DOCTORS GIVE HIM A PAIN

A couple of experiences recently have confirmed something I've long suspected. People spend far too much time going to the doctor. Most doctors would probably agree.

My wife, who could go 15 rounds with Cassius Clay and not breathe hard, goes to the doctor about twice a month. He says, Well, you're certainly looking in fine fettle", gives her a bottle of pills and sends her about her business.

My experience with doctors has been on two levels, the social and professional. Socially, you can't beat them. They like a drink, a good story, good company. Professionally...well, let me tell you.

Just after the war, the medical profession told me I had tuberculosis. There was a shadow on my chest X-ray. They pumped out my stomach and poked among the horrors exhumed. They vampired blood out of my arm. They sucked marrow out of my breast bone.

Every so often, a specialist in reading X-rays would show me the "shadow" on my lung. There were about 484 shadows on the X-ray. I'd nod intelligently, though I'll swear it was a different one every time.

I still think they got a fly-speck on the original X-ray. But I bear them no grudge. This used to happen to me during the war. We'd be flying formation, on a mission, heads swivelling wildly to watch for German fighters. Suddenly, I'd spot a whole gaggle of the foe and holler over the radio, "Enemy aircraft, above. 10 o'clock.

After a frantic silence, in which everyone else swept the sky with his eyes, a sardonic voice would announce, "Smiley's got oil specks on his wind screen again."

So I forgave the docs. In 12 months, they couldn't prove, at least to my satisfaction, that I had TB. But they needed the practice, and I bore no ill-will.

About eight years later I had a very sore back. Could hardly straighten up. I went to a specialist. He took $28 worth of X-rays and a ten-dollar fee, poked me painfully, and on the second visit informed me that I had a "severe irritation of the lumbar region". I was pretty scared and asked him what it involved. "To put it in layman's language," he pontificated, "you have a sore back."

Couple of years later, I hobbled to another doctor's office. My knee was acting up. A German feldwebel had tried to kick the kneecap off, one day in 1944, and every so often it went on the fritz. The doc twisted it until I screamed, told me it was very painful, and sent me to a specialist. He took X-rays, wrenched it until I was bathed in sweat, and told me I had a bad knee and should be careful with it.

Recently, I went to the veterans' hospital, for my regular chest check-up. The doc couldn't find the scar on my X-ray, and had to ask me which lung it had been. I didn't know.

The other day, I went to an eye specialist. I can see fine, but my wife though I should go. I haven't had my eyes checked since another eye specialist, 15 years ago, prescribed the glasses I wear for reading.

Well, this young fellow the other day, who can give you an appointment within four months of the time you call, told me I didn't need glasses. Said the ones I had were as useful as window panes. He didn't realize I'd had them renewed at about $25 a rattle, four or five times since the original prescription whenever I'd broken them or lost them.

Well, I'm going to fool him. I'm going to go right on wearing those glasses, if only to hide the bags under my eyes.

Doctors! It's not that I'm prejudiced. Some of my best friends are doctors. But how would you like your sister to marry one of them?

LOIS MARSHALL TO VISIT HALIFAX, MARCH 19

Internationally renowned, Canadian born, soprano Lois Marshall will give a recital in Halifax, March 19, it was announced recently by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The concert, which will be held at the University of Kings College gymnasium commencing at 8:30 p.m., is co-sponsored by the CBC and Dalhousie University.

Tickets may be obtained free of charge at the reception desk of the CBC building, 1840 Bell Road, and on the University campus at the Alumni Office, Room 133, Arts and Administration Building.

The recital will be recorded for broadcast on the network series "CBC University Celebrity Recital" a feature on "CBC Sunday Night", and on the CBC French radio network.

Acclaimed as "Canada's extraordinary gift to the world of music" Miss Marshall was born and educated in Toronto.

Since her signal triumph as the winner of the coveted Namberg Award a little less than 10 years ago when she first appeared before American audiences in the New York "Town Hall" series, she has been the recipient of accolades around the world.

She recently completed her sixth concert tour of the Soviet Union, where the Leningrad newspaper "Vetcherny" wrote of her, "The universality of her talent and her remarkable range were vividly demonstrated. She has completely mastered the skill of finding the proper colors for every phrase."

Success has followed success for "one of the loveliest soprano voices extant".

In December 1963 Miss Marshall returned to New York after innumerable success in solo recitals and with symphony orchestras around the globe and once again took sophisticated New Yorkers by storm when she appeared as featured soloist with the Toronto Symphony at Carnegie Hall.

The New York World Telegram and Sun music critic called her "an artist of great physical and spiritual poise".

In her tour of Australia which followed her Continental debut in Germany where she was called by the Hamburg "Echo" "a veritably divine voice", Miss Marshall was accorded a tremendous reception.

The Perth Sunday Times paid her the ultimate tribute by saying "Lois Marshall is, to the best of my belief, the world's finest singer of dramatic song". This is almost the same as saying the World's greatest soprano.

Following her appearance in Halifax, which must certainly be the highlight of a most impressive season of serious music on CBC radio and television, Miss Marshall will make return appearances with major symphony orchestras across North America including those of Toronto, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Winnipeg, Hartford and San Antonio.

HOLIDAY WITH A BONUS

For several years, ever since I took my memorable trip to Fort Churchill, I have been trying to remember in time for people planning their vacations, to write about Flin Flon's annual Trout Festival. This is the type of truly rugged adventure that one wants to have the joy of anticipating for several months. Held on the week end to celebrate our famous July holiday, this year the Festival is slated for June 30th to July 4th.

With a title such as TROUT FESTIVAL, one could be forgiven if they thought this is a fishing venture only. Far from it. The Flin Flon annual fling, this year celebrating its fifteenth anniversary, offers anything from the trout trophy even to Kart racing.

Travelling by rail from Winnipeg, you will find there is no spirit like that of the people of the north country. They throw themselves in organizing this festival with the zest of a hive of bees. There are two pictures in the publicity which is sent to me each year that certainly, if I hadn't already sampled the hospitality of this rugged community, would sell me the idea of a TROUT FESTIVAL holiday. The first is the burly winner of last year's flour packing contest (it says here 650 lbs.) toting huge sacks of flour on his back aided only by a wide thong across his forehead. They keep piling the sacks on until the winner staggers over the finish line. One more teaspoon of flour added to his load and I'm sure he'd have been on his knees.

The other picture that intrigued me is the bannock baking contest. Squatting in the middle of the road over a small wood fire, a pretty squaw is watched by her well fed mate while she pours the batter and produces in jig time a beautifully flipped bannock. I am not quite sure whether the object of the contest is the best bannock, the quickest cooked, or the prettiest contestant. That is left for the vacationers to find out.

Paul Edwards of Chicago, Ill., was the first Trout Trophy winner landing a beauty that weighed in at 37 pounds 12 ounces in 1951. His reward was a brand new Pontiac. In 1962, which is the last year noted in the press release, Allan Rattray of Willoughby Hills, Ohio, fished out of Clear water Lake a radiant lake trout that tipped the scales at 40 lbs. 8 ounces. He drove away in an Envoy with a trophy replica to boot.

No festival is complete without a beauty contest. This one chooses for the duration of the festivities a QUEEN MERMAID I wonder which she prizes most, her win, her mink jacket or the adulation from her admiring court. These are the entrants who didn't win but enjoy with her, such majestic rule.

There are canoe races, a square dance jamboree, fish fries and the most wonderfully hospitable people you'll meet anywhere in the whole wide world.

Now if you want to extend this fishing frolic CN has added to its Maple Leaf Tours several packman's paradise. The package ingaged tours to six of the marvelous lakes in Manitoba's fisher-cludes rail travel, lower berth and meals and transfer to and from the lodge of your choice; lodge accommodation with meals for the four days fishing plus boats, motors, guides and fish packing. For those who like to fish this is a bonanza holiday.

"North of 54"

While my enthusiasms are north bound I must recommend the CN annual all expense tour to Hudson Bay. It is without a doubt Canada's most unique holiday experience. There is fun and dancing, scenery, white whales in the sun and wheat — busels of it in huge government grain elevators ready to be shipped all over the World. The tour includes a visit to these elevators.

Some years ago I sat in the cluttered office of the late Prof. E. J. Pratt in Victoria College, University of Toronto. He was brewing tea with hot water he had boiled on a small electric plate perched precariously atop a slanting pile of books. As he very precisely measured a teaspoon of teach for each cup and one for the pot, he recited his poem describing the Laurentian Shield as a huge boa which surrounds our inland sea. I never dreamed on that dreary day in March when he was trying to convince me I could make writing my career that I would see so much of his "Great Lone Land". Don't miss it, that is if you can get aboard that train. Quite often it is booked months ahead.

SCHOOL "ADOPTS" VIET NAM CHILD

To the students of St. Peter's School, Vietnam is more than a trouble-torn country — it is the home of their foster child and sister — little nine-year-old Van Thi Thu, known to all as Thu.

A large picture of Thu occupies a prominent position near the school entrance. Little ones gaze at the picture of Thu and one and all have joined in common contribution to their foster-sister in far-off Vietnam.

Each month, a different grade accepts responsibility for raising the $17 necessary for supporting Thu. During the month of February, Grade X in an outburst of activity sponsored an "after school" record hop. A few days later, to make the total required they sold themselves to senior students and to staff members, as slaves for one week. This has produced a great many menial tasks, all undertaken in a mood of good cheer.

Other classes have sponsored fudge and cookie sales, a school newspaper and various other activities. In March the grade nine class will be expected to "carry the torch" for Thu.

To the students of St. Peter's School, Van Thi Thu represents a most gratifying and worthwhile project.

News Of The Municipal Council

Warden Langley called the meeting to order at 10:00 a.m. The Clerk read the roll of the Councillors. All Councillors were present excepting Councillors Holmes and Cameron. Councillor Cameron arrived while the minutes were being read. Warden Langley reported that Councillor Holmes was ill and would not be able to attend the session.

Mr. Vickery was asked to read the minutes of Monday's meeting. The following errors and or omissions were brought up: Warden Langley stated that the name of the School, that is, Isle Madame District High should be mentioned as the School which was made available by motion of School Board for the Federation Caravan. Councillor LeBlanc felt that Councillor LeBrun's question to Hon. Gerald Doucet regarding the Province relieving the Municipalities of the cost of caring for Mentally Ill should be added to the minutes. Mr. Doucet's reply was that work was being done on this and the final decision would be made within the month when the Speech from the Throne is read. Deputy Warden LeBrun stated that in the Assistant Tax Collector's report, it was stated that personal contact with the ratepayers was responsible for the high tax collection percentage and not the high tax rate, and finally Councillor Rudolph Boudreau wanted to add to the minutes that he had asked Hon. Gerald Doucet the following question: Would the Department of Education share in the cost of additional classrooms if the enrolment would not warrant it? The reply was that from past experience, the Department's decision depended on the potential for higher enrolment in the area concerned.

At this time Councillor Cameron was sworn into office by the clerk.

Dr. Winter gave his report to Council as Medical Health Officer for Richmond County for the year 1964. He stated that 1964 was a routine in every way except for the introduction of oral polio vaccine and mentioned that 3,500 doses were given. He quoted satistics on the number of cases of certain communicable diseases. Dr. Winter made two recommendations to Council. The first being that of Council requiring people who handle and serve food to the public to be X-Rayed, and the second was an appeal to Richmond County to take care of the aged in this County. The Warden thanked Dr. Winter for his report.

It was moved by Councillor LeBlanc, seconded by Councillor Doiron that Dr. Winter's report be

ELECTION FEVER

Whenever election time rolls around, politicians get a fever. The fever brings on a state of delirium, and in smoke-filled rooms or back offices at campaign headquarters you can hear them moaning, "What else can we offer? Think of something new to give away!"

These delirious rantings, unfortunately, result in some campaign planks and promises put out in fancy literature. While a number of them get forgotten in five minutes after the returns are in, some of the most fantastic are so boldly stated that they must be acted upon. Virtually all of them call for massive increases in civil servants, and another tax of one kind or another to bump up the price of goods.

As a provincial premier put it recently, "The trend scares me. Our population and our national income are not increasing as fast as ou rdebt — the cost of government climbs far faster than the number of people governed."

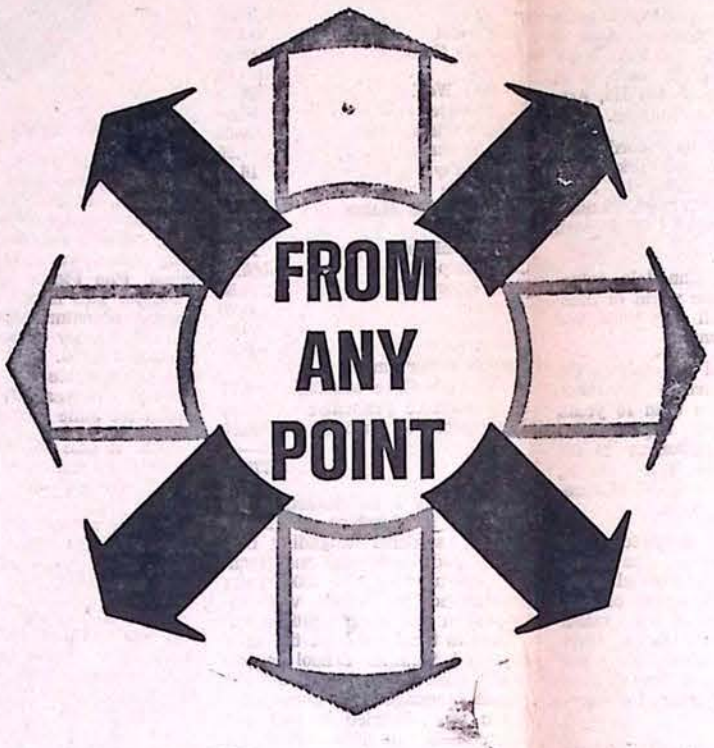

Politicians are not evil men. They regret election fever as much as anyone. They know the trend is a bad one for the country. They shake their heads and worry about the cost of all these goodies — but getting elected, they tell themselves, is important, and look what those pirates in the parties areother OTHER OTHER parties are offering!

There is a cure, fortunately. In an atmosphere of good sense, the fever abates. When it becomes apparent that the voters are fed up to the teeth with being bribed, the brows of the politicians grow cool again and the delirium departs. Unfortunately, despite our fine educational system, there remains a solid hard core of very dumb voters who have not realized that they pay for every goody through increased prices as well as directly. These dunces think that the rich folks and the corporations pay the shot. If that were really true, there would be fewer rich people and corporations would not be announcing such satisfactory profits.

No, all those fancy promises are paid for by the ordinary people of the country, either in direct taxes or indirect ones, and through the increased price of virtually everything they buy. Once this sinks into the dumb skulls of voters, election fever will finally be cured .

ROYAL BANK

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO BORROWERS & SAVERS

The Royal Commission on Banking and Finance recommended the removal of the 6% ceiling on the rate of interest a chartered bank may charge for loans. We hope that the Bank Act, due for revision by Parliament soon, will in fact remove this ceiling and also enable the chartered banks to take mortgage security—now prohibited by law but recommended in the Royal Commission report.

To Our Borrowing Customers

To remove any uncertainty in the minds of our borrowing customers, the Royal Bank wishes to assure them that removal of the ceiling will not of itself affect our prevailing loan rates. The general level of these rates is determined by monetary policy as formulated by the Government and implemented through the Bank of Canada. However, the changes proposed by the Royal Commission will, if enacted in law, enable the chartered banks to enter lending fields hitherto closed to them. Thus the banks will be in a position to make, at reasonable rates, loans of a term and risk which, under present regulations are available only at higher rates outside the banking system.

We look forward to the removal of the ceiling as a means by which we can serve a wider public, not as a means by which we can charge higher interest rates on our present types of loans.

To Our Savings Customers

Removal of the ceiling, by permitting us to make new types of loans, will enable us to introduce a new type of savings account on which a higher rate of interest will be paid.

Thus, removal of the 6% ceiling—

1. Will benefit the owners of 12,000,000 savings accounts with the chartered banks.
2. Will not hurt existing borrowers.
3. Will help those now forced to borrow outside the chartered banking system, by providing them with loans at more reasonable rates.

CERTIFICATION OF ELECTRICIANS

Labor Minister Fergusson announced, recently, that regulations were approved by the provincial government, requiring all workers in the electrical construction trade in Nova Scotia to hold a certificate of qualification or a restricted certificate, these regulations to go into effect March 1, 1965.

Being fully aware of the possible hazards to the people who put their trust in an incompetent workman, this rule was enthusiastically received by the Electrical Contractors Association of Nova Scotia.

Harld Harding of Bridgewater, President of the Association, said that in an attempt to upgrade the electrical industry in the province this association set about formulating a system of certification which will guarantee that all electrical work be of the highest standard. Five years of hard work culminated in the announcement that the government had accepted Certification of electrical tradesmen as part of the existing Apprenticeship and Tradesmen's Qualification Act.

Provision is made in the new regulations enabling electrical workers presently employed, with not less than four years experience in the electrical trade, to receive certificates. But all electrical tradesmen must obtain their certificates within two years.

Provision is also made to safeguard the interests of those who are adequate in the practical skills, but would have difficulty in passing a related theory examination. Persons working in the trade who live in a rural community 10 miles or more from the business of a certified worker could be examined for a restricted certificate enabling them to do wiring installations and repairs on residential and farm type buildings in that area.

After March, 1967, however, only a registered apprentice or a person employed during a probationary period will be able to engage in the electrical construction trade without a certificate.

Since many young men take a four year apprenticeship course in association with the province's trade schools, these requirements should cause no hardship to newcomers to the industry. Mr. Harding said, "The regulations will result in better trained men. It will not only give contractors evidence of the electrician's qualifications, but it will give the public a standard by which to judge the competence of workmen. It should, also, provide the added status to electricians of being recognized by the three other provinces of Canada — Quebec, Ontario and Alberta — who now have certification."

EDUCATION AND RECREATION LEADERS TO MEET IN FREDERICTON

Approximately 100 teachers, supervisors, coaches, and physical education and recreation leaders from Nova Scotia will visit Fredericton later this year for the 16th biennial convention of the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

H. A. Noble, inspector of physical education and recreation with the Department of Education, said recently the Nova Scotians would be among the more than 450 delegates from Canada and the New England States expected to attend the convention.

Scheduled for the University of New Brunswick campus June 18-23, the 1965 convention is only the second to be held in the Atlantic Provinces. Halifax played host to delegates in 1957.

The Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation is a national professional association with a membership of 2000.
