HOW AN ISLAND GOT IT'S NAME

Quite often the subject for a column develops from a chance remark. This one owes its origin to the curiousity of a distant relative in England. At a tea party last summer, while juggling a cup of brew, he asked the guest of honor who happened to be my sister-in-law, if she ever visited Halifax. When told that such a trip was planned for later in the season he asked her if she would get some information for him about a gentleman whose name dangles on his family tree.

When I heard of her interest in untangling details about the McNabs of Brandolbane, Perthshire, who had settled in Nova Scotia, I I knew just where to start our search. Tourist bureaux operated by the various provinces are a fund of information. Upon the advice of John McCormack of the Nova Scotia Tourist Bureau, the story of Peter McNab started for us in the archives housed in a building on Dalhousie University campus.

Our special interest soon turned to an island, in the soil of which lie the McNabs. It was first called Cornwallis Island, named by the great British General Charles Cornwallis for his brother, who later became Archbiship of Canterbury. In 1749, the Cornwallis family sold the island through their agent, Joseph Peters, Deputy Post or Port Master of Nova Scotia, to the first Peter McNab.

At this point in our research the tale of shipwreck, rum running pirates and gay society functions on, or near, the island began to unfold making it so alluring there was only one thing to do, that was to visit the island.

Through the Nova Scotia Tourist Bureau a tug was chartered and our small band of curious tourists accompanied by Mr. McCormack travelled down the eastern end of Halifax Sound and tied up at crumbling old dock on the island. From there we had to find our way to the cemetery and three forts we knew existed at the easternmost tip of the island.

We were fortunate in having one of the residents in the small settlement of homes offer us a lift in his jeep. Otherwise we would have had to tramp the rugged trail more than two miles on foot.

I can appreciate why the Nova Scotia Government, which now owns only part, would like to obtain title to the entire island. Plans have been considered, or maybe I should say suggested, to make the island a tourist paradise. Well it might be for it has all the ingredients f a fascinating holiday spot. The crumbling old forts, which by the way were actually used as defence for the eastern gap in two world wars, could be reclaimed and nearby there is beautiful Maugher's Beach.

RED SAILS IN THE SUNSET

On that sunny day we climbed the ramparts and took a rubbing of the details on Peter McNab's tombstone for the English relative, we also watched a small fleet of tiny boats with bright colored sails which were beached and waiting for the incoming tide to get them off again. These were crewed by junior members of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Club on a 'learners voyage'. Watching them it didn't take too much imagination to picture Joshua Maugher, a distiller and also victualer to the Royal Navy in 1749, taking advantage of his position and the site to trade with the troops at Louisbourg. Rum history reports, sold there for nine pense per gallon and aroused the suspicions of Cornwallis to the point where he decided he should cancel Mr. Maugher's island privileges.

Peter McNab had a distinguished political career and is one of the many interesting figures in the early history of Halifax.

MRS. GEORGE A. ANDREW PASSES AWAY IN TORONTO

The news of the passing of Mrs. Mabel Andrew, beloved wife of Rev. G. A. Andrew, of Toronto, was received here with deep regret by the many friends and acquaintances who held her in the highest regard. Fondest memories of her visits to Arichat some years ago, still reflect in the hearts and minds of those who knew her.

The late Mrs. Andrew was in her 80th year, and although in poor health for some time, her passing on December 24th came as a great shock to her husband, son Douglas and by a host of friends, within the parishes served by her husband in the city of Toronto for the past several years and far beyond the confines of its borders the news will be received with mingled emotions and sadness.

A native of England, the call to serve God and his kingdom on earth, was answered by this good lady, who as a Missionary, went to the distant Mission Field of China where both she and her husband, the Rev. George A. Andrew, spent over 30 years in the diocese of Honan.

The late Mrs. Andrew was an ardent supporter of the Church Army in Canada, an organization of the Anglican Church, devoted to Evangelism and Social Service throughout the world. Mrs. Andrew in her mission work, knew of the wonderful work performed by the Church Army and in recognition of her support, a memorial has been set up, which now totals over $400.

In a letter to us from Captain R. A. (Ray) Taylor, Director of the Church Army in Canada, he had the following kind words to say about Mrs. Andrew and her devouted husband:—

"We, with you and a host of Christain friends thank God constantly for such a lovely couple so full of Faith, so keen for souls, always ready with a word of witness to Christ and encouragement or wise consul. We're all a bit better for knowing them."

When Archdeacon Andrew and his late wife returned to Canada, shortly before the end of the war, after serving in the mission field of China, they once more took up their Christian work in Toronto, where the Archdeacon, served the parish of St. Michael's and All Angels and is still active in the work of the church. The late Mrs. Andrew will be remembered for her faithful service in church organizations and more especially in the work of the Church Army.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Archdeacon Andrew, who is a native of Arichat, and whose grandfather, the Rev. James Allan Shaw, was the first Rector of St. John's Parish, in Arichat, established in 1828 and where his late grandfather spent 26 years of his ministry here. Archdeacon Andrew was also Rector of St. John's prior to leaving for the Mission Field of China early in 1919.

ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.L. NEWS

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Joseph's Council, C.W.L., was held in the parish hall, Petit de Grat, on Sunday at 2:30 p.m., with the president, Mrs. Fulbert Boudreau, presiding.

The converors were called upon to give their various reports. The social action convenor reported that gauze pads had been made and provided to a sick pesron of the parish. Get well cards had been sent to sick parishioners and visits to the sick had been made during the month.

The ways and means convenor reported that $31.00 had been realized from the sale of tickets on a blanket donated to the League by a C.W.L. member.

Plans were then made for the forthcoming rabbit and meat pie supper. The members decided that it would be held in the parish hall on February 21st., followed by a dance; proceeds from the event to be given to the parish.

Rev. J. J. MacDonald, director, informed the members that the Y.C.S. of the parish would like to meet with the parents to discuss the many problems encountered as teenagers. The women were very interested in this matter and a committee was appointed to meet with the leaders of the Y.C.S., to choose a topic to be discussed at such a meeting.

It was suggested that a panel discussion might be presented at the parish hall, with a panel made up of two teenage members of the Y.C.S. and two parents. The panel would be ready to answer questions that would be asked by the people in the audience. This would be an educational evening for both teenagers and parents.

The meeting was adjourned followed by a prayer recited by Rev. J. J. MacDonald, along with the memebers.

TRY THIS ON SADISTS

A good many people, decent kindly, warm-hearted in most respects, have a morbid streak. They get a big vicarious bang out of the gruesome or the gory.

Eyes glinting, voices lowered they discuss with relish Aunt Sadie's cancer of the liver, the week-end accident in which a pillar of the community smashed his pelvis while heading for the city with his mistress, or Uncle George's advanced dropsy.

It's a shame, then, to disappoint these people when there's a chance to add a little color to their lives. This week I had that chance. I cut my foot rather badly. Nothing serious, but enough to give me a good heavy limp.

It happened on the week-end, and Monday morning I was ready for them. The first eager enquirer caught me just inside the door, as I arrived for work. What was it? Bad fall and a broken ankle. Hopefully. Arthritis getting unbearable? Coyly.

No, no, nothing as simple as that, I assured her. I explained that my wife and I had been practising our karate on Saturday night, as usual. Growing bored with smashing those big dents in the refrigerator with sides of our hands, we'd decided to try some footwork. I'd launched a ump-kick at my wife's teeth. She, a real karate expert, had stuck out her tongue, and it was so sharp she'd opened a four-inch gash in my foot. Four inches deep, that is.

I don't know whether the lady who'd asked believed me. I just walked off and left her standing there, mouth open, eyes slightly crossed.

The next enquiry came from one of those loudmouths who like to embarrass one in front of a group. He tried. Loudly, "Whada do? Get drunk and fall down the cellar stairs, ho-ho?"

Not at all, I told him calmly. I'd got drunk, been locked out, slept in a snowbank all night, wakened with a frozen foot, and had had to have three toes amputated. I asked him if he'd like one as a souvenir, but he didn't seem too keen.

The next customer was a malicious old bat who looks like the flower, but in reality is the serpent under't. "Been fighting with your wife again? It's about time she put her foot down. On yours, hee-hee."

"Well, we weren't exactly fighting," I told her. "I had the shotgun out and was just trying to scare her a little, just in fun, when the darn thing went off and blew a hole in my foot the size of an orange. Wanta see?" She turned green and started to sway, so I left her.

A fourth interrogator, a young lady who loves trouble — other people's, that is — came up to me, eyes glistening, and solicitously hoped it was nothing serious. I said not really, just a few severed tendonts. Never be able to wiggle my toes again, but lucky to get off so easily. "After all, it was a 30-foot drop."

Gaping, she pursued, "What in the world happened?"

"Nothing much, I fell off the roof and landed on one of the iron spikes in the front porch railing."

"But what in the world were you doing up on the roof, in the middle of the winter? You must have been out of your mind!"

"Oh, no, not really. I was just trying to get my wife to come down out of the tree." And that shut her up.

As the day went on, I told other vultures that: A Greyhound bus had stopped on top of my foot and didn't move until the lights changed; the foot had been burned beyond recognition by a faulty electric blanket; that my daughter had been helping to chop kindling for the fire-place, missed, and lopped off all but my littlest toe.

Getting my coat in the cloakroom at the end of a pretty interesting day, I heard two female colleagues, unaware of my presence, reconstructing the accident.

"Drunk as a billy-goat, they say, and climbing a tree after black squirrels, with a shotgun."

"No, no, I heard he'd gone after his wife and kids with the axe, and dropped it on his foot." I limped off. Quietly. Triumphantly.

DeCOSTE—SABEAN

Our Lady of Assumption Church, Arichat, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Greta Sabean, a daughter of Mrs. Margaret Hake and the late Arthur Hake, became the bride of Charles E. DeCoste of Arichat, on January 28th at 7 p.m.

Very Rev. A. P. Poirier, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony. The bride wore a grey suit with white gloves and hat. Her corsage was of red roses.

The groom's brother, Jeffrey DeCoste, was best man and Mrs. Jeffrey DeCoste, who was matron of honor wore a blue suit with white gloves and hat. Her corsage was of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the groom for relatives and friends. The toast to the bride was proposed by Father Poirier and responded to by the groom.

The bride and groom accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey DeCoste; Bertha and Clifford LeBlanc, motored to Trenton, N. S., the following day to visit Mrs. DeCoste's cousin, Mrs. Eddie Edwards and her aunt, Mrs. Agnes LeBlanc.

The happy couple will reside in Arichat where the groom is employed by J. H. LeBrun, Ltd.

We wish Charles and Greta, every happiness throughout their wedded life.

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

"The Bitch - Goddess Success"

J. M. Keith, president of Imperial Tobacco company, has warned students of Sir George Williams Univerisity that big business is not looking for young graduates who worship the bitch-godess of success. He feels that the squalid cash interpretation put on the word success is our national disease. When I read what the Imperial President had said I felt like shouting hallelujah!

Keith went on to say what is wanted. He spelled out nine attributes required in successful businessmen for this modren world. For the information of students I repeat them here:

(1) He has a knowledge of his business and business generaly.
(2) He has an ability to handle and inspire people.
(3) He has an ability to organize for effective action.
(4) He has communication skills.
(5) He has controlled ambition.
(6) He has energy.
(7) He has a great desire to know and learn more about things that affect humans and their society.
(8) He has integrity.
(9) He has wisdom.

In my opinion, if more Canadian tycoons would give forth with similar straight talk, the business community would enjoy a better reputation. Too many young men get through school today, imbued with the idea that to be a success in business, big business in particular, they must sell their souls. The sooner they discover nobody wants to buy their souls, the better. Business needs men of integrity, and it needs them badly — complete, well-rounded men, with strong spiritual as well as material values. Big business has taken strong criticism in late years, and sometimes has deserved it. It could win its way back into public favour if it had more leaders like J. M. Keith. And he isn't just talking. His company has often aligned itself with those who champion good community causes. In Manitoba, his company has on more than one occasion contributed generously to the arts, without seeking undue commercial returns.

Big business appeals to educators to provide not a bunch of young yes-men, but rather well - rounded individuals with plenty of personal integrity and the will to achieve.

SPARKLING - EYED SINGER OF TOMMY HUNTER SHOW

One of the happiest experiences of Pat Hervy, vivacious young singer of the Tommy Hunter Show, was the instant recognition that greeted her everywhere during last summer's CBC talent tour of Western Canada.

Although she'd been a regular performer on Country Hoedown last season, it hadn't occured to Pat that to the television audience across the country, she had become something of a 'celebrity'.

Pat's singing and recording career has progressed steadly since she auditioned for the CBC in 1960. That audition was the result of encouragement from Toronto disc jockey Al Boliska, now host of the CBS Toronto local television show On The Scene.

She was soon making guest appearances on radio and television, and first worked with Tommy Hunter on his CBC show. She was a member of the chorus on CBC-TV's While We're Young and was featured on the CBLT (Toronto) teen series Club 6 the season of 1961-62.

Pat's hit recordings include Mr. Heartache and Tears of Misery. There were cut in Nashville, Tennessee, where Pat was enthusiastically praised by RCA Victor's artists and repertoire producer Chet Atkins.

Pat is a sport car addict, and loves all kinds of music. She is married to CBC-TV producer David Pears. They have a young son, David, Jr.

OVER 900,000 VISITORS VISITED NOVA SCOTIA DURING 1965

Visitors to Nova Scotia topped the 900,000 mark during 1965, Trade and Industry Minister, W. S. K. Jones said recently.

Tourist trade was estimated to be worth more than $58,000,000 for the 1965 season. Statistics show that an estimated 902,429 visitors came to the province last year. Of these, 26.5 per cent were United States residents and 73.5 pes cent were Canadian and foreign.

For the first time, a round-the-clock count was taken during October at Amherst. Records show that 20,414 Canadians and foreign and 3,851 United States vehicles entered at Amherst during that month.

Mr. Jones said that there was a substantial increase in the number of visitors travelling by automobile. During the period from June 1 to September 30, the number travelling by car was 693,-510 compared with 627,806 in 1964, representing an increase of 10.5%

The Amherst entry point showed the greatest increase in automobile traffic. A total of 156,171 cars entered the province at Amherst, compared with 137,521 cars in 1964.

Figures for other entry points in 1965 were: Caribou 20,762 vehicles, an increase of 82 cars over 1964; North Sydney 4,037 an increase of 812; Digby 5,846 an increase of 395; and Yarmouth 12, 456 an increase of 1,017 cars. The figures for Tidnish was down 823 cars from 19,030 cars in 1964 to 18,207 in 1965.

Although both Canadian and United States tourists stayed in the province for a shorter time in the previous year, they spent more money during their visit here.

From a sampling of tourists, statistics show that each United States resident stayed in Nova Scotia for 6.2 days and spent $13.11 each day here. Comparable figures for Canadian visitors are 7.02 days and $8.34 per day.

OFFER AWARDS FOR TEMPERANCE ESSAYS

An advertisement in this paper contains an opportunity for High School students to compete for cash timely subjects concerning the prizes by submitting essays on use of beverage alcohol.

The project is sponsored by the Grand Division of Nova Scotia Sons of Temperance, as part of its educational program. This Order is a total abstinence organizaton instituted in Nova Scotia in 1848 and has maintained a continuous organization ever since.

During the past 118 years hundreds of local branches were formed and met for varying periods of time. Even today there are a number of these holding frequent regular meetings with unbroken records dating back well over a century. In addition to local gatherings, county meeting are held at intervals, and the Grand Division of Nova Scotia meets semi-annually.

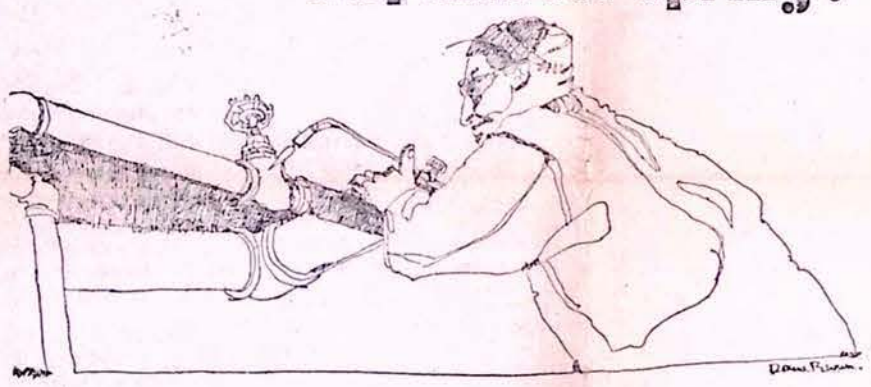

The principle of total abstinance has always been advocated as the safest way to avoid alcoholism and the various harmful effects arising from the use of beverage alchohol. This Organization was the first to urge upon the government of Nova Scotia that blood tests and restriction of driving privileges be used to curb drinking and driving.

New found films have been periodically added to the library of the Grand Division and these are available to groups and organizations upon request.

Essay writing has been conducted among schools in some counties throughout the past half century with successful results. The present contest is the first province-wide effort of this nature by the Grand Division. The increasing problems associated with highway safety, alcoholism, and social conditions, due to drinking are considered timely subjects for this project.

All enteries must be mailed not later than March 25th and the names of county winners will appear in the press upon completion of the judging.

Why wait for spring?

In winter, men are available. Materials are available. And special off-season discounts are often available. So, doesn't it make a lot of sense to have those repairs and renovations done now. Not simply construction and building jobs—but things like having the lawnmower fixed and the screens mended; having the drapes cleaned and the rugs shampooed; having the furniture re-upholstered and the electrical appliances repaired. All jobs which can call for a long wait come Springtime—but which can be handled quickly, efficiently and easily during the winter season. What's more, government-sponsored, low-cost Home Improvement Loans are available through your bank, to assist you in carrying out all kinds of renovation jobs you've been meaning to do—up to $4,000 with up to ten years to repay!

No doubt about it—winter is the best time to spruce up your home or place of business. Do it now!

Everybody benefits when winter work is increased
