Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

THE CITY THAT GLOWS

I wish I could have stored a little of the enthusiam of Louis Pare to draw on later when my inspiration lags. He was one of the fathers who created the annual Quebec Carnival and has the jolly bonhomie of Bonhomme himself. Bonhomme, the happy snowman, has become familiar to thousands and is the outstanding trademark of the famous Quebec City winter attraction.

I met Monsieur Pare in the charming office the Quebec Government has opened in Rockefeller Centre, where he is in charge. When he had proudly shown me the artistically functional suites planned for the promotion of his native land, I asked him what he considered was the greatest drawing board for the tourist dollar in his province. I am sure he is not prejudiced just because he played an important part in organizing the Carnival; it is simply that it has become such an outstanding event and so popular it almost surmounts in the off season, the summer appeal of this ancient Canadian city.

I was infected with his enthusiasm and I beleive, as we swelter in summer heat, the story of the Quebec Carnival will prove a popular subject.

EXPANDED BUDGET

Some idea of the growth of this undertaking can be gathered from the fact that when the carnival was conceived the first budget was set up for $30,000. On its tenth anniversary, which is the 1964 Carnival coming up next winter, the budget approved by the Board of Directors is for $400,000.

The first year, seven groups from the seven areas called Dutchies elected a candidate for Queen of the Carnival and votes were sold at 10 cents each to raise funds for the project. By the third year this had expanded to 14 groups to include all classes from student to civic employee, the wealthy and the middle classes, service clubs and sportsmen.

It was at this juncture that a painless way to finance the campaign and publicize the city was conceived. A door-to-door blitz from 6 to 10 p.m. covered the entire city. Every door bell was rung and candles were offered for sale at 5 cents each or so many for a dollar. When they burned it was possible to become the lucky winner of a hundred dollar prize if a capsule was found with a number to call. Winners appeared on TV while the city glowed in candlelight and the whole excitement of this money earning inspiration added to the atmosphere and conviviality of the carnival.

The idea had such appeal it has become one of the most spectacular events of the winter season. There are no more financial problems, the natural instincts of natives and tourists alike to participate in the prospect of finding a capsule in their candle has insured funds and added lustre to this Canadian Carnival that has everything — — ice, snow and color.

WEDDING

Fougere — Comeau

A very pretty wedding of widespread interest took place recently at the Immaculate Conception Church, when in a double ring ceremony marriage vows were exchanged between Claire Marie Comeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Joseph Comeau and John Basil Fougere son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Fougere, all of West Arichat. Rev. Father Doucet officiated at the ceremony before a large gathering of relatives and friends. Given in marriage by her uncle, Francis LeJeune, the bride was most attractive in her original full length gown in pure white nylon over satin, styled with a round neckline featuring embossed flowers which duplicated the waist and down the front of the skirt. The long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. The back of the dress featured a large bow trailing half way down the full skirt. which fell into a slight train. Her shoulder length veil of nylon net fell from a pearl and iridescent crystal beaded crown. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses with white stephanotis and fern. Attending the bride as matron of honour was Mrs. Henry LeJeune. She wore a sheath dress in yellow taffetta, fashioned with a full skirt a dainty neckline, and sleeves. She wore a matching rosette headpiece and mitts and carried a nosegay of yellow and white carnations. Miss Anthonia LeJeune and Miss Geraldine Poirier were bridesmaids. Miss LeJeune wore a blue lace dress scooped neckline, three quarter length sleeves and a full skirt. Her headpiece was rosette of matching organza, white mitts, and carried a cascade of pink roses with carnations. Miss Poirier wore a blue dress of nylon organza styled with full skirt and short sleeves. She wore a headpiece of matching blue organza and a hairline length veil of blue net. She carried a cascade of pink and blue Sensation roses. Vernie Poirier was best man and the ushers were Jerry Doiron and Wilfred Forgeron. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Marbro Hotel at Arichat to a number of relatives and guests. The bride's table was nicely appointed laid with white linen and centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Rev. Fr. Doucet offered grace and a toast which was responded to by the groom. The wedding cake was cut in traditonal manner by the bride and groom. After the reception the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Montreol. For travelling the bride donned a pink brocade ensemble. She wore white and pink accessories, and a corsage of white and pink roses. They will reside in Halifax. We join with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy life.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Summer - time . . . and the livin' is eeeeeezy. That's what the man said in the song. I beg to differ. Today, a typical summer day at the Smileys, we've got a girl going to camp, a boy going to the dogs, a dog going to the vet's, a mother going around the bend, and a father going to seed.

And the livin' is anything but easy. We have spent all our money except the last baby bonus and there's a month before we get the next paycheck.

Kim is in the next room getting ready to go to camp. To hear her talk, in the preceeding weeks, her fortnight at camp is the only oasis in the bleak and dreary desert which comprises the life of a kid going into Grade 8. Her method of preparing for camp is a familiar one to many parents. She's lying on her bed reading comic books.

Six weeks ago our son was an earnest Grade 11 student who practised the piano three hours a day beginning at 7 a.m., did his homework, received a nominal allowance, went to bed at a reasonable hour, and eschewed the company of females. Now he is an orange-piler in one of our many chain stores, and as a result, wealthy, a devotee of the midnight dance, and as lively as a log until noon. time to go to work.

Today is his day off, and he's down at the beach giving the teen age tourist girls a treat, or he's tearing around in some delinquent's car, or he's trying to drown himself on somebody's water skis out in the bay. Who knows? His parents don't. We'll be lucky if he's home in time to eat his usual eight pounds of supper before he casually mentions that he's off to the dance at the local sin-pit.

As for our little black spaniel, Fayboy, he's more confusing than anybody. Recently he lost an eye when he got smart with a tomcat. He was at the vet's for a couple of weeks while the damage was repaired. Now each tme he gets out of the yard he vanishes smartly and no amount of whistling or bone-waving will recall him.

Ten minutes later, we get a call from the vet. "Have you seen your dog lately? No? Well, he's back again."

He has fallen in love with either the vet or some dimpled lady dog who was in hospital with him, because he goes haring off to the vvet's seven blocks away, every time he gets loose.

And he gets loose much too often. Ths week he fell frantically in love with a vast, tired, nine year-old boyer who was visiting boy did everything but sing Indian with friends. It was pitiful. Play-Love Call to prove his passion. The boxer was bored.

Today the pup is sitting on his rump in the yard glaring wtth appalling ferocity about his domain, while the black squirrels, cats, and butterflies secure in the knowledge that he couldn't lick a baby robin with both wings tied behind ts back, flirt about on the lawn just out of reach.

Downstairs, my wife is fussing and cussing over the ironing, the sewing on of labels, the searching for last year's sleeping bag. This is on the top level.

Below that she is stewing for the visitors arriving tomorrow, the fact we don't know what time Kim's boat leaves for camp, and the realization that the new clothesline I installed at the cost of complete damnation of my soul (swearing) doesn't work worth a diddle. There are several other levels, deeper down.

Within the last hour, we've had at the garden gate several callers. The first was a vast, happy, plastered, commercial fisherman, who wanted to know where the piano was. It was his birthday and he caught a dozen lake trout. It turned out that a lady a block away was advertising a baby grand for sale. You figure out why a commercial fisherman, drunk, wanted to buy a baby grand.

Another apparition was a tourist woman. Her car had stopped just beside our garden. She said her daughter was a clyclic vomiter, whatever that is, and the kid had been in the hospital all day, and it was so hot and her husband was at the cottage, and she couldn't get the car started and wha-wha-wha she started to bawl. I fetched a mechanic

And just 10 minutes ago I received a call from Old Blinker, an old air force friend of mine who is a rim-racked, brass-bound alcoholic. Said he was in Elmburg (real name Elmvale) only 18 miles away, and thought he might as well give me a hoot.

What else could I do. I asked him up for a couple of days. It my wife's face, that I remembered our former rector and his wife had been asked to spend the identical pair of days with us.

Summertme .... and the livin' is eeeeeeeezy.

"I'll be over–after I do my banking!"

Nowadays it's natural for the lady of the house to do much of the family banking, because it's so convenient to look after money matters at one place —the local chartered bank, an all-round banking service-centre.

This busy homemaker is on her way to deposit part of her husband's salary in their savings account, cash a cheque on their joint chequing account, and pay the monthly instalment on a personal loan. All this taken care of under one roof—quickly, easily, simply.

Any bank service you use is an introduction to many others. And the chartered banks are always on the lookout for new ways to be helpful to more people. Good reason why the number of deposit accounts has doubled to 14 million in just 10 years, and 3,500 new accounts are being opened every banking day.

CAPE BRETON ON CRUISE ITINERARY

While more than 200 tourists from the passenger liner "Gripsholm" are enjoying a brief jaunt over a section of the Cabot Trail on Cape Breton Island, remaining passengers will be joined by Premer Stanfield and Hon. E. A. Manson as the Swedish - American liner travels from North Sydney to Ingonish.

For the first time, Cape Breton Island will be included on the itinerary of a large passenger liner. The "Gripsholm" will leave New York August 15 on the Cape Breton - Bermuda Cruise, arriving n North Sydney Harbor the morning of August 17.

To date, 205 passengers have signified the desire to travel by car from North Sydney to Ingonish and an additional 58 have shown interest in the 80-mile trip.

While the liner is anchored in North Sydney Harbor, tenders will convey passengers ashore to waiting cars, supplied by Sampson Motors of Sydney. The first car is scheduled to leave North Sydney for St Ann's at 11.15 a.m. and after a visit to the Gaelic College there, proceed over Cape Smokey amidst some of Cape Breton's most spectacular scenery to Ingonish.

The first passengers will arrive at Keltic Lodge at 2.30 pm., leaving an hour later for the wharf at South Ingonish where tenders will again convey them to the "Gripsholm" which by this time will have sailed from North Sydney to Ingonish with the Premier and Minister of Trade and Industry on board.

According to the schedule, the last passengers will rejoin the Gripsholm shortly after 5:30 p.m. and the 23,000 ton liner will then proceed to the Bremuda section of its cruise. It will return to New York City on August 23.

Arrangements for the Cape Breton port of call are being made by Evan Lloyd, director of the Cape Breton Tourist Association, and Miss Joan Young, who operates the J. A. Young and Son Travel Agency in Sydney. Negotiations for the tour were begun several months ago by Miss Yuong's father, the late Roy F. Young, who did not live to see his 20-year dream—bringing a large cruise ship to Cape Breton—come true.

The Joy of Work

All of us have moments when we'd like to be beachcombers. A few bad days and a man dreams of getting away from it all. No deadlines, no drudgery, no appointments. Then something happens to give him a fairly free day, and what happens?

It is wonderful, for the first few hours. Lovely to roast in the sun. So good to go for an ambling walk knowing that when you return to camp there'll be no phone calls -- because there is no phone! Then, towards the end of the lazy day, comes the urge to read and finally by the next morning, a desire to get back to the so—called rat race.

Much as we hate to admit it, there is a joy in work. Once absorbed in work, little aches and pains of which you were so conscious in idle moments, get lost. As the desk clears , or the field turns black, or the manuscript nears completion, there is the ineffable glow of satisfaction.

Unhappy workers are poor workers, with guilty consciences because things pile up on them, or they are anxious about the final outcome. These are the dependant neurotics who are unhappy until they see a satisfactory end result, and are praised for it. He who works for praise gets low pay, for praise is never forthcoming in quantities large enough to suit him. "But what have you done to me lately?" asks the customer, for whom you did such a good stroke of business only last week. Satisfaction must come from the work itself, from the tension of application.

Even the curse of unemployment should not keep a man from work. There are jobs to be done, even the business of making applications, scouting for opportunities sharpening up abilities to be a better candidate. No man need ever be out of work, even if he is temporarily off a cash payroll. And he need not fear that he works for nothing — because it cannot be done. There is always, inevitably, the payoff. Nothing is lost.

It seems to me the best advice ever given to man was this: "Work all you can, gain all you can, give all you can." There's a tremendous amount of joy wrapped up in that prescription. Help yourself to it, free.

Ramblings in the Past

By OLD TIMER

REV. FRANCOIS LEJAMTEL 1792—1819)

In 1801 Father Gabriel Champion was appointed first resident missionary at Cheticamp, thus relieving Father Lejamtel of the care of this district. Of French ancestry, he was born in 1748 in the diocese of Avranche and was ordained in 1778. He was given chrage of the parish of Cheticamp in the spring of 1801. In 1805 he had the misfortune of practically losing his eyesight. After several visits to Halifax for treatment he finally arrived in Arichat in the late fall of 1807, having been forced to retire from his duties. He died at Arichat in 18 January 1808 and was buried there, but the location of his grave is not known. Thus in 1808 the spiritual care of the inhabitants of Cheticamp and districts reverted to Father Lejamtel. He continued performing these missionary duties until the fall of 1814.

The irst episcopal visitation to Arichat occurred in 1803 when Bishop Denault arrived on 11 July. From his headquarters at Arichat he visited the various missions on Cape Breton Island.

According to a census made by the pastor, the Catholic population of Arichat and the immediate surroundings served him at the time was as follows:

Around the Harbor of Arichat, 203 Communicants and 128 Children; At Little Arichat 61 Communicants and 65 Children; At the Barrachois 88 Communicants and 87 Children.

The total populaiton of Isle Madame was given as 1,095. Incidentally, it was noted that the yearly dues to the pastor consisted of a quintal of fish each year from each family

Bishop Denault left Arichat about the end of July to visit the missions on the mainland. Before his return to Quebec, on 2 August, from Pomquet, he issued Ordinances for each of the missions in the district. Those for Arichat included:

1. — The financial affairs of the parish were to be administered by a committee of wardens (3) acting under the supervision of the missionary; and the records thereof were to be inscribed in a book and kept in the parochial archives.

2. — Necessary parochial buildings were to be repaired or provided.

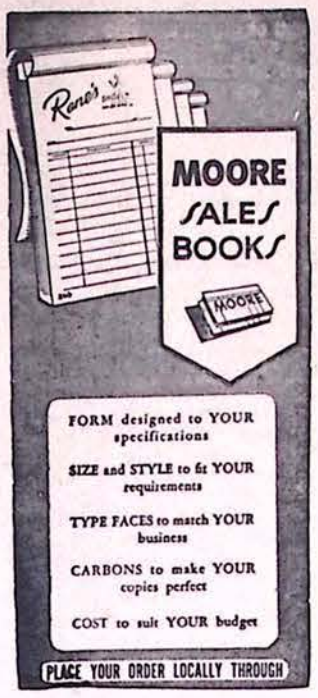

3. — The presbytery was to be completed within one year of the date of the Ordinances. The new one was to be built on the site of the old one and the people "shall have no right to enter it except to speak to the missionary".

4. — The church pews were to be "put up for sale at the door of the church, and knocked down to the highest and last bidders".

5. — A belfry was to be built and a bell procured.

6. — Added was a list of vestments and sanctuary necessities to be procured by the people.
