SUGAR AND SPICE by Bill Smiley

How It All Began

Addressing a group of high school teachers the other night, I was recalling how I entered the . . . uh . . teaching game, business, vocation, profession or racket— what you call it depends on who you are- purely by accident.

I had brought my family to this town one Sunday to have a look at the sights, as we hadn't been here before.

On the way out of town, we drove around the side streets to admire the fine homes. "That's odd" I said to my wife. "There's a big, new factory smack in the middle of the residential section. They don't usually allow that."

Then I saw the roadblock, out in front of the sprawling, one-storey factory. There was a grim gent beside it well-dressed but with a sort of wild glint in his eye. He flagged me down.

I stopped. He came over to the car. "Can you see out of at least one eye?", he queried. I assured him that I had 40-40 vision, or something of the sort. I thought it was some kind of kooky, plain-clothes-police check, the kind you run into when you've left your driving license in your other pants.

"Ever been to a university?", he shot at me. I said I'd been to Oxford. I remember spending a whole weekend there during the war, waiting for a Land Army girl who never did show up.

He brightened considerably. "Have you any contagious diseases?", was the next question. "Like leprosy?" I told him I was as sound as any man in my condition could be.

Beaming now, he went on with the questionaire. "And you don't drink, smoke, play the horses or chase women. Right?"

I started to point out that I did all of these whenever possible, but not all the time, and not all at once. But he wasn't listening. He had the car door open and me by the arm, and was hustling me toward that big, brick factory that looked more like a prison every second. I thought I was under arrest.

When we got inside, he shoved me into a chair, and I waited, fearfully, for the bright light in the face, and the rubber hose. But he fooled me. He stuck a confession under my nose and snarled, "Sign there." I signed wondering what had become of Magna Carta, Habeas Corpus and my family, out in the car.

It was not until he offered to show me the gymnasium and the cafeteria that I realized the factory was a high school, and that I had just experienced the hard sell on teachers.

However, it wasn't much of a switch for me. I know that the jump into teaching,, from big industrialist, shoe salesman or short-order cook has been a traumatic experience for some people. You can see them any day, tottering white-faced toward the staff room, after a double period with 10Z, the terror of the school.

But I had little difficulty in making the adjustment. After all, I had been a weekly newspaper editor. In that job, you spend most of your time telling people things they don't listen to, and urging them to do things they don't want to do. I found these

C. D. Gordon Appointed Supervisor Of Maritime Plants

Charles Gordon, Manager, of Booth Fisheries plant, at Petit de Grat, for the past fifteen years, and who has been promoted to Supervisor of the Canadian plants in the Maritimes and Newfoundland, was accorded a presentation at the Canadian Legion Hall, Petit de Grat, on Wednesday, November 3rd., when a large number of friends and well-wishers met to bid Charlie and his good wife, Rose, farewell on the eve of their departure to Halifax, where they will take up residence.

On entering the hall the large gathering sang, "For they are Jolly Good Fellows".

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were completely taken by surprise.

Gerald LeBrun was Master of Ceremonies and welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Gordon on this special occasion. Mr. Dave Corney, Manager of Acadia Fisheries, Mulgrave, was to be guest speaker, but due to another engagement, was unable to be present and expressed his regrets, which were conveyed by Mr. LeBrun.

M. J. Bourinot was called on to make a brief address and in his remarks, outlined the beginning of Booth Fisheries at Petit de Grat, of which Mr. Gordon could be classified as a pioneer in this respect.

The supervision of the building of the plant was in charge of Mr. Gordon, on behalf of his Company, and the speaker pointed out that Mr. Gordon's efforts were hampered by a fire which destroyed the plant. This was a severe blow to Mr. Gordon, but his courageous spirit was not daunted and the re-building of a new plant started immediately and was soon in operation.

The speaker also pointed out that Isle Madame had the honor of celebrating 200 years in the fishing industry on August last, when the Robin, Jones and Collas of Jersey came here to establish the first fish plant at Jerseymen's Island in Arichat Harbour. The speaker further stated that Mr. Gordon had served 15 years out of the 200 at Booth Fisheries, at Petit de Grat, and his promotion was ample proof of the confidence placed in him by his Company.

Mr. Bourinot also spoke of the part played by Mrs. Gordon in the community and thaf the dragger, "Rose Gordon", called after Mrs. Gordon would be a friendly reminder of her residence in Arichat and in closing wished both Charlie and Rose every happiness on the sea of life and that their friends in Arichat and Isle Madame would follow them to their new abode, and looked forward to seeing them on many occasions in the future.

Kindly reference was made to John A. Landry, a senior fish-buyer at Petit de Grat, who was in attendance to share in the farewell party for the Gordons.

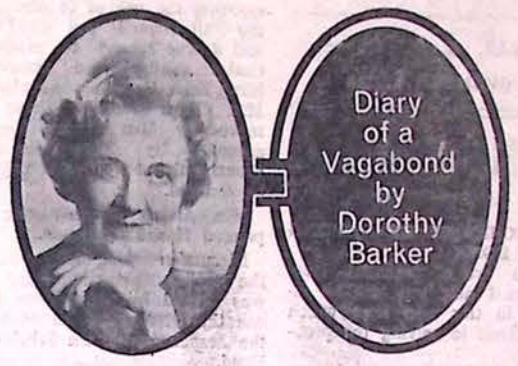

Clem Benoit, production Manager, at Booth Fisheries, made the presentation of a casting rod and other fishing equipment to Mr. Gordon, and in well chosen words spoke of the many fine qualities of Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Benoit humorously remarked that whenever the fishing became slack at the plant, they would look to Charlie to fill in the gap with the catches taken with his new fishing equipment

Mr. Gordon thanked the gathering and all his friends for their kindness and said that his promotion would take him to Halifax, but that he would be visiting his friends on Isle Madame from time to time and he looked forward to seeing them when in the City.

Mr. Gordon in his address stated that the successful operation of the Booth plant at Petit de Grat, was accomplished by the co-operation of the workers at the plant, the skippers and crew

No Fleas On This Market

I am sure that when, in 1861, the Aberfoyle Mill was erected beside the brook that winds through the town, its residents must have looked at this three storey structure with a little awe and some pride. In those days, when prosperous farmers were building rambling one and two storey stone houses, the tall mill must have looked like a skyscraper to them.

Nowadays there is no grist for the mill to grind. The brook still gurgles between its banks through a park now used for recreation purposes. For this choice bit of Canadian heritage, time seems to have stood still.

Aberfoyle is one of the prettiest villages in central Ontario. It is nestled in part of the richest farming area in the province. The winding paved road, now called No. 6 highway, passes between those stone houses erected many years ago. They, still in perfect condition, are surrounded by lofty trees and lovely gardens. Cattle, sleek and fat, graze in pastures and crops nod to one another across old split cedar rail fences. One expects all the fall scents of ripening apples and cooling chili sauce to mingle with wood smoke from farmhouse chimneys. Nearby are groups of very new homes which have established a sense of suburban community living. To me this evidence of progress seemed a little foreign to the nature of the village on the day we attended Aberfoyle's now famous Flea Market.

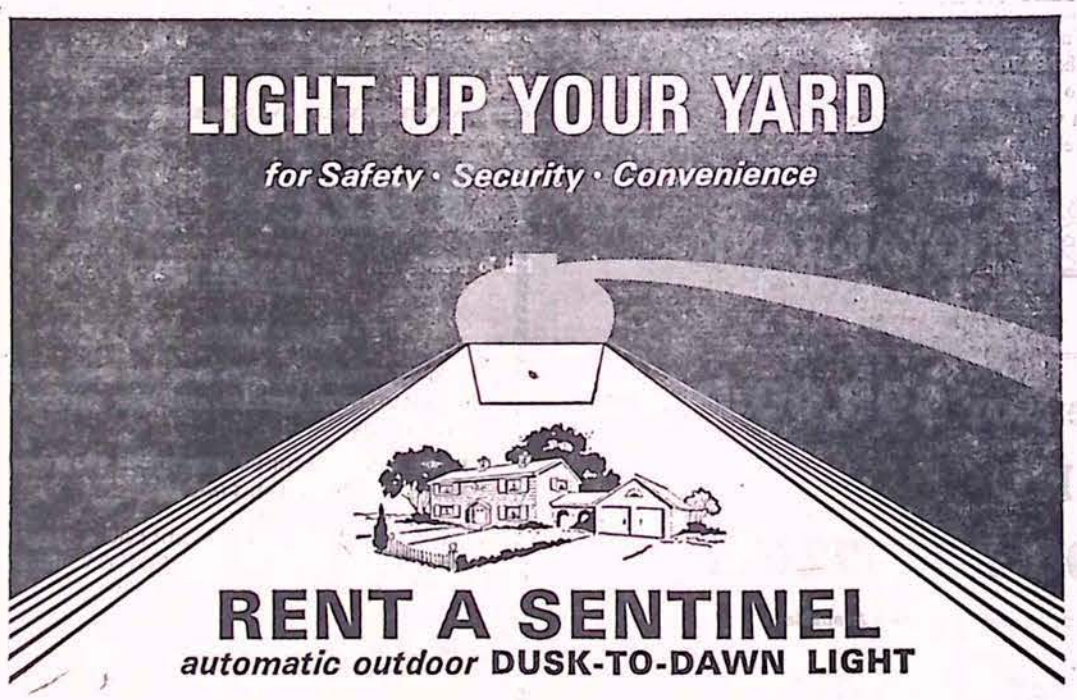

The two mill buildings served the community, I suspect, in more ways than merely grinding wheat into flour. We walked the pathway that led to the bridge over the mill-race where we were greeted by the smell of French fries and hot coffee. No country fair, auction, or flea market would be complete without these familiar odors.

The experience was a unique one. About twenty-five antique dealers, coin collectors and those with other merchandise to sell were settled along the fence surrounding the grounds or beside the brook. Their wares, many of them collector's items, were displayed on long wooden tables. In some instances, glorified junk rested on wool blankets on the ground with home-made signs declaring them to be bargains at any price from 25 cents to a dollar.

It was a chilly fall day. Gray ominous clouds scudded across the sky but the weather did not deter customers with a nose for a bargain or long sought antique, from lifting items and exclaiming,"oh" and "ah" both over price and quality of the thousands offered for sale. There were buttons at $1.50 and pressed glass marked from $1 to a charge out of all bounds. A fur muff one merchant cuddled over his rotund figure could be bought for $2.50 (no fleas attached) but no one seemed to have the courage to deprive him of this comfort.

Lost Art Of Bargaining

It wasn't until we had made the rounds and I had remarked sorrowfully that I missed the wrangling of the European Flea Market merchants, that we met up with a dealer who whispered in my ear, "offer me a price, dearie, for any item you fancy and I'll make a deal". This was what I had hoped our flea market would be like. Bargaining and dickering is half the fun for dealer and customer alike. There wasn't anything I really coveted in her array of authentic antique glass and china until I found a small ultra modern and useless polychrome shelf marked $2.50. Chipped and scarred it looked so forlorn on the fringe of her blanket of bargains I offered her a dollar and expected to settle for at least $1.75. With alacrity she rolled it in a piece of newspaper and as though she were offering me the crown jewels tucked it under my arm and extended her hand for payment. It was a rather weak ending to my hoped-for exchange of offer. Was it a bargain? I wonder. But it made the day's outing complete.

TO HONOR R.C.A.F. HERO

On the night of June 12, 1944, at an RCAF base in northern England, seven young men took off in a Lancaster bomber to strike at German supply lines behind the Normandy beachhead. It was their thirteenth mission together, and their last.

This month, on Nov. 11, Remembrance Day, six of them will gather in Winnipeg to honor the memory of the seventh, Andrew Mynarski, who won the Victoria Cross but lost his life on that fateful mission.

Their plane was attacked by a German night-fighter and so badly damaged that the pilot ordered his crew to bail out. Mynarski, a 27-year-old gunner, was about to jump from the rear hatch when he saw that his best friend, P/O Patrick Brophy, was trapped in the tail-turret. Ignoring his own safety, he crawled through the blazing fuselage and vainly tried to free him. When he finally gave up and bailed out, Mynarski's clothing was on fire. He was found by French farmers, but died of his burns.

Ironically, Brophy had a miraculous escape when the bomber crashed, and lived to tell a tale which won Mynarski the VC. He tells it again in the December issue of The Reader's Digest. As he says there, "I'll always believe that a divine providence intervened to save me because of what I had seen - - so the world might know of a gallant man who laid down his life for a friend."

The son of Polish immigrants, Mynarski was born and raised in Winnipeg, where his name is memorialized by the Andrew Mynarski Junior High School. To mark the school's tenth anniversary,, the local Polish branch of the Canadian Legion has arranged to bring his six crewmates together for the first time since World War II. They are: Flight Lt. G. P. Brophy of Port Arthur, Ont., now attending the R.C.A.F Staff School in Toronto. Arthur deBreyne, 307 Merton St., St. Lambert, Que., Robert Brodie, 2758 Oliver Crescent, Vanvouver. Jack Friday, 62 Melon St., Port Arthur, Ont., W. J. Kelly, 1166 Warsaw Ave., Winnipeg. Roy Vigars, 9 Willow Way, Guildford, England.

THE C. W. L. OF CANADA

The Catholic Women's League Province-wide Adoption and Foster Home Campaign has been operating with partial success during the past eight months. Many homes have been found but many more foster and adoptive homes are urgently needed for homeless children.

There are over 600 unwanted children at present needing permanent adoptive and foster parents. There is an ever increasing list of new infants. Many children over six months and a year old are the critical need at this moment desperately requiring the love and affection of parents. An unwanted child's life begins when he enters an adoptive home.

Prospective couples considering giving a child a foster home or becoming adoptive parents are encouraged to take that first step and contact their nearest Children's Aid Society or Provincial Department of Welfare.

THE TECHNIQUE OF GETTING THINGS DONE

If you are a potential lazybones, as I am, you will be interested in this new book which devotes itself to solving the problem.

Donald A. Laird, a noted psychologist, thinks we all have a streak of laziness. He has spent a great part of his life studying techniques we can use to overcome it. I've been testing some of them. They help.

He starts from the premise that it isn't how much you know but what you get done that the world rewards and remembers. You decide what rewards you would like, and why you would wish to be remembered; then start to get things done which will lead to that end. Your biggest stumbling block will be weakness in getting things done. There are methods of beating that weakness.

You have a head start if your childhood wasn't too easy; if you had routine chores to do and took them for granted. Getting things done is partly a matter of habit. You have learned to produce at least as much as you consume. In modern society you may be able to get by without doing your share, but you still cannot win the really big rewards.

If you want big rewards, you start today to get things done. Make a list of what you ought to get done tomorrow – and get part of it done this very day. Tackle the toughest one first. Get rid of that job that has been nagging you by tackling it and getting it done.

Are you disappointed? Did you expect some secret knack for beating your laziness? I read the book eagerly, hoping for some such secret. There wasn't any. You simply start doing essential things. You know that they have to be done sometime, so you start now. If you want to win those rewards, you go from the first one to the next one without a long breather in between.

Laird recommends that you read some biographies of the greats. You will then see why they became great. It wasn't luck. It often wasn't brains. Certainly it wasn't health, because many of the greats were feeble and wracked with pain most of their lives. They discovered that the only technique for getting things done was to do them.

Simple. isn't it?

LITTLE ANSE
HOME AND SCHOOL

The first meeting for the 1965-66 year of the Little Anse Home and School Association was held on the third Thursday in September at the school with Mr. Anthony Samson, the new President, presiding.

The meeting opened with a prayer by Father MacDonald.

The Minutes of the Spring Council were passed around to be read by those interested. A letter from Mr. Nazaire Samson, requesting the use of 50 chairs for the Fall Council was acted upon and it was agreed to make the chairs available on motion of Mrs. Zena Samson, seconded by Mrs. Claire Samson. It was then moved by Mrs. Francis Samson, seconded by Miss Geraldine Clannon that 9 bottles of capsules be ordered.

Mrs. Alvina Samson was appointed Health Convenor.

Discussion then took place on the Parish Scholarship Fund. It was moved by Mrs. Zena Samson that $200.00 be donated by the Association to the Scholarship Fund.

Father MacDonald invited all Home and School members to attend the scholarship banquet at the Parish hall at which scholarships for the year will be announced.

Delegates to the Fall Council were appointed as follows: Mrs. Loretta Clannon, Mrs. Claire Samson, Mr. Anthony Samson, Miss Geraldine Clannon, Mrs. Violet Boudreau and Mrs. Florence Samson.

Mr. Doyle announced a display of all Grade six History and Science notebooks and invited the members to examine them.

Mr. Doyle then spoke on the Speech Festival, explaining how it is organized. He said that every student in the school would be participating and that the winners in the Original Speech class would go on to the area eliminations. He said that it is recommended that Our Association sponsor the School Eliminations. He suggested that a plaque be bought on which the annual winner's name be inscribed rather than a trophy and that perhaps all pupils should get a small reward. Discussion then took place on these recommendations.

The October meeting was held on the third Thursday. A letter from Miss Sally Mombourquette concerning the Fall Council, was read, stating that it would be held on Nov. 22, 1965, beginning with a supper at 5.30 o'clock at the Petit de Grat Hall.

A letter concerning the Home and School Paper "Ouest" was read. It was decided to order five subscriptions. On motion of Mrs. Hoseanna Benoit, seconded by Paul Doyle.

The Health Convenor advised that capsules were received. The Education Convenor announced a Film to be shown entitled "Sociable Six to Noisy Nine".

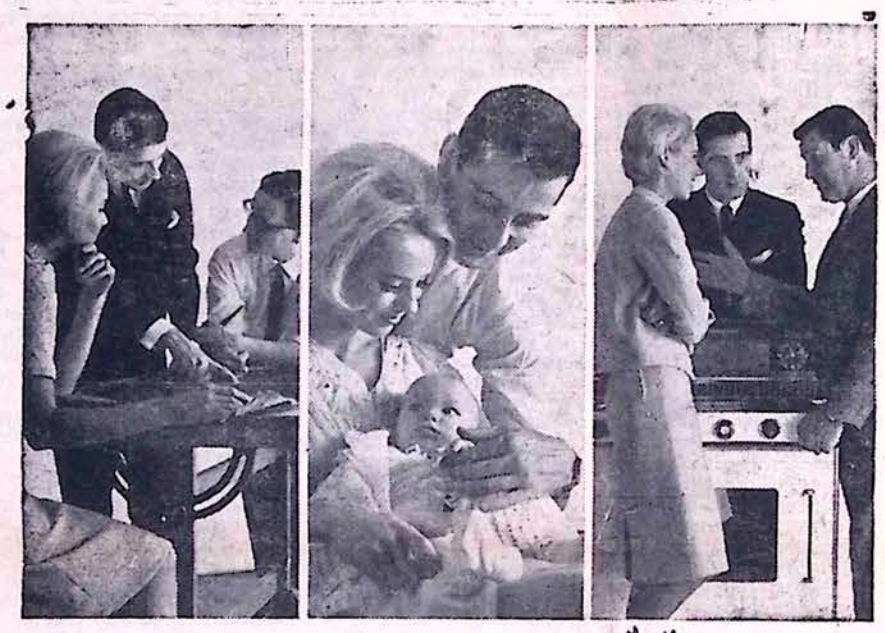

Re Speech Festival, it was moved by Mrs. Zena Samson, seconded by Mrs. Vander Samson, that a plaque be bought to remain in the school. Carried It was moved by Mrs. Claire Samson, seconded by Mrs. James Benoit that all pupils taking part in the Speech Festival be rewarded with a candy bar. Carried.

Re movie screen, it was moved by Mrs. Vander Samson, seconded by Mrs. Zena Samson that a screen be ordered for showing movies, filmstrips and slides. Motion carried.

The meeting was then turned over to the Education Convenor, Miss Clannon, who showed an excellent film entitled, "Sociable Six to Noisy Nine".

WATCH THE WIGGLE

The proper wiggle in the right places never fails to attract an admiring glance. And fish, like fishermen, are just naturally inclined to take a second look.

Fish have a big disadvantage, however, for when they fail to an enticing movement it's usually fatal. And, the calculated, seductive motion of an artificial lure is its most important attribute.

FISHER

While the insides of tackle boxes generally glitter like a Christmas tree with plugs of every hue and pattern, fish don't seem to be too concerned with the colorful garnishments. They fall, instead, to a lure's movements.

Although most artificials are designed with a built-in action, the method of fishing them can create an infinite number of different movements. And the persistance to exploit this phase is an important quality in any fisherman. Some days a floating plug should be merely twitched gently as it lies on the surface; other days fish hit the same plug only when it is moved along fast behind your Mercury with a lot of commotion. It's the action that counts.

Pay less attention to the colors, concentrate on handling your rod correctly, varying the retrieve and allowing the lure to display its repertoire of tricks. Remember: it's the wiggle that wows 'em, and the rod tip's action that catches 'em.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

Restoring Old LeNoir Forge

We were glad to hear the announcement made by Hon. Gerry Doucet, that the old LeNoir forge would be restored, as an historic site at the old seaport of Arichat.

This news is most welcome and Mr. Doucet is to be congratulated on his efforts.

A full sketch of the old forge will appear in a later issue.

TRUCKERS ARE SAFER DRIVERS

For every four passenger cars on Canada's highways during the week there is one commercial vehicle. "For Hire" trucks do not appear on highways over weekends. The fearful weekend death toll on the highway is reached without their help.

A motorist in trouble can look to a truck driver for help. When visibility is doubtful, follow the big vehicle. From his high seat the driver of a truck can see much better than the driver of a car. If the weather becomes really bad, he will have sense enough to make a stop.

Truck companies could not stay in business if they had as many accidents as the passenger-car drivers. They cannot afford accidents. They cannot afford drivers who have accidents.

BOUDREAU — LANDRY

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of the marriage of Marguerite Landry and Gerard Boudreau. The bride is the youngest daughter of Edward Landry and the late Mrs. Landry of Petit de Grat, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Boudreau of Little Anse, Cape Breton.

Rev. MacDonald celebrated nuptial high mass and performed the marriage ceremony.

The bride wore a traditional white wedding gown, a shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of roses, Miss Clara May Boudreau, Miss Relaine Terrio and Miss Ella Sampson were the bridesmaids.

Donald LeJeune, Donald Boudreau and Allan Burt attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall.

The couple will reside in Little Anse, Cape Breton.

Returns Home

Monier Chediac has returned from Lebanon, where he was visiting his parents for the past two months. His brother Tommy, accompanied him on the trip.

Mr. Chediac operates the Arichat Furniture And Appliance Store in Arichat and also the large Causeway Furniture And Appliance Store at Port Hawkesbury.

This was Monier's first visit to his homeland since coming to Canada, five years ago.

He reports a very pleasant holiday.

ANTLE — LANDRY

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a fall wedding when Rev. MacDonald celebrated nuptial high mass and united in marriage Therese Landry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Landry of Petit de Grat and Dominic Antle.

The bride wore a white wedding gown. Her veil was shoulder length and she carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Catherine Landry was bridesmaid.

A reception followed the ceremony.

The couple will reside in Petit de Grat.

It's easy to buy 1965 Canada Savings Bonds.

Just walk in and say: "I want some Canada Savings Bonds."

No one will act surprised. They'll smile, nod and give you an application. It's a very simple form. You fill in your name, address, and who you want registered as the owner. Then you choose the amount you want to buy—from $50 up (the limit is $10,000 per person).

A couple of signatures later, and you're all set. Quick. Simple. Friendly.

And you get bonds which pay you an average annual yield of 5.03% when you hold them to maturity. Of course your bonds are instantly cashable any time for their full face value plus earned interest.

Who sells them? You can get yours on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work—or from your bank, investment dealer, stock broker, trust or loan company.

Walk in this week and buy some. Cash or terms, Canada Savings Bonds are a great way to save.

A. G. I. R. BRANCH OF REGISTERED NURSES IN SESSION

The November meeting of the Antigonish, Guysboro, Inverness, Richmond Registered Nurses Assn. met in the Nurses' residence, Antigonish, Monday evening with a good attendance.

Sister Mary of Calvary, C.S.M. presided. Congratulations were extended to Miss Claire MacEachern of Afton, who came third in the Province in her Registered Nurses exams.

The Registered Nurses Association of Nova Scotia will hold their Annual Convention in the town of Antigonish in May 1966.

Miss Vera MacKinnon was appointed convenor of a Committee to make plans and arrangements for this Convention.

Discussion followed on Ways and Means to raise funds during the year with several good suggestions.

Following the business meeting a social evening was held to which the student nurses were invited. Entertainment was provided by John Allen and the Cavaliers. Following this a delicious lunch was served by the Sisters of St. Martha.

invaluable training for my teaching career.

And I must admit that things have gone well. In three years, I fought my way up to a department-headship. Oh, it took a lot of midnight-oil-burning, coffee-buying for the principal, and the fact that they couldn't get anybody else for the job. But I made it.

And now I have my own little empire: a dozen or so English teachers who are so in awe of me that they never borrow more than $10; an assistant department head who hangs on my every word, and then contradicts it; and the thrill of attending department heads' meetings, of being on the inside, where the big decisions are made.

Like what are we gonna do with kids who carve "Herb loves Elsie" on the desks.

SPEECH FESTIVAL SCHOOL ELIMINATIONS

The Little Anse- Samson's Cove School held their School Elimination in the afternoon of November 9th. in the school auditorium with all students participating.

The Home and School Association sponsored the affair and provided prizes. Mr. Paul Baccardax, Vice-Principal of the Isle Madame District High School and Hev. James Monbourquette were the adjudicators.

Francis (Junior) Martell won first place in the Original Speeches Class for Grade six, with a talk on "The Fishing Industry". He will represent the school at the Isle Madame-Louisdale eliminations later in the month. Also, his name will be inscribed on a plaque that has been for this purpose.

Second place was won by Linda Samson with a talk, "When I Grow Up". Third place was equally merited by Lola Martell with a talk about, "Alexander Graham Bell" and Cecile Samson speaking on the topic. "My Favorite Sport". All seventeen, Grade six students competed.

Linda Boudreau took first place in the Individual Poetry section, for grade five and will receive a pin. Louis Samson placed second and Janice Samson took third place.

Prmary and Grade one had both an English and a French choral group, "The Turtle" and "Marie a Un Petit Mouton". "Petit Coeur". A French choral number was given by Grade two students.

Grade three students presented an English Choral number, "Bed in Summer" and a French Choral number, "Le Captif".

The Grade four effort was, "Windy Nights", an English choral number.

judges, in their adjudication, congratulated all the students and stated that the effort made is more important than winning.

Mr. Doyle then thanked Mr. Baccardax and Father Monbourquette. He also thanked so many parents for coming to encourage their children.

members of the draggers of the Booth fleet.

He also remarked that he looked forward to everyone giving the new Manager the same cooperation and consideration that was accorded him during his stay here.

Mrs. Arthur Terrio, of D'Escousse, in well chosen words, graciously made the presentation of a gift to Mrs. Gordon, and spoke of the many fine qualities of this lady, who during her stay here, took part in many community affairs, and was a most outstanding member of the Arichat Home and School Association.

Mrs. Gordon expressed her sincere thanks and gratitude.

Fulbert Boudreau and his orchestra supplied the music and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

A very dainty lunch was served by the Ladies of the Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion No. 150.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon received the good wishes of all present.

Canada has 315 cities and towns with populations greater than 5,000. Of these, 92 completed 1964 without a single fatal road accident.
