To Love Is To Hate

MEN! DO YOU HATE YOUR WIFE?

Does she talk all the time about Her Relatives? Does she Nag about Nothing? Is she a Miserly Spendthrift? Is she Too Hard on the Kids or Too Easy on the Kids? Is she always wanting to Talk Things Out? Does she ignore your Sterling Qualities and pick constantly on your eight or ten Little Weaknesses?

LADIES! DO YOU HATE YOUR HUSBAND?

Does he talk all the time about Golf and Curling? Does he Grumble about Trivialities? Is he a Miserly Spendthrift? Is he Too Easy on the Kids or Too Hard on Them? Does he always want to avoid Talking Things Out? Does he ignore your Charm, Intelligence and Warmth and pick on inconsequentials like that watermelon that has replaced your little, flat tummy of former days?

Sorry, but this isn't an advertisement. If it were, there'd be a coupon to send in, and we'd get everybody squared around in no time. It's merely a questionnaire.

But if the answer to the first question, in each case, is, "Sometimes", and the answer to all the others is an unqualified, ringing, "Yes!", you're an honest man or woman, and a perfectly normal one, with a good, average marriage going for you.

If your answer is, "No!", there's no point in reading farther, because you're a liar or you should be in heaven and not reading this tripe at all.

I know that I hate my wife sometimes, deeply and bitterly, and I know that she hates me sometimes with the same adverbs. But c'est la guerre, and if you don't think marriage is a guerre, either you aren't married or you aren't bilingual.

On the other hand, there's a shoulder-to-shoulder solidarity in the average marriage that makes up for practically everything. A man and woman who fight constantly, verbally and even physically, will turn like a pair of cobras and hiss and spit at someone who criticizes either of them.

They will forgive each other for the most monstrous insults, the most cutting and vicious remarks, if it's the real thing. They will cherish each other in sickness as well as in health, in poverty as well as in wealth.

I don't know what brought all this on, except that it's snowing and the wind is howling about the house, and I know my Old Lady is lonely in the city and I'm lonely at home.

There's nobody there to tell her that there aren't any ghosts, that the kids will probably turn out OK despite all evidence, and that she's a hell of a good-looking girl when she gets fixed up.

And there's nobody here to tell me that I'm clever, despite my stupidity in some areas, that I'm a good husband and father, despite my lapses, and that my column is readable, if I'd only leave out the vulgarities.

She's so lonely in the city that she can scarcely wait to get home on weekends so we can fight a normal life. And I'm so lonely at home that I can hardly wait to hear the cheerful babble that normally drives me up the curtains.

She misses my cool, my reasonability, my refusal to panic And I miss her passion, her irrationality, her determination to panic.

She misses my casual attitude toward money and bills. And I miss her furious insistence that the budget should be kept in order.

And I guess that's what this column is all about. You chaps who answered "Yes" to all the questions in the quiz that began it might take another look a old Myrtle and count your blessings, even if there are only a couple of them.

Try it without the Old Girl for four or five months. Tomorrow, for example, I have to shovel the front and back sidewalks, get breakfast and put out the garbage, before I even start the day's work. In the good old days, I'd leave all that to Mum.

And brother, am I getting sick of those frozen chicken pies!

MOTOR VEHICLE REGISTRATION PERIOD EXTENDED TO APRIL 30, 68

Highways Minister Stephen T. Pyke announced today that the 1967 motor vehicle registration period has been extended to April 30, 1968.

The extension has been granted by an order-in-council.

Mr. Pyke pointed out that all vehicle registrations expire December 31 of each year but an extension to March 31 in ensuing years has normally been granted.

This year's extension to April 30, 1968, he explained, is due mainly to the large numbers of applications to be processed by March 31 together with the replacement of all existing master files to conform with the new computer system.

The highways minister urged motorists to fill in the day, month and year of birth on their application forms and send them well in advance of the normal March 31 expiry date so they may take advantage of the April 30 extension.

Members of the Isle Madame Branch 150, Royal Canadian Legion were in attendance and paid military honors to their deceased comrade.

Human Dynamo—Feminine Gender

The question will always be asked. Can a wife and mother succeed as a career woman without neglecting her role as a homemaker?

For Isobel MacAuley, a handsome, petite, very creative person from Yarmouth County, Nova Scotia, it has been easy.

Born 13 years after the turn of the century, she has achieved so much in her life that she could, quite legitimately, retire and rest on her laurels. But I honestly believe Isobel MacAuley will always seek new worlds to conquer. She has been doing that ever since the time in 1930, when she was a member of the debating team of Yarmouth Academy that won the Provincial championship.

She is a wife- mother- business woman-politician and community leader. She has held executive positions on several Parent-Teacher and Home and School Associations, the Halifax Club of Business and Professional Women, the Halifax Soroptimist Club, the Nova Scotia Tourist Association and has served 16 years on the board of the Halifax Downtown Business Association. She became a Dame of Grace of the St. John Ambulance Association in 1961 and served on the Provincial Council of Women, chairing the Trades and Professions Committee and was elected as national president of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association of Canada.

Still not satisfied with her accomplishments this gracious Maritimer has only recently opened her own business - - Tartan House Ltd. - with branches in Yarmouth, Cape Breton and Halifax.

Her interest in weaving dates back many years and a six-week course at the Halifax Weavers Guild. She had not been able to find anyone to weave her a kilt and so decided to make one herself. She hadn't a warping board and used to walk her 26-foot hallway making a figure eight on a pair of chairs until she had her warp completed. Isobel soon found that she was quite proficient at this type of work - probably the reason being that her grandmother had taught her to knit and crochet before she was six.

When she decided to establish a business that would be capable of weaving tartans for kilts to outfit pipe bands she realized she must also be able to provide the complete costume. So she joined a leather craft course and today her Tartan House Ltd. manufactures the dancing shoes for the Highland Games - so famous in Nova Scotia.

Handicrafts are not peculiar to just the maternal side of the MacAulay family. Her husband is a clever silversmith, also paints and has won prizes at the Nova Scotia Amateur Artists competition.

Both sons are pipers and agree with their parents that they, and their children, should keep up with their Scottish heritage.

PLANS TO EXPAND

Isobel employs four girls who work in her "warp room", but most of the weaving of tartans is done on Cape Breton Island where the weavers work in their own homes. She hopes to teach others to weave and eventually branch out in a line of tweeds, place mats, etc. She already sells several of her Tartans under contract to outfit bands.

With a smile, she answered my question, "How does this career as business woman and political leader fit in with the business of homemaking?" He answer was straightforward. "My husband is a very good cook, which is fortunate, for if I had to worry about meals when things really pile up, I don't believe we would have the joy".

So there you are, ladies. If you yearn for a career, be sure you choose the right husband.

STRAIT WORKERS SAY LOSING OUT TO UNIONS

Workers in the Strait of Canso area are complaining jobs are taken away from them by union men from Sydney and Glace Bay areas. Dr. Jim MacLean (PC-Inverness) said in the legislature yesterday.

He urged the government to investigate complaints local men were discriminated against because of union workers from outside the area.

Dr. MacLean said he had a number of letters and personal calls from men who felt they were being treated unfairly.

He said at a time when there was development going on the people of that area look for the jobs available and "rightly or wrongly" expect to share in the increased employment opportunities.

"Now they find that the ordinary laborer is finding it difficult to get a job in the Strait area because you have to be a member of a certain union to get the job," he said.

Dr. MacLean said one delegation of men came to him suggesting they form their own union of pipefitters as opposed to the one in existence in Glace Bay.

He had no quarrel with the unions . . . "they have their own problems . . . and they must stick to their own contracts."

"But I feel the citizens in the Strait area should be given a fair opportunity to obtain jobs. As an example, there were 10 jobs available just last week and the men hired to fill them were all from the Sydney area," he said.

PROPOSE NEW LOOK-OFF SITE FOR IRISH COVE

Location of a scenic look-off on the new section of highway on route 4 at Irish Cove has been proposed by the Cape Breton Tourist Association.

Motorists have found it difficult to stop with safety to take pictures or enjoy the view along this scenic drive.

The numerous visitors that stop at the look-offs at Kelly's Mountain are proof of the need for such locations, an Association spokesman said.

Endorsement of the proposal has been requested from the provincial members of the legislature, boards of trade and community associations along Route 4.

JUDGE ALLAN MacDONALD DIES AT ANTIGONISH

(Casket, Antigonish)

Judge Allan MacDonald, of Antigonish, died Tuesday after a brief illness. He was born at South Side Harbour, Antigonish County, son of the late John R. and Mary MacDonald.

He graduated from St. Francis Xavier University with a bachelor of arts degree in 1899, and after further study was awarded a master of arts.

In 1903 he served as a professor of English literature at St. F. X. He studied law at Dalhousie University and was admitted to the Bar of Nova Scotia in 1907. He practiced law in Antigonish until called to the bench as county court judge in 1919.

For 34 years he served in this capacity. During the Second World War he was a member of the National Mobilization Board. Upon his retirement in 1954, he was honored by his associates and named president of the County Court Judges of Nova Scotia.

He is survived by his wife, the former Christine MacKinnon; two sons, Douglas, Antigonish and Allan, Halifax; three daughters, Rosalind (Mrs. Ronald Harding), Antigonish; Kathleen, Halifax, and Marjorie (Mrs. Daniel Almon), of Halifax; 16 grandchildren.

Funeral will be held from St. Ninian's Cathedral, Antigonish, on Saturday at 10 a. m. Burial in the church cemetery.

TRIBUTE PAID TO JUDGE

Tribute to Judge Allan MacDonald, Antigonish, who died Tuesday, came from both sides of the house at yesterday's session of the Nova Scotia Legislature.

W. F. MacKinnon (PC-Antigonish) said Judge MacDonald had been a "compassionate man. . gentle, courteous. . .and balanced in judgement."

Because he had been born just eight years after Confederation, he said, Judge MacDonald had played his own "persuasive role in advocating a deep love of our country."

"I like to think that he anticipated the later consensus towards bilingualism because he loved the French language and at one time was Professor of French at St. Francis Xavier University," said Mr. MacKinnon.

He said Judge MacDonald was "honored and loved. . in a special way" by the people of Antigonish and the country "where his presence among us was such a civilizing and gracious influence."

Mr. MacKinnon said he offered his sympathy to Judge MacDonald's survivors on behalf of his constituents and on behalf of Alex "Tando" MacIsaac, Gugsborough who was absent from the house because of illness.

Attorney- General R. A. Donahoe called Judge MacDonald "a man of great humanity."

Opposition Leader Gerald Regan said members of his party wished to associate themselves with the expressions of sympathy.

"All Nova Scotians are saddened by the death of this distinguished Canadian," he said.

The funeral Mass was celebrated in St. Ninian's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon. Burial was in the parish cemetery.

(For some years Mr. MacLean was resident engineer at St. Peter's for the Department of Highways and in 1934 moved to Port Hawkesbury and was in charge of Highway operations from that town. The late Gus MacLean had many friends in Richmond County and during his residence in St. Peter's took an active part in hockey. During the days of the old Sydney Millionaries Hockey team, he was a valued member of that team.

We extend our sincere sympathy to his wife and family in their bereavement.Editor.)

FREE INSULIN NOW UNDER WELFARE DEPARTMENT

Administration of a program that provides free insulin for the control of diabetes is being transferred from the provincial health department to the provincial welfare department effective April 1, 1968.

The joint announcement was made today by public health minister R. A. Donahoe and public welfare minister, J. M. Harding.

Purpose of the transfer of the program's administration is to enable the Province to take advantage of the cost sharing provisions of the Canada Assistance Plan. As a result of the change new methods will be introduced to determine an individual's eligibility for the program and a very considerable amount of new money will be provided through the Canada Assistance Plan.

Elibibility for free insulin drugs and testing materials up to now has been based on a $3600 family income ceiling per annum. With the transfer to the welfare department the eligibiliy requirements for food, clothing, rent, home ownership, personal needs and special dietetic foods. The total family budget will then be compared with the total income of the diabetic and his spouse and free medicaation will be granted in those cases where budget requirement is greater than the income.

At the present time there are approximately 4700 persons in the Province receiving free medication for the control and testing of their diabetes with the cost to the Province being in excess of $400,000 per year. With the April 1st transfer, the cost to the Province will be reduced because of greater federal government contributions in all cases where an individual's need is established. No one now receiving free insulin and testing materials will have this privilege withdrawn.

It is expected that transfer of the program to welfare will benefit certain families where the income is in excess of $3600 but who are paying excessive rental or have a large family of children to maintain or for some other reason have larger than average maintenance costs. Under the present regulations these applicants would be ineligible because family income is over $3600 per annum. Under the new program there might be a family budget and therefore eligibility.

Procedure requiring the issuance of an identification card to the recipient which can be presented to a drug store following a prescription from the family physician will continue to be followed.

Pre-vocational classes for adults will commence April 1 at Arichat, Richmond County, and Larry's River, Guysborough County, as part of a program of basic training for skill development which is operated through the co-operation of the federal and provincial governments.

The announcement was made today by provincial Education Minister G. J. Doucet and federal Manpower and Immigration Minister Jean Marchand.

WELFARE MINISTER ADDRESSES CONFERENCE

Welfare Minister James M. Harding has urged the federal government to give serious consideration to a shared cost formula for housing in Nova Scotia adjusted to such variables as personal income, construction and land costs.

In his opening address to the Atlantic Housing Conference held in Halifax this week, Mr. Harding said he believed the present shared cost formula is unfair because no special consideration was being given to the peculiar circumstances in each province.

The one-day conference, arranged by Mr. Harding in consultation with the Hon. E. J. Benson, federal housing minister, dealt with housing problems in the Atlantic provinces and was attended by senior officials of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Newfoundland's municipal affairs minister Hon. B. J. Abbott, representatives from New Brunswick and P.E.I., members of the Nova Scotia Housing Commission, local municipal government heads and private developers.

Mr. Harding, who is also minister-in-charge of housing for the Province, said a low average income and a small population placed Nova Scotia in a difficult spot with regard to provincial assistance in self-help programs. A shared cost program adjusted to variables would not only help the people in the low income group, both in rural and urban areas, but would assist younger couples desiring to live in an urban community where land costs were high, he contended.

The Province's housing minister said Nova Scotia has embarked on the largest program of land assembly per capita in Canada and was placing great emphasis on its co-operative housing program. In the near future, Nova Scotia intends to enter the field of condominium housing and Mr. Harding expressed the hope that this would also have the effect of reducing housing costs. Purchase of a condominium unit by a family could be regarded as an investment that would increase in value and build up an equity rather than depreciate, he said.

Mr. Harding stressed the need for working out effective policies between the provincial and federal government to strengthen economic growth points, to make provision for resettlement and rehousing and for the ever increasing transient population.

The housing minister said the Province will do within its resources to aid and help, up to and beyond the point of federal assistance. To make federal assistance more effective he suggested that consideration be given to a larger representation on CMHC's Board of Directors from the Atlantic Provinces and that a definite tenure of office be established. He also suggested that more authority be given to local and regional offices of CMHC.

SUCCESSFUL LEADERSHIP COURSE

A large turn out (registration 54) of St. Peter's area citizens enjoyed three profitable evenings on March 20th, 21st, and 22nd at an Adult Leadership Short Course sponsored by the St. Peter's Board of Trade and held in the St. Peter's District High School.

Subjects studied and discussed were: Parliamentary Procedure, led by Mr. George Campbell of Sydney, Regional Representative, Adult Education Division; Community Development,. led by Mr. Joseph T. Chiasson, Halifax, Assistant Director, Adult Education Division; and Tourism, led by Mr. Evan Lloyd, Sydney, Executive Director, Cape Breton Tourist Association.

Returned evaluation sheets indicated that all present felt that they could make good use of the information gained, and that most of them favored additional short courses being held in the future.

Mr. Jack C. Hicks, Resource Development Representative, and Mr. Campbell assisted in organizing the Course, and attributed much of its success to the fact that the people of the area were involved in its planning and promotion.

One fact stressed by all course leaders and realized by all participants was that community and area development in the fields of industry, housing, transportation, services and utilities, tourism, etc. was the business of every interested citizen, and that through training, planning, and working together much could be accomplished.

Health Hints from THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

How To Find A Family Doctor

People moving from one community to another often experience difficulty in finding a family doctor in their new surroundings, especially if they didn't have one in their former home.

The Canadian Medical Association says that those who have a family doctor and are contemplating a move to another community should have no problem. All they need do is ask their doctor to refer them to a family physician in their new community. Ideally, the former doctor will write a letter of introduction and send along a summary of the family records to the new doctor.

People who did not have a family doctor in their former community will be on their own in the new community. As soon as they are settled they should set out to find a doctor. The nearest hospital will provide a list of family doctors on screened by neighbors, fellow its staff, and this list can be workers or others whose judgment you trust.

Once a name is selected, an appointment with the doctor should be arranged at once, when the family is well. If his practice is not overcrowded, he will accept the new family and there will be no problem when illness strikes. Unfortunately most people delay making these necessary arrangements until there is illness in the family. This often results in a frantic search which at best will result in fnding only a doctor, not necessarily the doctor of choice.

The family doctor provides primary and continuing care of a comprehensive nature, using consultants and specialists as required to provide the best of medical care for his patients.

The C. M. A. says, no Canadian family should be without one.

CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

With the opening of the fishing season a few days away and the implication of television commercials to the contrary, Red Cross Water Safety Service Director, Les Punchard, says, "don't drink while boating, it has the same effect as drinking while driving."

A four year investigation into fishing drownings carried out by a Red Cross research committee indicates that alcohol and water in this case do not mix.

Most drowning fatalities in the province involve male adults, accidentally falling in the water, many from boats, particularly in the spring fishing season. From reports gathered of fishermen drownings come the following quotes:

"Had been drinking excessively, victim stood up in boat and fell overboard."

"Suspected that victim had been drinking."

"Victim had been drinking, took boat out, and apparently fell overboard."

"Victim had been drinking, stood up in boat to change places and fell overboard."

"Two victims were under the influence of alcohol."

Red Cross hastens to point out that fatigue and involvement in unusual heavy physical activity were further contributory factors in fatalities.

Inexperience in handling boats and poor physical health and heavy clothing are noted in last year's drownings.

Life jackets to be effective must be worn and securely fastened in order that the buoyancy is given to the right portion of the body in the event of a capsize.

Don't attempt boating activities when over tired or mentally or physically exhausted. A good night's sleep on arrival at boating start-off point and an early start refreshed the next morning is the best plan for fishing enthusiasts.

Because Canadians voluntarily donate blood, the Red Cross is able to supply hospital patients with the whole blood and blood products they may require.

If you own 1959 Canada Savings Bonds

Here's a special offer just for you

The Government of Canada has created a special new high-yielding security for the advance refunding of 1959 Canada Savings Bonds. These Special Replacement Bonds will be dated May 1, 1968, and will mature in 10 years 5 months on October 1, 1978. They will be available only in exchange for an equal amount of 1959 Canada Savings Bonds, and not for cash. Their average annual yield to maturity will be 6.88%. They will retain all the standard features which have made Canada Savings Bonds the most popular investment in Canada's history. This includes the right to cash them any time at any bank for full face value plus earned interest.

In addition, Special Replacement Bonds offer the opportunity to double your money. If you choose not to cash your regular interest coupons during the life of the bond, 3 Compound Interest Certificates then become payable for a total of $280.00 extra (on each $1,000.00 bond). This amount plus your regular interest coupons doubles your money. You can take advantage of this compound interest feature in various ways.

And that's not all. There will be two Prepayment Coupons, cashable May 1, 1968, attached to each Special Replacement Bond. They represent the 6 months' interest already earned by your old bond and the prepayment of the 3% non-taxable premium originally due November 1, 1968. On a $1,000.00 bond, these two Prepayment Coupons will be worth a total of $55.00.

The exchange procedure is simple. Take your 1959 Canada Savings Bonds to your bank, authorized investment dealer, trust or loan company. They will make all arrangements for you. Exchange your 1959 Canada Savings Bonds for the new high-yielding Special Replacement Bonds without delay. This offer expires on May 15, 1968.
