A GOOD OLD CIVIL WAR

What this country needs is a good, five-cent civil war. It might relieve some of the pus and venom that seem to be filling Canadians these days, and get them back to the important things of life, like making money, love and rock gardens.

Symptoms of the national ulcer are everywhere: the ferocity of the Canadian flag argument; the lurking threat of violence in Quebec; the growing defiance of police by youth gangs; the increase in homicidal tactics on our highways.

Perhaps a little blood-letting would purge our native land of this tendency to quibble and squabble about everything from the national anthem to the water level in the Great Lakes.

There's also the matter of international prestige. All the big boys —England, France, Russia, the U. S., China— have been through an all-out civil war, and gone on to greater things. In each case the country was so whacked out by the end of the war that everybody stopped bickering and complaining, and got down to the job of becoming a Great Nation.

How can we hope to gain respect of the world if we never fo through a testing time of seething hatred, unmentionable cruelties, gallant guerrillas, and all the other ingredients of a good civil war?

How is our national character to be transformed from lumpy porridge to forged steel if we never throw a Molotov cocktail, blow up a bridge, or hurl ourselves, barehanded against tanks?

We should be ashamed of ourselves. Mumbling and grumbling about the CBC and the NDP and the Red Ensign and O Canada and what's for supper, when we could be stringing up cabinet ministers, dynamiting the Soo locks, and sacking the O'Keefe Centre.

The Irish had a rebellion nearly 50 years ago. It lasted a few days but they've written countless books about it, and every Irishman over the age of 20 swears he was in it, though he'll admit he was only a broth of a boy at the time. Why can't we have some grand traditions like that?

Think of the stories we'd have to hand down to our ancestors. "Yes, Homer, your grandad was there, back in '64, when the Legion enraged about the flag, marched on Ottawa. Mayor Charlotte Whitton slowed them for a moment at the ramparts with a tirade of invective, but nothing could stop them. They swarmed into the city, surrounded the government buildings, and fired a salvo of resolutions. One of these happened to pierce the National Debt, and the streets ran red with ink."

Or, "Yes, dear, I want you always to remember, and to tell your own children, that your father was one of the brave freedom fighters in the Great Rising of '64. He was leading a wave of our gallant lads in a loot. . . uh, liberating attack on the Seagram distilleries, a capitalist stronghold. He was cut down by the fascist firehoses and seriously wounded in the, uh, lower back when he fell heroically on the mickey of rye in his hip pocket."

Only one stipulation. If this necessary catharis, this national lancing of our abscess, breaks out, father against son, may I be on and it's brother against brother, the same side as my wife?

SHAW—BOUDREAU

St. Joseph's Church, Petit de Grat, was the scene of a beautiful Spring Wedding, when Viola Mary, daughter of Mrs. Florence Boudreau and the late Harry Boudreau of Petit de Grat, was united in marriage to Douglas Malcolm Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaw, Martinique, N. S.

Rev J. J. MacDonald performed the ceremony with Nuptial High Mass in midst of relatives and friends.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, George, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a floor length gown of nylon organza over lace and taffeta. Her veil fell from a pearl tiara. She carried a white Prayer Book and red roses.

The bride was attended by Leah Bond who wore an aqua street length dress of nylon organza with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The groom was attended by Nazaire Sampson. The ushers were Cyril Boudreau and Norman Sampson.

The bride's mother wore a three piece aqua suit with white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a two-piece blue suit with matching accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the K. of C. Hall, West Arichat.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Norman Sampson and responded to by the groom.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Boudreau, Mrs. Edith Sampson; Mrs. Edna Landry, all of Boston, Mass. Mr. Frank Houghan; Mr. Donald Wile; Miss Joyce Currie; Mr. and Mrs. Stan Sampson, all of Halifax, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Jabalee; Miss Zita O'Toole of North Sydney. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Corbett; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Pothier of Inverness.

After the reception the couple motored to Quebec City on their honeymoon, for which the bride chose to wear a cream knitted suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride is on the Staff of the Royal Bank of Canada, Arichat, and the groom is employed with Imperial Oil, Ltd., Halifax.

The Record joins with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Diary of a Vagabond by Dorothy Barker

Nation's Business Rides Another Wave

The press kit that lies on my desk announces the realization of another miracle in this age of never ending miracles.

On a warm May afternoon the voices of the presidents of our two operating railroads in Canada, Mr. N. R. Crump, Chairman and President, Canadian Pacific, and Mr. Donald Gordon, Chairman and President, Canadian National, joined in a ceremony with that of the Honourable J. W. Pickersgill, Minister of Transport in the Federal Government, to inaugurate a new microwave network.

I was fascinated, as I am sure most Canadians will be, by some of the statistics concerning this new service, which not only adds to the rapid transmission of business data, but to the defence system of our country.

How far we have come from those days of radio when we hovered over tiny crystal sets, earphones glued to our human auditory systems while our fingers sensitively tried to bring in sound by scratching a little round disc with a piece of wire as fine as a hair.

Covering an area of more than 3,000 miles between Montreal and Vancouver, this new microwave wonder cost $41,000,000. Let me write that, it is so much more impressive- - FORTY-ONE MILLION DOLLARS! Initially available are duplicate two-way radio frequence channels capable of providing 600 voice channels. Additional channels may be added to increase capacity to 3,600. There are 127 towers supporting two or more dish-shaped antennae. These relay the microwave signals over the network.

It would be foreign to my feminine nature, or technical know-how, to write about most of the mechanical and engineering feats accmplished during the network's construction. But one or two I can appreciate and be thrilled by man's ingenuity in face of supposedly unsurmountable obstacles.

In Layman's Words

Weather during the 18 months it took to complete the undertaking ranged from 95 degrees above to 45 below zero. Many places where towers had to be erected, for microwaves travel only in a straight line, there were no topographical maps available, making calculations and path profiles difficult. Helicopters were used in one instance to lower power line poles into holes which had been dynamited out of rock and in another, the tops of two mountains were sheered off making it possible to erect other towers in a direct line.

After mayors of eight Canadian cities received Mr. Piskersgill's message over the system and had replied with their congratulations. Donald Gordon summed up the new network's worth to the nation in these words: "The value of this microwave system has been mentioned before

GET FOOT HEALTHY

Most readers of this column spend money each month to insure against hospitalization or medical care; but I wonder how many have ever spent a dime on foot care? How many would like to get out in the summer sun and walk. . but sit still because their feet hurt?

Two summers ago I picked up an unromantic foot ailment called Planter's Warts. Finally I had to go to a foot specialist. . and what a wonderful lesson I learned.

In very short order, he had cleared up the ailment; but at the same time, he removed a corn that had plagued me half my life, and he put me into shoes that gave me real comfort. And the whole shebang cost me less than I pay every month for pre-paid medical and hospital care.

Most of us need a Personal Health Plan, completely voluntary, surprisingly inexpensive. To feel the bubbling exuberance of good health is possible to the vast majority for the price of some self-restraint in our eating and drinking, some initiative to get out and walk or exercise, and the good sense to have minor health matters treated promptly. . as promptly, at least, as you take your car in for a check if there's a noise in the engine that worries you!

It always puzzles me that men and women can work up so much steam over government sponsored health plans. I believe that some must be confused into thinking that governments can provide health for a fee. No one can do that. There is a tremendous lot that each of us can do for ourselves, simply by getting into comfortable shoes and then out in the sun for a romp. Try it.

Resources Development In Cape Breton

by R. M. Burry, Resource Development Representative

Mr. Paul Eaton, Supervisor of Resource Development and Assistanh Director of Extension Services, and I, spent the best part of two days in Cape Breton last week. We called at the Agricultural and Adult Education offices in Sydney and then went on to Baddeck. As a result of a meeting held in Baddeck in March and at which Mr. Eaton was present, a steering committee was set up to study ARDA and the possibility of calling a general citizens meeting to form a county development committee. We contacted Mr. W. Fleming, Little Narrows, Chairman of the Committee, and Mr. W. MacCormack of Iona, secretary. Plans are being made to have a committee meeting in the near future to discuss future development.

In Richmond County there are groups showing interest in developing co-operative community pastures, one in L'Ardoise and the other at Little Anse. Mr. Harold Westlake, secretary of the L'Ardoise group showed me over the 250 acre area which they hope to develop for sheep pasture. The difficulty here is that the soil type might disqualify it for assistance through ARDA. For ARDA purposes soil types have been grouped into seven classes, the first four being suitable for agriculture and the next two for permanent pasture only, and number seven for forestry, wildlife, and recreational purposes. The soil type at L'Ardoise is in the Class 6 group and also in sub-class C-3 which is stony and hilly, and not too suitable for cultivation. However, since according to the group there are around 250 sheep involved and apparently no other area available, the chairman of the Nova Scotia Pasture Board has agreed to look over the area before a final decision can be made.

A smaller group in Little Anse has been thinking of pasture, too. However, just a day before my call the group decided to go it alone and in fine community spirit got together and fenced an area The leader of the group suggested, pasture for the sheep this season. which should provide sufficient application might be made for asthough, that in another year an sistance in fertilizing and liming.

but I don't think it hurts to underline it. No society in our time can hope to expand and develop without the aid of a nationwide communication system for the transmission not only of the human voice, but even more importantly the avalanche of data that is consumed everyday in any highly technical society. And I might mention what perhaps is less generally known, namely, that this system has added a powerful Canadian communications link between the United Kingdom, New Zealand and Australia. In a very real sense then this microwave system represents an important contribution to the welfare of a very large section of humanity."
