Carlo Mancini Dies At St. Peters

After a short illness Carlo Mancini, of St. Peter's, died recently at the age of 98 years.

The late Mr. Mancini was a native of Italy and came to St. Peter's several years ago and took up residence with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mr. Joe Mancini, who tenderly cared for him and where other members of his family reside.

We were personally acquainted with the late Mr. Mancini and although he was unable to carry on a conversation in English, we gathered that he was lonely for his native Italy, however, the love shown him by members of his family, made his residence in Canada quite delightful and his daily visits to his son's Cosy Corner Restaurant at St. Peter's, gave him an opportunity to greet people he became acquainted with. He kept in touch with his country by reading Italian newspapers.

He was a familiar resident of St. Peter's and his friendly greeting will be missed by all who knew the kindly gentleman who had nearly reached the century mark.

Accompanied by Father Doucet, Warden Langley, Councillor Le-Brun and Municipal Clerk and Treasurer Thomson, we visited the Mancini home prior to the funeral and the many friends that had gathered there and the floral offerings and Mass cards, was evidence of the respect held for the late Mr. Mancini.

His wife predeceased him, surviving are four sons and one brother, D. V. Mancini of North Sydney.

The funeral which was largely attended took place from St. Peters Catholic Church, St. Peter's.

We extend our sincere symapthy to the bereaved family in the passing of a beloved father.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS

There's an old superstition that things, good or bad in sequence of three. I'm inclined to respect it.

During the war, casualties on my squadron always seemed to follow the pattern. We'd lose a pilot today, perhaps two the next day, then none for a week. Then three more.

It happened to me. One day I was shot to ribbons, by flak. Had to land at 140 miles an hour. No flaps, no brakes. Fortunately, I remembered a movie. Jammed on throttle, jumped on the rudder, and groundlooped just short of a nasty ditch.

Two days later, I had a bomb hang, and had to land with a 500-lb. bomb, fused and ready to go, dangling from my left wing. That was the smoothest landing ever made in World War II. The only thing that was a bit disconcerting was that the control tower made me land, not on the landing strip, but on the grass beside it, so that I wouldn't ruin their runway when I blew up.

The very next day I was shot down.

This business if things happening in threes is still going on. Monday the furnace goes on the blink. Tuesday your wife gets ugly about the garbage or something. Wednesday, some jerk creases your car in the parking lot.

Even the good things come in threes. And that's what happened to me this week. Three delightful opportunities for the week-end I can only take one of them. Sickening.

First of all, I signed up to help supervise a trip to Expo from our school. This in itself should prove a fairly hairy experience. Can't you see me marching up and down the halls of a monastery in middle of the night, in my pyjamas and raincoat, trying to prevent boys from being boys, and girls from being girls.

I'd just committed myself to this when old Australian buddy, "Dutch," phoned to remind me that this was the week-end of that ancient and hororable bash known as the Canadian Fighter Pilots' reunion. Same place, Montreal. And he had booked me on a flight to and from the flesh-pots of that fair city.

I was sorely tempted to withdraw from the kiddies, excursion, go to the wing-ding, and take two weeks to get over it as usual. But my wife said, "You're not going You always come home looking like a skeleton." And that was that.

Resigned, and feeling quite noble, I was packing my stuff for the Expo trip, and patting myself on the back for doing my duty, rather than my pleasure, when number three came up An invitation to be a judge in a beauty contest on Saturday.

This is one I've been waiting for for years. I've judged essay contests, public speaking contests,apple pie contests at the fall fair, and for three years have been a judge for the Leacock Award for humor.

But I've never had a chance to just sit there and gwp at those cute kids, leering inside and pretending I chose the winner because of her talent, rather than the way she parts her chest.

All I can say is, "Shucks!" And all I need now is for Mike Pearson to call up and say I've been appointed to the Senate, provided I can be there Saturday morning to be sworn in.

Oh, I haven't given up entirely, I could go with the kids to Expo, slide over to the fighter pilots' party, skip the bus ride home and catch a plane to the beauty contest.

But I think they'd probably bury me the next day. On the other hand, that might not be a bad idea. I'm not long for this world anyway. Not unless my wife cools it out a bit about going to college.

Last Friday night she came home all fired up about her course. At 4 a.m. Saturday, I was reading the part of Socrates in Plato's Dialogues. And had to rise at seven to get Kim to her bus for music lesson.

SWEET SUCCESS

My experience in the candy making field has been strictly limited to fudge for the annual church bazaar—or a candy pull for the youngsters when they got in my hair on a rainy afternoon. The taffy usually ended up in their hair and the instigator of such foolishness a total wreck.

This never lessened my curiousity as to how professional candy manufacturers do those creamy fondant centres so neatly encased in a coating of delicious cholcolate. I witnessed the process as a visitor to a Maritime Industry recently, and even learned how jelly beans are polished.

I have a nose that appreciates enchanting odors. Such as the perfume of roses on a dewy morning, the aroma of deep-brown stew simmering on the stove, and the smell of warm chocolate Umm.. it wafted up to me as I descended Citadel Hill in Halifax. I followed it like a dog hunting for a buried bone until I arrived in front of Moirs Limited. This is the company, which, for years, has satisfied many a sweet tooth of the nation with a confection they label "XXX chocolate coating formula".

Moirs Limited has quite a history starting with a small bake shop on the very corner of Argyle and Duke Streets, where one end of its main factory now stands. Benjamin Moir, in the early part of the 1800's made a name for himself because he had the know-how to produce a crusty loaf of bread which even then, more than a century ago, established the firm's tradition of superior quality. His son, William C., when he took over the business, expanded into the fancy biscuit market and thereby created the first wholesale item manufactured by Moir's. Later, in a small corner of his father's bakery, the third generation, James W. Moir, a mere youth at the time, started experimenting with candy making.

At first his success was with hard candies until business and his ambition dictated a wider selection of sweets. It was this member of the Moir dynasty that perfected the chocolate formula that is still used on the wide variety of candy and that has made their "POT OF GOLD" boxed chocolates so popular.

Moirs Limited has weathered the Halifax Explosion of 1917, fires, the depression, and the possible take-over of another candy manufacturing concern. A group of young Halifax businessmen, loath to see this happen, banded together and bought the business. The group headed by Frank M. Covert, Q.C., who later became president.

It is interesting to note, that in 1925, when the firm celebrated its 100th anniversary the average age of its employees was 60 years. Today it is 31, with a young, enthusiastic general manager, Boll Jack, heading its staff of 800 employees while guiding its destiny through

NATIVE CAPE BRETONER LONGS FOR SEA AT CENTURY MARK

Capt. Charles Harris, now in his 100th year a native of Gabarus Bay, Cape Breton, but now residing in Victoria, B.C., longs for the smell of the sea and would go sailing again "if I was 10 years younger."

Capt. Harris, who now lives with his daughter, Margaret, in Victoria, B.C., celebrated his 100th birthday by going to the waterfront and smelling the salt, and recalling the days when he was a young sailor rounding the Horn.

At 22, he sailed on the schooner, Sapphire from Nova Scotia around Cape Horn, and up to Victoria. The trip took eight months from June 1887 to Feb. 14, 1888.

"We had rough water all the way. It was awfully bad in the Pacific."

LOST FOOTING

He almost didn't make it. "I was furling one of the sails when I lost my foothold If I hadn't grabbed a rope, I would have been tossed overboard."

Capt. Harris was born in Gabarus Bay, Cape Breton, and started his sailing career out of the port of Gabarus where many sailing ships operated out of that port in the early days of shipping, along the Eastern Atlantic seaboard. Capt. Harris was a born seaman and being in search for adventure went to the Victoria when he was 22 "because I married the captain's daughter and she lived here," he decided to settle in that city.

He served on two sealing schooners, the Maybelle and the Mary Turner. For some time he commanded the salvage tug Salvor and then became a B. C. coast pilot.

PILOTED HOOD

In 1926 he piloted the H.M.S. Hood, the largest British battleship afloat, into Victoria harbor.

"I got her in on my own although the pilot boat helped a lot," he said.

For his pilot work Capt. Harris received a citation from the Royal Navy. He retired in 1937. Since then he has made a few "cruises" as a passenger in coastal aircraft because "flying is much more exciting than travelling by boat."

Capt. Harris has a nephew, Fred F. Harris of White Head, Guysborough County, and a niece, Mrs. Leslie Manning of Yarmouth.

THE ERNIE GAME

First of two CBC-National Film Board color film dramas to be seen on CBC-TV's Festival series this season is THE ERNIE GAME, the story of a youth who wants to play the game of life by his own rules. In this scene from the production, Alexis Kanner and Judith Gault are seen as Ernie and Donna, the girl who befriends him. The setting is present-day Montreal, where the entire movie was shot on location.

IN HOSPITAL

Peter LeVesconte of the staff of the Compensation Board, Halifax, is at present a patient at the Infirmary, Halifax.

We are happy to report that Peter is much improved in health and we join with his many friends in wishing him a speedy recovery.

Peter who is a very efficient official has been on the office staff of the Nova Scotia Compensation Board for the past several years

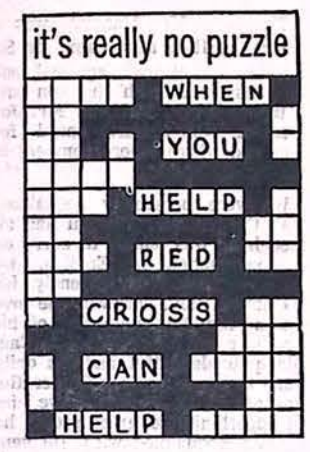

Mr. and Mrs. LeVesconte reside in Dartmouth where Mrs. LeVesconte is on the teaching staff of one of the schools in that city.

ANNUAL POPPY CAMPAIGN

The Annual Poppy Campaign is now on and members of the Royal Canadian Legion Branches, all over Canada are soliciting orders for wreaths from business men, church organizations, fraternal organizations as well as individuals. The usual poppy sale will also be a big factor this year, because the Royal Canadian Legion has introduced a new style poppy and its expected that over seven million of our Canadians will wear a poppy during poppy week, November 6 to 11th. in Remembrance of over 100,000 Canadians who gave their lives for your home, your family. Will you remember them by wearing a poppy?

Our local Branch 150 Royal Canadian Legion are making preparations for Rembrance Day and anything you can do to help the Branch we are sure will be greatly appreciated.

Harold Boudreau a valued member of Branch 150 Royal Canadian Legion has been soliciting orders for wreaths and he informs us that the response has been very good this year and is much appreciated.

HEALTH HINTS INDIGESTION AND PATENT MEDICINES

Different people associate different symptoms with indigestion, the Canadian Medical Association reports.

The most common symptoms are pain in the stomach and chest, fullness or bloating in the abdomen an excessive amount of gas, heartburn, loss of appetite and even nausea. Most people find these symptoms occurring soon after meals, and more frequently after eating certain foods. Sometimes they associate headache and constipation with indigestion.

There are many patent medicines available without prescription which are supposed to be useful in the relief of any or all of these symptoms. The three main groups are antacids, laxative and headache remedies.

Antacids are taken to conteract the effect of the hydrochloric acid normally present in the stomach. Taking large amounts of antacid may, however, disturb the chemical balance of the body and cause such complications as kidney stones.

The constant taking of laxatives to relieve constipation may interfere with the absorption from the intestine of vitamins and other important food factors.

Some of the drugs commonly used in headache tablets have been shown to cause inflammation of the kidneys.

The C.M.A. says, these are but three examples of why it is unwise for people to administer to themselves large amounts of patent medicines. The other very important factor, of course, is that the symptoms they are treating may be due to an underlying disease. It would be more sensible for the individual to consult his doctor.

DAIRY OF A VAGABOND

the perilious shoals of rising prices for ingredients, and increased taxes.

This candy-making concern is big business for Halifax. It not only imports millions of pounds of sugar by boat and rail, but Canadian National also acts as a carrier for the shipment of thousands of pounds of candy every year across Canada and in the eastern United States. In fact, if the quantity of sugar Moir's uses each year (some nine million pounds) were located in box cars, they would stretch from Halifax to Bedford, some nine miles distant along CN's tracks.

Bill Jack would be happy to purchase Canadian sugar for candy making if the beets could be economically grown and processed in the area. At present most of the sugar used is cane, and comes from England.

NUTRITIOUS

Bill Jack's enthusiasm for his product during our interview and my tour of the factory convinced me that candy is a most nutritious food. It gives quick energy and overcomes that tired feeling that so often overtakes us during the day. This is recognized by the inclusion of candy in ration kits for servicemen, in survival packages for woods travellers and others who may have to survive on a minimum of food stuffs.

A piece of candy eaten before a meal will lessen the required intake of other foods to what is called "satisfy hunger". It is well known by all parents how candy, if eaten just before mealtime, will spoil the child's appetite. It will do the same thing for adults, and can thus make it easier for us to eat less at our meals. Maybe it can be a form of dietary control.

FROM MONTAUK

Mr. and Mrs. Clement LeVesconte, of Montauk, N. Y., were recent vacation visitors to Isle Madame and while here were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mauger, Cape La Ronde. Mrs. Mauger is a cousin of Mr. LeVesconte.

Clem is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lennox LeVesconte of D'Escousse and took up residence in Montauk some years ago. Both he and his good wife always enjoy their visits to Isle Madame and both friends and relatives were pleased to see them after an absence of two years.

They also visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John LeVesconte, St. Peters.
