Hon. G. J. Doucet Annouces Purchase of Land at Martinique for Prov. Park

GERALD J. DOUCET

The Honourable Gerald J. Doucet, M.L.A. for Richmond County, announced that he has been advised by the Honourable George Snow, Minister of Lands and Forests, that the purchase of property at Martinique on Isle Madame for the purpose of establishing a Provincial Park has been completed.

"I hope that the construction of a park in this area will be of real benefit to the tourist industry and to the residents. I hope, also, that as in the case of Battery Park in St. Peter's, it will encourage local initiative and action in tourist and community promotion and development around it", said Mr Doucet.

Mr. Doucet indicated that in the past, the number four highway part of Cape Breton had not attracted the tourist trade volume enjoyed by other parts of eastern Nova Scotia, and that he felt a lack of facilities was partly to blame. "With the completion of this park over a period of years, the province will have demonstrated its desire to be helpful. It will then remain for the private sector to provide additional tourist facilities and for strong local efforts in promotion." concluded Mr. Doucet.

STUDENT UNREST

"My chief memory looking back is of an extraordinary restlessness, and this was directed into trying to get out of the place, because the outside was the real world."

The British Poet Laureate, Cecil Day-Lewis, talking in the BBC World Service about his student days at Oxford in the 'twenties.

A fantastic feat

Well, what do you think of the moon now? For centuries, lunatics have howled at it, lovers have yearned under it, poets have rhapsodized over it and pedants have pontificated about it.

And what does the beautiful, silvery, chaste goddess turn out to be? An old hag made of slag, with a bad case of acne.

Like most of you, I was glued to the television set for hours at a stretch, listening to inanities and profundities, but experiencing the tension, terror and triumph of the crucial moments.

I've lived through some harassing experience: the Great Depression, World War II and p.o.w. camp, the cold war, and two teenagers. And I'n glad that I was spared to see those two fellows lolloping around on the moon. It was something just to b part of the human race at that moment.

Listening to all the learned scientists and humanists discussing the birth of a new era for man, I seemed to gather two major impressions. Most people felt a combination of awe, pride and exhilaration. The sheer impudence of the feat was a thrill. Petty, ignoble man conquering the majestic moon.

But the opposite feeling was expressed by a smaller, but intelligent and vocal group. They scorn the whole enterprise and suggest that man should feel a sense of shame at spending so much money, time, technological skill and brains to accomplish such a "useless' mission, when there are so many things here on earth which need the application of those ingredients so much more.

They have a point. An all-out attack on poverty, illness, starvation appears more rational than flying half a million miles to pick up some rocks.

But of course, as a scant look at history will prove, man has never been a rational creature, though he often prides himself on his reason.

Man is a creature of emotion, imagination and intution, with a strong dash of initiative and a mere soupcon of reason. He is curious. He wants to know whatis around the corner or over the next mountain.

So Columbus, with sublime ignorance, sailed off with three leaky boats manned by convicts, into the sunset. Scott and companions trudged the bleak wastes of Antarctica, and died, after reaching a chunk of ice called the South Pole, only to find that Kilroy had been there.

History is interesting chiefly because of the mystic that is in man, and his fortitude in searching beyond the known. Take Magellan and Henry Hudson and Samuel Hearne and Lindbergh and Sir Richard Hilary and a thousand others out of your history books, and what have you left? A dull plateau, full of such soul-stirring events as the passing of the Education Bill of 1872, and such-like.

That's all very romantic, of course, but we must be realistic. Is that why the Yanks "went for broke" in their effort to get there first? Partly. They are a nation of immense pride and ability, with a flair for the dramatic.

But there is no question that the race to be first on the moon had powerful political implications.

What a pity! What a truly wonderful stroke of mankind the moon trip would have been had the team preparing and executing it been made up of a world, rather than a national, group of men, working without thought of power, propaganda or prestige!

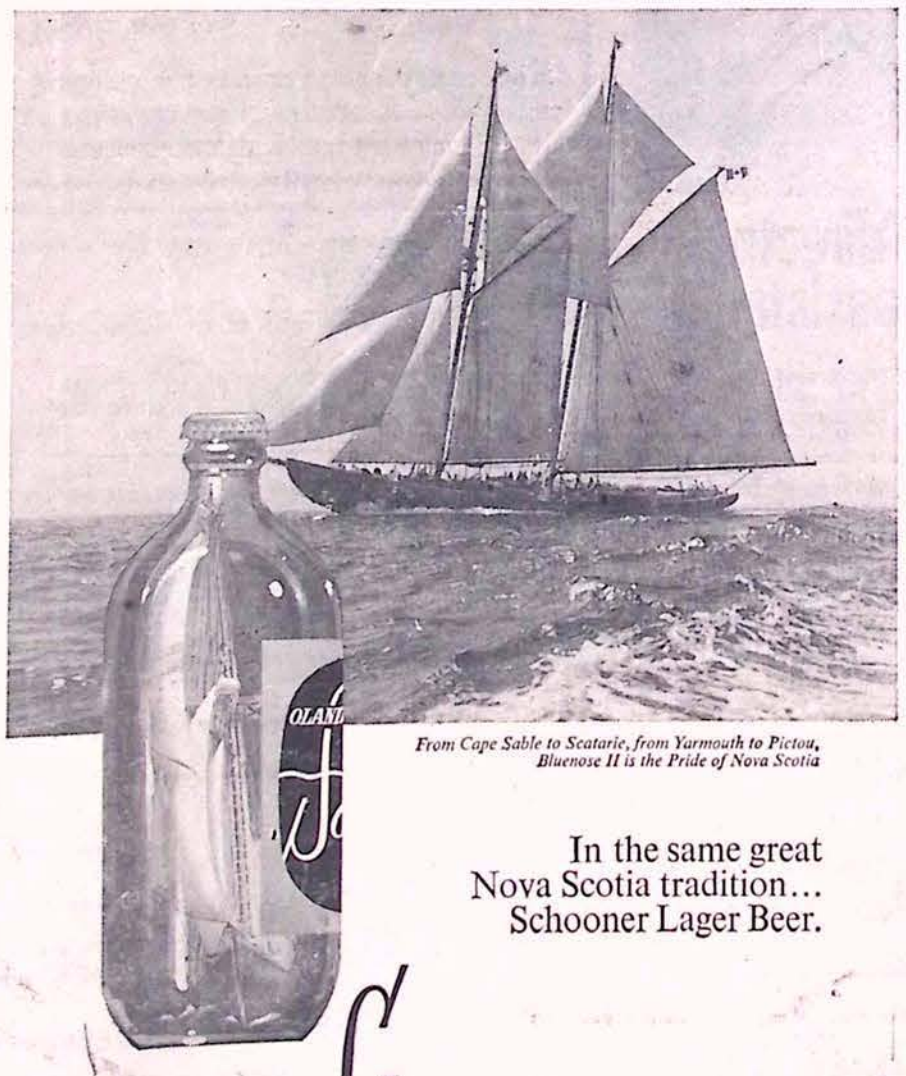

If the moon becomes mere a pawn in the power struggle among earthlings, who what thing was a pitiable failure. If man merely transports his greeds, aggressions and other assorted stupidities to the moon and beyond, there is no hope for his future.

But let's look on the bright side. By turning his aggressive spirit against the great enemy dark of the universe, the human animal might stop reviling his fellows. By seeking out the mysteries of space, he might be encouraged to search into the mysteries of himself. By proving that the impossible can be done, perhaps he will get cracking on the "impossibility" of solving earth's problems.

Whatever happens, nothing can detract from the fantastic American feat, and the skill and courage of the first men on the moon.

A True Story

By T. A. BOYLE

The War to end all wars ended. Kaiser Bill was sawing wood in Holland. The prediction of the "lights going out over all of Europe and not lit in time" was wrong. So went overboard the penalties for the evaders of the Conscription Act.

Two young fellows evaded the Act by hiding in the woods; aided and helped by the many grass widows, whose better halves were compelled, or forced to go "Poggy" fishing in the U. S. A. One of the young fellows belonged to West Arichat and the other to the "Cove".

The Cove fellow developed what was called, in those days, quick consumption. Answering his plea to come to his dying bed the chap from West Arichat was terrified when his partner in sin said "I know I am dying. I also know I can come back; but it will not be in this form. I shall be flying. I shall try to speak to you, but you may not know my language.

His last words were "Don't be frightened". No sooner had he spoken those words than he began jumping up and down on the bed until he fell dead on the floor.

Alone with this dreadful looking body the young fellow hastily informed his people of the demise and got out of the place as quickly as possible.

Windy, dark and overcast was the sky. All alone with a mile to go he was terrified when he heard terrible screeching. Looking up he saw a large flying body, just as his friend had predicted he was "flying and talking in an unknown language".

The month was October. Some people told him all he had seen and heard was a lone wild goose gone astray It may have been, but I never in any time or place, heard of wild geese passing over this area.

A delicious lunch was served by both ladies. Michel, 4 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Boudreau presented his great- grandmother with a birthday cake, which she cut with the aid of her youngest son, Abel.

Congratulations from far and near, wishing many happy returns, were received with cards and phone cards.

THE PRESENT IS GOOD

Some people seem to think that any time but the present is a good time to live in. But the men and women who move the world must be a part of the present. They much touch the life that now is, and feel the thrill of the movement of civilization. It is not living the world of yesterday, or in the world of to-morrow, but in today's world, that counts. We must know the world and the day we are living in, and keep in responsive touch with the great movements of civilization. Much of the precious energy of mankind is wasted in living in the past or dreaming of the future.

On November 29, 1841 the General Post Office building in Quebec city was edstroyed by fire.

CHURCHILL MEMORIAL AT FULTON

The dedication has taken place of the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library at Westminister College in Fulton, Missouri, in the United States. It was at Fulton, in May 1946, that Churchill made the speech in which he coined the famous warning phrase: "From Stettin on the Baltic to Trieste on the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the (European) continent."

As Indrei Ratiu recalled in a BBC broadcast, the Fulton memorial erected in memory of that speech and of the man who made it, consists of the seventeenth-century London City church of St. Mary Aldermanbury, which was shipped stone by stone across the Atlantic in 1966. "A modern miracle was how Lord Mountbatten described the reconstruction at the opening ceremony, where he represented Britain.

The church was gutted by fire during Nazi air raids in 1940, and remained an empty shell until Westminister College made the offer to re-erect it. The whole operation cost one-and-a-half-million dollars.

To commemorate the dedication, President Nixon has ordered a gold medal to be struck for presentation to Lady Churchill. There will be 10,000 silver and bronze duplicates.

A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Leta Boudreau, Mrs. Joan Landry, Mrs. Iris Samson and Mrs. Lorraine Forester.

Pictures were taken during the evening on this special event by Mr. Rudolph Landry.

At the close of the evening Mr. Anthony Samson graciously thanked Mr. Doucet for attending the meeting and for making the presenation of their charter in the name of the "Social Action Club."

A gift in token of the appreciation of the Club was presented to Mr. Doucet by Mrs. Iris Samson, Secreary of the Club.

Mr. Doucet in his usual graceful manner expressed his thanks and pleasure at being in attendance at the meeting.

An enjoyable evening was spent by everyone.

SALT OF THE EARTH NOTES

The History of Kissing

Scientists think they have tracked down the origin of kissing. They say it began because of a craving for salt.

A caveman discovered that he could cool off on a hot day by licking his neighbour's cheek. According to one source he soon discovered it was a lot more fun if that neighbour chanced to be a female.

About that time he forgot all about salt. Do you believe that?

AN OLD FRIEND HEARD FROM

Mrs. John L. MacLean of Santa Ann, California, sent us a note recently informing us that her husband has been in ill health.

Mr. MacLean, is a native of Oban, Richmond County and left home when only a boy and took up residence in the U. S. A.

Mr. MacLean was an annual visitor to Cape Breton up to a few years ago and it was always a pleasure meeting him on these trips and although he left Oban many years ago, he never lost touch with his Highland Cape Breton and enjoyed visiting the haunts of his boyhood around the South Side of West Bay, on the beautiful Bras d'Or Lakes.

The kindness shown us by Mr. MacLean and the recent letter received from his good wife brings back pleasant memories of a sincere friendship which has endured for many years.

We extend good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. MacLean and the little poem that follows is dedicated to Mr. MacLean and we are sure it will remind him of his Cape Breton home:—

A WOOD AND A PATH

(By Lillian M. Weeks)

I came upon a litle path
One golden autumn day,
And followed it a mile or more
Along its winding way.

It loitered through the leafty woods
Then wandered down a hill;
And paused awhile beside a pool
Made by a rippling rill.

It leaped across the tiny stream
And wound among the trees,
It cared as little where it went
As a gentle summer breeze.

It poked its head out of the woods
And saw the big highway,
And then it vanished out of sight
Before my eyes that day.

NOVA SCOTIA BOTTLE CLUB

Just one year ago bottle collecting was practically unheard of as a hobby in Nova Scotia, except for a small group of zealous collectors in the Halifax area. The result of this unusual hobby was the publication early this spring of the book—"The Bottle Collector" by Azor Vienneau of Halifax. Because of the success of this book and the great amount of interest in the first major bottle display in the maritime provinces which opened at the Dartmouth Heritage Museum this spring. The museum is sponsoring the establishment of a Nova Scotia Bottle Club.

To get the club started bottle collectors, beginning or advanced are invited to drop a line to the Dartmouth Heritage Museum, Dartmouth, N. S., indicating what bottles they may have for sale or trade and/or bottles they are seeking to add to their collections. By the end of October a newsletter will be published by the Museum, and mailed to everyone who writes in, containing news of interest to bottle collectors and the names, addresses and collection details of fellow collectors throughout the province.

7 3/4%*

Our second biggest interest.

Our biggest interest is you.

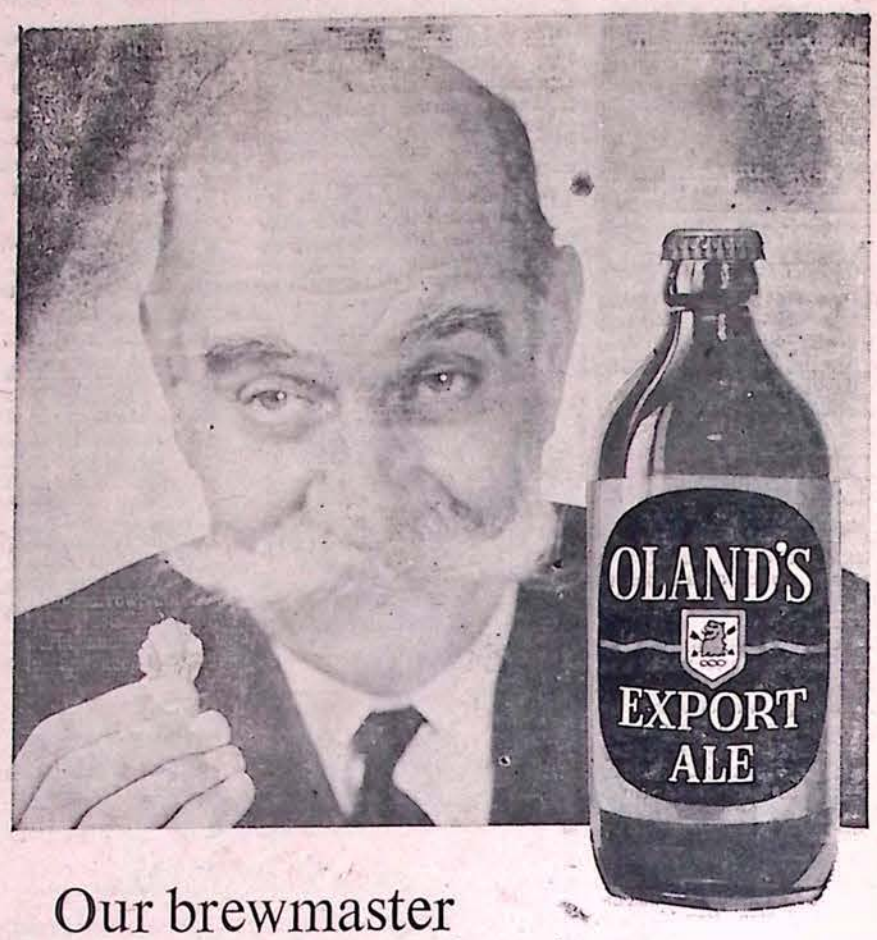

Our biggest interest is never paid. We give it away for free. Because it's the kind of interest you can't measure in percentage points. The interest we take in you when you ask our help with your problems.

Of course we pay high interest on your savings, just like any bank. That's only natural. And the longer you leave your money, the more interest you get. That follows too.

When you think about it though, a bank should give you both kinds of interest. The Royal Bank does. Come in and see.

*This rate applies for term deposits of over two years Equally, you can earn maximum bank rates on term deposits for shorter periods Ask, too, about our Bonus Savings Accounts and our Regular (chequable) Savings Accounts at any branch of the Royal Bank.

We like to look after you at the ROYAL BANK

Our brewmaster keeps one hop ahead

Hops give ale its bite... the ale flavor you want. Hops from England or Austria. Hops from California or British Columbia. And it takes an expert to blend them.

Our brewmaster. He blends the hops for Oland's Export Ale, and he does all the other things that make Oland's 'Ex' happen. It doesn't take days. It takes weeks.

The way our brewmaster figures it, if he keeps at least one hop ahead of the rest he's got the jump on the best ale around.

Oland's Export...the expert's ale

Meet 'McQueen' New TV Hero

In the new McQueen series, to debut on CBC-TV this fall, Ted Follows (centre) stars in the title role of a fast-talking newspaper-man who helps people solve their problems through his daily column The Actioneer. McQueen mixes comedy with drama during its 26-week run. Executive producer is Ronald Weyman, the man who guided Wojeck and Quentin Durgens, M. P. to success on CBC-TV in former seasons.
