JOSEPH T. CHIASSON ADULT EDUCATOR VISITS ARICHAT HOME & SCHOOL

The Arichat Home and School Association held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, March 12, at the Convent. Despite road conditions, 40 members were present.

After prayer and roll call, the Grade X pupils, attired in Roman style, dramatized Act 111 Scene 2 of "Julius Ceasar." The various groups rendered their parts in a commendable fashion.

Following this, the program continued with the reading, discussion and approval of the minutes. The Principal informed the members of the forthcoming visit of a dental hygienist from March 20 to April 8. Parents who wish the service for ther children are asked to sign the notices given by the teachers to pupils from Primary to Grade VI inclusive.

The guest speaker, Mr. Joseph T. Chiasson, Adult Education....

"The concept of this term "Adult Education" is quite broad. While some people may think that it applies to night classes in academic subjects, others may see in it an opportunity to be one's technical opportunity to better one's technical job. In one way or another, the development of the adult is considered. Various agencies are engaged in this work: the government takes an active part through its Division of Adult Educaton and its Public Health services; universities have trained personnel for this work and can be considered adult education agencies "par excellence". One needs but to remember the pioneer work of St. Francis Xavier University in this field to realize what our university has done for the common man. The third class of agencies are the voluntary groups, such as the U. M. F. Credit Unions, Co-operatives Boards of Trade; But the top one is the Home & School. This Association has one reason for existing: to allow parents and teachers to come together and produce better opportunities for the educaton of the child. A member's participation in Home and School must make him a better parent or a better teacher. There is no hard and fast rule to determine the efficiency of a Home & School: (we get out of it what we put into it.

To keep the Home & School an educational medium, the Provincial Convention last year selected one item, asking all locals to make a study of the project—vocational guidance. Lack of a guidance program may mean that our efforts and money may go to waste. We, as parents and teachers can get whatever we want if we want it badly enough. Let's study about Guidance."

The speaker mentioned the Leadership Folk-School to be held at Baddeck. It was a revelation to the members to hear Mr. Chiasson say that since 1955 he had had a Folk School every year.

Very Rev. A. P. Poirier moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Chiasson. We wish to state our deep appreciation for his most interesting and enlightening talk.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

There's nothing quite as destroying as being torn between two women. Some fellows are ripped asunder by a wife pulling in one direction, a mother hauling in the other.

Other chaps are split down the middle; by the big decison should I marry Mabel, who is good, kind sweet, homely, dull and crazy about time; or should I run after Torso, who is bad, cruel, mean, eye-popping, exciting, and couldn't care less if I dropped dead?

I remember one time when I was about 18. It may be hard to believe, for those who know me now, but that was the year I had two girls keen on me. At the same time. I was pretty fond of both. One was sweet and innocent. The other was a red-head with a wicked shape.

I don't know how it happened, but by some miracle of mismanagement, I made a date with both girls for the same night, same time. When I realized the pickle I was in, I knew that each would be furious if I stepped out with the other one. So I took the sensible, cowardly way out, stood them both up, and went to a country dance with the boys. Both girls recovered from the blow with amazing speed and eventually had the good sense to marry someone with some guts.

It s only we cowards who get into these jams. And I'm in another one right now. This time my wife and daughter are tearing me in two. They're worse than politicians. Each bends my ear with intensity when the other isn't around, trying to persuade, bribe or inveigle me into joining her side.

It's all over those crazy kittens. Four more arrived two days ago. It's the fourth batch in two years. Our cat, needless to say, is a real sex-pot.

The first batch was an event. The kids witnessed the wonders of birth. There was tremendous nourished and cherished. The maw excitement. The kittens were weaned, I had a talk with my daughter. She wept, but agreed that we might have a problem if we keep them all. I put an ad in the paper. It was on a pretty lofty tone, demanding a good home, suggesting that nothing but the best would do. We got rid of them all, easily.

****

Next time around, a little of the gloss had worn off. It took two ads in the paper, to get rid of only two kittens. Finally, a little boy turned up. He wanted only one, but I told him they were inseparable twins, bullied him, threatened him, cajoled him, and finally he took them, when I gave him half a dollar apiece.

****

The third batch brought ultimatums from the Old Battleaxe. And I don't blame her much. Have you ever tried to get dinner with four mewing little beasts tottering about underfoot, widding on the floor at every step? Even their own mother became fed up with the grocery-gutted little punks, who gave her never a moment's rest.

Three ads in the paper produced one reluctant customer. My sister came to visit and her normal good sense destroyed by a pre-dinner martini, in which I craftily tripled everything except the olive, she was a fairly easy victim. That left two kittens.

We couldn't move them. The market for kittends was apparently saturated. There were two alternatives — kittens or wife. Kittens can't cook.

All right. I admit it. I did it. I still shudder when I think of it. I've never been the same since. But I don't want to go into details. Just call me Eichmann, for short.

Never again, I swore silently. Especially after my daughter came down in the morning, im-

MAURICE EDWARDS WITH CANADIAN UNIT IN THE CONGO

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo,—Signalman Maurice Edwarls, 29, of Arichat, N. S., was in a group of Canadian soldiers who recently arrived in the Congo by RCAF aircraft to begin a tour of duty with 57 Canadian Signal Unit in the United Nations Force.

A member of the Royal Canadian Signals, Sig. Edwards will work in the tape relay centre with the signal unit in the Congo. He was stationed with the Charlottetown Detachment of the Nova Scotia Signal Squadron before coming to the Congo.

Sig. Edwards is the son of Mrs. Cecilia Edwards and the late Melvin Edwards of Arichat. His wife Julia and family live at 239 Cumberland Street, in Charlottetown, P. E. I.

The Canadian signal unit has been providing military communications for the United Nations Force in the Congo since August 1960. Most of the Canadian contingent is based in Leopoldville, the capital of the republic, where they operate a message centre, tape relay centre and telephone switchborad. However, six signal detachments of 10 to 14 men each are located with other U. N. troops in the interior of the Congo.

The normal length of service for Canadians in the Congo is six months, but staff officers employed at U. N. Headquarters in Leopoldville stay for a year.

The tropical posting is popular with many soldiers and about 25 percent apply for an extended tour of duty.

CALL FOR RED ADAIRS!

When a gas well in Alberta caught fire recently, its owners knew just what to do—call for Red Adair. If any person could quell the fire, it would be that young Texan. They call him a daredevil.

I would suspect that brains, more than sheer courage, are the makings of Red Adair and his fabulous business. He is simply just that little edge beter than his contemporaries in knowledge and ability, and he has the wit to capitalize on it. I am told he has an office decorated in bright red decor, complete with a red-headed secretary who wears a red dress!

There is a great deal to know about fires and how to fight them. This fire happens to be a natural gas well. One thing few people realize is that natural gas is NOT poisonous. That's right, it is not poisonous; it was the old form of manufactured gas that used to claim hundreds of lives through posioning. Red Adair would know this and a thousand other facts to enable him to approach the fire and defeat it.

I have never met Red Adair, but I would dearly love to. Without having met him, I would take wagers that he has these qualities —he works like the very devil, he is quiet in his manner, he is a delightful personality. Men who know what they are about usually qualify on all these counts, with very rare exceptions.

How we could use a population of Red Adairs, of men and women willing to worq hard enough to be tops in their fields—to know what htey are about, and to have that quiet self-assurance that comes with skill and knowledge.

Virtually every young lad today has the opportunity to be a Red Adair of a sort. Educational opportunities are better than ever before, and the chance to earn and learn is open to most of those who seek diligently for that kind of opportunity. I hope that at least some of them will resolve to be something more than ordinary run-of-the-mill sorts and set out to be—in whatever line of work interests them—Canadian Red Adairs!

The battle is on now. The old. Trouble 'n Strife says they've got to go. Young Kim is watching me like a hawk, and reminding me of my past perfidy.

I haven't the nerve to murder them. I haven't the nerve to get rid of them, somehow. The only way out, as far as I can see, is to take them in a basket, suitably decorated, with an appropriate note inside, and leave them on the doorstep of our next-door neighbor, whose big, black tomcat is at the root of the whole dilemma.

LETTER FROM A FORMER COUNTY GIRL

We have received a letter from Mrs. Patricia (Kelly) MacLeod, of Egartown, Mass., a former native of Whiteside, this county.

This letter will appear in our next issue.

RETURNS HOME

Albert Edwards who spent the past few months visiting his sons, Raymond and Inglis, in Halifax, returned home recently to re-open his home.

Constable Edwards is stationed with a detachment of the R.C.M.P., in New Brunswick, having recently returned from Regina, where he completed his course.

We wish Sonny continued success.

GOOD CATCHES

The trawler Jean Fletcher, in command of Capt. Sam Rideout and the Red Diamond IV in command of Capt. Walter Keeping, landed good catches of haddock at the Booth plant at Petit de Grat the past week. Each trawler landed over 300,000 pounds each. The catches during the winter have not been as large as previous years due to rough weather and a notable scarcity of fish on the grounds.

At present no drift has been sighted near our coast and this spring should see our shore fishermen off to a good start on the opening of the lobster season on May 1st.

CHARLES I. CAMERON

The passing of Charles I Cameron, of St. Peters, has removed a veteran business man and highly respected citizen from that community.

A member of one of St. Peters' pioneer families, Mr. Cameron carred on a general store business for some years and later ventured into the wholesale grocery business. He also operated a big wholesale flour and feed business, but in recent years curtailed the business to groceries, confectionery and tobacco.

About three years ago Mr. Cameron's large wholesale store, in the main business section of the town was destroyed by fire. Mr. Cameron, then returned to the orignal Cameron store to the West of the town where he continued his wholesale business up to the time of hs death.

"Charlie", as he was better known by his many friends, was a man of pleasing personality and was favourably known in his native County of Richmond, where he carried on a successful business during his lifetime. He was a most industrious man and his business dealings with his patrons was conducted in a manner which won for him the highest respect of everyone.

A devout member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, the late Mr. Caomeron was truly a Christian gentleman and his passing will be mourned by all who were acquainted with him.

Personally we always held the late Mr. Cameron in the highest regard and found in him a loyal friend. We shall always cherish his memory.

Surviving besides his wife is a brother, Dr. Arthur Cameron, of Wyndotte, Mich., to both we extend our sincere sympathy in the passing of a beloved husband and brother.

Funeral Mass was held from St. Peters Church, with the pastor, Rev. Father MacNeil, as celebrant and other clergy of the church takng part in the impressive Mass of Requiem.
