SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

THIS FAMILY TAXES US ALL

All across Canada these days, municipal councils have been of all time, a mysterious monster called The Budget.

Although he is made up from a combination of concrete things like sewers and schools and streets. The Budget himself is an abstract thing. He is like The Devil. You can't see him or hear him or even smell him. You can't really understand him, but you know he is there—a blind malignant creature that cannot be controlled.

You can fight him — and get a bloody nose. You can hammer at him, chisel at him, chop at him — and all you get are a broken hammer, a dull chisel and a blunted axe.

The Budget is like an octopus. He grows bigger every year. His appetite increases, his tentacles become longer and stronger and more strangling as he grows. And when you try to come to grips with him, he exudes a cloud of black (or red) ink which obscures him from view.

Of what ingredients is The Budget composed? Really, he's a two-headed monster, a regular Siamese twin.

On the one hand, it is just a big bundle of sugar and spice: new schools; new industries; a new library or community centre; wider streets; better lighting; sewage disposal and snow plowing. Progress, culture, civilization, comfort. At first glance it appears that the Budget is the most desirable thing man has dreamed up since The Devil.

And the reason for all this, of course, is that The Budget, this big ugly, unmanageable brute who is impervious to human feeling, fell in love by some chemical accident, while a mere hulking lunk of a boy with a girl called Milly Rate. Most of us know he as Mill.

She is just as unprepossessing as her husband. She is steely-eyed, relentless, unscrupulous and absolutely without mercy, charm, pity, looks, or any of the qualities we normally associate with that lovely creation known as the female of the species. I have known Mill Rate since she was a girl, and I am here to state, without apology, that she is a pig.

It's difficult to believe that such a union could produce progeny. But it did. His name is Taxes.

Taxes' career has been about what you would expect from such parents. He was an unpleasant child from the beginning. Unwanted, unloved, rejected at every turn, whiney, demanding.

He hasn't changed much, except that he's grown. He is now a big slob, over-fed, under-worked, menacing if he doesn't get his allowance right on time, sulky if some of it is held back.

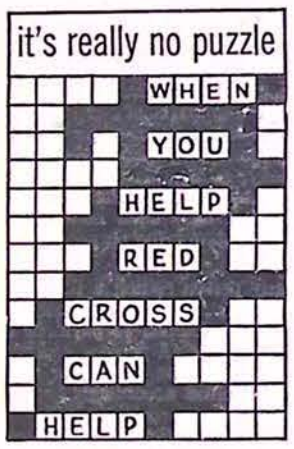

But he has a lot of promise. Around election time. He's going to cut the lawn, and wash the car, and paint the trim and smarten the old place up so you wouldn't know it.

But somewhere along the line, something goes haywire. He cuts the trees, paints the lawn, and washes the lake, and figures, after one year, that his allowance is not big enough.

For some reason — and it certainly isn't his winning personality — Taxes has become the most-talked-about man in the town. Mayors develop dypepsia, councillors coronaries, when they deal with this delinquent.

They can't quite handle him. He talks so glibly of government grants on outdoor toilet systems under the winter works program, and potential pot-holes in the roads, and (with a heart-rending sob) of the people on welfare, that he bamboozles councillors with eyes like agates, and mayors with hearts of granite.

All I can say is that the municipal councils have my blessing as they strive to cope with taxes, out of Mill Rate and The Budget.

TWILIGHT RETREAT

PETIT De GRAT — On Monday and Tuesday, April 18 and 19, two twilight retreats were held in the Petit de Grat Parish Hall for local students. Monday's retreat for the boys was directed by Father Gerard Rogers, assistant at L'Ardoise, while Tuesday's Retreat for the girls was directed by Father Reginald Currie, Diocesan Chaplain for the Y.C.S. Both retreats followed a similar pattern with the retreat master giving lectures which were followed by discussion groups. An important part of the day was taken up by Church Services. There was a Mass time allotted for confessions and a visit to the Blessed Sacrament and at night, a Bible Vigil formally closed each retreat.

On Monday, the girls, directed by Francois LeBlanc, served supper to the boys and were congratulated in a short address by Roy Boudreau on the wonderful meal.

On Tuesday, the boys, headed by Gerry Samson, served supper to the girls and in turn were graciously thanked by Therese Duann Girls' Y.C.S. President.

Both Retreats were highly successful; there were fifty-five boys Monday and eighty-five girls on Tuesday. Students from all of Isle Madame as well as L'Ardoise and Louisdale attended. On Tuesday night after all retreat activities were terminated a Y.C.S. sponsored Record Hop was held for all participants.

Due to the success of this year's retreat, the Petit de Grat Y.C.S. hope to make this an annual event.

ARICHAT-MULGRAVE BOAT SERVVCE

Further to our comment on the Arichat-Mulgrave boat service, in our last issue, we note where the town of Canso are much concerned about taking their boat, the M. V. Fairmorse, out of service and replacing this service by the M. V. Vanaheim, on a tri-weekly service and this ship also serves Arichat on a tri-weekly service.

We hear a lot of talk about the granting of monies for the Cape Breton coal and steel industry and we remind our readers that we are not opposed to such a move, but it seems quite strange to us that the granting of subsidies to operate our boat service has been curtailed by Ottawa and at a time when shipping out of this port and the port of Canso are due for Industrial development in our Fisheries.

Surely in this day and generation, the residents of Isle Madame are not deserving of such treatment and that a return to our daily boat service will soon be resumed.

Only the past week we ordered a large supply of paper to be shipped Express from Halifax, and due to our tri-weekly service this shipment was two days late in arriving. With the high cost of Express charges, it seems a waste of money to the consignee if shipment of goods is not received at least from Halifax, the next day after the order has been placed.

Its about time the interests of the small communities are looked after by Ottawa and instead of taking away our services, begin to add and enlarge such services.

This is a good time for Federal Minister MacEachen and Senator Earl Urquhart, to go to bat for the people of Isle Madame. We note where John Stewart, M. P., for Antigonish-Guysboro, is looking into the discontinuance of the Canso service..

ALVIN BABIN

WEST ARICHAT — A well-known and esteemed lifelong resident of this place, Alvin Babin in his 72nd year, passed away at his home here after a short illness Surviving besides his wife, the former Ida Delorey, are three daughters and two sons: Alba, in Ontario and Adolph at home; Mrs. Gerald Feorgeron, (Lorraine), of West Arichat; Mrs. Daniel Babin, (Genelle), West Arichat and Mrs. George Samson, (Gertie), Guelph, Ont. Also three brothers, Francis and Clement at home and Clarence in the United States.

The funeral took place on Friday from the Church of the Immaculate Conception of which the late Mr. Babin was a devout member. Rev. Father Doucet officated at the Church and graveside. Interment in the church cemetery.

We extend our symapthy to the bereaved family.

ALLAN MacEACHEN REPORTS FROM OTTAWA

This is the first of what I hope will be a regular weekly report to my constituents and friends in Inverness-Richmond. As a member of the government, and as the minister in charge of a very large and busy department, my duties do not always permit me to visit Cape Breton and my constituency as often as I would like. Consequently, I am grateful to the weekly press for giving me this opportunity to visit through their columns.

In the past several weeks I had occasion to make two very pleasant visits to Cape Breton.

In February, I spent a Saturday in Inverness meeting with people from the area discussing improved mail services in Little Judique, Little Judique Ponds, Hillsdale, Judique, Judique South, Centennial and Long Point.

Later in the day, I was visited by members of the Inverness County Liberal Association executive, including its President, John Hart of Margaree Centre; Earl Embree, Port Hastings, Secretary; Jim Davis, Port Hawkesbury and John J. Aucoin, Grand Etang, Vice-Presidents, and Mrs. Allan J. MacDonald, Judique, President of the Inverness Women's Liberal Association. The purpose of their visit was to present me with a gift on behalf of their association: a beautiful two-wave AM-FM radio—and I can say that of all the mementos I have received in over a decade in politics, none will be more treasured —or more often used. I was very touched by the gift, and by the presentation which accompanied it.

On Saturday evening, I visited Cheticamp and discussed local harbour facilities with Board of Trade President, along with Dennis Aucoin and Alex Fraser. And here, again, the reception was characteristically cordial and generous.

Early in March, I spent a most pleasant evening with friends and constituents in Petit de Grat and later, I crossed the Strait to Antigonish where I had been invited to participate in a Model Parliament at St. F. X. University. It was most exhilerating and impressive experience and I pay tribute to the students for conducting the proceedings on such a high level and in such a responsible way. I should tell you, too, that Inverness-Richmond was ably represented in the Parliament by John Allan Cameron of Glencoe Station.

Unfortunately, because of developments in the House of Commons, this last visit to Cape Breton was not as long as I had originally planned.

Originally, I had planned to meet with Premier Stanfield and provincal government and union-management officials to discuss plans for modernizing and expanding Cape Breton's coal industry. Because of the serious crisis in the House, these meetings had to be postponed, with the complete and approval understanding of Premier Stanfield and others involved. Happily, we were able to reschedule the meeting for the last week in March; I can report that the talks were most encouraging.

As you have no doubt read and heard, there were very strong and valid reasons why I felt I should have remained in the Commons that day and carry out my responsibilities as a representative in Parliament and a member of the government.

It was a searing and emotional experience, for Parliament itself and for its members.

And, while there were some pretty grisly aspects to the events of the past few weeks, I am grateful that so many people in Parliament took a responsible course in solving the problem. The credit reflects on members in all political parties and applies as much to what was not done as much as to what was. In such emotional and explosive circumstances it would have been much easier—and the temptation was often almoat irresistible—to use the angry retort, the shouted insult instead of the cool and measured argument. After so much partisanship and crises revolving around personalities rather than policies, I am amazed that Parliament emerged as strong as it did from the events of the past few weeks.

Parliament has not been given any credit for the way it came to grips with this crisis. This is a fact, not a gratuitious platitude. Certainly, we have come through one of the most searing episodes in the history of our country; it produced a great many good speeches, a creditable collection of great speeches and only the occasional to be regretted speech or statement. I'm sure this assessment doesn't correspond with the one you have formed from reading the newspapers and listening to radio and TV. But, there has been confusion between what has happened in Ottawa with the hourly and breathless revelations from Munich.

Canadian democracy is not solely or perhaps not even primarily dependent on the House of Commons and Parliament; there are other important and vital instruments, each with its own responsibilities and rights. High on the list are the press, radio, and television. And, if we do an objective analysis of how the various custodians of democracy lived up to their responsibilities, I would suggest that Parliament, and more particularly the House of Commons, can hold its head as high as any, perhaps higher.

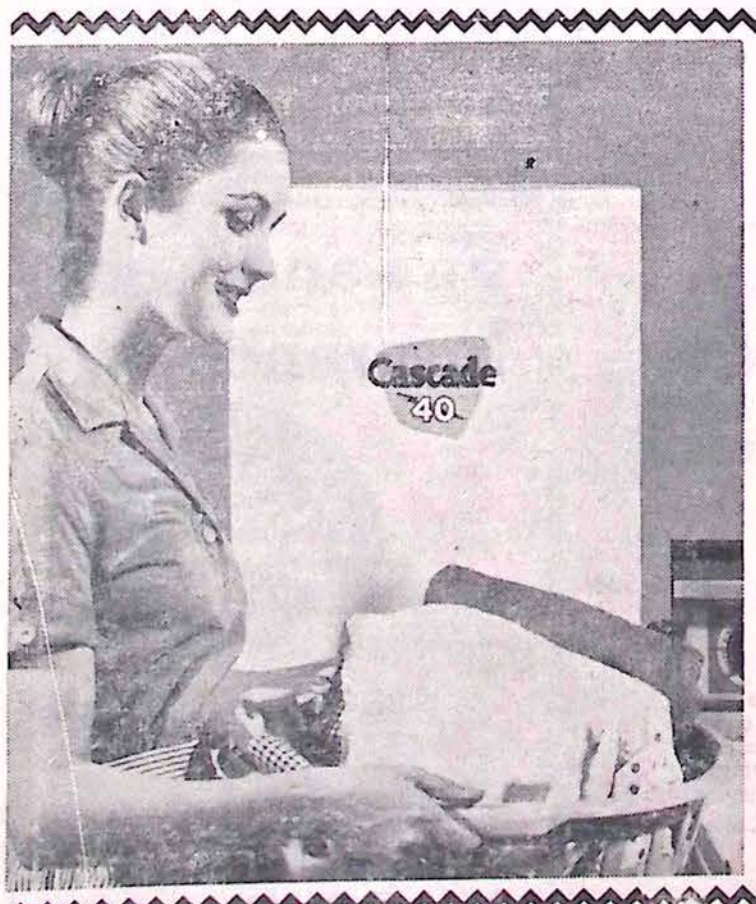

Dramatic incidents like those of the past few weeks usually bring out the optimist or the pessimist in us, depending on our natural inclinations. I belong to the optimists. This episode, the volcanic and perhaps inevitable climax of years of intense partisanship, has given many of us cause to think. I see two alternatives: we can continue the feuds and frenzy of yesterday, in which case the result will be bad for Canada, Parliament and politicians, or we can benefit from the lessons of the past and use them to guide us into a new era—and era in which honest differences in policy will be argued strongly and sincerely but in which the personalities of Parliament will be respected for what they are—honest, sincere and dedicated men and women, working for the good of their country and the welfare of their own constituents.

What I have said is not intended to conceal my real concern for improving the tarnished image of Parliament and its efficient operation. We can make a fresh start.

In closing, I should tell you how pleased I am that Cape Breton again has an eloquent and dedicated spokesman in the Canadian Senate. I am sure that Sen. Earl Urquhart will continue to serve his province and his country with the distinction and devotion he has always shown in the past.

Sen. Urquhart is the second Nova Scotian I have had the pleasure of renewing friendships with in Ottawa in reecnt months. The other, of course, is the Hon. Robert Winters, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and one of the cabinet's ablest and most respected members.

I can assure you that Mr. Winters continues to be a kindred spirit and a sympathetic supporter when it comes to matters involving his native province.

NOTICE TO FARMERS

Re-Soil Moisture Conditions.

Because the total precipitation over much of mainland Nova Scotia is as much as 15 inches below normal for this date, farmers are encouraged to adopt the following practices immediately.

(1) APPLY FERTILIZER EARLY ON GRASSLAND. If the fertilizer is not already applied, it should be spread as soon as possible. Early application enables maximum utilization of available soil moisture.

(2) EARLY SEEDING. Cereals, grasses and legumes should be seeded as early as possible in well prepared, well fertilized seed beds.

(3) USE HIGH NITROGEN FERTILIZER. During periods of limited soil moisture maximum crop growth is obtained on soils which contain high levels of available nitrogen.

(4) FERTILIZE OLDER HAY AND PASTURE FIELDS. Immediate applications of high nitrogen mixed fertilizers as 10-10-10 or 15-5-15 on older grassland fields will greatly increase production; also, applications of 5-10-30 will increase yields on older legume swards.

(5) DO NOT WASTE EARLY PASTURE. Farmers are encouraged to apply fertilizer, as early as possible, to promote early pasture growth: also, farmers are encouraged to fence their pastures into relatively small fields and to utilize only that area which will be adequately grazed during the early season. The remainder may be cut as early hay and fed, at a later date, as required.

(6) PROVIDE SUPPLEMENTARY ANNUAL PASTURE CROPS. Short term annual crops are valuable in providing additional feed when forage on regular pastures is in short supply. The following crops are useful to provide supplementary feed during the periods indicated.

Oats — early seeded — midsummer to early fall feed
Corn — early seeded — midsummer to early fall feed
Rye grass — early seeded — midsummer to early fall feed
Fall turnips)
Rape) — early to late fall feed
Kale — late fall feed.

(7) ORDER FERTILIZER REQUIREMENTS EARLY. It is expected that there may be a greatly increased demand this year for high nitrogen fertilizers for late June application on grasslands. In order that the fertilizer will be available when required, farmers are urged to place their fertilizer orders now for early summer application.

Also, farmers are encouraged to cut hay early in order to provide for a good aftermath crop.

Centennial Report

By John W. Fisher

A few weeks ago I made a statement during a luncheon address that we at the Centennial Commission in Ottawa are so busy we don't have time for coffee breaks.

The next day I was passing an open door in our ofice building and was jolted by a scene which belied my remark of the day before. Two Commission staff members were in spirited coversation — over coffee! Only the fact that the time was 5:15 p.m. (after office hours) softened the shock to the sensibilities of a stern administrator.

I was invited into the session. The two young staffers were Marcel X, a French Canadian, and John Y., an English Canadian, who had come to Ottawa a couple of months earlier to work on Centennial projects.

"We made some interesting rediscoveries about the Fathers of Confederation," remarked Marcel X. "For example, I did not recollect, until I came to work here, that D'Arcy McGee was for a time a separatist. And neither John nor I remembered from history lessons at school that Sir Georges-Etienne Cartier had been exiled for being a rebel with Papineau."

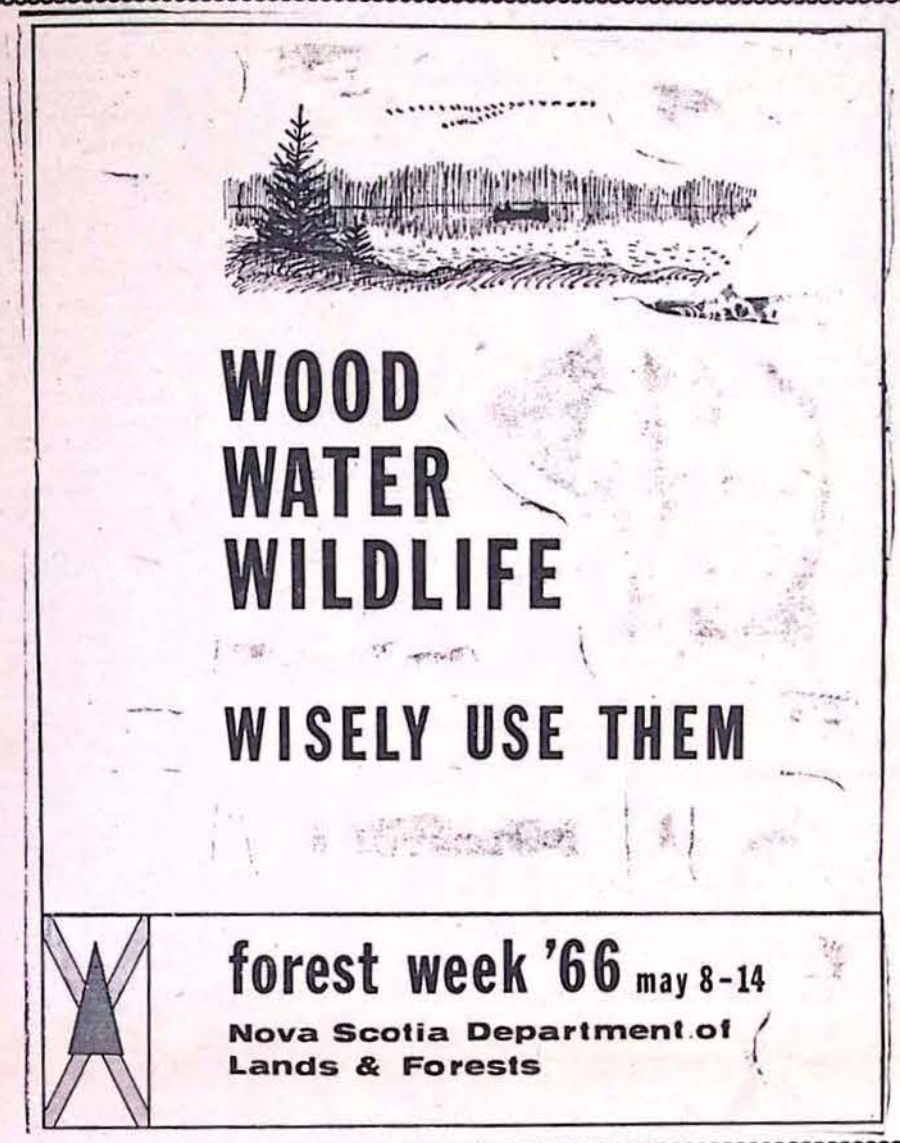

A number of the Fathers of Confederation did in part have bitter beefs which stemmed from regional interest and worries about provincial rights, all of which they eventually subordinated to the ideas hoped for in federation. In fact some of those men were abandoned by their constituents at home for being too "pro" confederation. Joseph Howe of Nova Scotia, one of the most talented writers of the confederation period, fumed against confederation yet he joined Sir John A's first government Nov. 16,1869. (How ironical that on our Centennial train we will show his printing press which he used to whip confederation!)

I believe that involvement in the 1967 celebrations will give Canadians, through their rediscoveries of history, a better understanding of themselves and their place in their country and in the world. We Canadians in 1967 should be in a mood to look at history calmly and objectively and I believe that when we do this we will be helping to create in ourselves a tolerant attitude which will enhance our approach to some of today's problems of nationhood.

The coffee break turned out to be something of value after all. I think that discussions of this sort, particularly among students who, with their teachers and professors will be drawn to them during our Centennial Year, are good for Canada.

The Centennial Commission is actviely engaged with Canada's universities on a Centennial program to stimulate the sort of discussion I heard at coffee break. During the universities program a series of historical seminars will study select areas of Canadian history, with emphasis on topics which are controversial in addition notable lectures and artists will make visits to nampuses and two touring Centennial plays, one English and one French, are to be produced with student actors from across the country. There will be other learned conferences and seminars all of which will encourage our young people to take advantage of lessons learned in the past to chart the future for Canada.
