TIME HOBBLES ON

I'll be 45 this week. It's one of those rather decisive birthdays, like 13, 21 and 30. Only 10 more years before I'll be middle-aged. A good time to sum up.

One thing that strikes me is the amount of junk a fellow can collect in such a brief span. I came into the world without a stitch or a nickel. And in only four and a half decades, I have acquired a number of stitches, about 400 nickles, a house with two mortgages, a car with 12 payments to go, two teenagers it put through university, and a wife currently talking up the glories of an automatic dishwasher.

Not to mention a houseful of furniture that's all due to be replaced, a basement full of empty beer bottles, a toolshed full of rusty tools and broken bicycles, and an attic full of black squirrels.

But I have no complaints about life. I was the run of the litter in our family, and I've grown into a magnificent physical specimen towering five foot eight on hot days, and tipping the scales at a strapping 138 in my winter overcoat.

And what a beating that meagre machine has taken in 45 years! I've been sea-sick and air-sick and love-sick. I've rolled over in a car, crashlanded in an airplane and smashed into a steel bridge at top speed on my bike. I've been beaten into unconsciousness by a gang of Germans, and hit with everything from a telephone to a plate of roast beef by my wife. Yet there's hardly a scratch on me. Outwardly.

I've broken fingers and toes and nose (three times). I've had hemmoroids and hangovers. I've had my scalp laid open by a hockey stick and a horseshoe. I've had measles and mumps and TB and the trots, scarlet fever and bursitis and pink eye and dysentry.

And yet, amazingly, the old carcass presses on. Sight and hearing are sound as a bell though smelling is gone completely. Appetite is unimpaired, and the old guts can handle any thing but broken glass. Hair and teeth are thinning and have changed color, but are still original models.

Endurance isn't what it used to be. I couldn't run 200 yards at top speed if the devil himself weer after me, with a red-hot pitchfork. But he rarely chases Sunday School teachers, so why worry?

I can still swim a few hundred yards, and tramp a trout stream or golf course half a dozen miles a day. I can still sit up all night and argue about politics or women or religion.

I can still get excited about an idea or a song or a poem or a play. I can still thrill t the sight of a beautiful broad, or a big fish or a full moon r a bluebird or a bonfire.

I enjoy loafing and hard work, chess and dry martinis, thunderstorms and trees, good movies and little children, old friends and new clothes, thoug hnot necessarily in those combinations.

Not bad for an old chap, eh? Please don't think I'm bragging What I'm doing is singing a paean of thanksgiving for my own good luck, and a note of consolation for you birds who are creeping up on 45.

A lot of people burble, "If I could only live it over, knowing what I do now." Not me.

I wouldn't trade my childhood, romantic, shy, imaginative, for any I've seen since. The thrill of sports as a teenager; falling in love half a dozen times; first job on a steamboat; university and ideas and new friends; air force and kicks as a fighter pilot; prison camp and hunger and good talk; marriage and kids; weekly newspaper editor; high school teacher. And be hanged if a fellow didn't offer me an interesting new job last week.

Nossir. I've had a good run. And I'm going to keep right on running. When I'm 85, I want to be known in the nursing home as "That old devil, Smiley, who pinches your bottom every time you walk past his wheel-chair."

RECIPE FOR SUCCULENT OYSTER STEW

Halfiax — Have you ever craved for a bowl of steaming, succulent oyster stew?

Well, Chef Henry Bachman of Canadian National's Nova Scotian Hotel in Halifax says if you can't sample his special oyster stew at the hotel, then the following recipe will enable you to satisfy your hunger at home.

All that is needed for each portion is 6 to 8 oysters, 8 to 10 ounces of milk, and seasoning

First, scrub the outer shells of 6 to 8 oysters for each portion, open them over a pan so as not to lose any of the juices. Place the oysters in a small saucepan, with the juices and bring to a quick boil.

Then add 8 to 10 ounces of milk for each portion (or cream) and for each portion floating on top, reheat to boiling point. All salt and pepper.

Chef Bachman suggests you serve the stew in a large bowl or soup tureen, with a pat of butter and a few specks of paprika.

FASHION PARADE AND OPEN HOUSE HELD AT I. M. D. H.

On Sunday evening a large audience gathered in the auditorium of IMDH to enjoy a Fashion Show and Open House put on by the students of Grade VIII, IX, X Home Economics Departments.

The Fashion Parade under the guidance of Mrs. Rhea Bowen and Miss Doreen Poirier began at 8 p.m. with Miss Claire DeCoste as m.c. Commentator for the evening was Miss Nora Madden. Following opening remarks by the principal, Mr. Micnael MacNeil, the showing of the various groups of skirts and blouses and dresses all made and modelled by the girls was thoroughly enjoyed and well received.

Group 4 consisted of Jumpers skirts teamed with crisp blouses and Group 2 consisted of linen outfits, lightweight woolens and corduroys.

Taking part in this section were the following Grade 8 students: Evelyn Boudreau, Pauline Boudreau, Gwendolyn George, Diane Briand, Edna Samson, Margaret Marchand, Emily Britten, Chistina Fursthauer, Pamela Fougere, Sheila Doiron, Pearl Samson, Theresa Boudreau, Marie Britten, Linda LeBlanc, Noreen Kehoe, Annette Fougere, Betty Kehoe, Mary Helen Martell, Sharon MacDonald, Clara May Boudreau, Corrinne Forgeron and Donna Boudreau.

Gruop 4 consisted of Jumpers for Spring and Winter. The following Grade 9 students modelled this group: Barbara Ann Marchand, Elaine Marchand, Judy-Ann Marchand, Linda Terrio, Laura Bourinot, Geraldine Landry, Claire Forgeron, Angela McGrath, Ida May Samson, Phyllis Tremblay, Viola Samson.

Casual Dresses for summer relaxation and strolls in the afternoon sunshine made up the Group 5 section. The girls accented their dresses with sprays of garden flowers and complementing accessories. These were modelled by the following Grade 9 students: Betty Rogers, Marie Babin, Maisie Barnes, Joan Martell, Donna O'Melia, Marie Samson.

Group 6 consisted of Grade 10 students who prepared themselves for the colder seasons as well as the next school term. The chosen fabrics were lightweight woolens and corduroys. These were worn with crisp blouses or pullovers. These could also be worn as a shift with special jewellery or silk scarf. Taking part in this group were: Brenda Dorey, Carmel Kehoe, Margaret Gerard, Claire Boudreau, Amelia Landry.

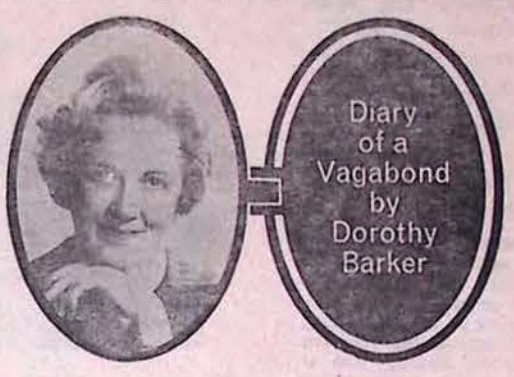

Group 7 was the afternoon dress shown by Grade 9 students. These were all smart linen fashions suitable for Church wear or to a graduation or a wedding. Modelling were the following: Claire DeCoste, Marie Boucher, Louise Boudreau, Lois LeBlanc, Frances LeBlanc, Claudette Landry, Patsy Joshua, Carol David, Claire Burke, Dianne Goyetche, Cecelia Bowen, Nora Madden.

Following this was a showing fo business suits of flannel and linen, a dress suit of white silk and a very fashionable pink nubby tweed featuring a cape. The girls taking part in this group were Julie Ann Sampson, Naomi LeBlanc, Celeste Landry, Gail Forgeron.

The highlight of the show was two very fashionable and noteworthy evening gowns. These were made and modelled by two of the senior Home Economic students of Grade X.

Miss Gail Forgeron fashioned her graduation gown in two fabrics. The top, of black velveteen, fitted neatly around the bodice and featured long tapered sleeves.

A Man to Remember

Many of us don't know how our surnames originated, but the ancestors of one Canadian must have anticipated that at some time in the future, the name they chose for their signature would identify, in a proper manner, one of their kin.

Over and over, Warren Publicover has not only been of great service to his native Canada, but a credit to his endeavour on behalf of its public.

My meeting with him was rather a surprise. I had decided, for several reasons, to root to the bottom of the history of the Canadian Club in New York City. First for my own curious satisfaction and, secondly, because in my travels, I have been asked on numerous occasions "What is the Canadian Club in New York and why?" At the time I requested information I hadn't expected to meet the top executive.

Warren Publicover is the club's current president. He took time from a very busy routine to greet me in the beautifully appointed lounge of the club, which is situated in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. My intention was to take notes only on the club and its origin, but before may minutes had passed, I found myself fascinated by this New York business man who sat so relaxed on the gold brocade chesterfield.

He is not a large man, nor is he a Madison Avenue type. He wears his clothes rather casually, which becomes his continual gestures while in conversation with his guests .He has a constant twinkle in his eye and a unique sense of humour. His achievements are a credit to him and to his native land.

Started with CN

Born on Cape Breton Island, he started his business career as a telegrapher and station agent for the Canadian National Railways at Mahone Bay in Nova Scotia. "I was only 14 years old at the time but I managed to get the trains in and out successfully and receive and send messages without errors," he reminisced.

Warren Publicover did more than this 'successfully'. He was educated at Dalhousie, Columbia and New York Universities, graduating with doctorates in law and philosophy.

At one time he had the job of redecorating the Canadian Club's various dining, lounge and games rooms. It was when he told of ordering an oil painting of two tinhatted Canadian soldiers to be relegated to the store room that the twinkle in his eye first became apparent. He told of discovering that this picture was by a famous artist named Augustus Johns and had a value on the art market of $15,000! He had is cleaned and re-framed and it now has a place of honor among a number of marvellous paintings of Canadian

Standard equipment: a bank loan

It has become almost standard practice today for people to go to their bank to finance the purchase of cars and other family items. You, too, may have found it a good idea to borrow where you save — at your local bank. It is often simpler, because the bank already knows you as a savings customer. And it also may save you money because bank loans are low-cost loans. For borrowing and saving, and for any other bank service you may need, just visit your local chartered bank. It's the one place where you can get all your banking done, under one roof.

DISPLAY OF OIL PAINTINGS AT ST. PETER'S

The citizens of St. Peter's were interested to find that a resident of the village was the possessor of a large collection of oil paintings, the work of the outstanding Canadian painter of the Victorian period, Robert Harris, who is best known for his representation of the Fathers of Confederation.

The paintings, owned by Mr. Harry Cotton, a grand-nephew of Robert Harris, were on display at the Art Show held in the School auditorium, on Friday, and sponsored by the Art Class, under the Adult Education Division of the Nova Scotia Department of Educaton.

The St. Peter's Art Class of eleven members, with their instructor, Mrs. Irene MacEwen, who has studied at the Mount Allison Art School, assisted Mrs. Duncan Currie, Convenor of Evening Classes for Adult Education in arranging the display of the class paintings and of a wide assortment of original paintings, owned by residents of the village and loaned for the occasion.

Of the latter, the Robert Harris paintings were the most numerous and varied. The works of Robert Harris hang in the National Art Gallery and in a room specially dedicated to him in the Confederation Buildings in Charlottetown. Among the paintings on display at the Art Show were examples of his portraits, for which he was most famous.

A special guest at the Art Show was Mrs. Lela Mould, well-known Sydney artist, who displayed a large collection of her own paintings and who gave a talk on the development of art through the ages, illustrated with reproductions of famous paintings. Mrs. Mould told the audience that she was pleased with the interest shown and congratulated the members of the Art Class and their instructor on the excellence of their work.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

MISS CLAIRE POWER R.N.

The passing of Miss Claire Power, R. N., in her 72nd year occurred in Cambridge, Mass., on Tuesday, May 25th, after a short illness. Miss Power was the duaghter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Power of this town and had been residing in the US for the past thirty years where she was engaged in the nursing profession.

Miss Power was a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing, Glace Bay, and was a most etticient and highly qualified registered nurse. Prior to her retirement three years ago, Miss Power engaged in private nursing in Massachusetts.

For the past several years she made annual visits to her old home here where her many friends always looked forward to seeing her. Her passing is mourned by her only brother Joe, who also resides in Cambridge and by nieces and nephews and other relatives both here and in the USA.

The remains which arrived from Cambridge by rail rested at the Boucher Funeral Home here where all arrangements were in charge of C. A. Boucher Funeral Director.

The many floral offerings, Mass Cards and sympathy cards attested to the esteem held for the late Miss Power.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon with Very Rev. A. P. Poirier officiating at the largely attended funeral. On Monday morning Requiem High Mass was celebrated by the pastor Very Rev. Poirier and was attended by her brother and sister-in-law and several relatives and friends.

A personal friend of our family the late Miss Power's memory will always be cherished for her many acts of kindness especially at a time when her professional services and sympathy were much appreciated in the passing of our late mother some years ago.

To the only surviving brother and our good friend Joe Power, we extend our sincere sympathy in the passing of his beloved sister.

He who dwelleth in eternal light is bigger than the shadow and will guard and guide His own.

—Mary Baker Eddy

Moral light is the radiation of the diviner glory.

—Thomas Dick

MRS. ALICE MADDEN

The death af Mrs. Alice Madden in her 68th year occurred at the Halifax Infirmary on May 27th where she had been a patient for several days.

The late Mrs. Madden's husband, William E. Madden predeceased her some years ago. Mr. Madden was Prothonotary and Clerk of the Court in this County for many years.

Mrs. Madden was a devoted mother of a large and worthy family and as a neighbour and friend her memory will be cherished by all who were acquainted with her and as a personal friend and near neighbour we knew the many fine qualities of the deceased and her cheerful and courageous disposition won for her the highest respect and admiration of everyone in the community and far beyond its confines.

She was blessed with a family of seven sons and three daughters all of who mwere most successful and during the past several years Mrs. Madden had the pleasure of visiting them at their respective homes throughout the province and other parts of Canada.

She leaves to mourn her passing seven sons and three daughters, Daniel, of Arichat; Arthur, of Riverdale, Ont.,; David, of Belleville, Yarmouth county; Andrew of St. John, N. B.; Edward of Greenville, Ont.; Gregory of Hamilton, Ont.; Fred, of Eagle Mountain, Calif. USA; Mrs. Jack McKenna (Rose) of Dartmouth; Mrs. Leonard Marchand (Anne) of Halifax; Mrs. J. C. Marchand (Marie) of Ottawa.

Also two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Bertha Landry, Arichat and Mrs. Julia Wilson, of Halifax; Edgar Samson, Samson's Cove; one step-sister Madeline Marchand, Louisdale.

The funeral took place from the home of her son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. D. O'C. Madden to Notre Dame Church here, of which the deceased was a devout member during her long residence here.

All her children were in attendance at the funeral with the exception of Mrs. Leonard Marchand (Anne) of Halifax who gave birth to a son before the passing of her mother.

Requiem Mass was celebrated by Very Rev. A. P. Poirier who also conducted the service at the graveside.

The six oldest sons were pallbearers at the largely attended funeral.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved sons and daughters.

FASHION SHOW AND OPEN HOUSE HELD AT I. M. D. H.

The full-length skirt of ruby red peau de soie, featured a gentle easing at the waist and a deep kick-pleat in the back for easy walking and dancing. Miss Forgeron close black accessories and glittering tiara.

Miss Barbara White fashioned her graduation gown of rich lustrous gold peau de soie skirt with scalloped lace top which enhanced the neckline and tapered sleeves. The easy moving skirt flared out into the A-Line style. This was worn with black patent shoes with glass heels and black accessories.

Both these very lovely dresses were well received and applauded.

The show was interspersed with musical selections by the Three C's accompanied by Miss Cornelia Boucher on the piano.

Inspector of Schools, Mr. Belliveau was to be guest speaker but he was unable to attend and sent a message which was read by Miss DeCoste.

Mr. MacNeil gave a few closing remarks and called on Mrs. Rhea Bowen (sewing teacher) and Miss Doreen Poirier (cooking teacher) on stage where they were warmly applauded by the audience for such a splendid demonstration of their students' work.

Following this the audience was invited to an Open House in the Home Economics Rooms where all the aspects of the Culinary Arts, as well as sewing were on display.

There was also a book display, ing various types of entertaining The first one was for a children's birthday party with life-size dolls dressed for the occasion.

Table Two was a "Shower for A Future Bride" with an appropriately decorated cake and assorted dainty sandwiches and squares.

Table Three was for a "Serving Time Buffet" complete with silver tea service, candles, cups and saucers, silver, napkins etc., in very good taste and arrangement.

Table Four was a display of Herbs, Spices and Flavorings and the proper methods of using them.

There was als o abook display, sewing display, family life stuffed animals, embroidery, knitting, crocheting, smocked pillows, aprons, skirts and blouses.

Space does not permit further elaboration, as the calibre of the cooking and sewing displays merit a much broader coverage than we can do here.

The Home Economics class rooms at IMDH are of the most modern and are complete with two electric stoves, refrigerator, three stainless steel sinks, modern cupboards all finished in the latest design and material. The sewing room is equipped with four electric sewing machines and other equipment needed for the teaching of sewing.

Much credit is due Mrs. Bowen and Miss Poirier for their guidance and instruction in the execution of the Home Economics display of the past year's work.

DUKE OF EDINBURGH IN BBC YOUTH QUIZ

Four young Britishers had the chance to ask the Duke of Edinburgh any questions they liked in a special edition of the BBC programme 'Let's Find Out', broadcast in the BBC World Service and to listeners in Britain. Like other guests of this programme, Prince Philip had no advance warning of the questions that would be asked by the young interviewers: undergraduate Susan Bucknell, 19; her brother David, 17 (children of the BBC television 'do - it - yourself' expert Barry Bucknell); Vivienne Barton, 17, a junior reporter and Christopher Hall, 16. Peter Haigh was in the chair.

Uninhibited questions from the teenagers brought frank answers from Prince Philip, who had recently returned from a tour to Asia and Australia following the State Visit to Ethiopia and the Sudan in February. Asked whether he wished his family was out of the public eye more, he replied "Well, you can't have it both ways, can you?..If you are going to have a monarchy you've got to have a family and the family has got to be in the public eye." At the same time, every attempt was made to keep the children largely out of the public eye so that they could grow up as normally as possible. As to whether he, as a royal child, had been treated just like everyone else — "It's true that I had the title of Prince, but it's surprising how you can live it down."

Prince Philip named a sense of humour as a vital quality for anybody nowadays, "if you don't want to end up with several ulcers"; and revealed that his travels had given him a new hobby — studying birds. Ten years ago, he said, he could not tell a seagull from a starling, but now he could recognise birds in practically any part of the world, and got immense pleasure from the books he had accumulated on the subject.

Shortly after this friendly inquisition, Prince Philip paid another visit to the BBC, this time to Bush House in the Strand, head quarters of the BBC External Services, where he spoke about many aspects and impressions of his strenuous tour in a discussion with journalists Patrick Keatley of 'The Guardian' and Richard Harris of 'The Times' which was broadcast in the BBC World and Home Services.

HMS PINAFORE STAGED BY STUDENTS OF I. M. D. H.

One of Gilbert and Sullivan's best-loved operettas, HMS Pinafore, was very successfully performed by the students of IMDH in the school auditorium on May 20. Mr. Ulric Bourque, director of music for the school, was in charge of the production.

The Nautical Operetta is the story of Ralph Rackstraw, a common sailor, who has fallen in love with the Captain's daughter Josephine.

Sir Joseph Porter, of the Royal Navy who also seeks the hand of Josephine visits the Pinafore for an interview with her and her father. The interview proves unsuccessful. As the first Act closes Ralph and Josephine steal away the same night to be married.

In Act II Sir Joseph Porter informs the Captain that Josephine "does not tackle kindly" to his wooing. Dick Deadeye, a sailor, tells the captain of the intended elopement of Ralph and Josephine. They both lie in wait and surprise the eloping couple and the crew. Ralph is lead to a dungeon. Soon Buttercup, a peddler-woman, arrives on the scene and explains that "Ralph is really the captain and the captain, Ralph". The operetta ends with a rousing chorus as the three couples prepare for their weddings on the morrow: Ralph and Josephine; Sir Joseph and his cousin Hebe; Captain Corcoran and Buttercup.

The cast was comprised of the following:

Captain Corcoran — Albert Joyce
Sir Joseph Porter KCB — George Boudreau
Little Buttercup — Yvette Samson
Josephine — Claire DeCoste
Ralph Rackstraw — Paul Britten
Dick Deadeye — Robert Simmons
Cousin Hebe — Claire Bourque
Boatswain — Benedict Samson

The boys chorus was made up of the Grade 11 and 12 boys and the girls chorus by the Grade 9C, 11 and 12 girls.

The proceeds were used to help defray the cost of a school trip to PEI over the long week-end by the Grade 11 and 12 students.

Much credit is due Mr. Bourque and his cast, chorus and stagehands, and costumers for the very laudable performance of this production — the first of its kind to be produced at IMDH.

scenes by artists from all the provinces who sign RCA after their pictures. His taste in the choice of color and decor for these stately rooms is a reflection of all the success he has attained during his lifetime

Let me quote from The Maple Leaf, a monthly booklet about the club and its activities. It will give my readers some idea of the type of men we have representing Canada in the third largest metropolis in the world.

"In 1926 he joined the staff of Newmount Mining Corporation in New York and will soon be completing forty years with that organization. (This is a developing and financial corporation).

"Warren Publicover is a Director and Secretary of the Magma Arizona Railroad, the last railroad in the United States to be fully steam-engined. He is also Secretary and Treasurer of the Rio Ranch Company in Northwestern Colorado.

"He was formerly President and long-time Secretary of The Dalhousie Club of New York, now Vice-President; founder and secretary of The Friends of Mount Allison University; organizer of The Friends of Queens University (Kingston, Ontario), and a member of The Canadian Society of New York. During World War II he was the Executive Director and Treasurer of The Maple Leaf Fund, which supplied more than two million dollars of war relief in the nature of money contributions, blankets, ambulances, hospital supplies, books and magazines to the allied forces.
