That College Education

It's not until you get a son or daughter off to college that you learn what a simple, unsophisticated, reactionary, narrow-minded, old-fashioned peasant you really are.

He, or she, will make it all quite clear to you on that first weekend home from the hallowed halls of learning.

Every fall, the blood pressure of countless fathers skyrockets, the tender hearts of hordes of loving mothers shatter, when the freshman student, beloved and cherished these 18 years, waltzes in with a bag of dirty laundry and a swoollen ego.

We've had quite a fall of it, in our neighborhood. With a sigh of relief, we shipped our gawk of a boy off to one university, and amid floods of tears, the people next door sent their darling daughter to another.

Both were home last weekend. And both sets of parents spent the entire visit alternating with fury at the kids and shame at their own ignorance.

There's no question about it. A college education is a wonderful thing. In a matter of three of four weeks, smalltown kids who barely staggered through high school, and barely knew enough to change their socks or blow their noses, are transformed into pipe-smoking playboys or dashing desirable women of the world. Imagine what a whole year will do.

The boys, with a sold basis of a remark or two about beer parties, the girls light up a fag right there, while father's frown deepens and mother's jaw falls wider and wider.

The* boys, with a solid basis of three weeks' lectures in political science, curtly enlighten their dads on the asinine political ideas the latter have cherished for 20 years.

The girls, secure in their three weeks of psychology, put their mother's into shock with casual comments on the necessity of a full sex life before marriage.

Both explain kindly to the old folks not only that all's wrong in the world, but also that God is no longer in His heaven. In fact, He isn't anywhere. He's just a "anthropomorphic projection of the need for a father image."

Both point out that the capitalistic system is driving us into a neurotic pursuit of the materialistic that the dollar is essentially an evil thing. And both pocket without comment, the extra 10 bucks you slip them on departure.

Our kid has discovered a new system, in which you can get along on four hours sleep at night. This is done by sleeping all day, which he did on the weekend. He assured us that he had worked out a rigid work schedule, which begins at 7 a. m. daily. But a few minutes later, he let it slip out that he scarcely ever ate breakfast at the dining-hall, because he slept n.

The girl next door nearly finished off her father. He gave her a blank cheque, the dope, to pay her first term's fees and residence dues, hoping he could scrape up the second term when it arrived. With admirable sangfroid, she filled in the cheque for the whole year's fees. Next day he received a call from his banker. He had to sell his last bonds to meet the overdraft.

Young Hugh is letting his hair grow long, has taken a lead role in the college revue, plays flamenco records at ear-splitting volume and is just busting to get in on a sit-in or a lie-down or some other form of civic disturbance, so he can be arrested.

The girl next door is disgusted that her mother can't read Chaucer in the original and believes the story about. Adam and Eve. Her mom was weeping when she left. With rage.

Oh, well, I guess it's all worth it. Our grocery bill has dropped by $12 a week since Hugh left. And we'll have the last laugh next spring, when exams start.

He was born in Gander Bay, Nfld. and is a graduate of the University of New Brunswick where he received the Canadian Institute of Forestry gold medal as class leader in 1959. In 1965 he received a degree in fine arts at Mount Allison University.

He is a member of the Canadian Institute of Forestry.

SPIRIT OF '65

Those of us who live in thickly settled area of this country may wonder what it is that draws others into the vast reaches of virgin forest, muskeg and land covered with brush. It is hard to even imagine the possibility those acres hold a promise of bountiful crops. I was so curious about this attraction I sought an interview with the first citizens of a brand new town.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Jordan are the parents of a son and daughter. When they should have been thinking of retiring and enjoying their seven grandchildren, they decided to make a dream come true. That dream now stands on firm, dry land that was once known as the worst muskeg in the province. It isn't a castle they built in their imagination during the years they ran a motel in Valleyview, or when they cleared and first farmed their homestead in the northern Peace River country. It is a modern hotel, bank and bus station complex that is a handsome business section of High Level, Alberta.

Owen Jordan is a big man with a kind, wrinkle-free countenance familiar to hundreds who have passed his way since the building of the Great Slave Lake Railway by the CN made prosperity possible for proprietor, merchant and settler alike. Until construction started, this northern area of Alberta had millions of acres peopled only by birds and beasts. Indians on scattered reserves and here and there hardy homesteaders.

Perhaps it took a lot of faith in the future. Owen Jordan admitted to me, to spend the best years of their lives several hundred miles north of the nearest city, Edmonton. He spoofed the image most of us have of his part of the northland. "People of Canada think dog sled is our only means of transportation, who live in the southern section that this part of Canada is peopled by Indians on snow shoes and Eskimos in parkas. They have a picture of eternal winter here, when as a matter of fact it was 103 degrees above zero in High Level this summer." Jordan said, however, that once that winter sets in the thermometer seldom rises above 50 to 60 degrees below zero. When she reaches 20 above we think spring has arrived he laughingly remarked.

Most years, because the High Level area is practically free of frost and storms during the growing season, wheat crops average 40-60 bushels per acre. The Jordans are proud of their homestead ten miles distant, but let's learn more about that dream of theirs.

If the walls of their 34 room hotel could talk they would undoubtedly gossip about deals that have known millions of dollars to change hands. Lumber contracts, oil leases, crops that will tax the three elevators near the new CN station, rape for the manufacture of margarine and other vegetable oil substances and flax for many manufacturing purposes all add up to this new prosperity for the Peace River Country.

Jordan and his wife were the first land title holders in High Level. They operated a service station and ran the only store for miles around. When building of the railway was confirmed they sold these two properties and drew a pencil sketch on a bit of paper of the hotel they wanted to build. This was submitted to the Alberta Government of Municipal Development for approval. When they obtained permission to build they also realized the $370,000 cost would need at least two other partners if the hotel was to develop as they dreamed it should. Two men were found to invest in the undertaking. They are silent partners, the best in the world, according to Jordan.

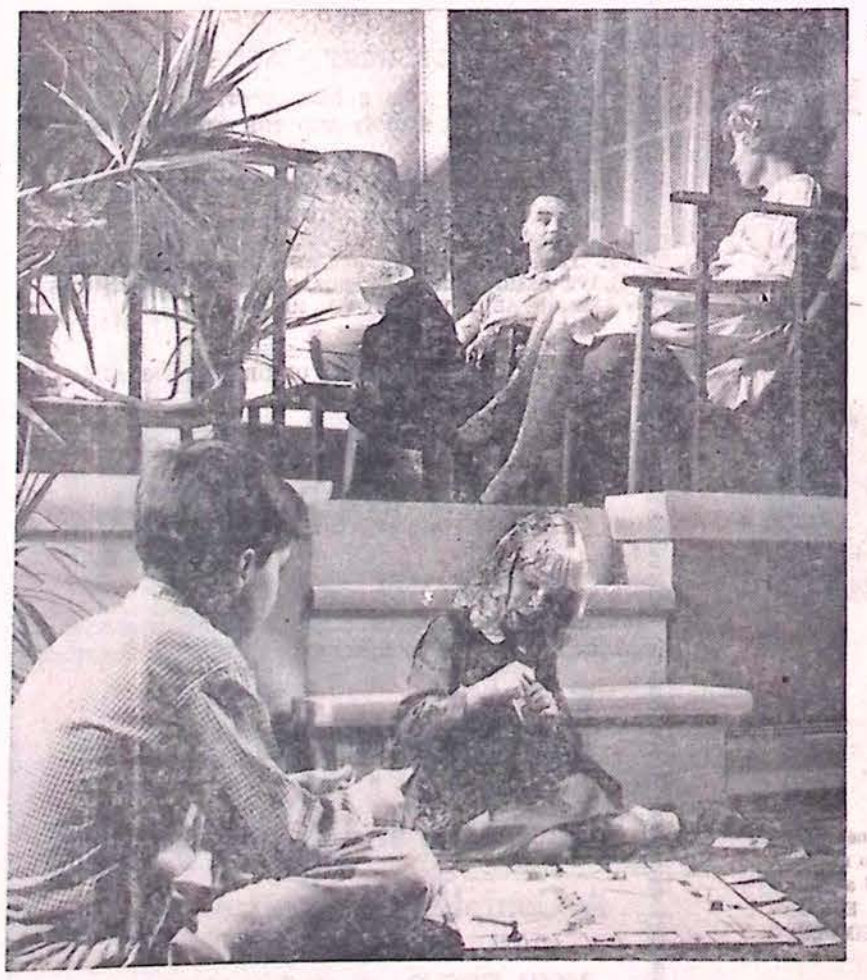

Since a year ago last February, every drop of water used in the hotel has had to be hauled from Footner Lake seven miles away. Residents pay $1.25 for 45 gallons delivered to their homes. This will end when contracts for a new water and disposal plant are awarded. Ask the Jordans why they undertook such a hazardous investment under these conditions and they will look at you rather pityingly, as hough you haven't a clue about what dreams are made of, and answer, We love it here, we couldn't live in any other place." They admit that the coming of the railway has had a lot to do with their affection for High Level.

ST. FRANCIS XAVIER TO RECEIVE LOAN

St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N. S., will receive a $94,771.00 Federal Government loan for the construction of a student residence, it was announced recently by the Honourable A. J. MacEachen, Minister of Labour.

The project will provide accommodation for 32 students in a two storey building to be located off campus, but within a few minutes walk of the university. Made under the terms of the National Housing Act, the loan will be repayable over a period of 50 years with interest at five and three eighths per cent per annum.

The National Housing Act provides for loans for university housing projects, and the loan may be up to 90 per cent of the cost as determined by CMHC.

By AMBROSE HILLS

HOW TO LOSE A DEBATE

A few weeks ago I wrote a column with which a reader violently disagreed.

Fine, this is a free country.

However, this reader, before dealing with the argument itself, started his letter by demanding to know who I am, where I earn my pay, and so forth. The implication was that because my ideas are different from his, I must be some kind of a subversive, a tool of communists or capitalists, a low fellow indeed. It was clear that if he had the power to do so, he would drag me before some kind of inquisition and lay bare the secrets of my life, if any. His attack had all the earmarks of the technique made famous by McCarthy, the U. S. senator. Only after he had made this effort to imply that I am a no-goodnick did he try to deal with the argument I had presented.

When he got around to the argument itself, he proved to be a little more effective. But if I am any judge of human nature, he had lost his case before he got to the meat of the debate. I am quite confident that most intelligent readers had already written him off because of the vitriolic nature of his opening blast. Then, when his argument showed weak spots, they would at once see that had he been on surer ground he would not have needed to put such faith in the personal attack.

Now it is altogether likely that the reader who blasted me is a good fellow at heart. I am not interested in knowing his residence, the size of his bank account, of the color of his eyes, his religion or how he parts his hair. I am interested in his logic or lack of it relating to the matter debated, for there is a principle involved. He might prove me to be the worst kind of blackguard imaginable, but if in this instance I am espousing a right principle, the fact that I am a Conservative, Liberal, NDPer or Hottentot wouldn't change that fact. And if I erred in principle, then I'd still be wrong even if gold-plated haloes circled my brow!

The camera catches a tense moment in a tough game between the arch-rivals, the Montreal Canadiens and the Toronto Maple Leafs. Again this season CBC-TV brings you each Saturday night "Hockey Night in Canada". Bill Hewitt calls the Toronto games from the Gondola at the Maple Leaf Gardens while Ed Fitkin, Ward Cornell and Jack Dennett handle the intermission show. The play-by-play from the Montreal Forum is described by Danny Gallivan, with Frank Selke Jr. taking care of the between-period interviews:

DO YOUR WINTERPLANNING NOW

Plan now to get all those jobs done this winter. Things like having the lawnmower fixed, and the screens mended; having the car tuned up and outboard motor checked; having the drapes cleaned and the rugs shampooed; having the furniture re-upholstered and the electrical appliances repaired; having all those repair and renovation jobs done which can call for a long wait come Spring, but which can be handled quickly, efficiently and easily during the winter season. Ask your bank about a low-interest NHA Home Improvement Loan. Plan ahead. Be a Winterplanner now.

THE ATLANTIC WINTER FAIR

"Two years ago, in November, 1963, the first Atlantic Winter Fair was held in Halifax. It was a new venture and an ambitious venture– a venture taken in spite of the fact that there were many critice who said it could not be done. Tonight, ladies and gentlemen, we are gathered here in this arena for the third time, and I think it must be recognized that the 1965 edition of the show-window of atlantic agriculture-the Atlantic Winter Fair - is concrete evidence of the fact that what has been created here may very well be regarded and, indeed, recognized, as the best agricultural exhibition to be held east of the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto."

Such were the opening remarks

ROLE RAILWAY POLICE CHANGED

EDMUNDSTON, N. B. — In the days of the Wild West when Bat Masterson was a railroad special agent, his adversaries were train robbers like Jesse James and wild Indians who attacked railroad property, and his salary was $10,000 a month.

Today, organized crime has replaced the romantic bandits, juvenile gangs have taken over from the savages, and the salary is not quite so high, but the job of the railway special agent is still protecting railway passengers and freight, and enforcing law and order.

These changes of the role of railway police were outlined by A. F. Hughes of Saint John, a special agent of Canadian National's investigation department, when he spoke to delegates attending an International Law Enforcement Officers' Association meeting in Edmundston.

Mr. Huges said, "Organized crime is big business and the modern criminal and law breaker is becoming more difficult to catch and convict."

Practically every known kind of commodity is shipped and handled by the express freight department from precious gems and currency to heavy machinery and equipment, and from bulk metal ore to carloads of wheat. This brings our investigation department face to face with every type of crime and criminal. As a result, our men are constantly kept abreast of improvements and developments of technique."

Charged with protecting company property, the department polices the CN system which covers more than 24,300 miles and has thousands of employees.

of the Honourable I. W. Akerley, Minister of Agriculture and Marketing, as he addressed the opening-night audience of the third annual Atlantic Winter Fair which opened at the Halifax Forum centre last week-end.

As this is being written, the Fair is drawing slowly, inexorably, to a close, and the concensus is that "it has been a good show". A lot of time and effort went into the preparation for it. Evidence of good staff work was to be seen and found on every hand and, collectively, this resulted in the Winter Fair being recognized on all sides as a real exhibition masterpiece of atlantic agriculture.

Actually it even went a little further than this for, in addition to exhibits from the atlantic region, there were entries from the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario and the State of Maine on hand, as well. These entries had been well-selected and were well-presented and so one considers that local exhibits held their own in the fact of this outside competition, it speaks well for the quality of these entries and the competence and ability of local exhibitors to hold their own in a wider sphere than the Atlantic community.

It's easy to buy 1965 Canada Savings Bonds.

Just walk in and say: "I want some Canada Savings Bonds."

No one will act surprised. They'll smile, nod and give you an application. It's a very simple form. You fill in your name, address, and who you want registered as the owner. Then you choose the amount you want to buy—from $50 up (the limit is $10,000 per person).

A couple of signatures later, and you're all set. Quick. Simple. Friendly.

And you get bonds which pay you an average annual yield of 5.03% when you hold them to maturity. Of course your bonds are instantly cashable any time for their full face value plus earned interest.

Who sells them? You can get yours on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work—or from your bank, investment dealer, stock broker, trust or loan company.

Walk in this week and buy some. Cash or terms, Canada Savings Bonds are a great way to save.
