SUGAR AND SPICE

A BEACH SOLILOQUY

With summer on the wane — and boy, how it waned around here — I've made a discovery. With the minimum of encouragement, I could spend the rest of my life as a beach bum.

Never was much of a hound for the beach life before. As a boy, I swam in rivers and lakes, but not at beaches. Anyway, kids are too busy swimming and diving and horsing around to be bothered lying on a beach.

As I grew older, beaches still had little attraction. I just didn't like sitting in the sun. I don't tan I just sort of turn a burnt orange. Beaches were for women, little kids and old people I preferred golf or fishing.

Well, I'm not a woman or a little kid, so I must be turning into an old people. Someone will think unkindly, no doubt, that it's the advent of the bikini that has prematurely aged me. This is merely a half-truth. I'm not particularly addicted to the sight of navels, though some of the other stuff displayed is mildly interesting.

No, it's the other sights and sounds that fascinate me. Now, I don't like the huge, crowded, commercialized beach. It inspires in me, with its noise and clutter and bawling transistors and screaming humanity, nothing but nausea.

But the beach we go to, almost every day the sun shines, is not like that. It is clean sand and cool, blue water and friendly, relaxed people. There are no loud speakers bellowing the latest beat. There isn't a hot-dog stand or a motorcycle or a beer can in sight.

That doesn't mean it's as quiet as a church. The gulls wail, the mamas holler at their children, the kids scream and fight and cry. But when you stretch out on the sand after a dip and the sun bores into you, taking away the aches and the tensions, it's as though you were hearing it all through cotton wool.

For some reason, "our" beach has become a mecca for newcomers to Canada. Foreigners, as we used to call them in the old, unenlightened days. You can lie there all day and scarcely hear a word of English. And what a pleasant change that is. You could be at Odessa, on the Black Sea. My Hungarian and Polish and German have improved tremendously.

But they're great people. They love the sun, mind their own business, and pick up their junk when they leave, which is more than can be said of a good many tenth-generation Canadians.

It's fun to watch and listen. Over here are a couple of Italian grandmothers, in black dresses, both built about five by five, yattering away eighty miles an hour. Just over there is a majestic young woman with Slavic features, a baby, a bikini so sparse you couldn't blow your nose in it, and a bust that would knock your eye out. Maybe both of them.

Back up on the sand a bit is the teenage crowd. They too have discovered our beach this summer. About sixteen of them sprawled in a loose circle, heads together, indulging in harmless sex-play, laughing, punching, smoking and making their intricate plans for the evening. But they're decent youngsters, who apologize when they hit you on the head with their football. No hippies, thank the powers.

Here comes an elderly German gentleman who must have drunk half the beer west of the Berlin Wall to produce that magnificent pot. There's a young Jewish father spoiling his kids rotten. There's a Hungarian couple, tanned the colour of tar, with two beautiful blond urchins.

And speaking of urchins, this is the real fun of the beach. They are through, over and around the prone bodies. They build castles, and dams and forts. They hurl themselves into the water, shrieking with delight. And they're all so brown and firm and smooth you could eat them.

Why do all those darling, chubby five-year old girls have to turn into bored, neurotic, harassed women? Why do all those careless, sturdy, happy little devils of boys turn into hard, suspicious, ulcerated men?

A good question. But I still haven't told you why I like the beach so much. I've discovered that it's the only place in the world where my wife will shut her mouth for two or three hours at a stretch.

Inspector Clifford E. Edwards Honoured by Home and School Federation with Life Membership

At a banquet given by the Government of Ontario during the month of June at the Lord Simcoe Hotel, Toronto, Mr. Clifford E. Edwards, Inspector of Schools for Annapolis-Digby, was awarded an Honorary Life Membership in the Canadian Home and School Federation "for outstanding service rendered in the promotion of the ideals of Home and School". This is the first time in the history of the Federation that this high award was made to a member of the Federation while still holding office. Mr. Edwards is Chairman of the Federation's Audio-Visual Education Committee, which position he has held for three non-consecutive terms of three years each, dating back to 1954. In addition he has served as Legislation Chairman, 1960, and as Eastern Vice-President, 1962-1964.

Guest speaker at this function was Dr. McCarthy, Deputy Minister of Education, Ontario. The Honourable William G. Davies, Minister of Education, who also addressed the gathering, made reference to the outstanding controbution of the Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation to the development of Canadian Educational Television. He made particular reference to Mr. Edwards' television presentation the evening before over Channel 11, during which Mr. Edwards urged that VHF channels be made available for educational television, as well as new UHF channels soon to be opened up. The program of the Federation was interpreted through a one hour CBC radio program in which Mr. Edwards took part.

The Citation accompanying the award presented to Mr. Edwards was prepared by Mr. Jack Sands, Past President of the Canadian Federation and read by Mrs. Marjorie Hallman, President of the Nova Scotia Federation. The presentation was made by Mr. Vince Madder the Federation's President.

The Citation reads as follows:

CITATION

Mr. Clifford Edward Edwards

During its many years, the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation has been served well by many of its members, but it is difficult to find anyone who has given such wholehearted and concentrated dedication as has Clifford Edwards.

Cliff is known throughout the Federation as a specialist in audio-visual methods since he has contributed immeasurably to our knowledge and standing in this field. Over the past ten years he has frequently represented us with the Canadian Broadcasting Company and the National Film Board. In 1962 and again in 1964 he represented Canada at international conferences in Oslo and Vienna on Screen Education. He is one of the few vocal advocates of this advance in education in education in this country. Our recognition and involvement in the fields of educationl television, children's films, and quality television programming are due largely to his persistent and diligent efforts.

With the same dedication and enthusiasm, Cliff has become an outstanding educator in his home province of Nova Scotia. For the past fifteen years he has been Inspector of Schools as well as an ardent supporter of Home and School and Parent-Teacher activities in his own area. From 1947 to 1962 he was Adult Education Representative and prior to that was teacher and principal.

His service to the Canadian Federation dates back more than ten years during which time he has been Audio-Visual Education Chairman, Legislation Chairman, and Eastern Vice-President. His association with Home and School goes back far beyond that in local and provincial organizations where he has served in many capacities.

Buoyant and Expanding Economy

Travelling, as I have, across Canada this summer it seems to me this is the nation's greatest "promotion year". Such things as Montreal's Expo '67 and Winnipeg's recently completed Pan American Games have made the world more aware of us as a thriving, prosperous country.

Later on this month the province of Saskatchewan will do a little promoting of its own with Index '67 — a major industrial and mineral symposium designed to illustrate the province's diversified development.

It has been said it took a depression to awaken this province to its economic potential while others give credit to a national post-war boom. But surely a large part of the credit is due to the province's citizens and government.

It is their vision and imagination which have inspired such undertakings as Index '67.

The symposium will point out that wheat is no longer Saskatchewan's single industry. There are vast resources of natural gas, lignite coal, clay of all types, 40,000 square miles of commercial forest uranium and a large iron ore deposit. The province boasts Canada's only helium plants, the only source of natural sodium sulphate, over 30 percent of the country's petroleum requirements and over half of the world's total supply of potash.

Transportation Emphasized

Among the exhibitors at Index '67 will be CN. This company has chosen 'co-operation' as its theme. There will be illustrations and models of the railway's specialized freight car fleet and two movies— 'MOVIN' ' which touches upon several aspects of rail freight transportation and 'Potash Boom', which speaks for itself.

It is appropriate that CN has taken such an interest in Index '67 for the railway has contributed largely to the development of the province. The potash industry, for example, has benefited from CN's specialized fleet of freight cars while railway-built spur lines help tap the resource-rich areas of Saskatchewan.

It is interesting to note that thousands of tons of pulpwood per year will move over a recently completed eight-mile spur line serving the Prince Albert Pulp Mill. Also that a new all-time high for single day grain loading at CN points in the province was established on June 27 when a total of 788 grain cars were loaded with more than a million and a half bushels.

Stepped up production is proving Saskatchewan's bonanza. Besides its annual agricultural prospects, it is developing a wider interest among Canada's citizens with its industrial development.

Index '67 is intended to be a showcase, not only to exhibit the Cinderella story of what potash and wheat have accomplished in enriching the economy but, how investment has been attracted to this Prairie Province — especially during the past decade in the development of manufacturing and other allied industries.

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

If Henry Ford glances down occasionally from the blue vaults of Heaven I am sure he'll take a second look at Greenhorn Farm, and smile the broadest smile of any angel among the heavenly hordes. My front meadow, and my middle pasture no longer present a straggly, weed infested picture; they've been mowed.

You've guessed it. This greenhorn farmer finally convinced the family and himself that we could afford a tractor. It arrived with a little fanfare, too. Mr. Don Lywood, who is the Ford tractor man in British Columbia, came along when it was delivered. He, too wanted to be around when I piloted that little Ford tractor into the meadows for the first time.

I love it like a brother.

After a few turns around the meadow, watching the weeds go tumbling down I came back to the yard and Nora brought out the camera and took a picture of me breaking the hoe over my knee. I may never touch another hoe or swing another scythe as long as I live! The place for my tired old bottom is on the soft seat of that tractor and that's just where I propose to settle it most of the time.

We had fabulously wonderful weather in June, with long days of unbroken sunshine. My neighbour, Gerry Brooks, made hay and the aroma drifted our way, turning me green with envy because our pastures will take a great deal of care before they'll yield a crop like his. We'll manage it though, now that I've the proper equipment.

And I am getting wonderful help and advice from the department of agriculture. They seem very patient. I haunt their offices in Cloverdale, ask crazy questions by the hundreds, but they keep answering.

Farming is such a busy life, so involved and thrilling, that we've not yet managed to take in Expo 67. Our daughter, though, lives in Montreal and writes us long, enthusiastic letters about it. If we had unlimited funds, we could fly down and still be back in time to keep the peas and beans weeded but they couldn't be left for long. They are just holding their own even with my help.

LEO BOUDREAU IN VIET-NAM

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Boudreau of Arichat, received word from their son P.F.C. Leo Boudreau, now in Vietnam with the 173rd U. S. Airborne Batillion. Leo reports that the weather at this time of the year is very wet and one could tell this, because he wrote his letter on a folded carton.. Other types of paper absorb the dampness and in a wet season in that particular country it becomes almost impossible to use ordinary writing paper.

Leo prior to joining the American Army, was a crew member of an oil tanker.

Leo reports that he is in good health and our best wishes are extended to our young friend.

VISITING IN ADDISON

Mrs. Ivan Shaw and youngest daughter, Ruth, are visiting Mrs. Shaw's mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Mason, of Addison, Maine.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

We had a visit on Monday, of Prof. Hill of England, who just arrived in Nova Scotia, to take on duties at Mount St. Vincent, Halifax, as an English teacher at that College.

Mr. Hill informed us that a great uncle, Frederick Carne Hill, came to Canada over 130 years ago, and operated sailing ships along the Eastern Atlantic Seaboard and while in Arichat Harbour in 1834 was taken very ill with pneumonia. He was taken ashore to some home at the port and passed away shortly after.

Mr. Hill told us that he felt his uncle would have been buried in St. John's Anglican cemetery at Arichat.

We were happy to show him the bburial records which date back from 1828 to the present day and are all intact and in good condition.

Prof. Hill was surprised to find the record of his uncle's death and the burial service which was conducted by the Rev. James Allen Shaw, the frst rector of the parish.

From what information Prof. Hill could gather, he was convinced that the Rev. James Allen Shaw took his uncle to his home and cared for him before his passing.

Prof. Hill told us that his family back in England were most grateful to the kind people of Archat, to the attention given their late uncle and for the Christain burial given to a sea captian far removed from his native land and loved ones.

We are proud of the records of St. John's Parish and have often searched these records for relatives of former parishioners from various parts of Canada, United States and Jersey in the Channel Islands.

We are more convinced than ever that records of the past are valuable memorials and should be preserved.

The late Joseph Howe, a great Nova Scotia statesman once said: "A wise Nation preserves its records, decorates the graves of its illustrious dead and fosters national pride and love of country by perpetual references to the sacrifices and glories of the past."

Prof. and Mrs. Hill and young son were in India before coming to Canada, where they will take residence at Halifax. It was nice meeting this delightful family.

WEDDING

MARCHAND — EMMERSON

Wearing a full length gown of silk organza over taffeta, Carol Lynn Emmerson became the bride of Joseph Cecil Marchand in a double-ring ceremony in Holy Cross R. C. Church on July 22nd. The Church was decorated with white gladioli and pink carnations.

The bridal gown had an A-line skirt and a bodice of chantilly lace trimmed with rhinestones and sequins. Her net shoulder-length veil was held by a crown of organza rosebuds trimmed with pearls and rhinestones and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and sweetheart roses. She was given in marriage by her uncle, William Hayes.

Mrs. Bette Perkins was matron of honor for her niece and the groom's sister, Miss Marlene Marchand of Brampton, was bridesmaid. They wore floor length gowns of sapphire blue silk boucle and chantilly lace with empire waistline and lace bodices. They wore lace pillbox headdresses of sapphire blue with matching veiling and carried bouquets of pink carnations and white roses.

Father Moss of the School for the Deaf, Milton, officiated and Mrs. W. Mulder was organist. The groom's cousin Phil Boudreau of Mimico was groomsman and the ushers were the bride's brother-in-law, Hugh Jackson of Hillburgh; Preston Wolfe, Rexdale and Joseph Chiasson of Georgetown.

A reception was held following the ceremony. The bride's mother wore a gold dress with matching lace coat and a corsage of bronze baby mums. The groom's mother wore a light blue lace dress, with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of white and pink baby mums.

Wedding guests included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. A. Hayes, Georgetown and Mrs. Wm. Emmerson, Hillsburgh. Other guests were from Petit de Grat, N. S., Toronto, Georgetown, Milton, Brampton, Orangeville, Oakville, Rexdale, Mimico, Guelph, Stouffville, Hillsburgh, Gravenhurst, Halifax, King City and Belleville.

The couple left on a honeymoon trip travelling by boat from Montreal to the east coast and then a motor trip through the eastern states. The bride wore an aqua blue linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Emmerson of Orangeville, formerly of Georgetown, and is employed at the School for the Deaf in Milton. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Godfrey Marchand of Brampton, formerly of Petit de Grat and is employed in Brampton with Chubb, Mosler & Taylor Safes.

Their many friends wish them every happiness.

RECEIVES HONORARY LIFE MEMBERSHIP

At present he is a member of the Board of Directors of the Nova Scotia Federation.

One of Cliff's lesser known capabilities is the fact that he is bilingual, having majored in French for his Bachelor of Arts Degree at Acadia University, and for his Master of Arts Degree at McGill. However, when he started to work for his doctorate at Columbia University it was in the field of Educational Administration.

The Canadian Federation is fortunate to have the services of such dedicated educators as Clifford Edwards and is proud to present him for Life Membership at the 1967 Annual Meeting.

(Inspector Edwards was born in Arichat where he received his High School Education and is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Edwards. A most successful educator, we are proud of his many accomplishments and congratulate him on his Citation as an honorary life member in the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation.—Editor.)

BOAT ON THE GO

BORDEN—When the big car ferry Abegweit cleared the terminal at Borden, Prince Edward Island on Monday morning, August 14, she was celebrating her 20th birthday in Canadian National service.

Her name means "resting on the waters." But the people of Prince Edward Island, the Abegweit has meant dependable all-weather ling across Northumberland Strait for the past two decades. And she hasn't been resting.

The Aegweit's trips across the strait between Borden and Cape Tormentine would have carried her around the world nearly 30 times.

She has made 71,522 crossings, and with her trails, delivery and refit steaming, she has logged 734,904 miles. She has ferried more than 7,000,000 passengers across the strait, more than 2,000,000 vehicles, and at least 700,000 freight cars.

She has been described as the workhorse of CN's Northumberland Strait ferry fleet, and is.

There are three other ships in the CN fleet serving Prince Edward Island —t he Confederation, the Prince Edward Island and Scotia II. A new car ferry, the John Hamilton Gray is being built in Sorel, Que., to join the service next year.

MORE PEOPLE ON CN TRAINS THIS YEAR

MONCTON — Already this year Canadian National has carried almost 17,000 more passengers on its Maritimes-Montreal trains than in the same period last year.

This figure was released recently as CN marked a milestone in its Expo year traffic at Montreal —the arrival of the millionth passenger on its Montreal-Toronto services this year.

Appropriately, the 38th passenger to setp off the morning Rapido from Toronto—the person indicated CN computers as being the millionth passenger of the year—proved to be a Don Mills housewife on her way to Expo. The lucky passenger, Mrs. A. Longmuir, received a set of luggage from o CN official to mark the event.

Last year the millionth passenger on the Toronto-Montreal run was not recorded until November. Thanks mainly to Expo, traffic on this run is showing a 31 per cent increase over 1966. On the Monteral-Quebec service, the increase is 147 per cent, and the Montreal-Vancouver is up by 15 per cent.

PRESENTATION—Hon W. S. K. Jones presents a plaque to Thomas McPherson, Purcell's Cove, for the largest euna caught by rod and reel anywhere in the world in 1966. Mr. MacPherson's catch weighed 810 pounds and was taken off Halifax in a boat captained by Frank W. Keddy. Mr. McPherson has landed four tuna in the past three years—the smallest weighing 692 pounds. Shown, left to right, are Mr. Jones, who presented the plaque on behalf of the Nova Scotia Travel Bureau; Capt. Keddy, and Mr. McPherson.
