Plastic's Versatility

While in Edmonton this past summer I visited the plant of a young industrialist. Sparked with western enthusiasm for prospects of growth, even the name of the firm has a lilt to it. It is called Spencer-LeMaire Industries and is situated in rather cramped quarters within walking distance of the heart of this rapidly growing city. Undoubtedly it will soon grow out of its manufacturing britches for Henry Anderson Spencer, one of the partners, pops ideas like chestnuts on a hot griddle.

Spencer himself spent eight years with the Alberta Government's Research Department. He is a mechanical engineer, graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, and married to a professor of chemistry whose enthusiasm is only exceeded by his own.

In 1959,, he attended a plastics exhibition in London, England, and was so fascinated by the machines on view that the germ to form his own business was incurably innoculated into his thought and planning processes. He began to realize in what direction his future lay.

With such a strong urge, he was soon designing machinery to cope with the items the firm would launch into Canada's industrial stream. He not only designed the machines, he built them as well. Moulds have been made for some 60 different kinds of articles, mostly for industrial use.

When I was conducted through the factory part of the undertaking I saw a pretty young girl operating a monster machine with the ease she might display pushing a mobile basket in a supermarket. And indeed the thought had an association for on the very day I was tthere, Henry Spencer was in the process of selling a large packing house the idea of plastic trays for marketing cut-up meat, to replace the paper type housewives are more familiar with.

The manufacturing process should be mentioned for, though it sounds so simple, it is astounding the uses to which it can be put. Sheet plastic is placed in a frame, then infra red rays are applied while a push-pull system is used to soften the plastic before it is put into the mould. When the heat is removed and the vacuum that was created during the process released, the article is removed, trimmed, and that's that.

Trays for use during classes in home economics, for photographic industries, trays that are a boon to the food processing industry and berry pickers are among the many manufactured. The firm makes tote boxes for clothing manufacturers with a pocket for each piece which can be filled with materials right from the cutting table. Anyone employed on piece work will appreciate this advanced idea. Ice bins for one of Canada's largest food processors make it possible to ship produce at even 60 below zero temperature (if such a low degree ever becomes necessary). Shipping possibilities of these coolers have been demonstrated from Vancouver to Moncton. Best of all, the trimmings from all of these many items can be reground, re-extruded and pressed into sheets for use again.

One For The Youngsters

All the time I was making notes and being a little awed by such big ideas and undertakings for a firm not quite three years old and with but three employees, I was thinking of the youngster who knocked on my door one evening looking like a fugitive from a Hallowe'en party. He wanted to show me his rather cumbersome mouth guard. His three older brothers are all dental cripples, minus front teeth lost through participation in school sports. Spencer-Lemair Industries have perfected a process for making a much less cumbersome mouth guard to fit the individual.

This is custom work, but one branch of the industry to which Mr. Spencer has devoted considerable time and thought. The athlete's dentist makes an impression of his upper teeth. From this is created a polyethylene and Staguard replica of the dentist's mould. I was interested in a quote from an information sheet issued by Dr. M. Blackburn, D. D. S. of Edmonton who, after describing- the process of manufacture wrote, and I quote: "Result: a 'spring-loaded' guard for the upper teeth which permits yelling, conversation, (even chewing gum) and hard breathing without losing contact. Wear at night to prevent grinding, snoring."

Mothers of small sons may be heard saying "Blessings on you, Spencer-Lemaire Industries!"

STATEMENT BY HON. E. D. HALIBURTON, MINISTER OF FISHERIES FOR NOVA SCOTIA IN REVIEW OF DEVELOPMENTS IN 1964.

The Nova Scotia fishing industry became more international in scope in 1964 than any other year in its history. Startling changes, unheard of a few years ago, are now commonplace.

The Nova Scotia industry is shipping or exporting frozen fish cuttings or fish waste to Sweden; greysole and scallops to France; herring roe to Japan, and fish sticks and sole to Australia.

An increased volume of live lobsters found a ready market in Europe; shipments of porbeagle shark and bluefin tuna were made to Italy, and frozen blocks of cod and sole discovered an increasingly expanding market in Europe.

The demand for fish in North America is steadily improving, and world-wide strengthing of prices in 1964 indicates the trend will hold in 1965.

Nova Scotia fish landings for 1964 are valued at an estimated $38,000,000 an increase of $2,000,000 over the previous year. Marketed value, which equals landed value plus that derived from processing, should reach more than $75,000,000.

Approximately 14,000,000 pounds of lobster were caught prior to the first of November with a landed value of $8,000,000 while the value of scallops during the same period was up approximately 15 per cent over the previous year. Other leading species showed similar gains.

The reintroduction of whaling during the summmer was the first of several development programs planned by the Department. Sales of whale oil and meat totalled more than $100,000.

A 152-foot steel-stern ramp dragger, the largest in Canada was launched during the year by Acadia Fisheries Limited of Mulgrave. Six more vessels are planned in 1965, including three 154-foot ramp draggers by National Sea Food Products Limited.

The value of boats either completed or under construction in 1964 and financed through the Fishermen's Loan Board totalled $6,500,000-$7,000,000.

Included in this figure are 27 wooden draggers, 80—120 feet in length; 11 long liners, 65-95 feet in length, and 110 boats, less than 65 feet in length.

The large wooden draggers were being built at 11 boatyards, while two yards were constructing steel-stern vessels. Small boats up to 50 feet in length were being built at 35 yards. More than 1,000 persons were employed in the projects.

Nova Scotia now purchases most of its salt fish requirements from Newfoundland for resale to the Caribbean area and Europe. The province is also buying limited quantities of salt fish from Maine for processing and resale to the Unite States and Caribbean.

The province is also concentrating on improving the quality of its products. Under the direction of the inspection branch of the federal Department of Fisheries, plant sanitation showed great improvement in 1964, resulting in high-quality fishery products.

The year 1964 also marked the opening of the $5,500,000 Lunenburg Sea Products fish processing plant at Lunenburg.

A $765,000 herring reduction and processing plant, the first of its type in Nova Scotia, is expected to be in operation at Lower East Pubnico, Yarmouth County, by the summer of 1965.

The British Columbia Packers Limited plant is designed to handle 25 tons of round herring an hour, and a minimum of 500 tons daily on a three-shift basis. With an annual capacity of 30,000 tons, the plant will boost fishermen's earnings by about $240,000.

Acadia Fisheries Ltd., multi-million dollar fish processing plant at Canso is also expected to be in operation by early summer. It will have an annual capacity of 17,000-25,000 tons.

A unique $500,000 floating fish plant at Liverpool should be in operation shortly. It will be capable of handling 10,000,000 pounds of ground fish annually on one production line.

AND WHERE DID IT GET YOU?

Well, here it is mid-January, and another year has slipped down the drain.

It's rather depressing to look back over the 12 months and realize that neither civilization nor yourself has improved one iota, despite the frantic scrambling of the pair of you, throughout the year.

Not that I'm admitting for a moment that 1964 was a complete failure. There were some things from which I derived a good deal of satisfaction. For one thing. I remained alive. With the traffic the way it is, and the tension cutting swaths through the ranks of chaps my age, just staying alive these days is quite a feat.

In the second place, I hung onto my job. This may seem like a trivial boast. But what with computers, it's like staying alive. Ask the fellow who hasn't managed to do either. Or both. What it meant was that I was able to continue keeping in high style a woman I never met until I was 25, and two kids who think money grows on fathers.

Keeping my job also meant that I was able to keep up my payments, no mean accomplishment in this age. In fact, I would be content to have my epitaph read: "He was a good man. He kept up his payments."

As a matter of fact, I did a little better. Not only did I meet all my interest payments, but I reduced the mortgage on my house by $28.64, leaving a mere balance due of $12,971.36. This was somewhat offset by the borrowing of a couple of G's from my friendly banker, in order to replace the family transportation, which was rotting on the vine, but you can't win them all.

I'm not trying to brag. There were a lot of things in 1964 that I'd do differently another time. That is, if I'd ever got around to doing them. But since I didn't, they probably weren't worth doing in the first place. Figure that one out, if you can find an Irishman to help you.

I have already drawn up a program for 1965 that is perhaps the most positive plan, in a negative sort of way, that I've ever come up with. It's composed of all the things I'm NOT going to do this year.

For one thing, I'm not going to worry so much. My reckoning shows that I spent 20 to 30 minutes worrying last year about trifling things, like my son running away from home, my daughter going out on her first date, and my wife reporting cancer in a new location weekly. That's enough to put a fellow in the hospital. I aim to cut that down to a maximum of ten minutes this year. And it'll be worry about something worthwhile, like my golf slice and trout that got away.

Another thing I'm not going to do this year is lose so many arguments with the Old Battleaxe. Last year, I must have lost about 97 per cent. of them. I don't know just how I'll go about it, but I'm determined to cut that figure to the bone— maybe right back to 95 per cent.

Once again I'm not going to buy my wife a mink coat; I'm not going to build that patio that I didn't build last summer; I'm neither going to start getting to bed early nor getting up early; I'm not going to stop smoking because it might kill me, nor drinking ditto; I'm not going to pay my income tax with anything milder than rage; I'm not going to pay any attention to all the silly people in the world who tell me what I'm not supposed to do.

In short, the next year will be much like every other year. And good enough for me. But perhaps we could all join heartily in repeating a little slogan for the coming year. It goes,

"Let's stay alive

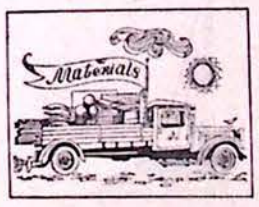

Here are three important reasons why it will pay you to renovate and redecorate your home now!

1 SKILLED MEN ARE AVAILABLE—NOW! Although more and more building is being done each winter, exterior construction does slow down during the cold weather. As a result, home improvement contractors and skilled craftsmen seek out the smaller interior jobs that they are unable to handle during the summer. You benefit—with skilled workmanship by experienced tradesmen when it's most convenient to you!

2 DISCOUNTS AND LOANS ARE AVAILABLE—NOW! To create incentives that will balance their sales and keep their staff employed throughout the year, building supply dealers run winter sales. These special discounts help you renovate and redecorate at the lowest possible cost. You'll find your bank a good place to visit, too—for low-interest Home Improvement Loans under the National Housing Act: up to $4,000.00, with up to ten years to repay!

3 MATERIALS ARE AVAILABLE—NOW! When building slows down, materials become more readily available. Result: irritating delays in completing your job because of late delivery of supplies are eliminated!

There's no doubt about it. Winter is the very best time to spruce up your home (and your place of business)—quickly, efficiently, inexpensively!

TONS OF PAPER

There is nothing like a period of enforced absence from the office to make a man realize how much paper he handles in his lifetime. I have been away from my office desk a few weeks. Mail considered of pressing importance was brought up to me; but the rest was allowed to accumulate. The other day my wife gathered it up- - and it took a large brief case and several shopping bags to hold it. I wonder how many office workers sift through such tons of paper all their lives? And is it worth it?

Perhaps half of it is. I remember that the man who used to own the MacDonald Tobacco Company a Mr. Stewart, I believe, was said to detest paper work of all kinds. For many years he resisted having a fancy letterhead- - - his employees simply typed the name of the Company in the face of tough opposition. I suppose the young executives thought him an old fuddy-duddy, but his simplified system worked.

He used to aggravate the advertising men, too. They would prepare flashy campaigns for him as business grew. Usually, however, when all the presentations were over, he would think about it and then say, "Yes, we should increase the advertising. Just use bigger pictures of Lassie." Into the ash can went the flashy, modern campaigns. Yet the Company prospered, and always advertised heavily, making Lassie famous.

I am not sure how much of the above is truth, or how much is legend, but I like to believe there were men like Mr. Stewart with I never could resist them. the will to resist forms and such.

I handle all this paper work on behalf of many concerns, for whom I write advertising, pamphlets, briefs, radio and television and the like. I was bent over desk or typewriter most every hour of every day. If I arrived ten minutes late at the office, my conscience bothered the devil out of me although there was no one to supervise me or bawl me out. Yet I have been off duty for some five weeks, and not a single company has gone broke and the world seems to roll along just fine. I wonder if all that paper couldn't have been scooped into wastebaskets all those years, without too much damage done?

The vital work of this world is done by the men who handle real things, hogs and land and cattle; and by the top thinkers, industrial leaders with vision and the will to accumulate capital and put it to work. Perhaps those of us in between- - particularly ones like I, who scrabble around in piles of paper- - serve some purpose. I'll try to figure it out when I get surrounded by paper again.

FAMILY LIFE PROGRAM IN RICHMOND COUNTY

Under the directorship of Rev. Angus MacLeod, Diocesan Director of the Family Life Program, and Rev. Father Gerrior, Pastor of Louisdale Parish, the Family Life Program was instigated recently for the Deanery of Richmond County. Each parish is represented by a parish couple who with the co-operation of their local Pastor, will be responsible for and be in a unique position to render special assistance and understanding in helping to improve Family Life.

This program is a positive educational program to build strong Family Life and thereby try to prevent difficulties before they happen.

On January 17th, 1965 at Louisdale Parish Hall, a Cana Conference will be held for all married couples in the Deanery of Richmond County. Each parish couple will organize his own parish to see that a good turnout will be present. A special speaker will be in attendance. The following statement was approved by the parish couples.

"We hold that a serious and thorough preparation for marriage is the best assurance of a strong and happy family life in our present-day Society.

Since the family is the basic unit of Society, and because of the many dangers now threatening Family Life, we recommend that everyone work, during 1965-66, for a more comprehensive preparation for marriage. The following are urged to continue and intensify their noble efforts in this regard:

(1) Parents, who will equip themselves to give to their children the training and education which which is their due, and according to their development:

(2) Clergy, teachers and all other leaders who will give priority to the imparting of adequate training in family life to the young people under their care:

(3) Young people themselves who, realizing the need and importance of adequate formation, will without an intensive preparation not think of entering marriage for this Christian Vocation.

We are confident that sincere and concerted efforts on the part of everyone will bring stability to Family Life and greater happiness to those concerned."

The following couples are representatives of their Parish:

Mr. and Mrs. Joe MacNeil, Johnstown.
Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Martell, L'Ardoise.
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fougere, River Bourgeois.
Mr. and Mrs. M. A. MacNeil, Louisdale.
Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer Scanlan, Lower River Inhabitants.
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Theriault, D'Escousse.
Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Boudreau, Petit de Grat.
Mr. and Mrs. Francis Martell, Arichat.
Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mury, West Arichat.
Mr. and Mrs. Paul MacDonnell, St. Peter's- who are also Deanery Couple.

Constructed of aluminum, surfaced with red reflective material, it is always visible, day or night, in any weather condition, and there is no danger of failure from a power source.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have equipped their patrol angle. It has been accepted in cars with this new safety red trimany countries around the world as a standard highway warning emblem.

Fred Melick, milkman, got a Scotia Plan Car Loan –$1900–overnight

Mr. Melick needed a better car—badly. But where could he get the money he needed to buy a newer car? Fortunately for Mr. Melick he thought of The Bank of Nova Scotia. He went to his nearest Scotiabranch and answered a few quick questions about his job, income and how much money he needed . . .

OVERNIGHT Fred Melick knew he would have the money he needed to buy that car. And this is not an unusual case. Of course this actual customer was not named Fred Melick, but there are more and more people with all kinds of names and jobs coming to The Bank of Nova Scotia to have their money problems solved—quickly. Why don't you?

If you are worrying about your old car—if you want a new car—then get yourself a Scotia Plan Car Loan. The cost is low—you get life insurance at no extra cost—you get the same low cost for all makes and models of cars—and you get the speed of service that makes your money problems disappear—fast. How much money do you need?

GOING TO THE MOVIES IS FUN FOR PRATLEY

To Canadian film critic Gerald Pratley, going to the movies is not just 'all in a day's work', it is fun. The host of CBC radio's Pratley at The Movies heard Sunday at noon, sees an average of five regular films a week, attends special showings of foreign and Canadian films and reads some 25 film magazines and books on film techniques each month. As well he travels around the world collecting material for his shows. There is hardly anyone of importance from William Wyler to Federico Fellini who hasn't been interviewed on his program.

YOUR HOST — — JOHN DRAINIE

John Drainie is host for programs on both the CBC radio and television networks. He's heard weekdays on the CBC radio network program John Drainie Tells A Story and on Sunday nights he's seen as host of This Hour Has Seven Days on the CBC—TV network.

THE PIGEON THAT CAUGHT THE TRAIN — Leave it to a carrier pigeon to find the fastest way to travel from Halifax to Moncton. The pigeon, Serial No. A2785 APA 29, unwittingly boarded Canadian National's fast freight 441 at Halifax when the doors were closed on an empty boxcar. Next morning the car arrived in CN's Moncton hump yard, and when car cleaner Fred Breau opened it to prepare it for another shipment he found the pigeon resting comfortably after its effortless 'flight' from Halifax. So far the pigeon has shown no signs of any homing instinct, and car foreman Ray Matchett is looking after it until the owner can be traced. Here Fred (left) and foreman Ray make friends with the carrier pigeon as it poses outside CN's unusual 'pigeon carrier.'
