THE RICHMOND COUNTY RECORD, ARICHAT, NOVA SCOTIA, JUNE 10, 1967

The Williams Awards 1967

Thomas A. Williams, Q. C., our County Solicitor, was a recent visitor in Town, and we had some conversation with him about the Essay Contest that he has started, and which he wants to have open to all the High School students of the area.

In the School year just finishing, he was not able to obtain many entries, due to short notice and other matters over which he had no control. But he seems to have found a great deal of encouragement in the quality of the entries, if not in the quantity. The best of them, he tells us, were excellent.

He asked us if we would publish the best for Richmond County, and we said that we would be delighted to do so. It should be appearing in an early issue.

The prize money was placed in a Trust Account in the Bank at the time the contest started, and remained there ever since. Now cheques have been written for the winners. Owing to circumstances, the number of prizes that had been planned had to be reduced, and as a result the prizes remaining have been increased.

The cheques for these prizes are to be delivered to the winners during the Closing Exercises of their respective High Schools.

Mr. Williams thought that we would be interested in the method he used for the grading of the Essays. Before he looked at any of the entries, he made up a chart of formula, which he considered should be used, though uot exclusively, as a guide. He wanted a well thought out and well produced paper, and this formula tended to emphasize the aspects that he considered most desirable. The formula is as follows:

FACTS: Maximum 10.

PRESENTATION OF FACTS: Maximum 20.

THINKING: Maximum 30.

DEVELOPMENT OF THOUGHTS: Maximum 40.

As an example, he pointed out that the Essay we were being asked to publish was not the best written Essay in the contest, but it showed by far the most imagination and creative thought. He considered that these qualities deserved a great deal of encouragement.

The present contest was started only during the second half of the School year, and it was not possible to make the idea well known among the students beforehand. For this reason alone, there would be few entries.

Mr. Williams is now thinking about the next School year. He feels that if information is given to all the students as early as possible, it would result in a great many taking part.

What he wants will not be easy, and it will require a lot of work and thinking by those students who enter. But he thinks that if the subject and the rules are formulated at the beginning of the School year, and the students are fully informed at that time, many of them will be willing and able to take part. For his part, he wants to donate money prizes of sufficient magnitude, as he xpressed it, to make it worth while for any good student to try. He feels that there are many such students in the area, and he wants to do something for them.

He added that such a project takes a lot of work on the part of the Teachers as well. He has found that when they get behind a project of this nature it becomes fairly easy to carry out, because they know what has to be done, and devote time and effort to doing it. In other words, he feels that he owes a debt to those teachers who have helped him so far, and he would like them to know it. Also, he hopes that he can call on them in the same way again.

NEW LAPEL POPPIES

During our past Poppy Campaign there was a rumor going the rounds that the "New Lapel Poppy" was not Canadian made. The following communique from Dominion Command is now published for the information of all concerned:

"At its meeting of 7th April 1967 the National Poppy Advisory Committee was informed that malicious rumors to the effect that the new lapel poppy was imported from Japan or Hong Kong had been circulated in various parts of the country.

"We wish to state most emphatically that there is absolutely no truth to these rumors. The poppy is an all Canadian product made by Canadian disabled veterans using Canadian made materials.

"The Poppy Committee directed that this information be disseminated to all Provincial Commands."

Take Pen In Hand

What's the most common question being batted about the country these days? That's right. It's, "Are you going to Expo?"

Well, are you? If not, why not? You can't afford it? Of course you can. You mean you can't afford to miss it.

Yeah, you say, but what about bread, loot, gelt, money? Nothing to it. Anybody who can't make some fast money in this ridiculous world deserves to starve to death, let alone not go to Expo.

I have a few suggestions. In fact, I have quite a few, because I've been giving the matter of our own trip some thought. I've discarded one or two of them for various reasons, but it's every man to his own taste, and one or more of them might be just the ticket for you.

Put your wife to work. If she's already working, and you still can't afford the trip, have an auction sale and get rid of a lot of that junk you've accumulated over the years. This does not refer to your wife.

If you haven't any old junk, think of something. Throw a bingo party. Chickenfeed, you say? All right then, how about throwing a martini party, at $5 a rattle, on the Monday of a holiday weekend, when everybody has run out of booze? You'd clear about $300.

Buy some veteran's calendars, cut off one of your arms, and sell them door to door.

Come on, you can figure out a gimmick. Send your kids out mowing lawns. If you have no kids, send your mother-in-law out mowing lawns. And if she's too decrepit, insure her heavily and push her off a cliff.

Arrange with a friend to bump your car gently from behind at a stop light, then run screaming to the doctor and claim you have a whiplash and collect bags of insurance.

No? How about some blackmail? Know anybody who's running around with somebody who shouldn't be running around with anybody?

Have a moving van come in the middle of the night, remove all your furniture, then you set fire to the house and claim insurance for it and the furniture. You could clear $3,000 on this one.

Speaking of moving vans, how about pushing your wife, or husband, in front of a moving moving van, provided you have a joint account and mutual insurance?

All of these are too coarse, or common, or complicated for you? My, you are an old poke. So run a bookie joint, sell pot, hold up a bank, if you want something simple.

Against your principles? Well, all right, all right, but it shows the depths of depravity to which I can sink in the middle of the night, as I try to figure out how we can afford Expo plus all the redecorating my wife is doing.

Well, you and your danged principles have forced me into it.

Here's the deal. We're going to have a contest. Now, we all love contests, don't we? I have been writing this column for about 14 years, without missing a week. I want a week off to go to Expo. Still with me?

I have a great many faithful readers (and no doubt a fair smattering of unfaithful ones, too). Many of them write very well, as I know from letters received.

For the best guest column submitted, I will personally send a cheque for $25, along with an autographed copy of my latest book. The latest one is the one I haven't written for MacMillan Company. The other books I haven't written were not published by McLelland-Stewart and Prentice-Hall.

This handsome award (so I'm not J. P. Morgan) will be supplemented by the Telegram News Service, 440 Front St. W., Toronto 2B. They will either double or triple the cash award, depending on their attitude when they read this, which is the first they've heard of it.

Topic: anything you like. Length: about 700 words. Send all entries to above address.

And there you are. Cash. If you win, and take your choice. You can hitch-hike to Expo and blow the whole bundle on high living. Or you can bet it on a horse, fly to Montreal and rough it at the Queen Elizabeth.

This is real. Get cracking today.

the acadian times

I doubt not that the official chronicles of these early years in New France will be most ably written by such notables as M. de Monts (who hath lately brought us safely to these shores of Acadia), M. de Poutrincourt and others such as M. Champlain.

Thus your humble servant would not presume to tell of those main, shaping acts that unborn generations shall call history lest his words seem like poor, frail, hollow echoes of what better men might pen.

Yet certain events there are that, wandering from the main stream of events, must go unnoted by those who steer our enterprise through broader waters. These rivulets I shall attempt to chart and so give common readers uncommon tales. Thus:

Nova Scotia Artist J. E. McClelland

"...very often, I was still at work in the moonlight."

getting ploughed under so acadians start night shifts

PORT ROYAL, Spring 1606 —There may be many reading these reports in France who doubt not that the opening of a new land is a very swash-buckling, glamorous thing where one steps Sunday-suited on the shore then, with magnificent gestures, subjugates man, flock and field with no more effort than to sniff at snuff.

It is a pr.tty scene and one that painters sitting now in France may one day paint. Yet were they here their colors would be used to draw up different scenes: their crimsons would not paint the folds in velvet cloaks but red raw hands smarting from saw and spade. Steely silver would shine not on dainty hilted swords but on more earthy weapons used not 'gainst savages (for though we name them savage the word does not sit with their friendly nature) but 'gainst nature.

Though all our present exploration is done for such high names as Glory, France, the King, their grand sounds ring hollow in this wilderness and needs must be replaced by humbler words as grain, crops, soil and sowing.

And as they must, they are, with each man high or low bending to tasks more fitting to his needs than to his station.

Some seem in a very frenzy of pastoral pursuits. M. Lescarbot, notary, never labored half as much at law as now he labors with the land, as these words of his do testify:

"For I can say with truth that I have never done so much bodily work through the pleasure which I took in digging and tilling my gardens, fencing them in against the gluttony of swine, making terraces, preparing straight alleys, building stone-houses, sowing rye, wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas, garden plants, and watering them, so great a desire had I to know the soil by perso.al experience. So much so that in the summer, days were too short for me, and very often in the spring I was still at work in the moonlight."

So it goes with all our noble gentlemen. And none of it in vain for such is the quality of Acadian soil that all our seeds grow well and many come to such fruition as was never seen in France.

So all you who dream to come to our Acadia, practise not your arms, but backs; for it is not blood and sword shall win this land—'tis sweat and ploughs.

BRIDGETOWN, 1966— Obviously farming hasn't changed too much in the last three hundred years; at least not in the demands it places upon the farmer who must still work by day and work by night to get the crops in.

Mind you, the end use of some of the crops is a little different now. For instance; the choicest Acadian rye now goes into making . . . the choicest Acadian rye whisky, one of several Acadian Distillers products that is making the name Acadia as exciting to the new world as it used to be to the old!

OF MANY THINGS

FARMERS RETALIATE

TV comedians often picture farmers as if we were all a bunch of hillbillies, speaking cracker-barrel dialect. We don't mind, too much, as long as we can retaliate once in a while.

A TV comic got himself a horse recently, and tried to find a farmer to stable it for him here in our Fraser Valley, near Cloverdale. At Greenhorn Farm we were willing to keep his horse for $30. a month, plus the manure. He wanted a bargain so he went around to the neighbours, who, of course, reported everything back to me, as good neighbors should.

"I told him," the next farmer said, "that I'd keep his horse for $20. and the manure, and I could see at once that he was a bargain hunter, because he said he would check around and call me back. But he didn't. He went down to Parker's place and tried to make a deal there."

Parker reports the conversation this way.

TV comic: "I've been given two estimates on stabling my horse. One for $30. a month and the manure; the other for $20. a month plus the manure. What would your price be?"

Parker: "Well, guess I could stable him for $10. a month."

TV comic: "And the manure?"

Parker: (shaking his head) "No . . . at that price, there wouldn't be any manure!"

Of course it is only a yarn, but it does have a moral, one that farmers, practically every day, discover: YOU GET BACK ONLY WHAT YOU PUT IN TO MOST ENDEAVOURS.

You don't reap, unless you first culeivate and sow. You don't succeed, unless you first set a goal and then bend every effort to reach it. Canada, in this centennial year, has proved that it can accomplish a great deal by setting forth goals and projects and then going to work at them with a will. Let it be hoped that the fabulous EXPO 67 accomplishment will carry through in the years ahead. If each of us captures this spirit and keeps it alive, the future of Canada is certain.

From Needhan, Mass.

Vincent Power, of Needham, Mass., was a welcome motor visitor to Arichat, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Power came to Mabou, where they re-opened their new residence there, for the summer months.

While in Arichat, Vincent visited at the home of his cousin, Joe Power and Mrs. Power, and called on several friends before returning to Mabou. He also attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Rosanna Martell of Pondville.

It's always nice seeing Vincent and we look forward to seeing him more often during the summer.

From St. Peter's

Mrs. Duncan Currie of St. Peter's, was a business visitor to Arichat, during the week, and we were happy to learn that the "Nicolas Deny's Trading Post", a Centennial project undertaken in that town, is coming along nicely and should prove to be a tourist attraction.

Located on the north bank of the St. Peter's Canal, the building design was followed much on the lines of the original structure.

The St. Peter's Historical Society added much to this project by placing articles in the museum in keeping with the early trading days, long before the Canal was built at St. Peter's and when small boats and canoes would be portaged from the Atlantic side into the Bras D'Or Lakes.

Mrs. Currie takes a keen interest in historical research and has done much in the restoration of the Nicolas Deny's Trading Post.

Winter, the nurses and staff of St. Ann's Hospital, Arichat; the organist and choir of Notre Dame Church, Arichat; the day and night shift of Booth Fisheries; to all who came to our home to offer sympathy; to those who sent Mass and sympathy cards and to all who helped in any way during their recent sad bereavement.

Also to Mr. C. A. Boucher, Funeral Director.

Mr. Ellis presented a very splendid report and requested the cooperation of all Committees, in the development of Industry and stressed on the importance of Education and Trade training.

A brief recess was called by the President, to afford all Committees to meet and bring in reports of their respective committees. All reports were later brought before the meeting and presented by the Chairman of each committee.

Rev. Father Rogers of L'Ardoise, Chairman of the Education Committee, gave a very interesting talk on Senior-education, and a return to school of students who still require a higher education to qualify for positions, under our new Industrial development program.

We feel that much will be done by Father Rogers and his Education Committee and a closer study will be made of the problems facing senior education in the County and throughout Cape Breton Island.

Father Roach of the St. F. X. Extension Department, Sydney, gave a very interesting address, and spoke on Housing Development, and answered many questions asked by members of the various Committees. Father Roach is a champion promotor of industry and better housing conditions.

A vote of thanks was extended to Father Roach for his leadership and advice.
