Jack Yazer of Sydney, Leading Community Worker

We have followed the many promotions headed by Jack Yazer, a prominent Sydney business man, through the medium of the daily press, radio and television and we have gathered some material to write a descriptive story on Jack's life, since coming to Canada from his native Poland in 1929, At that time, he was only 15 years old and the advancement made by this man is worthy of the highest praise.

Jack started from the bottom and we mean just this - because his early venture in the business world, was on foot carrying a pack of small wares, which he sold to customers in Northern Cape Breton. His total English Vocabulary at that time was "Can't Speak", what he really meant, he was unable to speak English. Anxious to learn, it wasn't too long before he could master enough English to help him as a travelling salesman, among the kindly people of Highland Cape Breton.

For some time, Jack continued to sell his merchandise on foot, however, his honest dealings won for him the highest respect of his patrons, and it wasn't too long before he purchased a horse and wagon, to continue his business endeavors, which later won for him a permanent place in the business life of his adopted Cape Breton. He displayed the same devotion as that of the early settlers who live in the Highland hills where Jack Yazer received the kindness and hospitality he has never forgotten when he first entered Canada, to make his way in a new land.

Jack Yazer was chosen to attend the "Canadian Conference On The Family In 1964". and the following is what he had to say:

" came to Canada from Poland when I was about 15 years old, and my total English vocabulary was "Can't Speak".

Since then I shared in the blessings of this great country, and only here could a person who became a Canadian Citizen have been chosen to attend the "Canadian Conference on the Family in 1964." sponsored by His Excellency and Madame Vanier.

It was one of the greatest experiences of my life, and I encourage everyone here to share in the rewarding experience of working to strengthen family life.

As in the conference on the family, we, on the local scene are also working toward the stabilization of the Canadian Family.

On behalf of the local committee for family life which has sponsored this function, I wish to thank everyone who assisted with the arrangements. The interest and cooperation was most generous and for this we are very grateful."

Jack was brought over from Poland by his brother, Mendle, and by his sister, to both of whom, he is most grateful. His brother, Mendle, operated a clothing store in Sydney Mines and took Jack in as a partner.

At the end of 1941, Jack joined the Canadian Army and on his return, he and his brother, Mendle, opened the Charlotte Street Store in Sydney, which is one of the most up-to-date in the City, handling a complete line of men's and boy's clothing. Jack together with his experienced staff has won the highest respect of hundreds of customers throughout Cape Breton and well deserves the name "The Friendly Store."

Jack Yazer has taken the lead in many worthwhile projects and is also associated with fraternal and community service organizations. Following are some of his endeavors:

A member of the Sydney Mines Independent Order of Oddfellows; Organized the Yazer Junior Hockey Team which brought the first championship to the Northside town in 1939-40; Joined the Canadian Army during the Second World War and was married while in uniform. On his return continued in business and opened the Sydney Store; Became a member of the Sydney Rotary Club in 1950 and for two years headed up the Easter Seals Campaign, both of which were most successful; A member of the Colby Home and School Association and was chosen President of the Association. His work in the Association was outstanding; As Campaign Chairman for the Red Cross in the City of Sydney, his efforts brought forth the greatest results, with the exception of the war years; He was also Vice-Chairman of the Canadian Cancer Society in the City; Was a member of the Sydney Board of Trade Council for nearly 12 years; Jack lined up Ward 3 and 4 for the T. B. Mobile X-Ray Unit and records show the largest turnout in recent years; Mr. Yazer, who is a charitable and kindly man, headed a Campaign to raise funds for two children to be sent to a Boston Hospital; Two years ago he raised money for a man to undergo a serious heart operation in Toronto, which was most successful; Jack, who was President of the Temple Sons of Israel for five years, headed the Israeli Bond drive once and also headed the United Jewish Appeal, twice; Was President of the Cape Breton Children's Aid Society for five years, and his work in this field was outstanding; Mr. Yazer was selected as one of the Representatives from Cape Breton to attend "The Conference on the Family" in Ottawa, sponsored by the late Governor General Vanier and Mrs. Vanier. Mr. Yazer attended this Conference and was much impressed; He also drafted the "Yazer Plan", a new two-point system for drivers which was approved and accepted by the Sydney Board of Trade and modified by the Nova Scotia Government. Mr. Yazer, in presenting this plan, felt it would eventually save many lives on our highways; He is also responsible for a City parking lot.

JACK YAZER

One of the biggest projects was, Mr. Yazer's heading of the "Centennial Sports Centre" in Sydney, which, when completed will be a credit to the City and to Mr. Yazer and his committee. Rumor is prevalent that Jack will also head a committee to undertake the building of a Sports Centre at the Pier in Sydney. We have no confirmation on this, but if the rumor is true, we can rest assured that Mr. Yazer will do his part in promoting such a project.

The following was received by Mr. Yazer, from the Dept. of Manpower and Immigration, which extended congratulations to him as 'Man of the Year'.

"Your enthusiasm in all efforts have always been recognized by your friends at the Canadian Manpower Centre, Sydney".

Beautiful dreamers

We had quite a discussion in class the other day about dreams: School kids have a natural reluctance to revealing their inner selves, especially to teachers and parents, but after we got warmed up, I was wishing I'd had a tape recorder. It was fascinating. It removed barriers.

The whole thing was sparked by a short passage of poet Dylan Thomas's recollections of childhood, in which life is as jumbled and unreal as a dream. It ends, "The memories of childhood have no order, and no end."

Thomas dreamed, Later in life, that he could fly, as a child. I've had this dream many times, and I waken from it feeling wonderful, but then a terrible sadness comes over me as I realize it was just a dream.

Some of the kids have had the same dream. It takes different forms. Some flap their arms until they gain altitude, then just sort of glide. Mine is always the same. I take a long, running broad-jump, and by sheer will power, keep my feet from touching down again. I never get more than 10 inches off the ground, but I'm flying, swiftly and easily and surely - swooping around obstacles and absolutely free of the surly earth.

One boy admitted a recurrent dream in which he is at bat in the World Series, bases loaded, a home run needed to win the game. Seventy thousand people are screaming, "Come on, Dan! You can do it." Then comes the sick realization that the mob is his mother, shaking him and saying, "Come on, Dan! Come on, Dan! Time to get up for school."

Same chap confessed to a dream that would fascinate Siggy Frued. He was buying a new pair of pants. Tried them on, took them off for the tailoring, came out and found his old pants gone. He walked all the way home with no pants, and wasn't the least bit embarrassed.

A girl confessed that she often dreams that she is the centre of things, a big Broadway star just about to launch into the greatest musical in history, with every eye on her. She is the girl least likely to be a great star, though a delightful person who will make an excellent nurse, a grand wife and mother.

Another girl has nightmares about big dogs who are always going to eat her. Still another dreams of cowboys and Indians, and she's always the cowboy. And by golly, she looks like a cowboy. She's long-legged and laconic, a Grade 12 Gary Cooper who needs only a hand-rolled Bull Durham smoke to complete the image.

Another boy dreams that he has had a sword run through him, but doesn't feel a thing. From there we get into the business of whether or not you can feel and smell and hear in dreams, whether they're in color. Then we get into the theory that if you have a nightmare, and actually hit bottom at the end of that fall; or that the monster catches up with you, you'll die because your heart will stop.

This kid came up to me today and said, "Sir, last night I dreamt I fell six storeys and I hit bottom, and I didn't die."

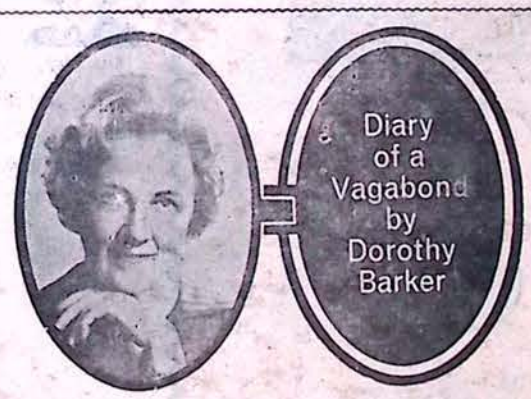

"Did you bounce?," I enquired, "or did you unconsciously spread your wings and land gently?"

"Nope, I landed hard, but I just lay there, all sort of spread out, but not hurting and not dead. I was trying to jump into a puddle and I missed it."

"Glad you're still with us," I countered, "but you've ruined one of our theories." He was delighted. He was the one who has the sword run through him about once a week, and doesn't feel a thing. Another teacher's theory squelched.

Dreams are great; I'm all for them. Even nightmares are good for you. You can wake up with pounding heart, in a cold sweat, scared out of your living wits, but what can compare with that relief, that glorious comfort as The Thing gradually fades, and you realize that you are alive and it is warm and safe and snug in your own bed.

The only thing that is boring about dreams is when other people try to describe theirs.

Health Hints from THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

High Blood Pressure - A Danger?

Whether or not high blood pressure is a dangerous condition depends on many factors, especially the cause, says The Canadian Medical Association. For example, certain cases of severe high blood pressure are due to tumors of the adrenal gland. With the removal of the tumor, the blood pressure returns to normal. Certain adnormalities of the heart or major blood vessels can be the cause of hypertension, and with correction of these conditions, by surgery, for instance, the blood pressure in many cases returns to normal.

If the high blood pressure is due to severe and chronic kidney disease, the outlook is not so good.

In other words, in some cases hlgh blood pressure is not a disease in itself but a symptom of some underlying condition. All cases of hypertension have to be considered individually. Complete physical examination must be carried out, with any necessary diagnostic procedures such as electrocardiograms, x-ray for heart size, and kidney examinations. Only after a complete assessment of the individual case can the doctor make a definite diagnosis, prescribe proper forms of treatment and make a reasonable prognosis or outlook for that particular case.

Low Blood Pressure

Many people mistakenly think low blood pressure and a low blood count are one and the same. Low blood pressure and low blood count are two entirely different conditions, says The Canadian Medical Association.

Low blood count generally denotes a lower than normal hemoglobin content or oxygen-carrying capacity of the blood; in other words, anemia. This is always a symptom of some underlying disorder and requires careful investigation to determine its exact cause.

Low blood pressure describes the situation in which a patient's blood pressure - is lower than one would expect - when compared to others of the same age group. (The term is also used in conditions of shock or hemorrhage where the low blood pressure is present and represents the body's reaction to the specific causes.)

The C. M. A. says it is unwise and unfair to tell a person who feels well and has no specific symphom that he has low blood pressure -simply because this was detected during a routine medical examination. Such a person is probably better off in the long run than the person with a blood pres-

BOARD OF TRADE

Dear Mr. Editor:

To give the public of Isle Madame an idea of what is going on at the meetings of our Board of Trade, here are some of the highlights of our February meeting.

(1) Application for a grant to operate the Le Noir Forge Museum. We hope to catalogue present exhibits, procure more, and have the building opened to the public at regular hours during the summer.

(2) Went on record as favoring Medicare and sent requests to provinciol authorities to introduce it in the province next July 1.

(3) Wrote our federal member, the Honorable Allan J. MacEachen to find out what is delaying the construction of the new federal building in Arichat.

(4) Wrote the Minister of Transport and our Federal member, pressing for the erection and operation of the French T. T. Satellite at Boisdale, C. B.

(5) Arranged to have our president appear before municipal Council to recommend Bookmobile service for Louisdale and Isle Madame.

Not all our meetings cover so much ground, but from the above you may judge the kind of work our Board of Trade is interested in. These are all of public interest, all for the betterment of our communities. We would be pleased to have you join us and lend us your support.

A strong Board of Trade is a very good thing to have in any community. We meet every first Wednesday of the month. May we see you soon?

A. Boudreau, Secretary.

FEDERAL GRANT FOR EXPANSION OF I M D H. S.

A $130,390 federal grant towards the expansion of Isle Madame District High School was announced recently by Health and Welfare Minister Allan J. MacEachen.

Details of the grant, which will apply to the vocational training component of the school, were communicated to Mr. MacEachen by federal Manpower Minister Marchand, who administers the Federal Government's Vocational Training Program.

The addition to the school will enable the school to provide space for 785 students, 150 of whom will be taking vocational and technical training courses.

Total cost of the addition is $1,089,220. Provincial and municipal authorities are also participating in the financing.

In a telegram to the community announcing the grant, Mr. MacEachen said he was pleased that the Government of Canada once again was able to participate in "efforts to provide young men and women in this area with improved educational facilities and opportunities".

A grant of $2,100,000 was announced earlier by Mr. MacEechen for the new Canso Regional Vocational School in Port Hawkesbury.

Will Tourism Pay the Bill?

The year isn't so old that I cannot answer a question which has been put to me often during the past few weeks. What, my friends ask, was the most exciting and satisfying story I covered in 1967?

Our centennial year provided so many really thrilling experiences for this Vagobond it is difficult to select one as 'most outstanding). I can truthfully say, however, that my day spent walking and climbing over the restoration of the Fortress of Louisbourg on Cape Breton Island, was not only a 'thrilling experience' but a very satisfying one as well.

The restoration of this historical site in Canada's history was chosen primarily to provide a retraining program for miners in a depressed area, as well as to bring to life in the interests of tourism, one of this country's great landmarks in history.

My reaction to this undertaking wasn't really influenced by the delicious fresh lobster sandwiches and strong coffee I enjoyed in the cafeteria on the site of the fortress. As the guest of John Lunn, formerly historian-archeologist of the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, and now in charge of the restoration program of this historical site, I was absolutely enthralled, not only with his enthusiasm and plans but with the possibilities the undertaking promises for the development as a tourist attraction, plus the retraining of out-of-work miners.

One has only to close one's eyes and listen to the recital of historical facts to be transported back, imaginatively, into the 18th century. I stood in the Chateau St. Louis, right in the middle of the Governor's great hall and heard the rustle of silken gowns and smelled the gracious hospitality of the French aristocracy. For these people, transplanted as they were from France and the court of Louis XV into the barren, fog-locked Cape Breton Island fortress city, tried to pass the restless hours in true high fashion. This has been proved by the literary thousands of artificats archeologists have found in their 'digs' since the restoration was authorized.

First to be Completed

The Chateau St. Louis nears completion. In fact many authentic pieces of furniture which will grace this handsome structure have already been found. Modern heating and air conditioning will preserve these priceless antiques. But this is the only modern gesture made in a building that conforms in every detail with blue-sure that is considered normal.

One symptom that is related to so-called low blood pressure is dizziness due to postural hypotension. The patient usually has a sense of dizziness, particularly on suddenly changing position from lying to sitting or standing. This is really of no great significance, and can be eliminated completely by changing position more slowly.

DIARY OF A VAGABOND

prints of the Chateau and the many buildings of the fortress which were found in Paris, London and elsewhere.

I climbed the bastion; balanced over cat walks throughout the Chateau; admired the bell tower and slate roof; the view from the Governor's chamber; and stood in one of the two sentry boxes, realizing what torture it must have been for the guards of the time to be on duty during the inclement winters that were no different in 1750-odd, than they are today.

As I walked all the marked streets, I lived through the siege when drunken invaders from New England captured the fortress, and its capture for the second time in a single generation by the British. I could even smell the smoke as 365 British charges levelled the walls of the mightiest French possession on the North American continent.

For two hundred years, its ruins lay beneath the sod and sea silt. Sheep grazed in the mists and the nearby villagers picnicked among its protruding ruins.

Then one day, it was decided that the millions it would cost to restore the old fortress would be well spent as a retraining and rehabilitation project for a depressed area.

They say that once a miner, always a miner. The skills many have learned in the blacksmith shop, and as stone masons, would undoubtedly be forgotten if the mines were suddenly to become of industrial value again. One cannot assess to what extent their newly learned skills will be useful. There is one certain thing, however, that is the fact the restoration, when finished some time in 1970, will prove one of the outstanding tourist attractions in Canada.

Such areas breed motels, restaurants, service stations and gift shops. These all add up to attracting people who spend money.

This area has been given a break with this restoration program. Only time will tell what it has really done for the miners' future.

NOVA SCOTIA HEART FUND OPENED IN HALIFAX ON FEB.1

Being nine-years-old is really no handicap in lending support to the 1968 Heart Fund Campaign and one young Cape Bretoner proved it on February 1.

Blaise Briand of Lower L'Ardoise bore the symbolic heart torch as the Nova Scotia division of the Canadian Heart Foundation kicked off its annual fund drive at a dinner held (February 1) in Halifax.

Blaise handed the campaign torch to provincial campaign chairman John C. McMillan to trigger the February drive by which the provincial foundation hopes to raise $90,000.

Funds raised will be used to carry out a program of research and education in the war on the nation's No. 1 killer - heart disease.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. James Briand, Blaise underwent open heart surgery January 16 at the Children's Hospital for correction of an atrial septal defect with which he had been born - a hole in the wall between the upper chambers of his heart.

The successful operation behind him, the lad returned home a few days following the campaign kick-off dinner.

Robert W. Cameron, Halifax campaign chairman, joined provincial chairman McMillan in bidding success to volunteer canvassers here and in 43 other communities throughout Nova Scotia.

During the initial 10 days of the drive, business and industry will be canvassed. Lady canvassers will launch home blitzes on Valentine's Day, February 14.

SEARCH AND RESCUE OPERATIONS

During the past 12 months the the Atlantic area was involved in search and rescue organization in 850 incidents.

Units of the Canadian Armed Forces, Canadian Coast Guard, U. S. Air Force, Navy and Coast Guard and other government departments and civilian agencies combined to save 135 lives.

The incidents resulted in 2,904 hours for aircraft and 3,056 hours for marine craft engaged in search and rescue operations during 1967.

In the same period last year, units were involved in 734 missions, saved 178 lives, flew 2,400 aircraft hours and sailed 2,400 marine hours.

The breakdown for 1967 is as follows:

Aircraft distress - 46 incidents; marine craft distress - 78; mercy flights - 102; communications checks - 324. The remaining cases are a miscellaneous gathering of missions including escort duties, towing of vessels broken down at sea; investigation of explosions and flare sighting, etc.
