SOME WOES ON WOMEN

There is something deeply disturbing about the attitude of the modern North American woman.

Men haven't really changed much, basically, since Julius Caesar and his boys crossed the Rubicon. They still like to make war and make love; they still drink more than is good for them; they still like playing games better than improving their property; they still have some romance and illusion in their souls; they still loathe facing up to family problems in little "talks" with their mates.

Take a modern politician, drape him in a toga, and he'd be right at hime in the senate of ancient Rome. Take a modern general, hang a suit of armor and a helmet on him, stick him on a horse and you wouldn't know him from a Crusader of the middle ages.

But take a modern woman out of her modern kitchen, away from her wall-to-wall broadloom and dump her in a thatched-roof cottage with outside facilities and no detergents, and what would you have? A screaming meemie; that's what you'd have. Even if Mr. and Mrs. Will Shakespeare lived in the thatched cottage next door.

This comment is written more in sorrow than in anger. I don't put all the blame on the creatures themselves. I think their greedy materialism, relentless reality and total lack of appreciation of the finer things in life — like their husbands — are a result of the stresses of the age. Too much warmed -over psychology. Too much hard-sell advertising.

They all want to look like Paris models. But they don't do enough physical work and they eat too much. So they get fat. There's a stress right there.

They want all their children to be handsome and brilliant. So they spend thousands of dollars straightening the kids' eyes and teeth and pushing them at school and nagging them about music lessons and comparing them unfavorably with kids who are handsome and brilliant. Their own kids, naturally, respond by getting fat and pimply, needing braces and glasses, growing neurotic, and failing their exams. Another stress.

They all want their husbands to be a combination of Richard Burton, J. P. Morgan, and Caspar Milquetoast. That's a little rough to come by these days, so they take it out on the poor Adam they got out of the grab-bag. Frustration and guilt. Two more stresses .

They crave security. More and more of it. So they push their men harder and harder to build up a bigger and bigger estate, and more insurance, in order that they can join the hordes of lonely widows in Florida, sitting around telling each other what a grand chap poor Herman was before he worked himself to death 30 years ago

They all want to be loved and cherished. And they spend all their time complaining about their health, their children, their husbands, and all the things other women have that they don't. Who's going to love and cherish a walkie-talkie with a built-in whine?

They all want to be beautiful. And they all go around with lips pressed tight, mouth turned down and a big scowl. When was the last time you heard your wife singing Jack?

There's only one solution, of course, for the girls, and it would not be a popular one. The answer is back to the scrub-board and the sewing-machine, the vegetable garden and the preserving kettle.

I would not have you think these observations are offered in an unkindly spirit. They are merely the result of overhearing a conversation today between my Old Battleaxe and her sidekick across the street.

For half and hour, they vied with each other, chapter and verse, what useless articles Bill and John(incidentally two of the sweetest guys in town) turned out to be.

PETER COVIN

The death of Peter Covin occurred at his home in West Arichat recently. He was unwell for some time and his death was learned with deep regret, the deceased having been well and favourably known in this district.

He is survived by his wife, four sons, Harold and Rudolph, at home, Amedee, New York and Ernest at Sydney; and by six daughters. Evelyn (Mrs. Willie Dorey) Violet (Mrs. Oakley Pitts) both of West Arichat; Mrs. Laura May Linden ,Sydney; Lottie (Mrs Thomas Shaheen) of Sydney; Evangeline (Sister Claude Maria) of Cheticamp and Priscilla of Montreal.

A sister, Mrs. Arthur Miller survives; also two brothers Albert and Joseph of Halifax.

The funeral service was held from Immaculate Conception Church, Rev A. Doucet officiating. Funeral arrangements by C. A. Boucher. Interment in the parish cemetery.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

Diary of a Vagabond by Dorothy Barker

A Hide or Two and Then Some

Earl Denard is a big, burly chap who greets visitors to his Great West Pioneer Village in a loud plaid shirt, sucking the lower lip of his ruddy, heavily bearded countenance that literally beams a western welcome. I think he likes to consider himself a bit of a renegade, who lets you know in no uncertain words that not everyone has appreciated the dedication he has exhibited while collecting for preservation artifacts and buildings of the western pioneer era.

This collection of rambling structures, old cars, dogs, chickens, goats, cats and geese is a cross between a junk yard and a reservoir of authentic memorablia, well worth a visit if your journey takes you into the vicinity of Beach Corner, 23 miles west of Edmonton on Jasper Highway No. 16.

There is little rhyme or reason to Earl Denard's arrangement of artifacts. He lets all his visitors, while they roam among the livestock, know that he has always been too busy collecting to catalogue the items on view.

Old buffalo hides, authentically stretched as if for curing and tacked to the side of a sod house have a genuine moth eaten appearance. The sod house is adorned with stag horns, old Red River cart wheels, a rusty saw or two no pioneer ever used and some well used, knocked together furniture supposedly made by one of those hardy individuals who long, long ago scorched in summer or froze in winter within the shelter of this abode.

The Village is in a romantic kind of a chaos. One minute you are reading the front page of a copy of the famous Gus Edwards Calgary Eye Opener, dated Mar. 18, 1916 the next investigating a Conestoga wagon which, a sign informed us, transported Mrs. Maude Calloway and her three children from Lantz, near Spokane, Washington, to Thursby, Alberta. The trip, through what was then probably Indian infested country, took six weeks.

The original Stopping House erected on the Calgary trail in 1863 stands hard by historical Egge Stopping Place. This, Denard said was originally located 40 miles north of Edmonton on the Athabaska Landing Trail. Prospectors heading for the Klondike and settlers going into the Peace River country stopped overnight in this hostelry.

Looking for Grandpa?

There is one building that houses old photographs of early settlers. Relatives are said to hunt diligently for their ancestors among these pictures which are in a good state of preservation.

All in all, there are 26 buildings hauled from all parts of the province by this truly unusual citizen. Someday some of the acquisitions of Earl Denard will be of great value to historians. The rest of his Village curiosities make conversation, or elicit a laugh for their incongruity among several exciting 'finds' Earl Denard covets for his collection.

But don't expect another Williamsburg or Upper Canada Village if you plan to visit this Great North West Pioneer Village. It has none of their attributes of planned organization. It is a fenced-in array of authentic but decaying structures imaginatively stuffed figures displaying old costumes and the darndest lot of utensils, bottles, glass, old Alberta license plates and musical instruments. Earl Denard played an old organ for us. We forgot the musty smell of the creaking old building while watching his young son imitate his father's musical style after Denard had requested him to play. There was every type of gramaphone lined up like old sailors about to be shot at dawn, standing in rows along the walls. "It makes your heart kinda ache just a little to think of the years of pleasure they brought into many homes," said our host.

POIRIER — MacKINNON

St. Michael's Church, Baddeck, was the scene of a wedding of widespread interest recently when Rosemary MacKinnon, daughter of Mrs. Veronica MacKinnon was united in marriage to Conrad Poirier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Poirier of West Arichat.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Douglas MacIntyre of St. Michael's Parish. The organist was Sarah MacKinnon sister of the bride who accompanied Gerry McNeil of Antigonish and Geraldine Poirier who sang "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus", also "Blessed Be This Day".

Given in marriage by her uncle Steve MacLean, the bride looked radiant in a floor length gown of embroidered and appliqued silk organza over peau de soie, with a bateau neckline and lilypoint sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a crystal and pearl crown. She carried a bouquet of deep pink roses. Her only jewellery was a string of cultured pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Vera Ann McKinnon was bridesmaid and the matron of honor was Mrs. Daniel MacKay, sister of the groom. Both wore identical gowns of pink peau de soie. Alfred Poirier was best man and Daniel MacKay usher. The flower girl was Jacqueline MacNeil and she carried a dainty nosegay while the ring bearer was Daniel Edward MacDonald. Also attending as ushers were Jackie MacNeil of Sydney and Bernie Boudreau of West Arichat.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. MacKinnon wore a two piece suit of white background with blue and silver metallic design and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Poirier wore a blue lace over crepe dress with white accessores and corsage of white carnations.

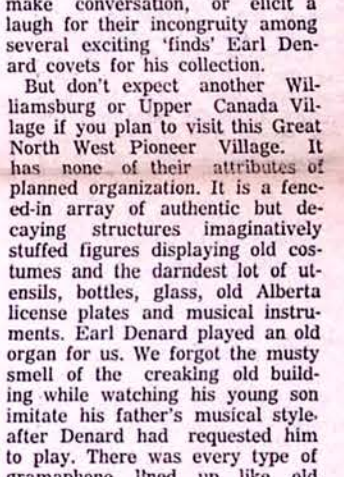

Wedding breakfast and reception was held in St. Michael's Hall. The four tier wedding cake made by the groom's sister was topped with the wedding cross, symbol of the marriage in Christ. The cake was cut by the newlyweds and apportioned by an aunt of the bride, Mrs. Steve MacLean.

For her honeymoon the bride wore a flamingo pink wool dress worsted jacket and matching hat with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bride is a graduate in Home Economics of the Nova Scotia Teachers College. Mr. Poirier graduated from St. Ann's College and St. F. X. University.

They will reside in Dartmouth where both are on the teaching staff of the Dartmouth schools.

We join with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

MANY HANDS

Canadians have been taught to expect costly benefits from the federal government. Family allowances, old age pensions and the like are taken for granted, and there are demands that they be increased. A national health plan is under consideration and the platforms of most political parties include many social benefits too sweet to be resisted.

Can we afford all these good things?

Not unless all sectors of the economy carry a share of the load.

Crown corporations, for example, are going to have to be put on a paying basis quickly and turn over a fair portion of their earnings to mee the cost of social services. This is not a pick on crown corporations. I believe some of them have served a useful purpose. But it becomes necessary as governments spend more, to insist that all segments of society conrtibute their utmost. Some crown corporations by their very nature are not expected to make money; but they could at least practice more thrift in their operations and release the money saved for other uses.

Co-operatives, too, are going to have to pay more toward these social benefits. After all, members of the co-operative movement get old age pensions. family allowances and so forth just like the rest of us. The co-op movement was begun by high-minded, idealistic men and women. Surely their successors can see the need to contribute more fairly than they now do to the cost of pensions, health care and all the rest. Yet it is amazing how indignant some of them get when it is proposed that they dig in and help shoulder the load.
