SALUTE TO SCHOOL BOARDS

From one coast of Canada to the other in most cities and large towns citizens from 18 to 80 (providing the teenagers are not still attending High School) may participate in a program of adult education. What an opportunity this provides to broaden our horizons This may be a frayed and outworn cliche, but how applicable it is to these classes.

In my travels I have found persons who have become professional in the crafts they chose to learn merely as a hobby. One now teaches the making of hats in another high school's evening instruction program. It has become her livelihood. Another has established a studio and is now a well known artist. A third took the bookkeeping course and believe it or not, now has an office and specializes in bookkeeping for small concerns and income tax returns for bewildered citizens who feel they cannot complete their own forms. We could never count the hundreds whose typing course has meant security as a breadwinner.

I want to salute the school boards of this country for making the program available in their communities. Also the provincial governments which, in some instances I understand, subsidizes this means of education.

I remember the first night classes were convened in Aurora, Ontario. Our senior citizen, as president of a local handicraft organization, had convinced a dubious High School Board that there was need for instruction in art, pottery, sewing, wood and leather work, current events lectures or a cultural discussion group. She was given the green light to register students as an experiment only on the understanding there must be at least six classes with not less than ten members each.

In those post - war days a relentlessness was apparent, created no doubt by the fact so many Canadians had been employed in war work on night and swing shifts and were now at loose ends wondering how to fill their free evenings. Most had learned, through the discipline of their contribution to the war effort, to be industrious. They had an urge to add to their existence new and interesting endeavor.

Yet that first year, the night classes in our central Ontario town barely squeaked through with the necessary registration.

Last week the Aurora Night School registration went over the 400 mark with a number of enthusiasts waiting in the hope drop-outs would occur in several classes to make room for them. The minimum enrolment is now 15 per class. From the original six classes the school has expanded to 24 in a wide range of instruction.

I feel I owe a debt of gratitude for the pleasure and knowledge gained through the professional instructors engaged in teaching in my area. I never expect to be a threat to Michael Angelo's reputation as one of the most renowned artists, though the instruction I have had in both oil painting and working with clay has given me hours of leisure - time enjoyment. This year I am struggling with "creative sewing". Never having been able to make any two stitches in a hem the same length, I seem to have chosen a challenging and at times, a frustrating means of increasing my skills.

TEACHERS BENEFITING TOO

Perhaps best of all, these classes are providing a means for re-

NEW GOALS FOR HOME AND SCHOOL

(By Dr. Remi J. Chiasson)

During the past year much study was given by the Federation officials to assess our movement and to determine what should be our goals in this fast changing world. Our movement was not changed very much in its methods of operation since it was first organized about twenty nine years ago. It is inevitable, therefore, that the changes in the world around us suggest new methods, new opproaches, new emphasis for our movement. Any organization that is alive and growing has to face up periodically to changes in its enviroment and the home and school movement is no exception. Some people seem to be afraid of change; some look on anyone who mentions a change in the home and school movement as a heretic. There is no room in the Home and School movement. After all this cows." Education of our youth which is the main concern of Home and School is too dynamic, too important to be considered in the same manner as we did years ago.

In the past Home and School as a movement found its reason for existance, founds its justification in improving the school plant and school conditions. It was an absolute necessity in those days of inadequate playgrounds, inadequate equipment and poorly trained teachers. Not so today. Our School Boards are now assuming their proper responsibility and are buying the equipment and teaching aids necessary for the school's program. There are still some shortcomings here and there but in general the need for Home and School Associations to engage in money raising projects is no longer as necessary as it used to be. This is the ideal time for Home and School Associations to gradually transform themselves into educational agencies to educate, enlighten parents, to keep them informed on school curriculum, and to mobilize public opinion to bring about concrete, desirable changes in our educational system. There is no other organization that I know of that can speak for the people of Nova Scotia to the administrators of our educational system with such a united voice as the Home and School mavement. After all this is what we are organized for -- to study, to inform, to advise, to work towards the best system of education we know of and we can support. Travelling across the province, taking part in many Council meetings and local meetings, I still hear many reports that are pretty well stereotyped, cod - liver oil capsules bought for the school, playground equipment, library books bought. These are good, it is true, but we must become more imaginative than that. We must come to grips with educational problems. What are some of the educational problems in Nova Scotia?

Should we not be concerned about the fact that there is an acute shortage of teachers in the province? Should we not be concerned over the fact that we are desperately short of guidance specialists which retards the development of the two - track curriculum? Should we not be concerned that teachers are tied down to a narrow curriculum which often lacks imagination? What I am asking for is that there be in our Home and School organizations a harmonious blend between projects which involve money such as the cod-liver oil program, libraries, etc., and the truely educational projects such as mentioned above and others which could be studied such as family life, Discipline, Homework, to mention a few. Meetings of that kind will need planning but it pays in the end because you will have a more interested membership. I was going to say audience but this conveys the idea of a group listening to a program. Too much of that is still done in Home and School. Let's involve people in discussion for a change. Prepare good questions for the members to study. What would you as a teacher like the parents to do to help you with your school program? What do we as parents want our schools to do? Do we criticize our teachers in front of our children, or do we support them? What goals do we set forth for our boys and girls and what help do we give them to attain these goals. I can't buy the statment made now and then that there is nothing left to study. . . there will always be, and we hope that the changes that are proposed for the Home and School Federation will strengthen the movement so that more direction, more help will flow from the Federation to the locals, and vice versa.

SUGAR AND SPICE by Bill Smiley

THOSE BUSY YEARS

My wife had just given Kim a five-minute blast because she wasn't working hard enough. This is almost a daily occurance at our house. The results are usually the same: rebellion, hot words, rising voices, tears, sulks, and me wishing I were out in the boondocks.

This time, for some inexplicable reason, the Old Girl softened, after the daughter stalked off in a cold fury. "Poor kid. She does have a lot to do." Then she began to remember her own high school days. and to compare. The results were sobering, almost frightening.

When mother was in school, there were about 150 students. Classes began at 9. Teachers moved to classrooms, at end of each period. There was a 15-min. recess morning and afternoon, in which the kids wandered the corridors at will, or fooled around outside, in good weather. There was an hour and a half for lunch. School ended at four p.m. That's five hours of class time.

In daughter's school, there are about 1,200 students. Classes begin at 9. She moves between periods, harassed and hurried, and heckled by teachers telling her to move faster. There is a 20-minute lunch break. Half of this the kids spend in a line-up, trying to buy milk or eats. In the other half they gulp what they get. Rush back to classes. School ends at 3:15 That's five and three-quarters hours of class time.

After school, according to her own evidence, mother went down to the town library, picked up a nickel's worth of licorice all-sorts on the way. The early winter dusk crept to the window and looked in. And it saw a dark-haired youngster in the snug reading room, rapt in a world of Anne of Green Gables, munching licorice.

About 5.30, her dad would tap on the window. She'd go out and snuggle down in the cutter, under the buffalo robe. And they'd jingle the two miles home through the frosty night in that most delightful of vehicles. Home was warmth, and the smell of supper, and a mother who spent all her time being a mother.

Compare the kid. After school there's orchestra practice or volley-ball practice or French Club or Drama Club or year-book staff meeting. She staggers home, eight blocks, in the dark, with enough books to fill a wheelbarrow.

Not a whiff of dinner. Shh! Mom has music pupils today. Tip-toe upstairs. Dump books. Flop on bed. Revive slightly over chapter of James Bond. Strum ukelele and sing sad folk song. Father, beer in hand, appears at door.

"Listen, kid, better get at your homework! You can't loaf your life away."

"But, Dad, I just got.."

"Don't bug me, kid. I hafta write a column (or mark papers, or set an exam). Get to work. Never mind. It's too late. Better get down and get the hamburgs ready. And when are you going to get your practising done?"

Go downstairs. Morosely make hamburgs. Mom emerges from piano lessons. "Kim, how much practising have you done, you lazy little bum?"

"Mom, how could I practise? You were using the piano and anyway, I just got..."

"Never mind the excuses. I don't see why you couldn't help with the ironing, when you know I'm busy. And stop stabbing that bun with the butcher knife!"

Evening. Three hours homework and two hours practising ahead. Father off curling. Mother muttering over the dishes about kids no matter how much you do for them they don't appreciate it and you'll never get anywhere with that attitude and when I was your age I didn't have any of the opportunities you have.

It's a wonder more of them don't creep down to the basement in the night, get the axe, and do their parents in. They probably would, if they weren't so utterly whacked.

ST. ANNE HOSPITAL NEWS

In January 1965 the Annual Meeting of the St. Anne Hospital Board was held in the County Court House at Arichat to a capacity crowd.

In mid-January the first Ladies Auxilaries for St. Anne Hospital were formed. During the year the Arichat Branch was most active.

In July on the feast of St. Anne and afternoon tea was held for the Hospital staff and members of the three auxilaries.

In September the Arichat Branch Auxiliary held an afterooon Bazaar from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m, on the Hospital grounds. During the afternoon the ladies cleared $1,000.00. This money was partially used for the purchase of an Oxygen Tent. The Tent was presented to the hospital for use on December 16th. On the same evening the ladies decorated the hospital for Christmas. Before departing the ladies presented the Administrator and Staff with a very generous gift.

On December 21st the third annual Christmas Staff Party was held at the Canadian Legion Hall. The staff and invited guests enjoyed an evening of dancing to the music of the local orchestra. A sumptuous buffet lunch was served towards the end of the evening. Each staff member was presented with a gift from the hospital. The staff picked names among themselves and these were also presented during the evening. It was the first time we were able to invite the husbands and fiances of our staff, as well as other guests.

On the afternoon of the 21st., the school children from Arichat came to the hospital to sing Christmas Carols for the patients. The carols were truly enjoyed by the patients as well as by the staff.

In January, 1966 we celebrate our 20th anniversary. however we will wait for another five years to hold ceremonies.

1966 will be a very busy year for our hospital. Renovations are planned for, and these should improve standards and efficiency.

In 1965 we were able to complete most of the work necessary to establish a Medical Records Department.

There will be a change in Administration in April 1966 for St. Anne Hospital. Miss Marian McKenzie intends to return to Ontario to do general duty nursing again. The new Administrator has not been named as yet.

THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

IN REVIEW OF THE YEAR

By Premier Robert L. Stanfield

As 1965 ends we can look back over the year with a degree of satisfaction. We have not accomplished all that we might have wished but we have made a considerable progress. I think it is fair to say that the people of Nova Scotia are looking to the future in the confident belief that if we all work together we can take our place in the mainstream of Canadian life.

We have many difficulties to overcome, we have many problems that can be solved only by wise planning, hard work and the firm belief that we can help ourselves. Some times perhaps we have a tendency to emphasize our difficulties and minimize our accomplishments and our opportunities. Critical self analysis is good if it does not result in defeatism - - it is good if it helps us to make necessary decisions and spurs us on to greater endeavours.

We have made considerable progress and statistics – although they may make dull reading -- substantiate that statement.

We need a high rate of investment if we are to prosper. In 1965 new capital investment in Nova Scotia increased by approximately 26 per cent over the year 1964. Manufacturing shipments increased by over six per cent. Income from our fisheries, forests and tourist industry increased substantially.

Statistics may be dull but they do indicate an expanding economy more opportunities, more jobs, more income and a better standard of living for our people. We must recognize, however, that some of our people have not shared adequately in this expansion.

Now we have a new year before us and although forecasting is a hazardous undertaking I believe that 1966 will bring further progress to Nova Scotia. The way will not always be easy. We will probably have setbacks and disappointments but if we preserve we will continue to grow more prosperous varied and interesting.

Life is moving very swiftly. Change brings opportunity to those who are alert, but misfortune to those who ignore it. 1966 will therefore bring us new opportunities and new problems.

My wish for 1966 in Nova Scotia is that we will continue to work hard and harmoniously; that we will have the courage to make the right decisions even when they are hard decisions; and that a year from now we will be able to look back on 1966 with real satisfaction and pleasure.

I am delighted to have this opportunity to wish you a Happy New Year. I hope that the year 1966 will bring you health, happiness and prosperity.

BARGAIN RATES FOR LONG DISTANCE CALLS

Nova Scotians can call long distance anywhere in Canada for under $2 when new night time and Sunday "bargain rates" go into effect early in March.

Canada's eight major telephone companies — including Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company, Limited. —said today the maximum charge for station - to - station calls between 6 p. m. and 4:30 a. m. weekdays and all day Sunday will be $1.95, starting March 6.

The reduction is the fifth in trans-Canada telephone rates in 30 years, the third cut since 1960. Previous maximum has been $2.50.

No change in rates is announced for weekday, person-to-person or "short haul" calls; the new rate applies to calls of 600 airmiles distance or longer, for the first three minutes.

Maritime Tel and Tel officials said the new rates follow a U. S. trend in night rate reductions, and are the result of increased volume in long distance calling, more use of Direct Distance Dialing and improved transmission methods.

Sample comparisons between the new rates and the old are: (old rates in brackets) Halifax to Vancouver $1.95 ($2.50) Sydney to Calgary $1.95 ($2.50), St. John's to Montreal $1.75 ($1.80), Saint John to Winnipeg $1.90 ($2.15).

DEATH OF SAMUEL VIGNEAU

Samuel Vigneau, in his 74th year, passed away at St. Anne Hospital, here on January 1st. He entered the hospital on Christmas eve.

He had been in poor health for some time, however, he was able to visit his friends and neighbors up to the time of entering hospital on Christmas eve.

Sam as he was affectionally known, by his many friends, moved from the west end of the town about five years ago, when he and his wife took up residence with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Marchand. A man of pleasing and gentle personality, Sam, was highly regarded by everyone and in this section of the community, will be greatly missed and where he was a daily welcomed visitor to our home.

During his early life he was much in demand as a vocalist and for some time during the silent movie days, was employed as a vocalist at the Strand and Orpheus theatres in Halifax. At that time he was also employed on the office staff of the Queen Hotel.

For a few years prior to the Halifax Explosion, he was employed as a motorman and also as a conductor on Halifax tramcars. At the time of the Halifax Explosion, on January 6, 1915, the late Mr. Vigneau, was home on his holidays and the tram which he operated was completely demolished killing the crew and passengers. Mr. Vigneau had arrived home the day before the explosion.

For many years the late Mr. Vigneau was a valued member of the church choir of Notre Dame Church, Arichat.

For several years he was employed as a fish buyer at Babin's Hill, for the firms of A. & R. Loggie, Mulgrave; Hendsbee Co., of Queensport and for Leonard Bros., of North Sydney. He was highly regarded by these firms and by the shore fishermen.

For 15 years prior to his retirement he was employed on a Survey party for the Department of Highways on the Grand Anse-Arichat Highway and also on the West Arichat highway.

Our late friend, Sam Vigneau, was a cultured and Christian gentleman and whose memory we shall always cherish. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Vigneau, highly regarded residents of this town during their lifetime.

Surviving besides his wife the former Aline LeBlanc. are two daughters, Mrs. Leo Marchand, (Lillian), with whom he resided; Mrs. Harold Boudreau, (Patricia) of Arichat; one son Aurel, now residing in Antigonish. A sister, Rev. Mother St. Andronique of the River Bourgeois Convent.

The funeral which was largely attended took place on Monday afternoon, from Notre Dame Church, with Very Rev. A. P. Poirier as celebrant. In attendance at the funeral was Rev. Fr. Martinello, of River Bourgeois.

Also in attendance were several Rev. Sisters from various convents throughout Isle Madame and the mainland of the County.

The pallbearers were: Joseph V. Boudreau, Morton S. Binet, Raymond Stone, James MacDonald, Leon Landry and Marshall Bourinot.

C. A. Boucher, funeral director, was in chrage of all arrangements.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved wife, daughters, son and to his only sister, Rev. Andronique.

DR. AND MRS. DEVEAU EXTEND THEIR THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends, in Arichat, throughout Ile Madame, Louisdale and other parts of the County, for, the marvelous reception given us prior to our departure for Halifax, after a long and happy residence in Arichat.

We shall hold with fond affection and cherished memories the many loyal friends and patients, who came to our home for nearly half a century. The professional calls at homes throughout my practice and my association with the good people of Isle Madame and adjoining mainland districts will always be kindly remembered.

Our thanks go to Dr. C. A. Herbin who acted as Master of Ceremonies at the delightful dinner reception and to all those who spoke so kindly.

To Dr. Gorman, of Antigonish, the guest speaker, we extend our sincere thanks.

We are most grateful for the kind remembrance presented to us on behalf of our many friends and well wishers.

tired teachers to make a further contribution to the field of learning. They are teaching basic English, typing, higher mathematics and bookkeeping.

The principal of our night school, Norman Johnson, has a wonderful sense of humor which tides him over those hectic first weeks when fall registration is announced and would - be students start harassing him and his staff for unheard of courses, or an impossible extension of classes already filled. He likes to show a cartoon, now quite dog - eared, of a principal asking an obviously distraught woman what she expects to get out of her course. "I expect to get out at least once a week", is her reply.

For some it is an earnest endeavor, for others an economical means of training for a business career. Then there are those who view their two hours a week in class as a recreation and the frustrated housewife and mother of a brood, rates her night class a brief and blessed escape from household responsibilities. Which all adds up to the answer for contagious boredom and an outlet for creativity.
