the "restoration" of several pieces discovered at farm auctions, I realized I could have been guilty of destroying the worth of the beautiful old pine corner cupboard on exhibit had I discovered it before the Museum did. It looks imposing and quite natural in its several coats of emerald green paint with its shelves and interior a shocking pink reputedly fashionable for china cupboards, dating back as far as 1800.

WATCH THAT SCRAPING

In the first flush of my collecting fever I once found a lovely old commode. When I scraped off a tiny bit of the several coats of dark brown varnish I realized my $2.50 purchase was old pine. I was elated but the family thought the cupboard was overpowering for our small home so I sold it to friends after I had put hours into scraping its surface. They finished the job, and some months later learned the piece was authentic early French Canadian which, had it been left in its original coat of cracked and weathered varnish, would have been worth at least $600 to any museum. In its present beswax finish, it is still one of the loveliest pieces of early Canadian furniture I have ever seen but of no value to a museum, though my friend has been offered several hundreds of dollars for it on numerous occasions.

While Mrs. Ignatieff conducted the group from one exhibit to another we caught her enthusiasm for this interesting collection. Even when we approached the truly ugly bedroom suite ca 1865 made in Lucknow, Ontario, by M. Davidson for a Robert Graham and, according to the handsome catalogue, ordered for the visit of Sir John A. MacDonald who was campaigning in favour of Confederation, her blue eyes twinkled as she said, "It won first prize in the regional Fall Fair at that time". In comparision, the lovely old pine hutch nearby restored my faith in Canadian design.

I SOLD AN HEIRLOOM

Somewhere in Canada there is a pearl grey bedroom suite which was made for the room in Calgary to be occupied by the Prince of Wales on his historic visit to this counrty following the First World War.

Complete with its three plume decorations, we bought it, after his visit, and carted it from one end of Canada to the other on our many moves until, in a moment of despair a sad assoiciation led me to dispose of it at auction. Some day, when it is old enough, it too may end up in the Sigmund Canadian gallery.

RECENT VISIT

We were happy to have a call from our good friend, John Benoit, recently.

John is a descendent of one of Arichat's early pioneer families, who followed the sea in the days of "Wooden Ships and Iron Men." It's always nice to have a chat with our good friend, who is well versed in the early history of his native Arichat.

Mr. Benoit retired from the sea some years ago, but is still interested in ships that come into harbour.

Letter from Harvey Burton

(The following letter received from Harvey Burton, of Buffalo, N. Y., will give our readers a first hand description of the celebration of three anniversaries given in honour of Dr. and Mrs. George A. Andrew., at Toronto. Harvey Burton, who like our beloved friend the Archdeacon, also hails from Arichat and it really did our heart good to know that someone from his home was there to join in the festivities marking the happy occasion. Both Dr. and Mrs. Andrew are blessed with those divine virtures which have been so notably exemplified throughout their sacred calling. Thank you, Harvey for your letand good wishes.—Editor.)

March 10, 1963

Dear Marshall: On Feb. 10th of this year, one of Cape Breton's beloved sons was highly honored at St. Michael and All Angels' Church in Toronto. The esteemed person was Archdeacon George A. Andrew, D. D., a native and former resident of the lovely town of Arichat.

The gala event was the celebration of his eightieth birthday, the 55th anniversary of his ordination as a priest and the 40th wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew. The Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, Lord Bishop of Toronto officiated at the ceremony and rendered a sermon that was most touching. Bishop Hunt, of Ontario also lent his assistance at the festivites. The large St. Michael and All Angels' Church was crowded to capacty with clergymen and admiring friends from various parts of Canada.

My wife and I were privileged in hearing the Lord Bishop confer the highest praise on one who so richly deserved the acclamation. Archdeacon Andrew was highly lauded for the tremendous sacrifice he made for the spiritual betterment of humanity.

Special mention was given to the early days of his ministry in his native Arichat. Included in the tribute, was the citing of the wonderful bond of friendship which existed between the Archdeacon and the late Rev. Father Robitaille of West Arichat. Both of whom did much to promote agriculture in the County of Richmond and were the first on Isle Madame to encourage the growing of wheat, during the war years of 1914-18 and were most successful in this respect

The biography of his achievements was disclosed to an enthusiastic congregation. His acts of kindness were scattered from the beautiful Isle of Cape Breton to the far distant hills of China and India. The revelation of his love and generosity will long live in the memory of those who learned of his Christian endeavours.

Dr. George A. Andrew's faithful wife, Mable, shared in the homage, as she too, served as a missionary in China for a period of over thirty years.

During the reception the devoted

There's one thing about Canadian weather — you'll never die of boredom. This is my thought for the week as the equinox arrives. I thnk a Canadian March 21, the frrst day of spring, is just what the word suggests. Equinox is from the Latin Equus — horse, Nox — night. English translation — nightmare.

We don't know whether we're going to be sitting out on the patio in the sun, having lunch with the birds yelling wildly and the grass sprouting green, or huddled by the window with a red nose, looking at a backyard of navel - deep snow, with a gale howling about the house.

It's refreshing, by George. I have neither patience nor sympathy with those traitors who complain continually about our Canadian weather. What we should do is pack them off to England, where it rains all the ruddy time; or ship them to the desert, where they'd be stunned into sullen submission by the brutal thump of the daily sun; or pay their passage to the tropics and let them mould in the mildew of monotonous dampness.

We should be proud of our winters, for example. They're mean, tough old devils, grimly clinging to their reign until they've wrung the last ounce of resistance out of us. Sometimes, I swear, one more week of cold weather would have everyone in the nation at each others throats.

Then comes one of those incredibly soft, caressing days, then the wind is velvet from the south the sun licks ice and snow with hot ravishing tongue, gutters gurgle, and there's a lovely stink as the wrappings are peeled from the rotting, buried body of the earth.

Out in the ice, the steam-boats bellow like trapped buffaloes. Out on the street, the kids stroll through puddles over their boot tops. Out in the bush, the trout streams, black eels against the snow, snort and chuckle and burble with pure pleasure as they race to their nameless destiny, free again after months of silent slavery.

Down at the dock, the boat owners prowl, calculating, estimating, figuring the days until they can launch that leaky, paint - peeled monument to man's eternal folly. Up on the hills, the fanatics are still at it, hurtling down over gravel and grass, rocks and roots, and occasionally some snow.

Up in the bedroom, the good wife views, with horrified delight, the sickening shade of last year's wallpaper, revealed by the yellow March sun. Down in the basement the fisherman putters and mutters swears and glares, ties flies.

Down at the park or the poolroom or the Post Office, the old gents, sick to the soul with confinement, suck in the sun, shivering, but once again defiantly alive, part of the world. Up in their rooms, the teen - agers seem to be studying for their Easter exams, while through their heads and bodies swirl the heady fluids of life, the juices of spring.

Up in the attic, the black squirrels perform their endless do-si-do, interrupted only by queer periods in which they don't scuttle, but chortle and croonto the doubtless thousands of babies they have produced in the winter months. Down in the basement crouches the cat, vast with unwanted kittens, brooding, patient, green-eyed.

Ours, I'm afraid, is not the spring of O To Be In England, now that April's there. It's not the spring of tiny jonquils poking their dainty heads through the turf. It's not the spring of birdies and blossoms of gambolling lambs and tender green bulbs. All this is two months away.

Ours is a savage, sudden spring, raw and rugged, ornery and awkward unexpected and uncomfortable, muddy and moody. But it's never dull.

And boy-o-boy-boy, aren't we glad to see it.

HOW MANY ARE BANK CUSTOMERS?

A safe guess would be every one of them / That's because, in Canada, practically everybody has regular dealings with a chartered bank / Deposit accounts number more than 12½ million—or better than one for every adult. And on the books of the banks at any one time are 1,800,000 loans for just about every personal and commercial purpose / Through 5,000 branches, from one end of the country to the other, the chartered banks bring a full banking service within the reach of everyone.

REPORTING THE NEWS

In reporting news items in our columns we endeavour to write these items in accordance to information at hand and do not intentionally wish to make any statements which are not factual. Word has reached us that a certain note appearing in a recent issue was not reported correctly. If the party concerned felt that a correction should have been made we feel that the Editor should have been contacted in person. Since assuming the responsibility as Editor of this weekly, we have been considerate of our readers feelings and we believe we have followed our motto which appears under our heading—"Be Just and Fear Not."

We believe in the golden rule, however, on the other hand we do not wish to be ridiculed and are quite capable of taking our part if the occasion arises.

If from time to time we allowed certain letters to appear in the Record, no doubt readers would have more justifiable reason for finding fault.

We do not give the same coverage as our dailies who have the facilities to insert photos to cover a story but we do assure our readers that every item written by us in our humble way carries the same meaning and if an item is in error don't tell others—tell your Editor.

HOW STRONG A GOVERNMENT

From the time I was old enough to listen to political talk in my father's shop, I have been hearing politicians harp on the need for "strong, positive government. "As a schoolboy, I knew parents also liked "strong, positive" teachers, too; but I also knew that I learned more from the teachers who were less intent on strength and positiveness than were in bringing out the best in their pupils.

The older I get, the more I wince at this monotonous demand for strength in government. There have been strong governments. Hitler had one. Mussolini had one. Khrushchev has one. I see no merit in them, except for the politicians themselves. Not for the people.

On TV, just following the defeat of the Government, I heard labor statistician Dr. Eugene Forsey say that the idea the Canadian people ought to be spanked unless they give this party or that one a good solid majority is nonsense. I agree. The Canadian voter ought to vote for the candidate of his choice and let the chips fall where they may.

It is understandable that we would like all to know what government is going to do next, so that we can make our business plans accordingly, because governments have begun to interfere more and more in our lives. But if they are too darn powerful, they will interfere all the more.

It is quite conceivable that Canada will return to Ottawa a mixed bag once again. If so, we should each write a letter to the candidate we supported, in this vein: Dear M. P.: I voted for you. Now I want you to work for me – not spend your time politicking for another election. I am going to be watching you. If you waste time or indulge in petty politics, you will lose my vote next time."

In my view, governments need not be all powerful. Given a set of fair laws, well administered, the Canadian people can do very well for themselves. They can plan their lives and their budgets. What they can't afford is one costly election after another with the resulting uncertainty about what tax policies and so forth may suddenly be foisted upon them. Surely a course can be set and followed for at least a five year period, whether or not the party in power had a thumping majority. It could be if there was a reasonable sense of responsibility on the part of the elected representatives of the people.

L'ARDOISE HOME AND SCHOOL

of $80.00 was given to purchase this equipment.

Mrs. Fred Sampson for Community Council requested the support of the members for organizing a program of education or Gardening.

The program was a panel—"How the Home can help the pupil achieve success". This was followed by lively discussion.

The October meeting was held in October 10th with 48 people present. The Parish Scholarship Commission was reviewed and requirements for application were explained. The following delegates were appointed to the fall session of County Council—Mrs. Maxie Monbourquette; Mrs. E. A. Martell; Mrs. Helaire Martel, Mrs. George Monbourquette; Mrs. Harold Martel. The program was a discussion of T. V. in the home.

The regular meeting for November was held in the 13th. Education Convener reported that T.B. clinic would be held on November 14 and 15. Capsules had been received and were being given to all pupils from Primary to Grade 6. Crusaders Y. C. S. and Credit Union were organized in the school. Objective chosen for the year is to increase library facilities for pupils.

The sum of $5.00 was voted for Care of Canada; and $10.00 to supply needy families with Christmas baskets.

The monthly meeting for December was held on the 5th with 80 persons present. Mr. Britten, Principal spoke of the great loss to the community when our large Consolidated School was destroyed by fire on December 2nd. Mr. Frank Monbourquette, member of the School Board for Richmond, held out hopes for immediate construction of a bigger and better school building.

A Christmas party followed the regular business meeting. A sing song and exchange of gifts took place and a delicous lunch was served after the business session.

At the January regular meeting plans were made to hold a Penny Sale on February 22nd at the Legion Hall. The program consisted of a talk by the president of the County Council on "The Value of a High School Education", based on answers he drew from the students themselves. Some of the answers included job satisfaction, prestige, self-confidence and other ingrediants for successful living.

At the February meeting the large attendance enjoyed two interesting films. The Education Convener reviewed the attendance accumulative record cards and the record of marks for mid-year examinations. A collection was taken up for Founder's day and a delicious lunch was served.

LETTER FROM HARVEY BURTON

couple were presented with a beautiful television and radio set by members of the parish of St. Michael and All Angels'. They also shared in extinguishing an eighty candle power flame that flared on a birthday cake which was almost as high as the Eiffel tower. The many flickers of light imbedded in the frostng, bore a close resemblance to the twinkling path of the Milky Way. Rev. Andrew stood on one side of the table and his wife stood on the other. At a given signal, they applied all the pressure that was left in their bellows, but to no avail. When the candles were eventually extinguished, the cake was cut and the delicacies were portioned out among the numerous guests.

In closing we both join in wishing you and yours good health and happiness.

Sincerely yours,
HARVEY A. BURTON
