SUGAR AND SPICE by Bill Smiley

WINNER NUMBER ONE

Well, the inevitable has happened! Smiley couldn't make up his mind about his own contest as so many of the contributing columns fell into the "excellent' category. So Smiley declared a draw, allowing two winners. Each winner will receive $25. Here is the first column, to be followed by the other winner next week.

By Ellen Armstrong
Stouffville, Ontario

Maybe the comments of a middle-aged Canadian female don't constitute a column but there is only one way to find out, so here goes—

I AM SICK AND TIRED OF....

The assumption that Canadians celebrations in Ottawa and in every little and big town and city in this our year of jubilee shout a resounding "NO" to this idea. Oh, sure, we have to have a good reason for letting our hair down. A good reason may only present itself once in 100 years, but when it does, brother, we can holler with the best, and better.

The claim that Canadians have an inferiority complex. Down here in the grass roots where I and 99.9 percent of my fellow Canadians crawl around we are proud of Canada and of beng Canadians. We are ashamed only of the would-be intellectuals who claim they are inferior because they are Canadian. They are inferior, all right, but for other reasons. Unfortunately they seem to have the ear of "ye editors" and so get their views aired in the papers with nauseating frequency.

The bland statement that "The Church has failed." Failed to do what, may I ask? I may answer, too, in fact I will. Failed to do whatever the speaker of the moment thinks she should have done. I suggest we find out what is the true mission of the Curch, then try to assess success or failure. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel," said Christ. This is the Church's mission; in this she has succeeded and is succeeding. And even critics must admit she has not failed in another sense. She has endured and survived! Name one other nineteen hundred and sixty-seven old institution!

Transistor radios in public. Here I feel like busting into poetry which I have entitled

Lines on Trying to Have a Picnic at a Roadside Table on the Shores of a (Once) Peaceful Lake
Where once the song of birds was heard,
And wind in trees above,
A crass transistor radio
Emits a crooner wailing low
His cheap synthetic love.

The gentle murmur of the waves
Is drowned in noisy chatter.
"Buy whiskey, soap and cigarettes
Buy pills and soup without regrets—"
Sublimities don't matter!
Some day ere long we'll conquer space,
Ah, mournful thought and bitter,
'Mid stars that sang creation's birth
The crude cacophony of Earth,
Man's pestilential twitter."

The use and abuse of the word "image". There seem to be fads in words as in all else; this is the "faddy" word of the moment. Every man, woman, organization is concerned about his, her or its' "image." May I suggest, (in fact try to stop me) that, if we are concerned with integrity, decency and honor in personal, social and political life, our public image will take care of itself. It will be a favourable one, too.

. . . The availability of filthy literature, particularly for the youth of our country. Some excuse this, by insisting young people must learn the facts of life. Manure is a fact of life too, but if we see our children eating it we restrain them, forcibly if necessary.

. . . Trying to write a column — My admiration for you, Mr. Smiley, has leaped into the stratosphere. How do you do it, week after week after week. . . . ?

GEORGE WOOD

The recent tragic drowning of George Wood, his youngest son and Embry LeBlanc of Moncton, cast a gloom over the whole of Isle Madame and far beyond the confines of its borders.

The daily press reported this sad tragedy in detail, however, in our reporting, we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved families.

We were personally acquainted with the late George Wood and as Secretary of Cape Breton area of the National Institute for the Blind, his work in this field brought him in personal contact with many people and it can be truly said that George Wood made friends with everyone he called upon.

We held George in high regard and our association with him for several years was most delightful and we shall always cherish his memory and feel the richer for having made his acquaintance.

For the past few years the Wood family had been coming to the Theriault home at Barrachois, where they spent the summer in their trailer. We understand that Mr. Wood was to be transferred to Halifax in the same work and Mr. LeBlanc, was to take over the Cape Breton area.

Much credit goes to their eldest, son, Richard Wood for his heroic efforts to save the lives of his father, brother and Mr. LeBlanc.

The funeral service for the late Mr. Wood and his young son, took place from St. George's Church, Sydney, with Rev. H. Y. MacLean officiating. Burial took place in St. John, N. B., the home of the the late Mr. Wood.

The remains of the late Mr. LeBlanc was forwarded to his home in Moncton where the funeral was held.

MRS. BELLE BOURINOT

Mrs. Belle Bourinot, a highly respected resident of Port Hawkesbury, passed away on Wednesday at St. Martha's Hospital, Antigonish, where she had been a patient for some weeks.

She was the former Belle MacLeod, of Little Narrows, Victoria County and had resided in Port Hawkesbury for forty years. A very hospitable lady she will be greatly missed by her family and friends

Her husband, John J. Bourinot, predeceased her some years ago. Surviving is one son, John Bourinot, of Port Hawkesbury, who is the proprietor of the Canadian Tire Store, in that town. She is also survived by brothers and sisters and five grand children.

The funeral took place at St. Mark's United Church, with Rev. Roland Dempsey the pastor, officiating both, at the home and at the church. Mr. Dempsey in his address spoke of the part Mrs. Bourinot played in the life of the Church and that she was a devout Christian.

The funeral was largely attended by relatves and friends.

Burial was in the family lot at the United Church cemetary where Mr. Dempsey also conducted the burial service.

We extend our sincere sympathy to her son, John and his family; also to her brothers and sisters in their bereavement.

FROM HERE AND THERE

The mines of South Africa's city of Johannesburg have produced over a million tons of gold—enough to pave the streets of a good-sized city. At current prices, says Reader's Digest, the gold produced at Johannesburg is worth $20 billion—and billions are yet to come.

The dead are helping living victims of burns to recover more quickly, accordng to the July Reader's Digest. Surgeons are using skin taken from cadavers as temporary grafts to speed the healing of burned areas of skin and to lessen the amount of permanent grafting required.

Diary of a Vagabond by Dorothy Barker

A WARM WELCOME

Montreal, the largest city in Canada, has put out the welcome mat with a gay, warm gesture quickly felt by the thousands of visitors who have invaded its limits.

The mood is so contagious stranger greets stranger with a smile and even the bus drivers, coping with eager crowds going to Expo, or the weary ones returning, are cheerful and courteous under the most trying mob conditions. I have never seen crowds so well behaved. They are everywhere: in the shops, on the business thoroughfares of downtown Montreal and, of course, in a sea of humanity and constant motion on the acres of two islands devoted to Expo 67.

Something has happened to set this holiday mood. I think it is the exciting aura that seems to have permeated Montreal. I have been there many times and always been thrilled, especially during the past ten years, by its imaginative municipal development. but never before have I felt the warmth of its citizens as I did on my most recent visit.

Even Queen Elizabeth caught the friendly mood when she decided to remain at the fair, rather than return to her yacht, following Prime Minister Pearson's official luncheon. The protocol of her station dropped from her like a cloak and she was just another visitor enjoying the fun of Expo as she rode the minirail.

As I watched people in Place du Canada (part of the original Dominion Square) taking part in both round and square dances, I wondered: "why we don't do this more often?" Beside the platform where the band thumped merrily away at country music, is a small cottage surrounded by a white picket fence. In its flower bedded yard are tables where refreshments are served.

Gilded Sightseeing

The next morning, as we left our hotel, a golden chariot was waiting to take us on a sightseeing tour of the city. It is a huge open air vehicle whose chief competitors are glass domed busses owned by the same company, but not quite as popular on a hot summer day.

I wanted the children to see the Sailors' Church in Old Montreal, and ride up the mountain in a caleche drawn by a stodgy old mare with a red tassle bobbing on her forehead. They literally stuffed themselves with the goodies provided for the luncheon buffet in the Panorama Room atop the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Recharged, we climbed the steps leading to St. Joseph's Oratory. Unfortunately, the organ wasn't playing in the beautiful room beneath the dome as it had been on my first visit.

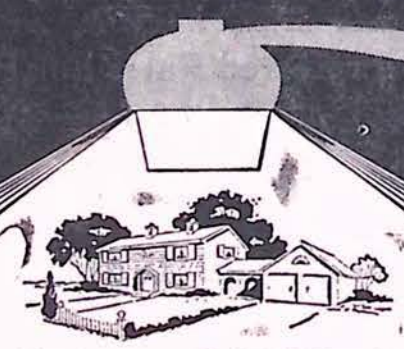

Reservations for dinner in a typically French restaurant were hard to come by, so we settled for lighter fare at a sidewalk cafe. Most shops were open that evening and we spent the last of our holiday funds in the little boutiques along Montreal's amazing thoroughfares beneath Place Ville Marie and Victoria Square.

We had hardly scratched the surface of all there is to see and do in Montreal. Five days, while looking forward, seemed like a lifetime to the children. Looking back, after they were gone, they regretted the hours they had spent sleeping.

When we return, sometime in the future, I wonder if there will be that same evidence of hospitality and joy, or whether Montrealers will have returned to that rather austere attitude peculiar to all large city dwellers.

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

OH, YOU KIDS

Langley, British Columbia, held a series of Pioneer Days, when all the clerks in all their stores wore the costumes of the last century, and many grandmothers dug deep in their trunks to find the old wedding gowns saved for just such occasions.

I saw a couple of very dignified and quite mature ladies wearing such dresses last week. On an impish impulse I stepped up to them and said, "Ladies, aren't you ashamed, going about the streets like that!" One of them looked down her aristocratic old nose at me and asked, "What on earth do you mean?"

"Well, "I said sternly, "when you stepped out of that store onto the street, I definitely caught a glimpse of a well-turned ankle?"

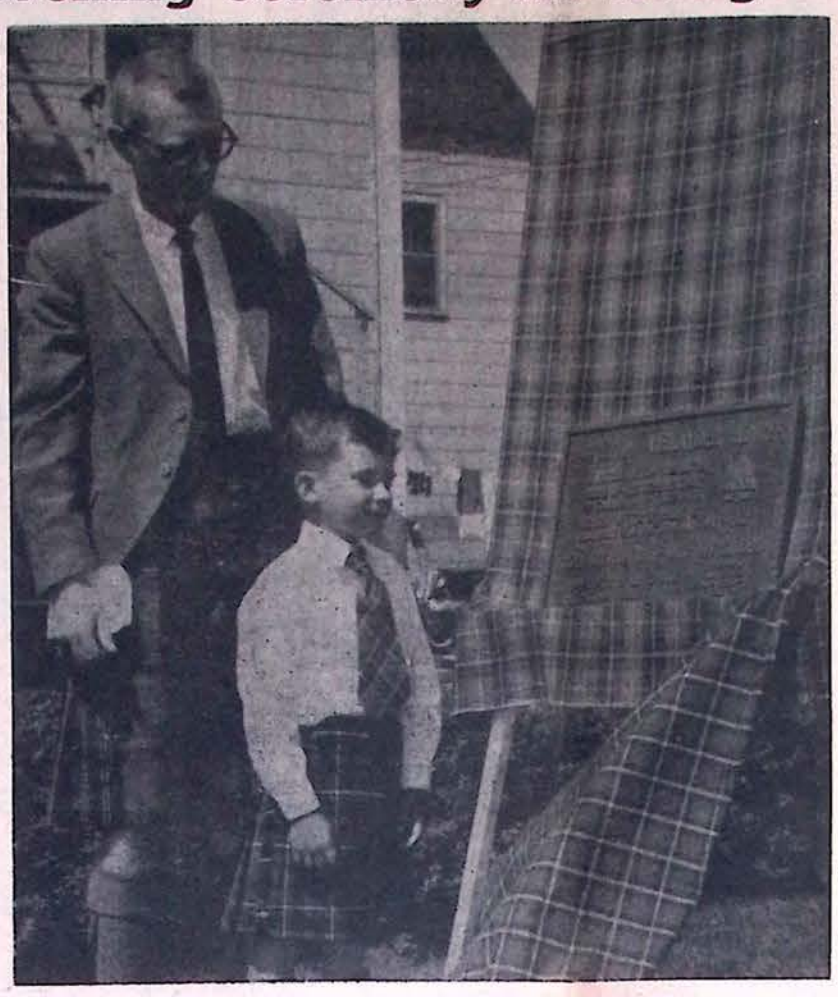

That broke them up into great gales of laughter, and much tittering. One of them—the eldest I think—fluttered her lashes at me and said, 'Young man, when a lady shows a well-turned ankle, a gentleman should have the propriety to take a well-turned glance —in the other direction!"

I was tempted to say, "23 skidoo and Oh, you kid!" but they were such lovely products of that era I minded my manners and went my way.

I went my way though, wondering if we haven't lost quite a bit in this modern mini-skirted society, compared with the old ways of ruffles and lace. True, we've made life easier with our modern inventions and technology, but few seem satisfied: they keep wanting more and more. There is nothing wrong with wanting more, but so many seem to want things without having to work for them. The few are producing for the many—and the many, instead of being thankful, appear to hate and detest the few who do the producing, and want to regiment or reduce them.

There was something fine about the old days when every man or woman capable of working was expected to do so or do without. I suppose saying that makes me an old reactionary fuddy-duddy in these modern days when the haloes are being handed around to the political activists who promise that governments will create uptopia in some way I cannot comprehend, sitting "dialogue-ing together" at Ottawa. I've often watched the doors of those buildings in Ottawa, but I've never seen an ounce of food, a pound of butter, a wheelbarrow or an automobile produced there! When is their slight-of-tongue going to create something we can consume?

NEW ASSOCIATION QUITE ACTIVE IN COUNTY

The Richmond County Community and Industrial Development Association, organized not so many weeks ago, have been quite active with the Officers, Executive and Committee Chairman and members of these committees have met on several occasions to discuss organization and plans for the future.

Mr. Stan Ellis, is president of the Association; Rev. Albert Doucet, Vice-President; Mrs. M. M. Terrio, Secretary-Treasurer and is assisted by Madam Tambon.

The purpose of the Association is to encourage community and industrial development within the County of Richmond and the Strait Area and much credit goes to Father Roach of the St. F. X. Extension Department for his guidance in the planning of housing areas as well as an educational program to help improve the standards of education, to enable our young people to fill jobs when the opportunity presents itself.

At a meeting of the Association held at the L'Ardoise School during the week, Rev. Father Roger, gave a very informative and descriptive talk on up-grading classes now being held at L'Ardoise and said that he was pleased at the progress being made to this date. Father Roger answered many questions and introduced two of the three teachers now employed at the L'Ardoise School, Mr. Touesnard who teaches Science and Mr. Martell who teaches Math. Both teachers gave very encouraging reports and members of the Association were much impressed with the project, which no doubt will be enlarged to enable more students to take up studies in the future.

In attendance at the meeting was Mr Hicks of the Department of Agriculture, who is stationed in the County and whose duties embodies that of education as well as various phases of Agriculture. He gave a very informative address.

PULP LOADED AT ST. PETER'S CANAL

Pulp loading operations are in full swing at St. Peter's Canal and the large freighter "Susan Constant" registered out of London England is being loaded this week.

Many pulp trucks and cargo workers created a busy scene in and around the dock of the canal loading the 1,680 cords of four foot length peeled pulp consigned to Three Rivers, Que., for the Canadian International Paper Company.

The loading of the pulpwood was a very interestng sight, with the large booms swung out to receive over 2 tons of pulp from the trucks and swung into place by skilful winch operators from the "Susan Constant".

This pulp came from a local stock yard and purchased from farmers and pulp operators from the County.

The "Susan Constant" is chartered by the Henderson Lumber Co., of Summerside, P. E. I., and will no doubt be loading more pulp at St. Peter's durng the summer and fall.

FATHER STANLEY MacDONALD FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS ORDINATION

BIG POND, C. B.—When Reverend Stanley MacDonald observes the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood here on August 6 during the observance of Centennial Week, attention will be drawn to another Canadan family which has contributed richly to church and country.

Born in the small community of Dunvegan, his Scottish father, Lewis MacDonald, was stipendiary for the town of Port Hood and magistrate for Inverness County. His French mother was Veronica Perry, whose father Hon. S. F. Perry was speaker of the Prince Edward Island Legislature, federal member for Prince and who signed the petition to the Queen bringing Prince Edward Island into Confederation; and whose mother Margaret Carroll, a native of Tipperary, Ireland.

This blend of racial lines based on a strong religious foundation formed a home in which the absence of wealth and modern conveniences was never considered a handicap, since their wealth was the home library and this lavishly served to nourish the intellectual appetites of all the children.

It was a home in which English, Gaelic and French was spoken, read and written. Veronica Perry who had never heard Gaelic before her marriage became proficient in its use by spoken or written word. Instead of being a divisive influence, this contrast of races in the one family gave the children the best of each of the cultures and fired the imagination of the budding students.

Included in the large family of ten boys and one daughter, besides Father MacDonald, were Angus L., former Premier of No va Scotia and Federal Minister of National Defence for Naval Affairs in the last war; Sister Mairi, C.N.D., Ph.D., presently of the staff of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish; Sheriff James Francis, Port Hood; William A., Supreme Court Justice of Alberta; John Lewis Port Hood; Donald Lewis, Pictou; Oswin, Barrister, Port Hood; Joseph Austin, Detroit; and Colin who died on the battlefield of Arras in 1918.

Father MacDonald who is now living in retirement in St. Anthony's Home, Sydney, was for many years parish priest of Big Pond where the Centennial observance is to take place from August 6-12. It is significant that one evening of the Centennial Week will be devoted to a "Voices of Canada" Concert in which many different ethnic groups will participate.

"We congratulate our very good friend, Father Stanley on the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood and we wish the beloved priest, many years of happiness in his retirement.—Editor."
