Ramblings in the Past

By OLD TIMER

In November 1786, while Father Phalen was visiting Father Jones in Halifax, a wandering Dominican named LeDru came to Arichat by way of the West Indies and poached on Doctor Phelan's territory. He described him as—

"a French sharper, who pretended to be a priest, and by his address procured from an Acadian near Halifax the chalice, mass book, ritual, etc., which formerly belonged to some praish. With these he ran all over the country, feigned to say mass, marry, hear confessions, etc."

He apparently decamped before Faher Phelan's return.

Father Jones in a letter to the Bishop dated 23 April 1787 speaks of "the divided people of Narishot. Their dispute arose from their building a church at both sides of the harbour, and each party insisted on Fr. Phalen's attending." There are no local records, recollections or legends suggesting that a church was ever started or eventually built on the south side of the harbour, although there is evidence that here was internal dissension among the parishioners at about that time.

Fr. Phalen's parish of Arichat had an extensive misssion which included all the settlements on Cape Breton Island, St. John's Island (Prince Edward Island), the Gulf Shore part of New Brunswick, Pictou, settlements on the Strait of Canso and the surrounding districts, the district of Tracadie and the location of the present Town of Anitgonish. He estimated that he had 200 families to attend to, two thirds of which were Acadians, most of these residing on Isle Madame.

In October 1787 Father Thomas Power, form Ireland, came to Arichat. He spoke French as well as English and remained for the winter as Father Phalen's assistant, attending the Antigonish section of the missions.

During this time Father Phelan was endeavoring to secure a Halifax appointment, but all his efforts failed. And Father Jones began regretting his action in accepting this missionary without proper written attestations.

Of course this was a rugged pastorate. The extent of the missions, alone, would have daunted any ordinary man; the remuneration was meager referring to his means of support Father Phelan wrote to a friend in Halifax "hitherto from any one of these 140 families (most on Isle Madame) I never received on an average more than one quintal of fish per annum;" roads were practically non existant; travel was mostly over open trails and by boat or ship. The latter method of transporation was at best unreliable, the odds being definitely against the traveller obtaining a passage either to or from a place when needed.

During his tenure of office Father Phelan completed the chapel which had been started before his arrival, built a parsonage and improved the land on which the parish buildings stood. This land he acquired in his own name in 1788, consisting of a 75 acre grant bearing the notation: "Rev. Wm. Phelan, No. 16". In 1789 he acquired, again in his own name, another tract of land at Rocky Bay.

The rift between Father Jones and Father Phelan, due to non-submission, grew wider and relations became more strained. On 16 April 1792 Father Jones came to Arichat and removed Father Phelan from office. Although dismissed from his pastorate he remained in Arichat for another 18 months to regain his post, but without success. He refused to hand over the keys of the glebe house to his successor with the result that it was over ten years before the latter had a residence of his own.

Father Phelan emigrated to the United States late in 1793 and died in Pennsylvania in early 1795.

An active missionary, an exceedingly able preacher and a writer, a priest of irreproachable character, but perhaps not above indulging in some of the "mercenary practices" which he decried in a few of his parishioners.

(The next instalment will feature Rev. Francois Lejamtel who succeeded Father Phelan from 1792 to 1819. at Arichat.)

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

You never know it to look at me, but I will observe my 43rd birthday this week. What I mean is, if you are six, you'll think I'm at least 60, and if you're 66, you'll think I'm only about 29.

Each year, at birthday time, I like to make a brief analysis of my character, my success in life, my ilkes and dislikes, and anything else that happens to crop up.

As far as character goes, I am confident that there is a steady improvement. Some people deteriorate morally as they grow older. I get better and better. Really.

Take smoking, for example. I used to smoke like a chimney. I even smoked while I was shaving. I learned my lesson. One day I put my razor in my mouth and took a drag on it, and tried to take my whiskers off with a hot butt It was because I was reading at the time, of course. Now, I never read smoke and shave at the same time. It's pretty boring,, just reading and shaving, or smoking and shaving, but I've stuck to it.

• • •

I also received an object lesson about smoking in bed. One night my wife came home from a meeting, walked into the bedroom and was confronted by a pillar of smoke. I have never smoked in bed since, except when I was reading.

I've prety well conquered the drink, too. I used to take a drink at the drop of a hat. Then hats went out of fashion among men, for a few years, so I took a drink just to prove that I didn't have a single-track mind. Hats are back now, but it doesn't bother me. When I take a vow, I stick to it. And a few years ago, I swore a solemn oath that I'd never take another drink unless we had company, or were alone.

I've given up playing around, too. This occurred last New Year's Eve when my wife caught a lady kissing me with gay abandon. She didn't mind an Auld Lang Syne buss so much. It was the gay abandon that got her. She claimed it was mutual.

I haven't kicked a dog in years. Except Playboy, our spaniel, when he helped me out with the garbage the other day. I haven't shouted at a child since I don't know when, except when Kim arrived home on Thursday afternoon with a baby squirrel that had fallen out of a tree, and wanted to adopt it.

• • •

Well, then, the morals are on the upswing. As for success in life, I think things are going well there, too. When I was married, I didn't have a thing. Now I have three mortgages. My name is a Household word. What more could one ask of success?

With regard to my likes and dislikes, that's easy. I like swamps. Today, I was out in a swamp, and I saw a rabbit, three partridge, a deer and a wild duck, all within easy range. I had a fishing rod. That's why I like swamps.

I like teen-agers. From July 1st to September 4th, I find them the most fascinating, lively, effervescent, intriguing group I ever had nothing to do with.

I like eggs (scrambled) and legs (chicken). I like May and September. I like individuals as long as they are being individual with somebody else. I enjoy crowds, when they are somewhere else.

I don't like humorless people; those who try to impose their morals on others; dirty jokes that aren't junny; waking up in the morning; going to bed at night; phonies; work; cats. I also don't like people with more money than I, people who are smarter than I. In fact, I don't like many people.

• • •

Now for the odds and ends of my birthday analysis. If everyone followed my rules, few would live past 30. And it would serve them right.

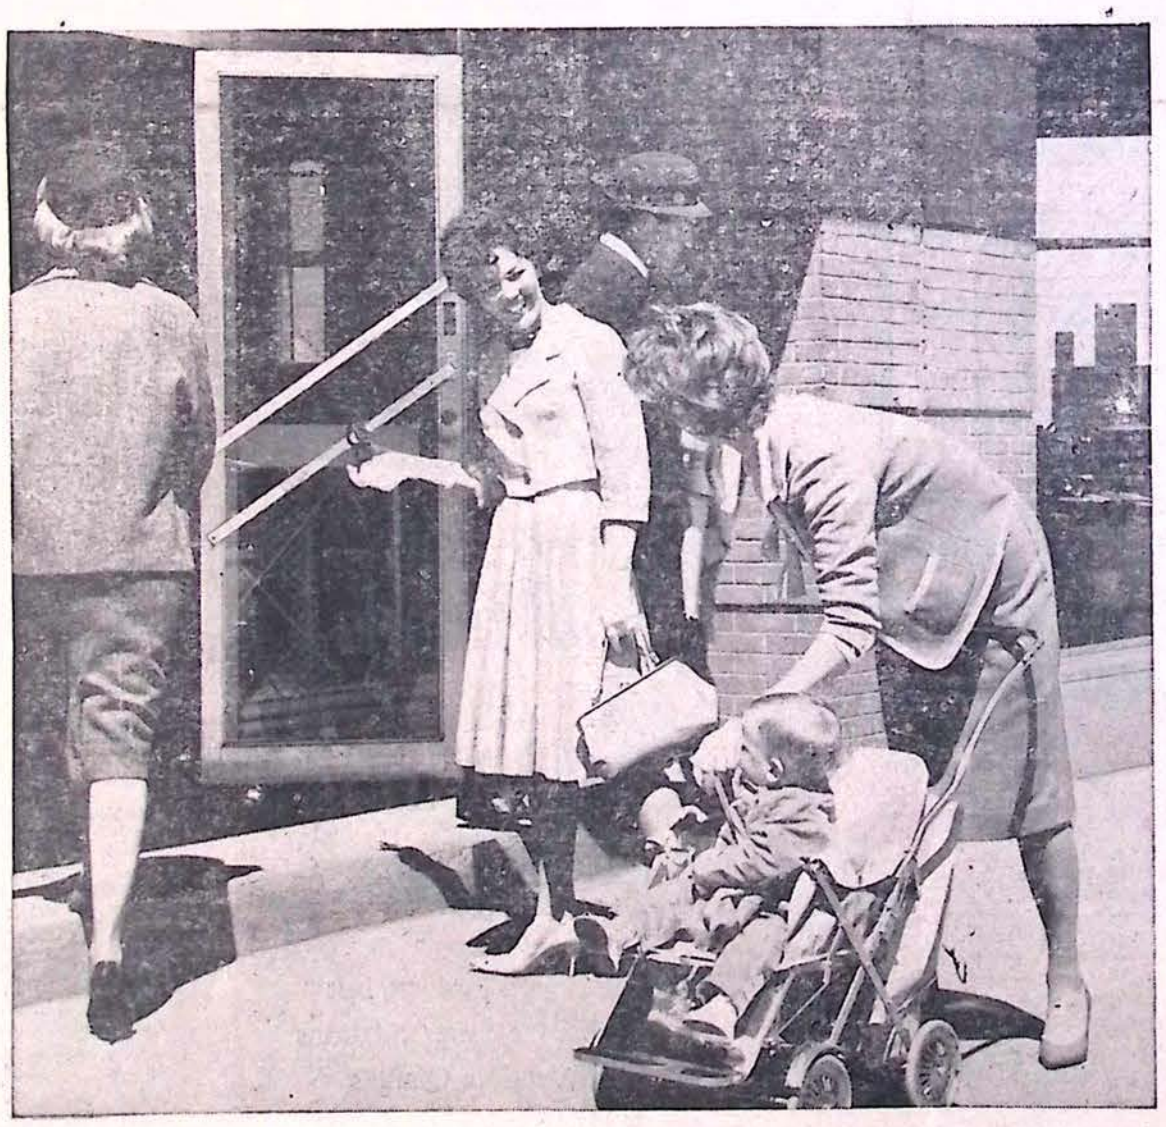

You are old, Father William. Oh, izzat so?

How come, then, my daughter would rather play catch with me than anyonte?

How come my son says, "Dad, when are you gonna grow up?"

How come my wife says, "Stop acting like a child!"

Well, all I can say, in the face of all that evidence, is "Happy Birthday to you!" And I do mean me.

"I'll be over–after I do my banking!"

Nowadays it's natural for the lady of the house to do much of the family banking, because it's so convenient to look after money matters at one place—the local chartered bank, an all-round banking service-centre.

This busy homemaker is on her way to deposit part of her husband's salary in their savings account, cash a cheque on their joint chequing account, and pay the monthly instalment on a personal loan. All this taken care of under one roof—quickly, easily, simply.

Any bank service you use is an introduction to many others. And the chartered banks are always on the lookout for new ways to be helpful to more people. Good reason why the number of deposit accounts has doubled to 14 million in just 10 years, and 3,500 new accounts are being opened every banking day.

LITTLE TOWNS GROWING UP

If Canada were a land of Asiatic persuasion this could very well be called "The Year of the Beards". There will be more astounding evidence of masculine virility suffered in the cause of centenary and Jubilee celebrations across our land this summer that I can possibly keep track of or which I can give a publicity boost.

Here in my town of Aurora, Ont., celebrating its centennial this summer, the men have feathered out in every chin and jowl coverage ranging from bright red to silver gray. I pity the judges for unless there are several categories how in the world will they choose a winner? Long, strong, tough, coarse, silky or just plain beardsy beard, I'm quite sure they won't have a woman on the judging committee. She'd offer them a razor for a prize and an admonition to go shave it of.

In North Battleford, Saskatchewan, the citizenry will celebrate the community's Golden Jubilee officially from May 19 — 25, but actually there will be events other than the beard—growing contest to mark the event throughout the whole year. Lorne Cooper of the McIntosh Publishing Company Limited, publishers of four weekly newspapers in the province, and who has a lot to do with the publicity for the Jubilee Committee, has this to say in an interesting letter he wrote to me recently:

"The City of North Battleford and Saskatchewan's northwest is directly connected with the history of this province. Our city was on the route taken by the Barr Colonists in their famous trek from Saskatoon to Lloydminister; the government of the Northwest Territories was housed in Battleford, our neighboring town to the south; the famed Northwest Mounted Police were located at Fort Battleford; and we are some 30 miles away from the site of the famed Battle of Cut Knife Hill which is related in the Riel Uprising.

"Our city, with a population now of just under the 12,000 mark, was incorporated in 1913 and this year we are celebrating our Golden Jubilee. To co—ordinate events and special promotions the city council has established a Jubilee Committee which has been meeting each week to plan activities and celebrations for the entire year.

"A host of special events have already been confirmed and arrangements are continuing for others. Like any other community celebrating a jubilee, there will be the usual souvenirs, public gatherings, dances, etc. However, the committee has left no stone unturned in its efforts and some of the events will, no doubt, have special appeal for our visitors."

TRACTORS RATE HIGH IN FARM ACCIDENTS

Tractors are involved in more farm accidents than other farm equipment, according to the National Safety League of Canada. The Leaghe adds, however, this is because they get more use than other machines.

NSL supports Farm Safety Week being observed in the United States and most of Canada from July 21 to 27.

P. G. McLaren, the League's general manager, pointed out that a farmer is responsible for safety in his home as well as his indusdifferent types of machinery durtry. He may use as many as 35 ing the year. The variety and make his work faster and easier complexity of this machinery may but not necessarily safer.

Mechanical failure, NSL reports is rarely responsible for accidents involving modern farm equipment "Nearly every such accident" Mr. McLaren said, "results from the operator's mistake". He cautioned that common sense, care and undivided attention must be exercised in the operation of mechanical equipment.

On th efarm, falls are the predominant killer and produce more sustaining injuries than any other type of equipment. A farm worker must repeatedly climb on and off his equipment. He works in all kinds of weather. Frozen or wet ground makes slipping easy. Oil or grease on a tractor step, loose straw in the loft, a loose or cracked rung on a ladder, can lead to painful and expensive accidents if unnoticed or ignored.

Nor is the farm home exempt. About two-thirds of the nation's fatal falls occur in the home and th efarm home is no different in this concern than the town home. Falls happen bceause of too much hurry too little attention to surroundings, using equpiment unsuited to the job, and putting off the removal of obvious hazards. moment, if aken immediately will Positive steps requiring only a eliminate many causes of falls, said the League.

Keep stairs and passages clear of clothing, tools and toys. Protect outdoor steps and porches from weather damage and rotting.

Fasten rugs securely and avoid olose scatter rugs. Use ladders in good repair instead of makeshifts and see they are on firm footing and at a safe angle. Move the spills at once. Stairs should have ladder— don't reach. Wipe up handrails and adequate lighting should be provided on stairs and in hallways. Keep a night light glowing in or near the bathroom. Install grab bars and use rubber mats in bathtubs.

"never comes by itself. It must "Safety," says Mr. McLaren, be provided, and this is the responsibility of the farmer."

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

DANIEL J. SUTHERLAND

The recent sudden passing of Daniel J. Sutherland occasioned widespread sorrow in this community and throughout the county.

The late Mr. Sutherland had retired as Prothonotary and Clerk of the Court only a few years ago, having held both these positions for some years.

Dan was the last surviving member of the Sutherland family in this town. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs John Sutherland His sister Katherine predeceased him a few years ago.

Always of a pleasing and jovial personality he will be grea. missed by his many friends. About a year ago Dan took up residence at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Richard, Head of Harbor, Arichat, where he was well cared for.

During his youth he engaged in the teaching profession and taught in schools in this County and in Guysboro county.

After retiring from the teaching profession he took up residence in the USA where he was employed by the Hood Rubber Co., in Boston, Mass.

Returning from the USA in the early 20's he went into the show business and operated shows throughout the province in the days of silent movies.

He also engaged in the fox raising industry having taken over the fox ranch formerly operated by his late father. With a decline in the price of furs he closed his ranch in 1931.

The funeral took place from Norte Dame Church with burial in the parish cemetery.

He is survived by two nieces and one nephew residing in other parts of Canada.

SIMON A. BOUCHER

The death of Simon A. Boucher of this town occurred recently at the home of his son Gerald Boucher with whom he was residing.

The late Mr. Boucher was in his 88th year and was quite active up to two years ago.

For many years he was the efficient district foreman in Arichat.

Sam, as he was favourably known by his friends, was a good neighbour and was held in high regard by his many friends.

Prior to moving to Arichat some years ago from Cape Auguet he was a very successful fisherman and also engaged in fishing out of this port being a shareholder of the Arichat Fish Trap. He also engaged in boat building some years ago.

A brother, the late Rev. W. A. Boucher predeceased him two years ago.

Surviving are three sons and two daughters, Valma at Point Edward Naval Base; Capt. W. X. Boucher of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Halifax and Gerald, at home; Mrs. Holstein (Anna) in Holland; and Mrs. Williams (Ethel) of Philadelphia, USA.

Mrs. Holstein who resides in Holland was unable to be present at the funeral. All the other members were in attendance.

The many floral offerings and Mass Cards attested to the esteem in which the late Mr Boucher was held by his many friends.

Funeral was held from Notre Dame Church of which he was a devout member.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved sons and daughters.

Celebrations of this nature, I believe, are not only attractive to tourists, but are definately community rousers.
