SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

MAINLY THE MONEY?

Phooey to you Mrs. F. J. Glaubitz president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Glaubitz was widely quoted recently as "expressing concern that some persons are attracted to the teaching profession because of high salaries rather than a genuine interest in teaching."

The lady is reported to have said that persons in the past have been drawn to teaching because of a sincere interest in human beings, but the higher salaries of recent years have brought an increasing number who consider it "just another job."

Dear Mrs. Glaubitp, you're all wet! Where are all these people who are flocking into teaching for the big salaries? Every spring, principals do everything but turn over stones to see what they can find under them, in the search for teachers.

Where are these big salaries, Mrs. Glaubtz? Now, I'm not going to get personal, and ask how much Mr. Glaubitz is making these days. But if there is a Mr. Glaubitz, I'll bet he's making a whale of a lot more than this teacher.

Teachers' salaries are reasonable after years of shabby gentility. But they're a long way from being opulent. They make less money than engineers, dentists or bone-benders. They're not even within sight of doctors and lawyers. They're about one jump ahead of the preachers, about on a par with the skilled craftsmen.

Anybody who has a wild idea about getting into the high-salaried profession of teaching should immediately take a tranquillizer, followed by a short course in hotel management, hair-dressing, or something in which he can make real money.

The story continued: "Mrs. Glaubitz emphasized that the association does not oppose high salaries for teachers because 'the whole future of the country rests in their hands'."

Well, bully for Mrs. Glaubitz and the association. But isn't that taking a very dim view of the church, the government, and the parents of all those who will make up the future?

It's a bit much to saddle the teachers with, isn't it? Frankly, if the whole future of the country rests in my hands, I'm going to put my hands in my pockets and stroll quietly away.

Mrs. G., in the same story, suggested that greater care be taken in choosing candidates for teaching training, using such means as aptitude tests to weed out unsuitable persons. Now, I realize that teachers have not the pristine purity of medical or law societies, where there is never a bad apple in the barrel but I'm afraid aptitude tests are not the answer.

Here's the type of test Mrs. Glaubitz might approve, with the answers that would be given by one of the best teachers I know, a mature experienced man whose students worship him, whose colleagues respect him, and whose results are excellent.

Q. Do you have a sincere interest in human beings? A. Well, not really. I like dogs, though.

Q. Do you smoke? A. Sure.

Q. Do you indulge in alcohol? A. Just beer, except on the weekends.

Q. Do you enjoy helping people? A. Hell, no. I only do it because I have to.

Q. Are you interested in a higher salary? A. Are you kidding?

Q. What cultural interests do you have, aside from your profession? A. Watching football on TV.

Q. What sort of home life do you have. A. Well, the kids drive me crazy and I fight a lot with my wife. About average, I guess.

And so it would go, the aptitude test. This chap should be hurled out of the profession, by rights. He's not dedicated or anything. He's just a cracking good teacher.

ALL CANADA COULD PROFIT FROM ACADIANS

HON. G. J. DOUCET
Provincial Secretary

Speaking recently at St. Anne's College, Provincial Secretary G. J. Doucet pictured Nova Scotia as an example of bicultural co-existence and co-operation such as could be the solution of the problems which currently are looming very large in other parts of the nation.

Nova Scotia, he asserted, has no bi-cultural problem. The province's people of French descent are concerned with living in the present and for the future with the result that the fine Acadian heritage has been preserved as an intergal part of provincial life and traditions. As an alternative to separatism, the Acadians have elected a way which is a blessing to all and could be an inspiration to some contemporary isolationists who, in Mr. Doucet's words, "Know not what they do."

It should not be imagined that such a happys state of affairs has come about by accident. The fact that two ethical and cultural groups can live side by side and work together in a common purpose is a tribute to the statesmanlike qualities which have characterized leaders of both sides.

It is difficult to single out any one individual for special praise. It is equally difficult, however, to refrain from making special mention of the labors of the Roman Catholic missionary, Father Jean Maude Sigogne who stands out as the pivotal figure in the whole story.

The bitterness which quite naturally would follow in the wake of their exile and the resettlement in Nova Scotia of the Acadians might have been expected to contribute to isolationism. That it did not and that the energies of the Acadian people were channeled into constructive forces in the province was largely due to Abbe Sigogne who, from 1799 until his death at Church Point in 1844, taught his people to be strong in their faith, loyal to their culture and traditions and partners in secular, government with the civil authorities.

Subsequent leaders of the Acadian community built upon his emphases to- create the- environment which now exists and of which Mr. Doucet spoke at Church Point a few days ago.

Amidst the sounds of unrest in other parts of Canada, it is a matter for pride among all Nova Scotians that something has been achieved here from which all Canadians could learn profitably.

Obituary

JOSEPH BACCARDAX

The passing of Joseph Baccardax recently at Camp Hill Hospital, Halifax, has occasioned widespread sorrow in his native Poirierville and throughout Isle Madame.

The late Mr. Baccardax, who was in his 73rd. year, was a most industrious fisherman and a good citizen, always ready to support worthwhile organizations, and was a stalwart member of the Northside Credit Union. He was among the first fishermen to help organize on a Co-operative basis, the shipping of live lobsters to the American market, some years ago.

Joe was a man of sterling character and was held in the highest regard by his neighbours and many friends.

Personally, we feet the loss of our good friend, whose memory we shall always cherish and when the poet summed up the good in man, the following lines gave vent to his feelings:-

Lives of great men oft remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

The late Mr. Baccardax was predeceased by his wife only a few years.

Surviving are one daughter (Antoinette) now residing with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Malzard Bona; one brother Martin of D'Escousse; and six sisters, Minnie (Mrs. Leo Bona), of South Bridge, Mass.; Belle (Mrs. Joseph Bona), Barnstable, Mass.; Josie (Mrs. Victor Cordeau), of Poirierville; Margaret (Mrs. Malzard Bona) also of Poirierville; and Ada (Mrs. William O'Neill) of Halifax; and Caroline of Cape Cod, Mass.

The funeral which was largely attended took place from St. Hyacinth's Church with Monsignor Boudreau as Celebrant at Requiem High Mass.

We extend our sympathy to the bereaved daughter, brother and sisters.

Sloth never arrived at the attainment of a good wish.

PUBLIC FORUM

Every town and hamlet has its share of school age children who destroy private and public property and indulge in petty thievery—and they are just as apt to come from good homes and good parents as from so called broken homes. These acts of violence are usually committed several miles away from the boys own home and neighbourhood.

Parents are not always to blame or always able to correct this tendency to vandalism in their children.

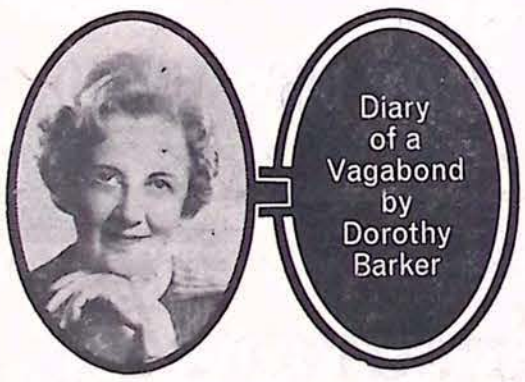

Teaching is an art and not all parents are talented teachers. The art of imparting a knowledge of things is a trained talent.

How much or how little is absorbed by the pupil depends upon the pupil's emotional and mental facilities.

The teaching of ethical behaviour as it relates to good citizenship is certainly no infringement upon the parent or church rights to form the child's mind. The teaching of civic law should be welcomed by both the parents and their church.

After eight grade school years of imparting such knowledge "the quota of hoodlums might be reduced to its barest minimum of unteachables".

Summer Bonus

In this year 1964 A. D., which until the day school started was to go down in history as "the summer of one month", nature obligingly declared a dividend. Hot, humid weather moved into the lake districts of Ontario and beckoned enticingly from resort areas.

Cotton ball clouds crowded the more persistent gray curtain that hung between noon and sunset over a lake with the prophetic title "Go Home", a portage away from Georgian Bay on Lake Huron.

Weather prognostications can bring out the most venturesome attitudes in seemingly staid persons. Of course it could have been the unsettled weather conditions I had experienced wherever I had traveled this past summer that lured me into the wilds of Ontario on one weatherman's say-so that we were in for a spell of fine weather. That news, and the fact I had been informed the leaves were turning to gold, red and orange in a blaze of color only the woodlands of this scenic part of the province seem to be able to furnish, turned my travelling feet northward.

I arrived at the marina where a water taxi was to pick me up and land me three miles away on an isolated spot which, until a year or so ago, had been crown land. Rain whipped my cheeks in a stinging downpour, tall pines quivered in the strong off-shore winds and the sky looked as though thunder and damnation would rend those ominous clouds at any moment. I took it in my stride for this was only more of the same weather I had experienced most of the summer.

But weather can be as capricious as a woman's smile. Before we reached my destination, the sun broke through and warmed last year's scattered pine needles and wet leaves. The woodsy smell was delicious. I forgot that I was soaking wet, that the goodies I had packed for my hosts were a soft mush and that my feet were swimming around in my shoes like a pair of gold fish in a bowl.

Cottage life seems to be one meal after another followed by a boat ride or swim. It is a routine guests must accept, but I refused to take to the water in anything but a power boat. The temperature of the lake turned me blue just to think about donning a bothing suit.

Hosts have a habit of assuming they must keep their guests constantly amused. I would have been content to lie in the sun for hours. Instead I experienced the torture of being thoroughly spanked as rough white caps heaved me about in the boat like a corked bottle in a rough sea. At high noon I was being taken on a tour of this wild and beautiful lake. I couldn't hear a word of the lakeside descriptions being tossed back to me over the din of a 50 H. P. motor. I nodded and smiled, hoping I looked intelligent.

Apparently I didn't, for the boat was soon moored to the landing so that I could walk the portage from Go Home Lake to Go Home Bay, in the hush of a northland wilderness. It was at this moment we discovered the key of the boat's ignition had slipped into the water from its chain attached to a small wooden float grasped in the palm of the boat's driver as he handed me onto the landing,

Ho, Ho, But No Rum.

We were miles from the cottage with only one paddle to get us home before dark. The only human in sight was the forest ranger in his tower a mile or more away.

Time is an eternity when trouble brews. After what seemed like eons we decided to take advantage of a soft breeze. Standing like the Statue of Liberty with my loosely knit Italian sweater spread sail fashion and my husky host using the paddle as a rudder we had made about 100 yards when a boatload of teenagers, demonstrating the speed of their fibreglass launch, came hurtling around a bend in the river that flows between the two lakes.

I think I was a little sorry at our early rescue. This had been a new kind of adventure, but I sensibly decided that any further search on my part for seasonal beauty would be the color tours by train, planned each year by the CN to enable city bound folk to enjoy the unbelieveable glory of an Ontario fall.

The Rev. Sister was a successful teacher at the Arichat Academy for many years, and all pupils and friends were happy to see her.

She recently celebrated her 50th. Anniversary in the Religious Order of Filles des Jesus at Worchester, Mass., where many friends and relatives were present for the happy occasion. Among the guests were:- Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Power of Needham, Mass. Mrs. Aline Crowell, son Chesley and daughter, Pearl.

It was nice seeing the Rev. Sister.

Return to Indianna

Mrs. Margaret Strahan, her nephew, David and niece, Nancy, have returned to Richmond, Ind., U. S. A., after spending the summer holidays at Mrs. Strahan's cottage at Pondville.

During the summer, Mrs. Strahan entertained many of her relatives and visited with them in Baddeck, Cabot Trail and Louisbourg Fortress.

Mrs. Strahan enjoys her visits to Isle Madame and does much to encourage friends and relatives to visit here in the summertime.

New Jersey Tourists

Mr. and Mrs. John Gill of Brown's Mills, N. J., were recent visitors to Arichat. Before returning to New Jersey, they visited other parts of Cape Breton and the Mainland of Nova Scotia.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gill were much impressed with the scenic beauty of Isle Madame, and also took a keen interest in the early history of this old seaport.

From Lorne, N. B.

Rev. Sister St. Andronique of Lorne, N. B., was visiting at the O. L. A. Convent here and at the home of her niece, Mrs. Leo Marchand, where she visited her brother Sam Vigneau.

Friends here were delighted to see the Rev. Sister, who at one time was Superior of O. L. A. Convent here, and prior to going to Lorne, was in charge of St. Anthony's Home in Sydney.

Sister Andronique has a long and faithful service in the Order Filles des Jesus and during the war years was connected to a Convent in France.

We understand that Sister Andronique will soon be leaving for Moncton, N. B. to take up duties in a Convent ni that City.

May every happiness follow her in the years to come.

FERRY TO OPERATE ON NEW SCHEDULE

Canadian National Railways Cabot Strait Ferry, M. V. William Carson began to operate on its fall and winter schedule on Sept. 15.

The ferry will leave North Sydney, under the new schedule, at 11.55 p. m. Atlantic time and will arrive at Port aux Basques, Nfld. at 6.55 a. m. Newfoundland time.

On the return journey the vessel leaves Port aux Basques at 11.55 a. m. Newfoundland time and arrives in North Sydney at 5.55 p. m. Atlantic time.

The ferry operates on local times, daylight or standard, which ever is in effect.

Since mid-June the William Carson has been operating on a daily turnabout service between the two ports. Alterations to the vessel during annual drydocking resulted in increases in both passenger and vehicle handling capacities. In turn these increases resulted in record traffic figures for the ferry during the summer holiday months.

M. V. William Carson is capable of handling 500 passengers and 120 automobiles.

The ferry makes the crossing between North Sydney and Port aux Basques in six hours.

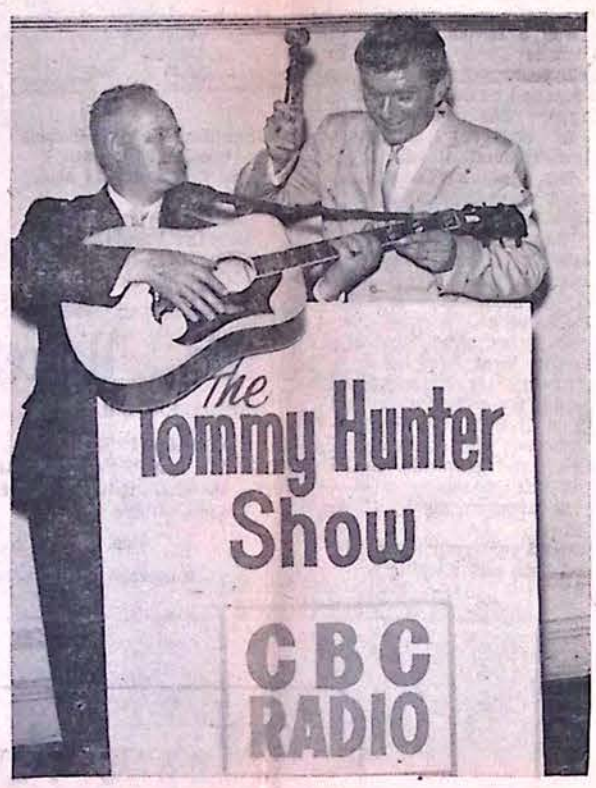

POINTS OF INTEREST

Nearly 5,000,000 cars and trucks have been built at the huge assembly plant of General Motors of Canada in Oshawa since production began in 1908.

More than -700 million is spent in Canada each year by General Motors for goods, services, wages and taxes. The company makes regular purchases from 5,000 Canadian suppliers.

C. W. N. A. BEATLES

The new C. W. N. A. president, Ken Patrige of Camrose, tries his hand at guitar-strumming during the final dinner at this year's convention in Toronto. He must have struck a wrong chord, if we are to judge by the expression on the face of CBC radio star Tommy Hunter who is protesting with Ken's gavel. The Tommy Hunter Show originated from the convention hall as a wind - up to the national conference and Ken had a word to say on CBC's national radio network when he was interviewed during the program.

THE WILLIS BROTHERS

Brothers Austin and J. Frank Willis, originally from Halifax, have become well known to Canadians because of their successful broadcasting careers. Austin (left) has gained international renown for his acting at home, in Britain and the United States. J. Frank Willis, veteran CBC staff member, first became known during his brilliant reporting of the Moose River Mine disaster for CBC radio. He's now familiar to CBC radio listeners for his major productions such as CBC Sunday Night and is working on a radio documentary on the First World War. Television viewers know him for his work on Close Up and Question Mark.

EXCHANGE OF TREES

A motorcade of mayors or deputy mayors of 29 provincial cities and towns arrived at Halifax International Airport recently and received British Columbia Douglas fir trees.

Lands and Forests Minster E. D. Haliburton presented the three-year old seedlings to mark National Forests Products Week, Sept .20-26.

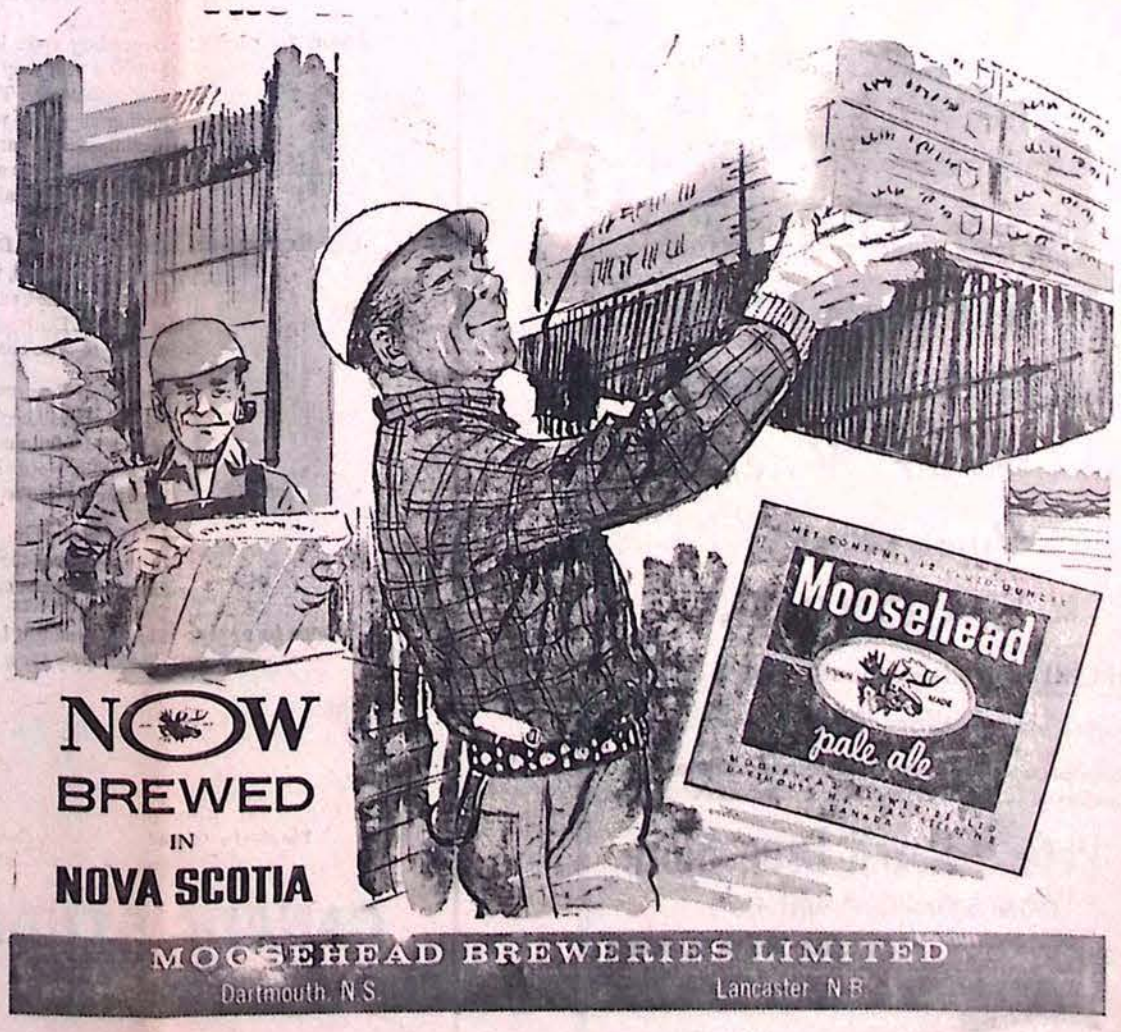

Three dozen Nova Scotian red pine trees were flown to British Columbia for similiar ceremonies. Plans are for the conifers to be planted in community parks, school grounds and tree farms.

Earlier municipal leaders and members of the forest industry were luncheon guests of the Department of Lands and Forests at Shubenacadie.

Mr. Haliburton was assisted in his silvicultural chore by Miss Cathy Chisholm of Antigonish, Air Canada stewardness.
