The LION'S Corner

The Isle Madame Lions Club held their first Sept. meeting on Wednesday, the 3rd., at the Marbro Motel Dining Room, with Lion Ummat in the chair, due to the absence of King Lion Paul C. Doyle. A report of the Pondville Beach Project was heard and we are happy to report it was a success and by all accounts promises to be very successful next season.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCE LARGE CONTRIBUTIONS FOR STRAIT OF CANSO AREA

The following are some of the developments announced by Hon. Allan J. MacEachern, Federal representative for the constituency of Cape Breton Highlands-Canso, showing the contributions made by the federal government.

$5 million from the Area Development Agency for the Gulf oil refinery, now building at a cost of $50 million.

Extensive assistance to Nova Scotia Pulp Ltd., for a $60 million expansion program, including a 160,000 ton-a-year newsprint mill and increased output of bleached sulfite pulp. This expansion should create as many as 1,000 new jobs on site and in pulp cutting in eastern Nova Scotia.

$1.4 million from the Government of Canada for road and rail service in the Point Tupper industrial park.

$12.5 million Department of Public Works contract for a deep harbour wharf in the Point Tupper area. It will have a capacity for 360,000 ton vessels, among the largest ships afloat, and be part of the development of one of the finest and largest harbour sites on the eastern coast of North America.

Between April 1, 1968 and June 30, 1969 approximately $48.5 million in grants were approved for construction of technical and vocational education facilities in Nova Scotia.

Six separate grants have been made to schools in Arichat, Antigonish, Baddeck, Mabou, Port Hawkesbury and St. Peters, totalling about $3 million. The new school in Port Hawkesbury received a grant of $2,593,496.

$114,863 loan under the National Housing Act for a 10-unit senior citizen housing project at Inverness.

Another NHA loan of $640,210 to acquire and service 93 acres of land in Port Hawkesbury; the project will provide approximately 180 residential lots plus a 9 acre site for apartment buildings and other multiple dwellings.

A new $526,000 federal building for Antigonish is now under construction.

Approval of plans for federal buildings in Ingonish, Ingonish Beach and Canso; tenders are expected to be called this summer.

A federal loan of $86,533 for a sewage treatment plant at Port Hastings.

$200,000 in improvements for Cape Breton Highlands National Park; $100,000 for campground roads in the Cheticamp area, $60,000 for campground service buildings and other improvements.

Approval by the Canadian Radio Television Commission for two CBC French language relay stations at Arichat and Pomquet.

A RECENT VISIT TO L'ARCHEVEQUE

On one fine Sunday afternoon recently we took a motor trip to L'Archeveque via L'Ardoise and Grand River and continuing down the shore road we took the road leading to L'Archeveque where several Cape Island lobster boats were hauled up after a fairly profitable lobster season. A breakwater and concrete sea wall protects the harbor from heavy seas and believe me the coastline here is rough and fishermen, besides being hardy must be skilled seamen. This applies to the whole coastline from Point Michaud to Scaterie Island.

We noticed the names on several boats and one named the "Vodka" brought back memories of the days of rum-running when we were a preventive officer in the Canadian Customs and were stationed on that coast. We later found out that the "Vodka" was owned and operated by our good friend, Donnie MacKillop, whom we met later at Grand River on the same day and who informed us that both the drink and his craft were as potent as the name implied.

After viewing the coastline we returned to the main highway and headed a short distance to a side road where a sign with the name "Robinson" appeared and we drove in to visit our New York friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson and family. On arrival at the property formerly owned by Donald F. Matheson, we met a lady who informed us that she was the mother of Mr. Robinson and told us that her son and daughter-in-law and the children were at the beach. In conversation with this charming lady, she informed us that her home was in Florida and that her birthplace was Scotland. She was much impressed with the scenic beauty of Cape Breton and its coastline, which she said reminded her of Scotland. From where we were standing we noticed people at the beach quite a distance away, however, it wasn't too long before Scott, the nice young son of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson made an appearance and after making ourselves acquainted, he said "you are the publisher from Arichat." While awaiting the arrival of his parents, Scott showed us his skin-diving suit and rubber boat and related his experience with both, by this time Mr. and Mrs. Robinson had made their way from the shore to their dwelling and we were indeed pleased to see the delightful couple with whom together with Mr. Robinson's mother and Scott we spent a very pleasant afternoon and discussed many topics of mutual interest. Mr. Robinson is a teacher and the family were preparing to return to New York State for the opening of the school term.

They informed us that they enjoy their summers in Cape Breton and now that the holidays were about ended, they were looking forward to returning home to resume their duties.

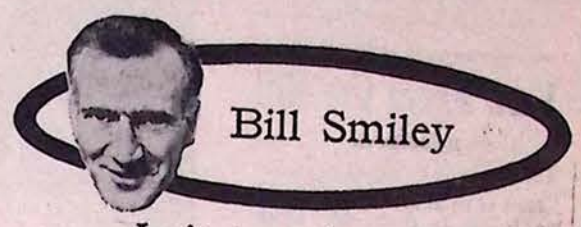

Our visit to the Robinson home will long be remembered and we wish to thank them for their kind and gracious hospitality.

In leaving the Robinson home, located on a vast expanse of rolling land, we thought of the early highland pioneers who cleared this land which was settled by the Matheson family and the last two occupants of the homestead were Donald F. and Ethel Matheson his sister, who now reside at St. Peter's. By all appearance of this once productive farm, the Matheson's were industrious people who also shared in the harvest of both the land and the sea.

We made the return journey by the Lewis Cove Road. At Grand River we met a Mr. MacDonald, a former banker, from Boston, Mass., who is now retired and resides at Grand River. His wife is the former Annabell Cameron of that place. In the course of our conversation we learned that Mr. MacDonald, was a native of West Bay and that his late uncle was a tailor at Port Hawkesbury.

We promised Mr. MacDonald we would see him again at some future date and at the same time meet many more friends in the Grand River and Framboise area. Before starting for St. Peter's our good friend, Donnie MacKillop came along in his truck and it was here we learned that he owned the boat previously mentioned.

We hope before winter sets in to visit many friends in the Rockdale and L'Ardoise area.

Isn't tax time fun?

With the income tax return safely off at the usual eight minutes before midnight on the last day, and my wife, who figured out mine, nearing normal a couple of weeks later, I think I have cooled out enough to pay a deep-felt, and deeply-deserved, tribute.

Oh, not to her. As I told her, from a safe distance, "Any dummy can do that." I didn't really mean it. It was only in retaliation for her applying to me the epithet "stupid." twelve times during one Sunday afternoon when I was helping her. We got a different total on every column of figures.

Patiently, I pointed out to her that women didn't have the panache to deal with income tax forms. They want everything to come out even, just as they do when wall-papering. Men would much rather grin fiendishly and say, "Let's see what the computer can do with that."

Finally, in disgust, I left it to her. She's so ridiculously honest that I probably won't even be fined this year, as is the custom. But that takes a lot of the fun and excitement out of it. There's no joy in doing your income tax form unless you think you've gotten away with something.

No, the tribute I want to pay is to a modern writer. He's anonymous, or I'd trumpet his name from the housetops. He's the chap who produces that annual best-seller called T1 General Tax Guide. Don't let the title fool you. That's just a front for one of the most baffling mystery stories of the year.

It's wildly unfair that his publishers, a stodgy old firm called Department of National Revenue, with headquarters in Taxation, Canada, do not give this author the glory and publicity which is his due.

Not since, Nicolo Machiavelli wrote The Prince, back in the sixteenth century, has such a brilliantly, diabolically clever piece of prose been produced. And this guy does it every year.

The 1968 edition of this work ran to only thirty pages, but it was a little masterpiece. It had the usual combination of complication, suspense, mystery, irony and horror. While it smacks of Machiavelli there are undertones of Edgar Allen Poe.

Mind you, it's not for the average, reader, who likes a plot with beginning, middle and end. This is for the more sophisticated reader, who likes jumping backwards, forwards and sideways in an effort to keep up with the subtle, involuted mind of the writer.

Nor is it a thrilling encounter for the fellow working for a salary, paid by cheque, with all deductions at source. But for the citizen who has more than one source of income, the book's combination of backtracing, leap-frogging, equivocation and gobbledegook are sheer delight.

My wife enjoys this sort of thing. In fact, her favourite indoor sport is reading aloud to me excerpts which prove that I am going to wind up in the penitentiary for life. if I ignore Item 36 of this gem, which the author, with typical irony, calls a Guide.

With a guide like this, who needs a compass. It's all there, perfectly clear. For instance, she was delighted to find that, because we live in one of the ten provinces of Canada, we get something: an "Abatement for Provincial Taxes." This can amount to 28 percent. Just like money in the bank. Pretty darn decent of the federal government. It is actually called a "reduction."

Of course, you don't get this reduction if you live in the Yukon. You have to pay the whole shot. Pretty darn mean of the federal government. And, of course, if you do live in one of the provinces, your "reduction" is added back somewhere, and you pay the whole shot, anyway. But this is just one of the charming, illogical little peccadilloes that make this book a "must" for anyone.

Anyone, that is, who is being skinned alive by a trapper who smiles and smiles while your pelt is being removed.

FROM HALIFAX

Mr. and Mrs. Willett Mills of Halifax were recent visitors to Arichat and while here called on several friends.

Mr. Mills is a member of the well-known Mills Bros., an exclusive ladies wear firm located on Spring Garden Road, Halifax and are celebrating their 50th anniversary this year, having established the business in 1919. We congratulate Mills Bros on having reached the half century mark and wish them continued success.

For several years both Mr. and Mrs. Mills were annual visitors to Arichat and their return this summer brought back pleasant memories of former years.

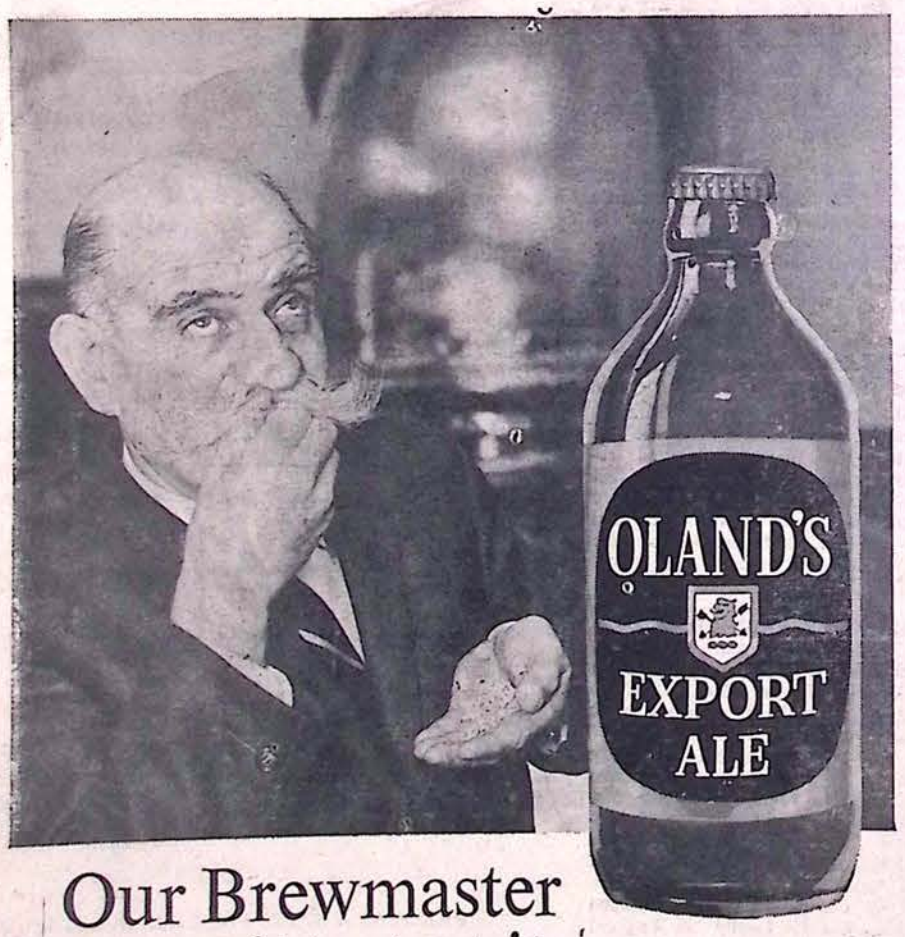

Friends will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Mill's health is much improved after suffering a stroke a few years ago.

Mr. Mills is the founder of the Nova Scotia Bird Watchers Society and has contributed much to this Society since its inception. An authority on bird life, it was nice hearing Mr. Mills relate the various species of birds found in Nova Scotia.

Willett and Ivy made a tour of Cape Breton Island and while here registered at the Isle Madame Motel. They both spend winter holidays in Florida.

MOUNTED POLICE IN NEW QUARTERS

Con. and Mrs. Butt have taken up residence in the new R.C.M.P., quarters at West Arichat. The Isle Madame Detachment will be stationed in this new up-to-date building which is located near the Valma Babin Texaco Service station.

Our Brewmaster tastes it to test it.

Here at Oland's we have one of the best-equipped laboratories in the Maritimes. We use it to test our Export Ale...to test the hops and the barley, and the finished ale, too.

But the best tester we have is a taster.

He's our brewmaster. And he samples the malted barley for Oland's Ex by chewing a few grains. He tastes the hops that give Export Ale its character. And he knows his prize brew is well-aged by tasting it. The way our brewmaster works, aging takes weeks...the slow, natural way.

Our brewmaster tests Oland's Export by tasting it. Just like you.

View From the Hill

By JOHN A.

Most of us have long since given up trying to distinguish which make or model of car our friends or neighbors drive or own. The current crop of all the makes are designed to look as though they are going 90 miles an hour even when they are parked at the side of the road.

It has become a real athletic challenge to get into a 1969 model car with a hat on. Car designers seem to completely lose sight of the facts that the majority of Canadians are not racing enthusiasts when it comes to the family jalopy. That our weather conditions require head gear to be worn from time to time.

Most drivers are normal law abiding citizens and the speed warning gimmick that is installed on some models should be standard equipment on all cars.

The move to bring some standards to the tire industry is noted as a promising move. As tires are the cars only connection with the road such things as second and third and fifth etc grades of tires should be banned. The public requires government protection in such things that effect safety of automobile drivers and the general public.

As a driver of some 30 years experience I have long been confused and often mislead by the claims of tire manufacturers and the advice of numerous service station operators. The tires for any given make or model of car can be bought for any price ranging from ten dollars to one hundred dollars each and its obvious that such a wide price range must indicate an equally wide variety of quality. This, in an automotive component that effects the safety of everyone in the community. The need of standardization in this field is imperative and should be brought about as soon as possible.

Front end alignment and wheel balancing are a problem of every car operator and could be eliminated by better tire and wheel specifications and strengthening of front end components.

The principle of motor vehicle safety inspection has been set by our Motor Vehicle legislation. These inspections have been disappointing to me, as a driver, as the care and ability of the mechanics doing such work seems to lack the attitude of importance which such inspections should entail.

In summing up this disertation on cars etc., it would only seem appropriate to take a dig at the manufacturers and their reluctance to make a real improvement in the performance and design of cars. After all, todays cars with their inefficient use of available energy in motor fuels leave much to be desired. This internal combustion engine has added enough pollution to our atmosphere and redesigning of this method of propulsion is twenty years overdue.

The year was 1948—Louis St. Laurent became the 17th Prime Minister of Canada, Mike Pearson became Minister of External Affairs, the State of Israel was established, Russia moved into Czechoslovikia, Newfoundland indicated it favored joining Canada, George Drew became head of the Progressive Conservative party and in England Prince Charles was born. All these events will be reviewed during the month of September on CCC Radio's Playback heard Monday evenings.

NEW FISHERIES CHARTS

OTTAWA—A new series of fisheries charts will help fishermen on the world-famous Grand Bank off the coast of Newfoundland.

The first in this series is one of three charts issued by the Canadian Hydrographic Service, a division of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources.

Chart L-8010 Grand Bank, Southern Portion, provides the first accurate detailed picture of the shape and depth of the sea bottom in this area. It is dawn to a scale of 1.350,000, about five miles to the inch.

The other two new charts show areas along the edge of Canada's continental shelf south of Nova Scotia, completing a modern set covering the whole Scotian Shelf. Their scale is 1:300,000, about four miles to the inch.

Chart L-8005 Georges Bank covers this prolific fishing area southwest of Yarmouth, N. S. Chart L-8006 Browns Bank to Emerald Bank shows the adjoining area to the northeast.

Two special features of all three charts are the delimiting of all armed forces exercise areas and the location of cables to help fishermen avoid fouling their gear.

The Grand Bank chart is latticed with four Loran-A rates, to enable vessels to fix their position accurately. Chart L-8005 is latticed with four Loran-A rates and the Red Decca lattice from the Nova Scotia Chain 7. Chart L-8006 is latticed with three Loran-A rates,

All three charts show depths primarily by blue contour lines. These are spaced at 10-fathom intervals to a depth of 100 fathoms at 20 fathom intervals to a depth of 200 fathoms and 100-fathom intervals to 1,000 fathoms.

The small contour intervals clearly outline the edges of the banks where most of the fish are caught.

General depths are shown by three shades of blue. Depths of less than 10 fathoms appear as dark blue; the extensive fishing banks from 10 to 50 fathoms as a medium blue; and areas from 50 to 100 fathoms as light blue.

Bottom characteristics are shown in bold-faced type.

The charts may each be obtained for $2 from chart dealers or the Hydrographic Chart Distribution Office, Department of Eenergy, Mines and Resources, 5594, Area Code 613.

HITCH HIKERS WARNED

A clamp down on hitch-hiking on Nova Scotia's limited access highways has been announced by Highways Minister Hon. I. W. Akerley.

There is mounting evidence of the safety threat to both pedestrains and motorists resulting from the increasing number of hitch-hikers on provincial highways, said the Minister.

He reminded hitch-hikers that Section 116 of the Nova Scotia Motor Vehicle Act states: "It shall be an offence for a person in a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of a private vehicle.

The Highways Department plans to curb this hazardous practice on provincial highways.

Mr. Akerley sympathized with those who depended on their thumb for transportation from one point to another, but said the practice is too prevalent on new 100 series highways and his department plans to curb this practice.

This does not apply to pedestrians engaged in police work, highway maintenance or construction duties, or in instances where a pedestrian finds it necessary to use a controlled-access highway in an emergency situation,

A mounting toll in dead and injured is being paid by pedestrians in Nova Scotia and it is urgent that steps are taken to prevent the death rate from rising, he said.

In the 12 months of 1968, reported the Minister there were 550 highway accidents involving pedestrians in Nova Scotia.

Those cited as the "responsibility" of adult pedestrians, resulted in 30 deaths and 124 injuries while child pedestrians were involved in 22 deaths and 383 injury accidents.

"While all of these didn't involve hitch-hikers,we know that they have been causing a serious problem. Unless some effective action is taken we will defeat the purpose, for which our Multi-million dollar highway systems have been designed and built and add to the needless loss of both pedestrian and driver's lives" concluded the Minister.
